On the one hand, the State is losing the revenue from tax and death duties, and this will become a serious deprivation as more owners quit themselves of their liabilities by handing their estates over to the Trust.

On the other hand, there is an increasing disposition to ask whether the great houses and the manor houses cannot be put to some more public use.

Are they to be turned into museums, showplaces; are they to be let to suitable institutions or competing tenants; or are they to remain in the occupation of the families who have lived in them for generations?

Open spaces cannot be put under a glass case. Those owned by the Trust are likely shortly to be transformed into great national parks on the American model, subject to Government ownership or control.

The National Trust is almost entirely independent of the Government. It has no official subsidy of any kind.

Its properties, belonging in the widest sense to the nation, shared by every citizen, are administered by elected committees, national and local.

This may strike people from overseas as an anomaly, something which, as I have written before, could only exist in Britain. But it has worked well, and our visitors now, and in future generations enjoying freely and forever the great beauties of nature, unspoiled by man, should remember the National Trust, which first ensured their preservation.

Aussies Tell Of Mass Beheading Of Chinese People

Brisbane, Sept. 19 (Reuters)—Liberated Australian prisoners of wad who have arrived from Singapore told of mass beheading and torture of Chinese men and women.

C. M. Barmon, transport driver from Grafton, who will testify before the atrocities commission after being a prisoner for 3 1-2 years, said the Japanese forced him to drive trucks full of Chinese civilians to execution.

"The Japanese stripped women, tied their hands behind their backs and wired their noses to fences," he said.

"Girls were taken to brothels. Women were executed for stealing milk or any food, which they were driven through starvation to do."

Shortage of Wines Down Under

Australian champagne manufacturers are suffering a headache which has none of the usual joyous antecedents of a hangover, says a Sydney Morning Herald correspondent.

They cannot take advantage of the enormously increased demand for their wine, or hope to profit by a greatly expanded post-war market overseas.

Besides quota restrictions on sales and shortage of skilled labor, the champagne maker now faces the serious situation created by bad seasons in every grape-growing district in Australia.

Since the war the consumption of Australian champagne has doubled owing chiefly to the thousands of Americans who were open-handed hosts, industrial workers no longer on beer incomes, and the cessation of imports for three years. No one can estimate the demand, but the public thirst for champagne seems inexhaustible.

At first it may appear that a lack of sparkle at formal functions through shortage of the most effective means of breaking down Anglo-Saxon reserve is only a minor tragedy, but the shortage of wines for export, if sales of wool overseas fall off as many expect, will be felt indirectly by even the soberest citizen.

Enemy occupation eliminated France as a competitive exporter and left the markets in India, the Dutch Indies, New Zealand, and the Pacific Islands to Australia. Japanese conquests of course greatly narrowed this field. But the Pacific, Great Britain and Canada will now be open to the Australian exporter if he has the wine to sell.

At the beginning of the war Australia champagne makers had two years' supplies, but ever since they have been living on reserve stocks which have now mostly been used. Firms will accept orders for overseas shipment, but one of the biggest in Sydney has not yet been able to send to India 50 cases ordered last October, and all large orders have to wait.

Opportunities of developing post-war markets for Australian sparkling wines cannot be seized unless something is done quickly to help production of the necessary grapes. There has been talk about irrigating the once fertile Hunter Valley, where grow grapes for champagne and other sparkling and still wines which excel practically all their European prototypes except the few really high-grade productions which seldom reach Australia. Any irrigation scheme should be designed primarily to help the wine industry.

This year the Hunter River district reached the lowest level of production ever recorded, and practically the only districts at present producing the right grapes for champagne are Minchibury near Sydney, Great Western in mid-western Victoria, and the Clare district of South Australia.

Curiously enough the black pinot grapes are chiefly used for champagne. After the juice has "racked" or, transferred from one cask to another over a period of eight or nine casks are blended before bottling.

In the bottle added champagne yeast sets up a secondary fermentation. After having been stacked horizontally in maturing cellars, each bottle is inserted neck down into a hole in a rack from which it is taken to be shaken up at frequent intervals and put back at a more acute angle. Bottles are handled 200 times before dispatch, the sediment in that time having been shaken down gradually on to the cork. At Minchinbury, 117,900 bottles are turned every day, and at present 2,000,000 are undergoing maturation.

COMMONS HEARS

Democrat alike, are called by number and treated on the same footing."

"If the number comes out, the holder is inducted in the services if he is not entitled to an exemption, and these exemptions are clear and well defined. But if his number is not drawn, he can still attend to his civilian duties and walk around in mufti, without taking the risk of having a white feather planted in his lapel by some patriotic but irate old maid."

War Leaves Scars.

The war had left its scars on Canada and "one of the ugliest of these scars has been caused by the very nature and progressive degree of our participation."

"Let us call a spade a spade. The conscription issue has been used again, as in 1914-1918, by unscrupulous politicians to foster their own petty personal political advantage. Through it racial and sectional animosities, not wholly extinguished before the war, have been rekindled and thus national unity and interracial harmony, which are so essential to the welfare of Canada, have been seriously impaired."

By almost "imperceptible degrees" the government had succeeded in imposing conscription on Quebec and by the result of the election June 11 the people appeared, though possibly unwittingly, to have approved the principle of conscription.

For Home Defence Only.

(During the war Canada did not impose conscription for overseas service. Men were conscripted for home defence only and only 16,000 of the 90,006 in the ranks of the home army were made available for service overseas. This was done last autumn during the reinforcement crisis when an Order-in-Council was passed authorizing the sending of 16,000 home defence troops to Europe as reinforcements. Few got into action.

Besides his suggestion on conscription, Mr. Heon urged a "gentleman's agreement between the Boards of Strategy of political parties" to ensure or at least facilitate the election of party leaders at general elections.

"We all know what a general election means to a party leader" said Mr. Heon. "It involves speaking engagements and conferences with party brain trustees across the tremendous distances of this Dominion in a very short period of time; the adjustment of innumerable clashes, differences and frictions among the faithful in various provinces, constituencies and even villages, with the inevitable result that the average leader will be lucky if he is able to spend 24 hours in his own constituency. That gives his opponent or opponents a tremendous and unfair advantage.

"The evil of this situation has been abundantly shown, I think, by the predicament in which the Prime Minister found himself recently; and I am serious about this.

"Here was the leader of a party which had secured the largest number of votes, the man who thus was Prime Minister designate of his country; yet when he signed at San Francisco on behalf of Canada he was a defeated candidate who had been denied a seat in the House where the nation had expressed the desire to see him direct and lead the government of the day."

Had By-Election

Mr. King had to go through a by-election in order to gain a seat in the House.

At his election Mr. Heon pledged himself to "fight sectionalism, racialism and religious fanaticism wherever I find it," he closed with an appeal that "war wounds be forgiven and forgotten" and that war-created quarrels and dissensions be stopped.

Wing Cmdr. Skey said that in his constituency during the federal election campaign there was exploitation of faith and racial questions. Class consciousness was raised and yet there should be no sympathy for that sort of thing in Canada.

Canada's new citizens know what the Dominion should have for the future. They know Canada should have a free exchange of goods with other countries, an exchange of cultural things, and free and open travel and press facilities.

He believed servicemen would want members to make a fearless approach to Canada's problems. They would want the members to be leaders in practicing national unity.

Wants RCAF Minister

He suggested that the RCAF be kept under a separate minister for at least two or three years to get that force "straightened away to peace." The Throne Speech had intimated it was the government's intention eventually to put all services under one minister.

Mr. Belzile said it was not just a coincidence that crises and depressions in Canada had come under Conservative governments. The Liberal governments were responsible for Canada's growth as a nation.

Dr. Laurendeau called for the setting up of a world organization that would attempt to discover a cure for cancer. He urged adoption of "O Canada" as a national anthem.

Mr. Moore said that poverty and unemployment were essential to the efficient working of the capitalist system. Only through socialism could they be eliminated, without socialism there would be another depression with mass unemployment.

LIFE IN NAGASAKI AFTER ATOM BOMB BLAST

This Japanese family moved back to the spot where their house stood before the devastation created by the atom bomb unleased on Nagasaki Aug. 9. Right in the centre of the rubble they constructed this crude shack from pieces of tin they found lying around. The mother and her son are eating their usual meal—rice. More than 18,000 buildings were completely destroyed and 26,000 persons were killed.

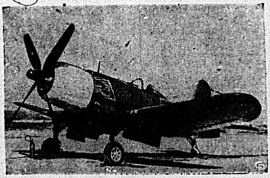
Mark Charlton of Toronto, Ont., and Vancouver, B.C., rolls out the 10-foot barrel at Sydney, N.S., in which he proposes to cross the Atlantic. The 29-year-old native of Cambridge, Eng., and Canadian army veteran, is making final plans for the trip which he hopes to start in a few days. The solid oak craft, to which he will attach a sail to assist in the crossing was made "somewhere" in Ontario." He will take along his motor-bike for ballast. Sailing 18 hours a day, he hopes to reach England in 40 days.

THESE SIGNATURES MAKE IT OFFICIAL

Missouri in Tokyo Bay. At top is the signature of Foreign Minister Manoru Shigemitsu, who signed for Government and Emperor; below is that the Gen. Yoshijiro Umezu, who signed for Japanese Imperial Headquarters; at bottom is the signature of Gen. MacArthur. He signed with four pens, one of which went to Gen. Wainwright; one to British Gen. Percival; one will go to President Truman and the Missourian will have one as a permanent souvenir. The historic official documents were presented to President Truman in Washington.

NEWEST U. S. NAVY FIGHTER UNVEILED

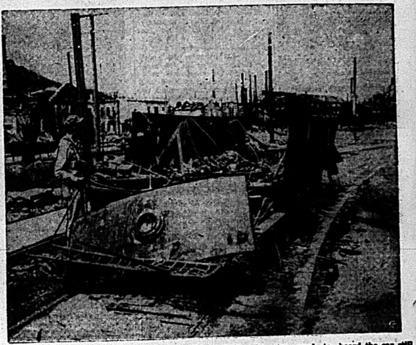


If the Japs hadn't called it a day when they did, they would have had to reckon with this new fighter plane, known as the F2G, which was produced by the Goodyear Aircraft Corp. at Akron, Ohio, for the U. S. Navy, under the strictest secrecy. Existence of the plane has just been revealed. Limited production will continue. The F2G which has a rate of climb half again as fast as that of the latest jet plane, is faster than its sister ship, the FG1, which set transcontinental records of better than 420 miles an hour earlier in the summer. It is equipped with specially designed vertical tail surfaces, including automatic auxiliary rudder and a 370-degree bubble canopy.

LIBERATED FROM JAP PRISON CAMP

U. S., British and Canadian prisoners of war, who were liberated from the Narumi Daito prisoner-of-war camp, hold an American flag as they arrive at the Araie railroad station, where the Japs brought them to be picked up by navy craft for hospitalization and return to their homes.

STREET-CAR FLATTENED BY ATOMIC BOMB



This street car, caught on the tracks when the atom bomb descended on Nagasaki, was flattened right down, with only portions of the sides left upright. The step used to board the car still stands (right). Blasted buildings in background attest to the devastation.

Potomac, condemned by the late President Roosevelt as being unfit for sea duty, will be retired, overhauled and returned as a coast guard patrol boat.

Flt. Lt. Keon Tells Kiwanians of Life In a Prison Camp

"Canadian prisoners of war were better off than any other nationality because of the flow of Red Cross parcels," said Flt. Lt. M. S. Keon, who spent two years in German prison camp, in speaking to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. Mr. Keon completed a tour of operations, escaped two serious crashes and then joined the Pathfinder squadron and in that squadron was shot down over Stettin in 1943. He wears the gold Albatross of the Pathfinder squadron and also the gold insignia of having to bail out over enemy territory. Among his medals are one from the Swiss Legation for assisting in organizing sport in the camps in which he was located. He had a very interesting and some time humorous story to tell of life in a prison camp. He was introduced by Jack Trudeau and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Reg. Hinchey.

Best Navigators.

Flt. Lt. Keon stated that the Pathfinders Squadrons contained the best navigators and best equipment in the R.C.A.F. and on completing a tour, a member could either become a ground instructor or go to the Pathfinders and "as I wanted to fly I went to the Pathfinders." He stated that the Pathfinders could fly in 100 per cent fog by aid of the Cathode tube. He explained there was terrible panic aboard his plane when it was shot down in flames and that he was definitely afraid when he landed on a small island in Stettin harbor. "It was necessary," he said, "to bomb Stettin because of the tremendous supplies at the docks ready to go to the Russian front and the raid on the night when I was shot down left the city and harbor in smouldering ruins."

Two Hours on Island.

The speaker said that he was two hours on the island before the Germans came and he was taken to a jail where intelligence officers that had lived in America and spoke perfect English interrogated him for hours. He was an N.C.O. at the time and he was told to tell the Germans he was just posted and did not know anything about Operational Training Units.

He stated he was submitted to a "sweat bath" and that is really something. He described the food stating the bread was made of 15 per cent sawdust and potato flour. The speaker stated he was taken to Barff by box car and put in a prison, 24 to a room and stove in each. The Russians had built the prison and it was a work of art. They filled the stoves with tar and when they were lighted, fires were started, that burnt down nearly all the camp. "The Russians were treated shamefully" said the speaker, "and they would nearly tear each other apart trying to get food and cigarettes that were thrown them He said the commandant of the camp was a brigadier and if anyone escaped he was immediately sent to the Russian front and that was worse than death for these officers.

Sent to Lithuania.

The speaker was then sent to Lithuania in solid freight trains and that was a miserable trip and because the Russians were feared the prisoners were moved to Poland and then to camp 357 north of Hanover. He told of the coming of the Tobruk Rats and how they hid in a stove for four days bribing the German guard with cigarettes and how after Liberation Day, they roamed the countryside trying to get something to eat. The address was most interesting and entertaining and showed in some small measure the hardships of the Prisoners of War in Germany.

The club will hold a party at Roblin's Lake next Wednesday with "Spike" Pryke and Mrs. Eddie Logan as co-chairman. Jack McVeigh presided at the luncheon with Maurice Button as fine collector and Ted Schwab as song leader. Bill Navin presided at the piano and sang a solo "Don't play Bingo Tonight."

SHOPGIRLS TEST NYLONS

London —(CP)— To the envy of other women, employees of six British hosiery firms are to receive about 15,000 pairs of sheer nylon hose. The employees will report on wearing qualities of the stockings.

PAY CHEQUE LURE TO BRITISH WOMEN IN POST-WAR JOBS

London, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Seven and a quarter million British women who have been mobilized for compulsory war work—many in their first jobs — will have to decide in the next few months whether they want to go on collecting pay cheques every week or go back to mopping floors and doing dishes.

And just what they will decide is anybody's guess, according to a rather cautious spokesman for the ministry of labor.

"It would be a brave man who would try to predict what women are going to do," he said. "I could guess that two out of three women will go on working, but it wouldn't mean anything and anybody else's guess would be as good as mine.

Every woman in Britain from 18 to 50 had to register for war work. The highest mobilization figures were 6,729,000 in industry; 470,000 Ats, Waafs, Wrens or nursing services and 80,000 in civil defence as air raid wardens' firewatchers.

Civil defence workers already have been demobilized, uniformed services are now down to little over 400,000 and after VE-Day married or single women with household responsibilities, women wishing to join husbands coming out of the service or women over 60 were permitted to leave industry.

Before the war, he said, the number of women workers was about 4,750,000 as compared with 7,250,000 during the war. He says:

"They've had a taste of it now and know what it's like to get their money at the end of a week. Lots of them like it."

Gradual Transition

He said there had been no prediction when compulsory "war work" would be discontinued and the uniformed services demobilized but that it would be done gradually and would depend on what happened to employment in the next few months.

Among projects proposed to the ministry of labor to help the problem of employing women, he said, was one to make domestic service more attractive by having a union for domestics of better wages and better hours.

During the war, women have held all sorts of jobs and had little choice in the matter.

Those born from 1918 to 1923 were conscripted for either services or munitions work. Others were permitted to volunteer for services but were conscripted for industry with the women's land army as alternative. Whatever jobs they held, from bus conductresses to aircraft workers (and they were all compelled to hold some kind of a job unless they had children under 14 or were physically unfit) they were placed there by the ministry of labor. The spokesman explained:

"But if a woman refused to take any of the jobs offered we would direct her to one — serve her with legal notice advising her of the job and telling her to report at a certain place at a given time, or otherwise there would be a 100 pound ($450) fine and 3 months in prison."

Women physically unfit for such jobs as factory work, he said, were placed in other jobs, such as telephone operators or even bar maids, but this was all done thru the ministry of labor.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Sept. 20 —(CP)— When Johnnie Maffre of Outremont, Que., climbed into Spitfire "AU-P" at Utersen airfield, near Hamburg, and took off for England it was the last official act of the R.C.A.F.'s 421 fighter squadron.

He was the only remaining operational member of the famed Red Indian squadron in the formation of 17 aircraft ferried out of Germany at the break-up of the outfit. All the other fliers had been scattered by postings home or to occupation squadrons.

The Red Indians were formed in Digby, Lincolnshire, on April 9, 1942. When the unit disbanded, only four "near-originals" who had joined the squadron in June of that year could be found. They were Sgt. G. E. Montgomery of Sherbrooke, Que., Cpl. Bernard Miller of Barrie, Ont., LAC. R. W. Morehen of Toronto, and Cpl. L. G. Newberry of Archive, Sask.—all of them aero-engine fitters who kept the motors purring through three years of war.

A post-war Caterpillar—badge of airmen who save their lives by parachute—has been earned by Flt. Lt. Edward Gardner of Windsor, Ont., Spitfire pilot with the R.C.A.F. Grizzly Bear squadron in Germany.

Gardner did plenty of "ops" before VE-Day and managed to stay out of trouble except for one or two flak holes in his kite. Then, when leading his section on a practice flight over England, his engine cut out at 16,000 feet.

"I had plenty of altitude, but I could feel the heat building up in the cockpit, so I decided I'd better get out," he said.

He parachuted, got caught in the branches of a tree, pitched head first to the ground, missed a spike fence by inches—but was unhurt.

A Canadian-piloted R.A.F. Liberator of the Indian Ocean Air Force has set up a new endurance record for southeast Asia by remaining airborne twice round the clock and covering a distance equal to that from Vancouver to Panama.

Flt. Lt. J. A. Muir (3511 West 15th Ave.) Vancouver, flew for 24 hours 10 minutes on patrol over the sea, jungle and mountains. The mission, interrogation and meals combined to keep fliers out of their beds from 7 a.m. one day until nearly midday the next.

"We had not set out to create a record," Muir said. "Dodging the bad weather prolonged our patrol. Except for an odd half-hour's doze we were all awake during the trip. The monotony of flying for hours over an empty sea can be very tiring, but I think it was the thrill of knowing we might set a new record that kept us on our toes."

Patrols of 22 hours and round trips of 3,400 miles are routine with Liberators on general reconnaissance sorties over the Indian Ocean and Malaya.

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 20—(CP)—With word-master Winston Churchill as leader of the Opposition and tempestuous Herbert Morrison as Government House Leader, Westminster braced itself for storms when the new Labor government took office.

Now Westminster has subsided back into its historic calm. The debate has been a model of politeness, with Mr. Churchill and Mr. Morrison, as well as Prime Minister Attlee, often indicating complete agreement. The only untoward incident was caused by the irate Sir Alan Herbert (Independent), humorist and novelist of note, who flung a bundle of private bills on the floor rather than on the table when he felt private members were receiving less than their fair share of the time of the House.

Crowded galleries have watched the Labor government settle down into harness, dragging a load of international and domestic problems so heavy that it evidently has some sympathy from Mr. Churchill who knows full well how heavy such a load can be.

The 640 House members, many of them new to Whitehall, are finding the gilt wearing off the gingerbread of election victory. They are demanding a change in catering arrangements at the House, with many Labor members protesting they cannot afford two meals a day at present rates, which are at least four shillings (90 cents) a meal. The House Kitchen Committee, in response, probably will consider forming a new dining room for a two-shilling meal or reduce kitchen expenses by charging to the establishment account the wage costs for the two days a week when parliament does not sit.

London newspapers have made mention of the dilemma of Gandar Dower, Conservative member for Caithness. During his campaign, in which he defeated a Labor opponent by only six votes, Mr. Dower said that if elected he would resign immediately the Japanese war ended and fight the seat again on a peace program. He now is reported to be considering what he should do.

Supplementary Grant To Married Veterans Attending University

Ottawa, Sept. 20 (CP)—A supplementary grant of $5 a week to married veterans compelled to leave their homes to continue their education at a university was announced by Veterans Minister Mackenzie.

The supplementary payment had been in effect some time for a veteran taking vocational training. The minister said that "in many cases" it would be impossible for the veteran to take his wife and family with him and thus would be forced to maintain two homes.

The grant also may be paid to single veterans maintaining a home or other dependents for whom a dependents allowance is being paid by the depadtment.

Under the present educational plan, a married veteran with a wife but no children going to university receives $80 a month. His tuition and all other similar expenses with the exception of books are paid.

COMMUNITY HONORS TWO SULPHIDE SOLDIERS

Tweed—Corporal Melvin Card, Canadian Forestry Corps, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Card and Pte. Fletcher Deline, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Deline, Sr., of Sulphide, were welcomed back after five years overseas.

Melvin's Scottish bride, Doris, of Nairn, Scotland, and young son Jeffrey, were also welcomed at the same time.

A liberal sum of money was presented to the boys and each thanked the Sulphide people for parcels sent to them during their lengthy stay away from home, also the Canadian Red Cross and Tweed Business Women's Club.

An entertaining program was given with Mr. Harold Varty as chairman. After dancing, refreshments were served.

ENROLLMENT DEFERRED

Guelph, Sept. 20 (CP)—Officials of the Ontario Agricultural College announced that enrollment in the second, third and fourth years of the college will be delayed until Oct. 13 because of a shortage of labor and materials required to reconvert the administration building, college residents and classrooms occupied by the air training school during the war.

WANTS TO END FIFTEENTH MARRIAGE

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 19 — (AP) — James Williams, 61, wants to terminate his 15th marriage but not with a divorce. Williams filed a petition in district court yesterday seeking to annul his Aug. 2 marriage to Augusta McGary who he said left his home Sept. 5. On the same day, he told police, $920 was missing from a hiding place in his home.

Woman Testifies She Used Butcher Knife for Defence

Cochrane, Sept. 20 (CP)—Mrs. Henry Ronalds, charged with the murder of her husband July 31, testified in Supreme Court here yesterday that her husband knocked her to the floor three times before she picked up a butcher knife in self protection. The Crown alleges that Henry Ronalds, a farmer of nearby South Porcupine, died of stab wounds made by a butcher knife.

Interrupting her testimony with weeping, Mrs. Ronalds said that in the struggle her husband took the knife from her, but as she wrenched free she pulled his hand. She denied that she saw the knife penetrate his neck, but, seeing him bleeding, called the police.

She said the cause of the quarrel was that her husband wanted their daughter, Margaret, to watch the children at his aunt's house and that she said the girl did not have to go.

Earlier her 10-year-old son, Sonny, said his father had refused to let Mrs. Ronalds leave the house that night. Mrs. Ronalds admitted that her husband objected to her drinking and had had her put on the prohibited list.

BACK TO KILTS

London—(CP)—Highland regiments which have borne the indignity of khaki trousers during the war, soon may return to kilts. The War Office has said that the return of Highland kilts is "under active consideration."

BUTTERFLY DAMAGE

London —(CP)— Serious damage to plants of the cabbage family in Southern England is threatened by white butterfly grubs. Both large and small varieties of the grub are reported unusually prevalent.

Forrestal Asks For Powerful Peace-Time Navy

Washington, Sept. 19 (AP) — Post-war control of the seas with a navy capable of "delivering atomic bomb attacks" was urged today by Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal before the House of Representatives Naval Committee.

Testifying on legislation to determine the size of the peacetime navy, Mr. Forrestal said the key to future victory and to the freedom of the United States "will be in the control of the seas and of the skies above them."

Specifically, he recommended:

An active fleet, ready for battle, consisting of approximately 300 modern major combatant vessels including 11 battleships, 15 aircraft carriers including three 45,000-tonners, 21 escort carriers, 20 heavy and large cruisers, 39 light cruisers, 176 destroyers, 40 destroyer escorts and 90 submarines in addition to supporting craft.

All the battleships, carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines would be new ships completed since 1940.

A laid-up reserve of seven old battleships, 22 carriers built since 1940, 58 escort carrieres, 14 heavy cruisers, 19 light cruisers, 191 destroyers, 257 destroyer escorts, 110 submarines and supporting craft.

Mr. Forrestal and fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, were called as principal witnesses at the hearing.

GUAM TO BE NAVAL BASE

Guam, Sept. 19 — (AP) — The big United States naval base at Guam, developed after capture of the island from the Japanese, is to be maintained by the navy for future use of the Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet whenever required. With main fleet headquarters already moved back to Pearl Harbor, navy officials have disclosed that the vast installations here will be left intact.

Chicago Cubs Gain Ground But Tigers Falter in Quest For Cub-Tiger World Series

Bobby Feller Allows but One Hit in Beating Detroit While Cubs Win in Ten Frames From Cards

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Prospects of a fourth Detroit-Chicago world series hit a snag today with the Tigers faltering before Bobby Feller's one-hit shutout pitching.

The Cubs held up their end of the bargain as Hank Borowy broke the Cardinals' "hex" with a 4-1 decision in 10 innings in St. Louis. It was the ninth victory for the former Yankee whom Larry Macphail sold to Chicago for a reported $70,000 "because he couldn't win after July 4."

If Chicago does hit the pennant grade, much credit must go to Borowy who has lost only two games since leaving New York in late July and holds two important decisions over the Redbirds. Counting his American League triumphs, Hank now has a total of 19 for the year.

Just when it appeared certain that Billy Southworth's world series champions were going to cram another shutout down the throats of the Cubs, needing only one more out in the ninth for a 1-0 verdict, Andy Pafko ruined George Dockins' day with a tying single. The National League leaders then went on to score 3 times in the 10th on only one base hit for their fifth success in 19 meetings with the Birds.

It's now three games from Chicago on top to St. Louis in second place with only nine to go, an overwhelming advantage as the two clubs go into the final game of their all-night series at Sportsman's Park.

Not So Happy

Things were not so happy in the camp of the Detroit club which saw its American League advantage over idle Washington shrink to a single game after the 2-0 shutout by Feller's Cleveland tribe. Jimmy Outlaw's Texas League single in the fifth inning savèd the Tigers from the humiliation of having a no-hitter thrown against them in the thick of the race.

One long clout by Fort William's Jeff Heath, his 15th homer of the year with one man on, was the difference between Feller's near-perfect job and a combination three-hitter offered up by Les Mueller, George Caster and Tommy Bridges.

If the Senators can sweep all 5 remaining games, the Tigers must take five of seven to tie or six to win.

Yanks Beaten Twice

Most important of the lesser major league games played yesterday were the two contests in the Yankee Stadium where St. Louis sunk the Yanks twice, 6-5 and 4-3, both times in 10 innings. The results left New York three full games out of third place threatening them with a fourth-place finish for the first time in the regime of manager Joe McCarthy.

Boston swept both ends of double bill from Philadelphia Athletics, 11-10 and 3-0, and Washington and Chicago were idle.

Brooklyn strengthened its third-place margin in the National by nosing out New York Giants 5-4. Johnny Hutchings pitched his first complete game since July 15, tossing Boston to a 4-0 shutout of the Phillies. Pittsburgh and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

Grimm to Depend On Old Baseball Axiom for Win

By JERRY LISKA

St. Louis, Sept. 20 —(AP)— Charley Grimm's pace-setting Chicago Cubs tonight will depend upon surprising Ray Prim, 38-year-old southpaw, plus an ancient baseball axiom to douse the National League pennant hopes of the pestiferous St. Louis Cardinals.

Grimm planned to gamble again in the rubber game of a three-tilt series on the strategy that gave his club a 10-inning 4-1 triumph over the Cardinals last night to boost their lead to three full games.

The stunt eventually caused the Red Bird portsider's downfall, but only after two were out in the ninth with the Cubs behind, 1-0.

The Bruins are assured of at least a two-game margin when they return to Chicago Friday to tackle eight more games, the same number the Cards will have left to play. Another Cub triumph tonight would leave the Cards four games behind, needing to win eight in a row to tie the Bruins if they only broke even in their eight games.

TORONTO LEAFS LOSE IN TENTH TO NEWARK BEARS

Portner Hits Home Run With Two on to Win the Contest 6 to 5

(By The Canadian Press)

Third baseman Mike Portner stepped to the plate in Newark last night in the 10th inning of the sixth game of the Bears' semi-final International League Governors' Cup series with Toronto Maple Leafs. Two men were out, two were on base. Toronto was ahead 5-3 and the series seemed all but evened at three games apiece.

The Merriwell finish, one of the most exciting ever seen in the league play-offs, gave the Bears the game 6-5, the series four games to two and the right to advance into the finals against the winners of the Montreal-Baltimore semi-final bracket, in which Baltimore leads 3-2.

The fifth game of that series also was decided via the home-run route last night, also in the overtime 10th inning, when Sherman Lollar, 1945 league leading champion, drove a hard smash into the stands with one man on base. His hit broke a 4-4 tie and gave the Orioles the game by a 6-4 score. The sixth game will be played in Montreal tomorrow night, with Baltimore holding a 3-2 edge in the series.

But the drama in last night's play-off games was packed into the Toronto-Newark meeting. Crowd of 7,085 watched the stocky Portner send the Bears into the finals after the Leafs had evened the score at 3-3 in the 8th inning and taken a two-run lead in their half of the 10th.

While Portner stole the thunder, Newark's outfielder Hal Douglas was the game's batting star, hitting safely in his five appearances at the plate. His fifth safety started the Bears rolling in the 10th. Then with two men out, an error by Vern Theole opened the door for Portner's game-winning clout.

Drews Gets Credit

The victory went to Karl Drews who took over in the 10th. Curt Johnson, who had relieved veteran Luke Hamlin, was the loser.

Toronto got off to an early start by scoring a run in the first inning. The Bears evened the count in the second and drew ahead with a pair of tallies in the fourth. The Leafs knotted the score with a two-run rally in the eighth on a walk to Thoele, a hit by Chet Morgan, two passes and an infield hit. Their two runs in the overtime 10th seemed to assure the Leafs of tying the series until Portner came to bat.

Lollar's home run in the other semi-final game also came with 2 men out. His smash into the left-field stands broke up the contest, in which the Orioles led 4-0 at one time only to have the league champions tie the score. Johnny Podgajny, who relieved Geo. Hooks in the seventh inning, was the winner. Tom Warren, Johnny Gabbard's successor, was the loser. The victory was Podgajny's 3rd of the series.

Knocked Out of Box

Baltimore took a 3-0 lead in the third inning when Frankie Skaff homered and made it 4-0 in the fourth. The battling Royals began to catch up in the sixth when Stan Breard got Montreal's first hit. Roy Nichols walked and Warren, pinch-hitting for Gabbard, singled. Breard scored when Johnny Corriden forced Warren at second. Nichols got home on Red Barrett's single.

The Royals knocked Hooks out of the box in the seventh, Roland Gladu doubling and Gus Brittain singling. Then a single by Breard, two walks and another hit, by Warren, tied the score until Lollar's game-winning drive in the 10th inning.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Columbian Squires took off this afternoon for Bowmanville where they meet Toronto's Mount Carmels in the third and deciding game of the semi-final series of the junior O.A.S.A....The O.A.S.A. softball set-up seems to be a screwy affair with decisions made one minute and another the next..This corner was informed that the game was to be played in Peterborough and published information to that extent... Whether it's the team managers or the O.A.S.A. officials who is at fault cannot be ascertained at the moment but someone should settle down and develop a mental stability or else get out of the thing altogether....We're getting a bit tired of being fooled and fooling the sports public through no fault of our own....If the O.A.S.A. is at fault, which we doubt, or team managers persist in kicking the gong around on dates and whatnot, we don't want to hear any more squawks from teams anent the non-appearance of the fans..It's about time some people took into consideration the fact that the future of the game relies on public support, and the Joes and Janes who contribute to the game should get some consideration....The fans will play ball figuratively, if the teams play it on the diamond, but they are getting fed up with the way some team managers arrange things to suit themselves without giving out any information to the public and rave because there is no attendance....It just don't make sense....For the sake of the game will some people please make up their minds—and put a padlock on them....Nuff sed.

If the Squires win this afternoon, efforts will be made to postpone the first game of the final series for the junior Ontario softball championship until Wednesday of next week. The first game between the winners of the Belleville-Mount Carmel semi-final was scheduled originally for Saturday, Sept. 22 but the Squires management feel the all-important titular series follows too closely upon the heels of the third and final semi-finals fray...They have been advised by O.A.S.A. officials that their request will be given full consideration.

THE POINT ANNE squad leaves for Cobourg on Friday where they will take on Oshawa Mayfair Lanes in the third and deciding game of the second round Intermediate "A" O.A.S.A. playdowns....The Ox Pointers kicked the second game away in Oshawa last week and had they played ball instead of showing the Oshawa fans how crude they could be afield, might now be awaiting the next team..According to reports the Oshawa squad played over their heads in Point Anne in the first game when they dropped a close decision by virtue of a ninth inning error..The Mayfairs operator 777 tells us they not produce the same brand of ball in their own backyard as they did in the foreign pastures of Point Anne....So on neutral ice, so to speak, the Point Anne's lowly in Oshawa's estimation, should dispose of the highly touted Mayfairs....And here it is again.The Oshawa sports scribe announces in his Tuesday column that the game is being played in Cobourg at 5.30 p.m. THURSDAY..A few minutes ago Point Anne officials phoned this pillar that the game was called for FRIDAY at 5.15..No wonder sports editors go nuts, or sumpin ....Later....It was explained a few minutes ago that the game is definitely set for Friday.....It appears that after the publication of the Oshawa Times other arrangements were made to coincide with Cobourg's wishes regarding their diamond..Incidentally, the grapevine has it that the Ox Pointers will take along Leo Goyer, just returned from overseas who was a member of the Canadian army softball squad that won the championship of Italy....Scared, Oshawa?

RAY GETLIFFE 31-year-old pro hockey player recently sold to Detroit Red Wings by the Montreal Canadiens has hung up his skates for good—"Getting too old" was his comment...He paid tribute to the Canadiens team saying "they always treated me swell" He has taken a position as sales manager for a Montreal firm....Thirteen years ago today Gar Wood piloted his "Miss America" speedboat over a measured mile at an average speed of 124.91 statute miles per hour. The Silver Fox of speedboatdom eclipsed Kaye Don's mark of 119.75 m.p.h. set on Loch Lomond, Scotland in 1931....Incidentally, the grapevine has it that nautical engineers will be in town in the near future to lay out a measured mile on the bay on which several world's records will get a jolt.... More later....Picton is talking regatta again now that the piping times of Peace are here....That Rotary club show held off Massassaga Point some years ago, was tops in regatta circles in this part of Ontario....Speaking of boating someone had a pip of a speedcraft exercising on the bay on Sunday. Could it be Lloyd Hicks He hasn't forgotten how to drive that "Baby Rugone".... Nor for that matter has the missus....And so to Bowmanville to put the jinx on the Mount Carmels—or vice versa...Thirty.

Canadian Sport Snapshot

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 20 —(CP)— Secretary-Treasurer Wes Brown extended a $1,200 account for football boots and launched Business Manager Jim McCaffrey on a tearful tale of football financing that reduces Bob Benchley's famed "treasurer's report" to a petty-cash level.

The scene was the Landsdowne Park dressing-room of the Ottawa Rough Riders, where McCaffrey directs behind-the-scenes expenditures of one of the gridiron's most lavish spending machines. Twelve C-notes for 60 pair of football boots seemed an exorbitant item, but McCaffrey finally admitted the money had to be spent.

"We couldn't get football boots in Canada," he acknowledged. "When we completed arrangements with a firm across the border the boots came to around $20 a pair, counting duty, sales tax, exchange and so on."

McCaffrey estimates it takes more than $60 to equip a player for game. He breaks the outlay down like this:

Boots $20.

Sweaters $4.50 each plus $1.50 for numbers and crests.

Helmet $6.

Hip pads $6.50, elbow pads $3, and shoulder pads $8.50.

"I've tried to encourage the boys to bring their own underwear, but they never get around to it, even though it costs us $1 for a shirt," McCaffrey told Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick. "Still, it's a bit better than when they used the long woollies."

Even at that, players still need bobby socks, which cost the club 60 cents a pair.

Operating expenses, equipment, travelling and sundries will cost Rough Riders about $13,000, McCaffrey estimates. It costs $1,200 for a trip to Toronto, Hamilton will take $1,300 and Montreal about $500.

"It's a terror what some of these football players charge for chewing gum," said McCaffrey. "Their regular bills for chewing gum have me so I can't look at the stuff now, even though they say it's good for the nerves and teeth."

The committee of experts gave this as their suggested bidding:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 S	2 D
2 NT	3 S
4 S	Pass

That first round of bidding is excellent. But their second bids must have been picked up in some lottery joint. Where else would they get that stuff?

They use inferences, plastic valuation, rule of eight plus, reverses, levels, zones, cue bids. I'm surprised they leave out such things as the relativity theory and nebular hypothesis.

Horse Sense cans that stuff. It tells you the order of choice of bids is T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump. Follow that guide and it gets you the correct bid with any hand in any round.

A takeout comes before an assist or no-trump bid. Thus, no-trump denies any more assists or takeouts. Consequently, their south second round two no-trump bid is wrong. South has a rebiddable spade takeout.

They can give me the argument that it will not change the final result in this case. But I'm telling you what is right in every case.

They can give me the argument that partner can infer what south has from the two no-trump bid. But why make partner infer what can be told to him directly?

No-trump is a bid to use when there is no suit bid to make. Even experts could learn that from my Horse Sense bridge booklet.

Louis to Retire If Beaten Badly By Billy Conn

By ELAINE KAHN

Pittsburgh, Sept. 20— (AP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Louis says he'll retire from the ring if Billy Conn beats him badly enough when the pair finally get around to their title meeting.

"It all depends on how I lose" said Louis. "If it's a close fight and I lose, I'll fight a rematch. But if I lose bad and I figure it's because I'm too old, I'll retire."

Then, says the Brown Bomber who is sporting a brand new hairline mustache, he'll go to California because "I like it there."

"Conn is a rough man," says Louis. "He looks good and he's put on some weight. No question about it, he's also a much smarter fighter than when we last met in 1941."

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press.)

In a tight struggle in the Women's division of the National Softball tournament at Cleveland last night, Toronto Croftons tasted defeat when the Rex Hanover nine from Gastonia, N.C., emerged with a 1-0 decision, scoring the lone tally in the fifth stanza of the seven-innings tussle.

Twirler Alma Wilson for the Canadians allowed only three safeties but the losers connected only once for a hit and committed two errors.

Detroit Tigers, now leading the American League by a solitary game, were reported last night to have received nearly 300,000 applications for World Series tickets for a Park which seats 58,000. If the Bengals win out, the first four games will be staged in the motor city starting Oct. 3.

The opening round of the British pro golf tournament at St. Andrews, Scotland, yesterday saw Cpl. Charles Ward of the R.A.F. take a one-stroke lead over Bill Branch. Ward was the only starter in a field of 160 to match par 73.

After making a two-victory start in the National Softball tourney at Cleveland early in the week, Toronto Tip-Tops were blanked 4-0 last night by the Zollners from Fort Wayne, Ind.

Recently released from the Canadian army, left-winger Joe Bockstael of Winnipeg was added to the roster of the Toronto N.H.L. Leafs yesterday. He had been on the player list of Chicago Black Hawks for three years.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press.)

Bobby Feller, Indians: Held Detroit to lone Texas-league single by Jimmy Outlaw in 2-0 victory over league leaders.

Frenchy Bordagaray, Dodgers: Singled home Ed Stevens in seventh-inning spurt to down Giants, 5-4.

Bill Nicholson, Cubs: Hit pinch-hit single broke 1-all tie in 10th inning, scoring two mates in 4-1 triumph over Cards.

An Explanation To Sporting Public of City

The Columbia Squires after tying the series with Toronto, on mutual agreement by both managers, agreed to play the third and deciding game in Peterboro, on Wednesday.

On Tuesday night, the executive were notified by O.A.S.A. representative, Mr. Simpson, that Toronto would not go to Peterboro, but that the Belleville team would have to play in Bowmanville. On Wednesday night, they were again notified that there was no diamond in Bowmanville, and that the game would be played in Oshawa. This requires a 30 mile drive from Toronto and 90 miles from here. Telephone calls to O.A.S.A. officials were to no avail and the game must be played in Oshawa. If the boys beat Toronto and go into the finals with Hamilton they will have done it the hard way. Is this another S.A. or is Mr. Feaver in Hamilton case of Toronto running the O.A. the secretary? Your guess is just as good as ours.

Loser Objects to Hold Watson Applied to Win Second Fall of Match

"Moose" Earl McCready had an excellent chance to wrest the British Empire wrestling crown from the brow of "Whipper" Billy Watson Wednesday evening at the Hume Arena but he became too aggressive for referee Bert Maxwell and that worthy official disqualified him after each wrestler had obtained a fall. McCready had Watson in a bad way in the middle of the third fall, he working on the bad arm of Watson, but he could not forget the "Unconscious Hold" that the "Whipper" applied to secure the second and evening fall. McCready claimed that the hold was illegal and argued long and loud with the referee after he came to, that the hold had strangled him. Maxwell tried to argue the point that the hold was applied to a nerve in the neck which completely "blacks-out" the victim.

Applies Own Hold

McCready was very insistent, that the referee did not know what he was talking about and when the third fall started "the Moose" applied a strangle hold of his own that left Watson writhing on the floor with pain. Leaving that method of attack, McCready went for Watson's arm, the hold by which he won the first fall. Watson did not take kindly to the treatment and roughed McCready a bit but Earl came back with his stranglehold and Maxwell "put the finger on him". McCready continued to punish Watson and Maxwell had nothing to do but disqualify him. The fun then started. Whitey Hewitt came into the ring to argue with McCready that Maxwell had taken the only course open to him and the fat was in the fire. McCready turned loose all his power and craftiness and Hewitt and Maxwell went sailing out of the ring.

Flattens Both of Them

Both promptly came back into the ring but McCready took the both of them on and applying the stranglehold on each one left them flat on their backs in the ring. A large crowd gathered about the apron but police quickly quelled the exuberants and they wended their way homeward still believing that McCready had been given a raw deal.

Al "Bunny" Dunlop provided the fireworks of the evening when he took "Whitey" Hewitt over the jumps in quick order. The Toronto grappler was not fooling and Hewitt was given a real going over before he said uncle. "Bunny" found time to have his little argument with the audience and stirred up quite a furore but Dunlop is only pleased when the crowd is against him. He used everything known in the book on Hewitt and at times had him gasping for breath.

Len Hall Wins Easily

Dr. Len Hall, who is a main bouter on any card met a tartar in Jim Kolonis in the semi final match but Hall with precision and dispatch got rid of Kolonis. Hall went to work on the big fellow from the opening bell and in a few minutes had him in a bad way. Gouging, arm locks and head spins were commonplace and soon Kolonis did not know whether he was in the ring or back in the next concession. After he was well softened up, Hall flattened him with a body press after fifteen minutes. There was a large and enthusiastic crowd in attendance and the whole show was better than ordinary.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 19

"I don't know exactly but there are any number of things a girl's clever fingers can learn to do. There are training schools and personnel officers to help you."

She Runs From Room

"You mean that I should go into a factory and work on air planes or ships?"

"I think it would be your salvation," he assured her, "as well as a great load from your sisters' shoulders. Hazel wants to get married and that will leave Marta with the main part of the responsibility. It isn't fair to her. The situation has never been fair to her."

"That's what really matters to you, isn't it?" Folly flared with the cold, pitiless light of a new understanding illuminating his speech. "It isn't what happens to me. You don't care what becomes of me so long as I get out of Marta's way. No one cares about me any more. No one," she repeatedly bitterly and ran from the room.

Hilton pacing the floor hesitated on the verge of stopping her. No, he had had his say. He would not weaken the effect by sympathizing. Somebody had to take Folly in hand before she ruined her life as well as Marta's. Maybe it wasn't any of his business. Maybe Marta would be angry with him when she knew it. But if ever a kid needed to wake up; to grow up it was Folly. If even a little of what he had said penetrated her lovely little head he would be grateful.

She Runs Away.

He imagined the wilful child had thrown herself upon her bed to cry but he was mistaken. Folly was crying but she was not lying down. She had been depressed to the verge of despair before Hilton's words had swept her over the edge into action. Dragging out the new suitcase which had been bought for her honeymoon she filled it with clothes. Another smaller bag was packed with cosmetics. The pale blue suit and hat were left conspicuously in the closet.

"I'll show him," she thought. "I'll show them all. Let Hilton explain to them if he can why I ran away from my own home. Let him see who matters most to Marta."

Nevertheless underneath all her anger and shame was relief that something was boing to happen to her again. She had not been Grandpa's favorite for nothing. There were depths in Folly which had never been touched. Unexpected resources of courage and ability which were waiting for an emergency which had at last arrived.

Folly's plans were definite. She could wait until Hilton had gone to bed before Marta or Hazel came home she would slip from the house. Chan in his room at the rear of the garage would hear nothing. She would leave no note. No one would know what had become of her. Since she was a weight around their necks as Hilton had convinced her she would go out of their lives completely.

From her vantage point at the top of the stairs she could see down the long hall to the door of grandpa's room. When the light went out beneath it Folly waited only long enough to put on her coat and hat, took the suitcases in her hand, and stole quietly down the stairs.

On Her Own.

Although the lights were on she had the feeling that some one, Chan perhaps, would clutch her shoulder and demand to know where she was going. But no one stopped her as she opened the front door and went down the steps. The garage doors were open but Hilton's car was still there. No one stepped from the shadowy interior to plead with her. No one cared, Folly reminded herself, what became of her. From now on she would be truly on her own.

She had about thirty dollars in her pocketbook. Her monthly allowance from Grandpa's estate and ten extra dollars she had saved from the month before. She should be able to live a long time on that. Perhaps until they found her. . . She had at this moment however an intense desire to escape not only from the house and everyone in it but also from herself.

Walking rapidly she boarded a bus on Divisadero Street, transferred to a Geary car and arrived eventually at a small hotel for women. Even in her despair she had retained enough common sense to be sure of where she was going. Child she might seem and actually be to others but she was too smart to go to any questionable place to spend the night.

Changes Her Name.

It was very simple to check in as Jane Anne Tucker, which was a part of the name she had been christened. She gave her address as Santa Barbara because that place occurred to her in connection with Bruce Potter. Safe in her small, neat room she had a feeling of complete detachment from the Folly Wainwright she had left behind. Tomorrow she would make other plans. Tonight she would go to bed and sleep. The fact that she did so without shedding a tear should have proved something but the new person she had become did not bother to figure it out.

Meantime, Marta, finishing her work in the control room of the Fourth Interceptor Command was surprised to find Hilton waiting for her.

"How nice!" Marta sighed, sinking into the seat beside Hilton. "I am tired tonight. I was dreading the thought of the long ride home."

"I'll come for you every night if you will let me," he said so tenderly that Marta had to remind herself again not to take him too seriously.

"That's sweet of you," she admitted. "But I couldn't let you do it. You have to be up so much earlier in the morning than I do. It wouldn't be fair."

How was he going to tell her, Hilton thought. "It's probably putting the cart before the horse," he said clumsily, "to tell you that I love you but I do. I would do anything to make life easier for you."

Marta sat up.

"Why the sudden affection?" she demanded. "What brought this on?"

"It isn't sudden," he denied. "I've been in love with you for weeks. You must have known it."

Tells Her of Folly.

Did he mean it? Marta's pale face lifted gratefully to the cold fresh air. Her eyes gray and wide gazed searchingly into the honest face of the man beside her. But before she could speak he continued unhappily, "I'll admit my telling you so tonight is sort of abrupt. There is something else I ought to tell you first. . ."

"I knew it," she sighed. "What has happened now? It isn't about Folly, is it? Oh, Hilton, she hasn't tried to get in touch with that awful man?"

"The truth is we had an argument tonight," the man confessed. "I attempted too plainly perhaps to tell her how selfish she is being to think of no one but herself. I only wanted to waken her ambition and a feeling of independence. She was so sorry for herself she had forgoten that she too has duties to fulfill."

"No more than I would have said to my own kid sister under similar circumstances." Hilton said anxiously. "Somebody had to make Folly snap out of it. For her own sake as well as yours."

Marta's voice was dangerously calm.

Finds Empty Room.

"Don't you think you were assuming a good deal to take that responsibility?"

"Maybe. But it's only because I love you. . ."

"I'd rather not talk about love just now," Marta replied.

They drove in silence to the house and the nearer they came to it the more Hilton's heart ached for her. When they reached the drive she climbed out saying "Thank you for coming after me. Goodnight!" And walked with dignity up the steps, unlocked the door, and ascended the stairs to Folly's room.

A moment later she was flying down them again, pale as a ghost, crying, "Hilton, Folly is gone. She has taken her new suitcase and the small bag but she left the suit and hat I bought for her. Oh, Hilton!"

He was standing at the door of his room which had opened the instant he had heard her call and he did not look surprised.

"It's probably the best thing that could happen to her," he declared.

Marta sank weeping into a chair.

Hilton to Find Her.

"How can you say that! My poor baby, where will she go? What will she do?"

"Hasn't she any money?" he inquired.

"See here, Marta, I've more faith in Folly than you have. She is almost 20 years old. You have told me many times she is too discriminating to pick up with strangers or behave indiscreetly. Isn't it just possible that the child has taken the first step toward finding herself? Can't you let her alone for a little while and give her a chance to prove it?"

Marta's glance at him was one of violent disapproval.

"No," she sobbed. "This is your fault, Hilton Wood! And it's up to you to find her."

With that final word on Marta's part she had gone upstairs. When Hazel came in later she reported to Marta that the light was still on in grandpa's room.

"He's probably worried," Marta said wearily. "And he ought to be. Folly has taken her clothes and run away because of the things he said to her tonight."

"Run away?" Hazel repeated. "Do you mean that she has actually left the house? And you don't know where she is. What have you done about it?"

"Nothing yet. I wanted to talk to you about it first. She hasn't money enough to go very far. Do you think we ought to notify the police?"

Against Search

Hazel's expression was serious as she said thoughtfully, "No, I don't. Folly is old enough to take care of herself. She is old enough to live where she pleases. If she wants to leave here that is her privilege."

"You sound like Hilton," Marta cried exasperated. "Is it possible that you are going to take his side against me?"

"It isn't a question of sides, dear! We must try to look at this thing impersonally. Folly has been very unhappy lately. She is becoming a neurotic in a big way. It might do her a lot of good to be on her own for awhile. Even if she does make a few mistakes."

Suffered Constantly With Sour, Acid, Upset Stomach

Even Lightest Foods Gave Him Trouble with Indigestion, Gas Pains, Bilious Attacks and Headaches, Tells of Splendid Relief by Taking Syntona.

"Nobody but myself knows how much trouble I have had with stomach distress and indigestion during the past few years," says Mr. George Adamson, Mount Elgin, Ontario.

"It got so bad that even the lightest foods upset my stomach and brought on belching up of hot, sour liquids. Gas attacks followed every meal, often lasting for hours. I'd get bilious spells which would be followed by splitting headache. I didn't care whether I ate or not. I was not sleeping at all well at night and was always taking some sort of laxative to keep my bowels moving.

"That is the condition I was in a few weeks ago before I began taking Syntona. I got some of this medicine because so many people were recommending it and it wasn't long before I could tell it was helping my digestion. The gas, sourness and acid risings grew less and less as I continued taking it. Now I can enjoy my meals again without any distress afterward. It got my bowels moving smoothly and regularly for the first time in years. I haven't had any bilious attacks or headache since. I am sleeping so much better at night and get up in the morning feeling fully rested.

"I know there must be a lot of people who suffer as I did and I certainly recommend that they try Syntona."

Syntona is the ideal system tonic .. especially good for anyone suffering as Mr. Adamson did and good, too, for anyone at this season of the year. It is made from the finest grade herbs and roots which aid in the elimination of excess acids and poison waste material and promote better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Exhibits Display Not Dignified Says Speaker

Ottawa, Sept. 20—(CP)—Speaker Gaspard Fauteux said Wednesday in the Commons members should not display exhibits during the course of their speeches. He said it did not contribute to the dignity of Parliament.

His remarks were based on two recent instances, the display of two samples of peaches, one from British Columbia and one from the Niagara district, by George Cruickshank (L, Fraser Valley) Monday night, and the display of a suggested Canadian flag last night by Dan McIvor (L. Fort William).

"If the display of merchandise in this chamber became common," he said, "an atmosphere scarcely in keeping with a parliamentary institution would be created."

He said the proper place for exhibits was before committees of the House.

EXPERTS STUDYING

The wire also said that railroads now are refusing to handle cars of meat because of congestion.

In Kitchener, Ont., butchers said that unless rationing is abolished they will refuse to sell meat after Sept. 24.

The Quebec branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association met in Montreal last night and recommended that the government inaugurate a publicity campaign urging everyone to observe meatless Tuesday and Fridays.

London, Ont., merchants said they will return meat ration coupons and tokens to the Prices Board if immediate action is not taken on petitions, signed by 15,000 consumers in protest of meat rationing in any form and forwarded to Ottawa.

The other side of the question was given, however, in a resolution signed by the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada endorsing meat rationing "as a means of giving assistance to the United Kingdom and the Liberated countries.

Luxurious Villa Of German Spy Now For Sale

Broadstairs, Sept. 20. (CP)—The ravaged remains of a luxurious 20-room villa, furnished like an Oriental palace by a German spy, is for sale.

Suave, dapper Dr. Tester always affected a monocle, boasted that he was a National Socialist and claimed to be British. He bought Naldera in 1933 for £6,000 ($27,000).

Dr. Tester had an international reputation as a mystery financier. British intelligence knew him as a shrewd agent of Himmler. For years, as Naldera with its lighted windows commanding the Channel and the North Sea, became a house of lavish entertainment for the doctor's guests, British intelligence watched it.

The doctor gave way yachting parties aboard his steam yacht Lucinda—lying at anchor two miles offshore in front of Naldera —and it was in the Lucinda that he fled, with his wife and three children, during the tension of Munich.

They sailed from Southampton and the British Navy boarded Lucinda and took her into custody as she steamed through the Mediterranean.

But the doctor escaped. Later he appeared in succession in Belgrade, Athens and Rumania carrying a passport signed by Hitler. In 1944, after he had become Gestapo Chief of Rumania, he was reported shot and killed by a frontier guard in Transylvania.

Broadstairs remembers Dr. Tester as a National Socialist agent who sold Fascist literature in front of an empty shop in the High St.

Ever since he fled his house has remained as he left it. Except for damage and theft. It became the property of the Government custodians of alien property. The army mounted guns in front of the villa and behind it and mined the gardens.

Naldera has been a banned area until recently, yet it has been pillaged and wrecked by thieves. Linen and silverware have been stolen. Stacks of books and the doctor's Fascist union pamphlets clutter all the rooms on the ground floor. Valuable mahogany panelled doors have been shattered.

Two wall safes, however, have defied thieves. The handle has been wrenched off one, but they still hold many secrets Dr. Tester left in them six years.

TORONTO STOCK MARKET

Toronto, Sept. 20. (CP)—Index gains were boarded for the mining groups while industrial issues and western oils were down slightly on the Toronto exchange. Volume was high at 1,267,000 shares by 1 p.m. Nearly one quarter of the activity on the Mining Board was provided by Eldona in the gold group, up 27 at 102. Aubelle continued active, down one at 76 after steeper losses during the morning. Donalda was still active, up three.

Industrial turnover was average. Walkers recorded a new top at 82 1-2. Abitibi Preferred was active in the Papers, down 1-4.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 20 — (AP) — The stock market's advance ran into selling difficulties today although real pressure was lacking in most cases. Losses of fractions to a point or so predominated near the fourth hour.

Canadian issues were quiet and most remained unchanged at midday. Dome Mines gained 3/8 while Lake Shore slipped 1/8.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 20 (CP)—Prices were unchanged at Hull. Barrie and London in baconhog markets reporting early today: Grade A, delivered, Barrie $18.25, Hull $17.75, London plus transportation $17.35. Peterborough, Hamilton and Stratford reported dealers could not quote settled quotations.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 20 (CP)—Cattle were being cleared on the livestock market here today at prices 25 to 35 cents cwt. lower for the week. Hogs were 50 cents cwt. lower. Calves, lambs and sheep were steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 100, calves 50, hogs 250, Sheep and lambs 400.

AIR VICE MARSHAL McEWEN HONORED

Ottawa, Sept. 20 —(CP)—Award of the French Croix de Guerre to Air Vice Marshal C. M. McEwen, former chief of Canada's famed No. 6 Bomber Group overseas, and 48 other Canadian airmen, was announced last night by Air Force Headquarters. The announcement said the awards without citations were accepted by the R.C.A.F.

FAST AIR SERVICE PLANNED

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Swifter commercial air transportation was promised today by four major United States airlines, one of which said it hoped 11-hour New York-to-London service would be ready soon. The airlines said they planned to step up passenger transportation to a 300-mile-an-hour level shortly.

Pan American World Airways said it was aiming at 400 miles an hour later.

Which Will You Produce?
Per Ton of Grain?

Alberta experiments, with best Western grain, show that it takes 1,050 lbs. of grain, fed alone, to take a hog from weaning to market. So 1 ton of grain fed alone barely produces 2 market hogs.

Hundreds of practical Canadian hog raisers, in actual feeding, have taken their hogs from weaning to market on an average of 600 lbs. of a mixture of chop and Purina Hog Chow. THEY market 4 hogs from a ton of grain plus between 3 and 4 bags of Hog Chow—and the 2 extra hogs bring in nearly 4 times what the Hog Chow cost them.

Meat Rationing Protests Continue To Reach Capital

B. of L. F. and E. Urges Modification of System

By The Canadian Press.

Despite word from informed quarters in Ottawa of probable modification of meat rationing to remove fancy meats and perhaps cooked meats from the ration lists, protests against the present system continued to come in from points across Canada today.

At Victoria, meat dealers are determined to close their shops Monday in protest against rationing, despite appeals that they hold off until Oct. 1, Arthur Wheeley, Secretary of the Vancouver Island Retail Meat Dealers' Association, said Thursday.

A resolution asking the government to modify meat rationing regulations was adopted at Ottawa yesterday by the Canadian Legislative Board, Brotherhood of Locomotive firemen and Engineers.

To Eliminate Waste

This action should be taken at the earliest possible date "to eliminate waste in the distribution of meat by retail meat dealers," said the resolution. It further urged that sausages, bologna, spare ribs and other processed meats be exempted from the rationing plan.

Elimination of meatless Tuesdays and Fridays for railway transportation groups at restaurants patronized by railway workers also was requested.

A message of protest was sent to Prices Board officials in Ottawa Thursday night by a meeting of 46 Guelph retail butchers and grocers.

At Ottawa, Thursday Finance Minister Ilsley, questioned by C.C.F. Leader Coldwell about the meat situation, told the Commons today he was considering "a brief speech" during the present Throne Speech debate. The speech would put "some of this information" on record.

Trial Plan Suggested.

Following Wednesday's meeting between cabinet ministers and Prices Board officials with a delegation representing the Canadian Retail Meat Trade when a trial plan of requisitioning meat required for overseas at the processing plants and distributing the remaining meat to Canadian consumers through the regular trade channels under supervision of the Prices Board was suggested.

Those close to the men in charge of rationing felt that some concession be made to the retail merchants.

It was understood that K. W. Taylor, Goods Co-ordinator for the Prices Board, told the retailers at a closed meeting Wednesday that if—it was described as a "big if"—fancy and cooked meats were removed from the rationed list they would find these products more difficult to obtain at the processing plants.

This was taken to mean that the government would tighten up its control at the processing plants diverting more of these products to export channels.

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP) — The three lowest grades of beef will be sold without ration points after Oct. 1, food officials said today.

These grades, known as canner, cutter and utility, are used principally in canned and processed meats, hamburger, sausage and boiling meat. They make up about 20 per cent of the United States beef supply.

Pork, lamb and the three top grades of beef—commercial, good and choice—will continue to require ration points. The three top grades of beef are the cource of most steaks, roasts and other popular table cuts.

The low grades of beef will remain tenchnically on the rationing list, although their ration values will be reduced to zero.

Want Two 'Queens' Switched to Carry Britons From India

Calcutta, India, Sept. 21. (Reuters)—Jack Lawson, Britain's War Secretary, said today many British soldiers in India have asked that the liners Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth be switched from repatriating United States soldiers in Europe to taking home British servicemen from India.

Mr. Lawson said the present role of the liners was determined by an agreement between Britain and the United States, concluded at a time when the rapid collapse of Japan was not expected. He added that under the circumstances Britain would be justified in asking for revision of the agreement.

M'ARTHUR ORDERS IMMEDIATEARREST OF JAP GENERAL

Tokyo, Sept. 21. (AP)—Gen. MacArthur today ordered the "immediate arrest" of Lt.-Gen. Kenji Doihara— whose recent appointment to command Japan's 1st General Army was given Allied acceptance—and issued a 10-point code to guide operations of the censored Japanese press and radio.

Japan's cabinet met meanwhile for three hours to discuss problems which well-informed sources said included mounting food shortages and repatriation of Japanese civilians from Manchuria and Korea.

The newspaper Asahi added another dime-novel thriller to the tales of Japanese surrender-crisis intrigue, reporting former Premier Kantaro Suzuki barely escaped with his life from a band of armed Japanese soldiers Aug. 15. The band, evidently angered by surrender plans, machine-gunned in quick succession two houses from which Suzuki had just departed.

Doihara, once called Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria", was his country's advance agent in its Asiatic conquest.

United States army officers said Doihara had pledged full co-operation and was "courteous and cooperative".

Gen. MacArthur's code for the Japanese press specified that news "must adhere strictly to the truth" and said "nothing may be printed which might directly or indirectly disturb public tranquility."

Gen. MacArthur previously had laid down a set of regulations for Japanese editors. For infractions, he suspended the Domei agency and two newspapers briefly.

Meanwhile American Marines prepared to expand the smoothly running occupation of Japan to the big naval base of Sasebo on Kyushu. The 5th Amphibious Force is scheduled to take over the base tomorrow.

Seventy-year-old Nobuyuki Abe Governor General of Korea from July 23, 1944, until the American occupation, left Seoul for Japan with his ailing wife. He had been given permission to remain in Korea until his wife had recovered sufficiently to travel.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Nimitz, Pacific naval commander-in-chief, announced that the naval blockade of Woleai in the Caroline Islands was so effective that approximately 5,000 of its original garrison of 6,500 Japanese soldiers starved to death. The underfed survivors surrendered Wednesday.

It was announced yesterday the economic policy to be followed by the occupation forces would be designed to give the Japanese man in the street a "break" and teach him to "like democracy." Supervision of rationing, the levelling-off of prices and prevention of inflation was given as the army's objective to head off hunger riots and revolt during the coming winter.

Henry Ford II New President Ford Motor Co.

Detroit, Sept. 21 (AP) — Henry Ford II. today became president of the Ford Motor Company. He succeeds his grandfather, Henry Ford, who simultaneously announced his resignation.

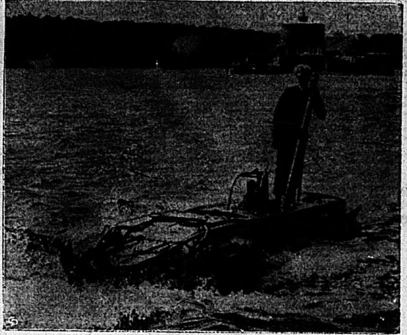
The younger Ford has been executive vice-president of the company since April 28, 1944.

The elder Ford in his letter of resignation to the directors said:

"I hereby resign the office of president of this company, to take effect upon acceptance. I feel free to take this step at this time because the critical period during which I again assumed office has passed. As you know, I have many personal interests to which I now desire to devote most of my time.

"I shall be glad to remain on the board, and to assist in an advisory way .."

MIDGET SUBS CAUSED PLENTY OF TROUBLE FOR JAPS



New pictures, just released, tell the story of the part played by Britain's midget submarines in the British navy's war against Japan. The subs, varying in length from 30 to 50 feet, with crews of three to four, unable to travel more than 10 to 12 feet below the surface, they arrived in Far Eastern waters with an enviable European war record that included the striking and crippling of the German battleship Tirpitz (later sunk by the R.A.F.) Here is a Royal Navy midget submarine, at full speed in Sydney Harbor, Australia, base of the British Pacific Fleet.

By PAUL MILLER

Washington, Sept. 21 — (AP)— Regular 'round-the-world air service, dream of flying men since the Wright Brothers first got off the ground at Kitty Hawk, begins Sept. 28 from Washington National Airport.

Six and one-quarter days (151 hours) will be required for the 23,147-mile flight, scheduled as "the Globester." Planes will leave Washington each Friday.

As the United States Army Air Transport Command made this announcement today it was learned:

1. Service will be restricted normally to military personnel, cargo and mail. However, a civilian certified as travelling in the national interest can make the complete flight for $2,431 plus 15 per cent transportation tax.

2. Later, when the Army can get out of the business and planes are made available, United States commercial airlines will carry any civilian who wants to go.

The departure date is the 21st anniversary of the U. S. Army Air Corps' first 'round-the-world flight of 1924 — a junket that required 175 days to cover 26,345 miles and which was completed by two of four planes.

Commercial planes hope to establish fares that will be much lower than A.T.C.'s current civilian charge.

Here's the schedule:

Washington, New York, to Bermuda, to Santa Maria, the Azores; Casablanca; Tripoli; Cairo, Abadan, Iran; Karachi, India; Calcutta, India; Luliang (50 miles east of Kunming, China); Manila; Guam; Kwajalein; Johnston Island; Honolulu; San Francisco; Kansas City; Washington.

Longest hop will be from Honolulu to San Francisco — 2,399 miles. Longest stops will be four hours at Casablanca, Cairo and Karachi.

GOTHAM EXCELS FABULOUS LAND TO RATION WEARY

Many Goods Found There Which Long Since Disappeared in Canada

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 21 (CP) — War-tired and ration-weary Canadians find this a wonder city surpassing the fabulous land of Oz. Peacetime industry in the United States is barely under way, but Americans still have many types of goods that in Canada are still only fond memories.

While Canadian consumers still line up in block long queues outside stores and movie theatres, New York department stores are packed with $3 shirts, elastic-topped shorts, plenty of fancy rayon stockings and an incredible variety of women's dresses and suits.

Restaurants serve as much sugar as the customer can take with his coffee and some serve succulent roast beef even on meatless days. That's New York in September, 1945.

Many items are still in short supply here and others are unobtainable, but in the shops along Fifth Avenue and the giant department stores around 34th. St. the customer can spend as much as he has in his purse on items not available in Canada.

Milady still can't get nylon stockings but nylon underwear is available in some shops along with two-way stretch girdles. Whereas Canadian clothing counters are scantily stocked with every type of garment, any large store here can supply complete outfits of clothing in a wide assortment of colors, patterns and sizes.

Meat Ration Controversy.

By far the most controversial topic of conversation here, as in Canada, is still meat rationing. The Dominion government's de-

MOST CANADIAN PRISONERS HAVE BEEN EVACUATED

Placed Aboard Ships and Planes En Route to Guam and Manila

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Tokyo, Sept. 21 (CP Cable) — All but possibly small and isolated groups of Canadian prisoners have been evacuated from Japan and now are en route to Guam and Manila.

During the last few days the bulk of Canadians liberated in the Japanese home islands have been placed aboard ships and planes and evacuated. Lt.-Col. M. W. Macnulty of Sherbrooke, Que., head of the Canadian far eastern reception group, has returned to Manila to complete the job of speeding the liberated men to their homes in Canada.

Among the Canadians remaining there are 23 nuns at Sendai who will stay in Japan until instructions are received from their religious orders in Canada. There also are a few civilians of Canadian origin, including one or two women who lost their nationality by foreign marriage whose status and qualifications for repatriation have not yet been determined.

First contact with some groups of Canadian prisoners in remote areas was made by Capt. Ken Woodsworth of Toronto, member of the reception group, who set out on his own with two non-commissioned officers and travelled by train to camps beyond the present beach of the occupation forces.

Capt. Woodsworth was the first to reach Kamaishi area where there were British, Dutch, Chinese and Canadian prisoners. The Woodsworth party, preceded and trailed by Japanese police, obtained sorely needed relief for one group of Chinese who had suffered 50 per cent deaths from illness, hunger and exhaustion.

Belsen Trial

Testifies 4,500 Jews Gassed On Day of Arrival

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Lueneberg, Germany, Sept. 21—(AP)—Dr. Ada Bimko, a Polish Jewess, testified today that 4,500 of a shipment of 5,000 Jews were moved into the Oswiecim gas chambers and crematorium on the day of their arrival at that Nazi concentration camp.

Her voice breaking, she said her parents, her brother, her husband and her six-year-old son were among the victims. She was among 250 women and 250 men of the group who were spared at that time.

She was a witness in the trial of Josef Kramer and 44 S. S. guards on a charge of conspiracy to commit murder at the notorious Belsen camp. Kramer and 11 others were stationed at Oswiecim before being transferred to Belsen.

Sophia Liwinska, 28-year-old Jewess from Lublin, was summoned by the British court to tell of her almost incredible escape from a Nazi gas chamber, coming "back from the dead" after being ordered into the infamous shower room at Oswiecim.

The president of the court, Maj. H. P. M. Berney-Ficklin, upheld a defence objection when prosecutor T. M. Backhouse asked Dr. Bimko whether anyone among the 4,500 put to death on the day of her arrival "had committed any offence other than being Polish Jews."

Dr. Bimko testified German doctors designated the weakest of the Jews to be gassed on hospital inspections in which the prisoners were forced to line up naked.

"Do you know the names of any S. S. doctors who took part in the selections?" she was asked.

Dr. Bimko named five, including one of the defendants, Dr. Fritz P. Klein. Klein was tight-lipped as she pointed him out.

Kramer, labelled "the beast of Belsen," and 11 other of the defendants, in addition to being charged in the Belsen atrocity indictments, also are accused of crimes at Oswiecim, where they previously were stationed.

Luenburg, Germany (CP) — A well-dressed Briton who saw or suffered all the horrors of the Belsen concentration camp told his grim story to the British military court trying the camp commander, Josef Kramer.

He told of bodies of internees piled like jammed logs, guards who spoke only the "language of blows," guards who shot prisoners walking instead of running at their work, cannibalism, starvation, filth and pestilence.

The witness was Harold Osmond Le Druillenec, schoolmaster of Jersey, arrested after the Nazis occupied the Channel Islands and confined in three other Nazi concentration camps before his delivery to Belsen April 9, 1945.

"I think I can fairly describe Belsen as the foulest and vilest spot that ever soiled the surface of the earth," he asserted.

Earlier the court saw 20 minutes of movies showing the appalling conditions of the camp and the mass burial of the thousands of dead found there. Major Adolphus Leonard Berney, British Military Government officer, estimated

GOVT. WEATHERS FIRST VOTE BUT FACES 2 OTHERS

C.C.F. Amendment To Speech From Throne Defeated in House By 193 to 29

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Sept. 21 (CP) — The government, safely past its first test of strength in the new parliament, today was faced with two more before it can get down to the business of presenting the legislation forecast in the Speech from the Throne.

Supported 193 to 29 when a vote was called last night on a C.C.F. motion of non-confidence in the government, the administration still faced tests on similar motions moved by the Social Credit and Progressive Conservative parties.

It was believed that votes on the two remaining motions likely would not come before Tuesday. Many members go away for the weekend, leaving Friday and returning Tuesday, and because of this it is believed party whips will marshall enough speakers to carry the debate through two more sitting days.

Holds 126 Seats.

The government, because it holds only 126 of the 245 seats in the Commons, is interested in having all its members on hand for any vote. The opposition parties, because of the possibility of close votes, also are interested in being at full strength.

The Progressive Conservatives and the Social Crediters joined with the Liberals to defeat the C.C.F. motion, in the form of an amendment to the motion for adoption of the Throne Speech. H. W. Herridge (People's CCF—Kootenay West) and Fred Rose (Lab. Prog.—Montreal Cartier) voted with the C.C.F.

Used Own Body To Shield M'Arthur On Corregidor

Tokyo, Sept. 21 (AP) — The sergeant who sat on a general and not only made him like it but got decorated for it came to Tokyo yesterday to go back to work for his same old boss—Gen. MacArthur.

He is Sgt. Domingo H. Adversario, 42 year old Filipino who was wounded when he used his own body to shield MacArthur during a Japanese bombing raid on Corregidor, December 29, 1941. Adversario was wounded on the forehead and hands—and awarded the Purple Heart—but MacArthur was unhurt.

His new job: receptionist in MacArthur's office in Tokyo, where he takes the names of high Japanese officials wishing to call on the supreme commander.

ONE KILLED IN CAR-BUS COLLISION

Quebec, Sept. 21 — (CP)—One person was killed and eight injured today in a collision between an automobile and a bus on downtown St. Vallier Road.

Killed was Mrs. Joseph Duchesneau, while her husband was seriously injured. The others injured, their condition believed to be good, were all passengers aboard the bus.

Life Editor Says Dewey Knew That FDR Was Forewarned of Jap Attack

New York, Sept. 21 —(AP)— John Chamberlain, an editor of Life Magazine, says in the current issue of the publication that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey knew President Roosevelt was forewarned of the 1941 Japanese attack, but the Republican declined to use his knowledge as a campaign weapon in 1944.

"Dewey . . . was in a position to charge that the President had 'betrayed' the interests of the United States in failing either to forestall of mitigate an attack for which we were, on the certification of General Marshall, not yet ready," Chamberlain said.

"The political impact of such a charge, if supported by the evidence of code-cracking, would have been terrific, and might well have landed Dewey in the White House."

Chamberlain said Dewey learned long before the 1944 election that the United States had cracked the Japanese 'ultra' code "some time prior to Pearl Harbor and that Roosevelt and his advisors knew what the Japanese were going to do well in advance of the overt rupture of relations."

In Albany last night, a spokesman for Dewey said the Governor was not available for a statement.

Herbert Brownell, Republican National Chairman, and banking superintendent Elliott W. Bell of New York State, both mentioned as possessing the information, said they would defer comment until they read the article.

Chamberlain said Dewey's decision to remain silent came after Gen. George C. Marshall, chief-of-staff, said lives would be lost if the Japanese learned the United States had cracked the "ultra" code.

"More than 15 hours before Pearl Harbor, Roosevelt and the members of the Washington High Command knew that the Japanese envoys were going to break with the U. S. the next day," Chamberlain wrote. "The only thing they did not know was the precise point of the military attack, which they assumed would be toward the East Indies and/or at the Phillipines or Guam."

Gasoline Back On Scarcity List In Some U.S. Cities

Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland Feel Pinch as Strike Widens

Chicago, Sept. 21 —(AP)— Gasoline was back on the scarcity list in some sections of the United States today as a strike of C.I.O. oil workers gained headway.

More than a dozen refineries and plants were closed, and others were ready to shut down as workers took strike votes. Emergency rationing of gasoline was ordered in Toledo, Ohio.

As the United States government stepped in to attempt to effect a settlement of the strike started last Monday by the oil workers, the stoppage curtailed gasoline supplies in scores of cities and made idle more than 20,000 workers. Elsewhere across the United States labor disputes kept an additional 200,000 men and women away from their jobs.

The oil strike hit hardest in the Texas Gulf Coast region where 14,000 were idle in refineries and affiliated industries. Another 5,300 were ready to leave their jobs and thousands more were taking strike votes.

The closing of the only remaining refinery in the Toledo area last night resulted in emergency rationing of gasoline for the Ohio city. The Sun Oil Company said it closed its refinery after its workers, although independent, refused to pass picket lines set up by the C.I.O. oil workers. Refineries of the Standard Oil Co., the Gulf Refining Co. and Pure Oil Co. earlier had shut down because of the strike.

Large cities feeling the pinch of gas and fuel shortages included Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

Some 5,000 oil workers in the Chicago-Indiana area were idle by the closing of four refineries and one terminal which resulted in the shutdown of several gas stations. C.I.O. union leaders mapped final plans for the closing of the huge Standard Oil plant at Whiting, Ind., the only large refinery in northern Indiana continuing in operation. The Whiting refinery produces half of the gas manufactured in the Chicago area and workers are affiliated with an independent union.

NEW APPLES

Geneva, N.Y., Sept. 21 (AP)— Apples "as rich in vitamin C as oranges" may come from experiments being conducted at the New York State Agricultural Experimental Station, Director A. J. Heinicke revealed yesterday. He said a French variety of apple is being used in the experiments.

BUY CLINTON PAPER

Clinton, Sept. 21 — (CP)— R. S. Atkey and H. L. Tomlinson, former members of the staff of the Barrie Examiner, have bought the Clinton News Record from G. E. Hall, publisher since October, 1916. The first issue of the paper under the new management appeared yesterday.

Mrs. H. Ronalds Is Acquitted On Murder Count

Cochrane, Sept. 21 —(CP)— A Supreme Court Jury on Thursday acquitted Mrs. Henry Ronalds of a charge of murdering her husband at nearby South Porcupine July 31.

Testifying in her own defence, Mrs. Ronalds told the court her husband knocked her down three times before she picked up a butcher knife with which the Crown alleged he was killed.

She said that her husband took the knife from her in the struggle, but as she wrenched free she pulled his hand. She said she did not see the knife penetrate his neck, but noticed he was bleeding and called police.

She said the fight followed a quarrel with her husband over whether their daughter Margaret, should have to mind children at his aunt's home.

Mrs. Ronalds admitted her husband objected to her drinking and had had her put on the prohibited list.

2½ Tons Sugar, 50,000 Coupons Stolen at Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP) — Between two and 2½ tons of sugar and 50,000 sugar ration coupons were stolen today from a warehouse here by a gang of thieves who loaded the loot on a warehouse truck and drove away. The sugar was valued at $480.

Police say this is the largest sugar haul to be made in the city in several years and it is believed the gang is connected with black market operations.

Municipal and Provincial Police in Ontario and Quebec have been put on the alert to watch all roads for the cream-colored panel truck with "Hanson's Groceries" painted on each side.

Thieves forced open the window of the warehouse with a jimmy and loaded an empty truck parked at the loading platform with five-pound bags of sugar.

The large sheets of sugar ration coupons were stolen from the office, which the thieves used as a lounge room, smoking cigarets and drinking a bottle of whisky. They stole another bottle of whisky from the office.

Thomas Hanson, Jr., said "It is about the 20th time in the past four years that our premises have been broken into. When tea rationing was on we were robbed."

Estimate of the amount of sugar taken was made from the fact that a 2½ ton truck was stolen and police believe the thieves loaded it to capacity.

RFMN. DAVE WELLMAN NOW IN SAN FRANCISCO

Prisoner in a Japanese prisoner of war camp since the fall of Hong Kong, Rifleman David Wellman of Bonarlaw, has arrived in San Francisco, according to a wire received by his mother, Mrs. Jennie Wellman. The liberated Canadian soldier advised his family in Bonarlaw that he would receive a medical check up at Letterman Hospital. He stated he was feeling fine and that he hoped to be home soon.

ASSESSMENT ROLLS BEING DISTRIBUTED

City assessment rolls are now being distributed and the general public is reminded that the 1945 Voters' List for the city will be made from these lists, city officials stated today.

It is pointed out that a large number of people in the city have moved during the present year and some of their names have not been acquired by the city assessor.

On October 15 a copy of the Voters' List will be placed in the office of City Clerk J. Willifred Holmes where it will be available for inspection by the general public.

Citp residents are urged to see that their names are placed on the Voters' List and thus avoid disappointment on election day.

HORSESHOE PITCHING WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Jack Hanna and W. Moore, are the horseshoe pitching champions of the Belleville Fair, at least as far as doubles are concerned. They won from a large field of entries at the horseshoe pitching tournament staged at the Fair on Wednesday afternoon, Chairman Will Leslie announced today.

In second place Al. Everett and Arthur Cainan, both of Belleville, gave the ultimate winners a close battle for titular honors.

Mr. Everett won double honors. He took the singles first prize from another large field of entries. Arthur Morden, Bloomfield, won first prize in pitching eight shoes. Prizes were donated by Mr. Leslie and the directors of the Fair Board.

POLICE COURT

Frederick Crosby, Toronto, billiard table repair man, was acquitted on a drunken driving charge when he appeared in local county police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills Thursday morning.

The charge arose following a motor accident on Trent Road some days ago when the Crosby-driven auto was in collision with a local Canada Transport. Investigating officers laid the charge of intoxication, but evidence brought out by defence counsel John Callahan, of Toronto, showed the condition resulting from diabetic comatose and the charge was dismissed.

Evidence brought out by counsel showed the accused had consumed only two glasses of beer, while Dr. Russel Scott, who examined Mr. Crosby testified to his diabetic condition and stated the condition observed by police could be mistaken for drunkenness.

Gordon Fralick, Foxboro Rd., remanded from Tuesday's court for sentence following pleas of guilty on three charges of passing worthless cheques, was given six months' suspended sentence and ordered to pay costs of $21.50 also to make restitution.

Ralph Pierce, of Picton, paid $5 fine and $2.50 costs on a careless driving count, while Jack Petterson paid the same fine on a like count. Clayton Prest was sentenced to ten days in jail on a drunk driving charge.

Joseph McVicker, Deseronto, was remanded for one week for sentence after pleading guilty to stealing a radio in that village. A second charge of breaking and entering was withdrawn.

Three traffic cases, settled out of court, and three cases of non-support rounded out the morning's agenda.

Three Injured When Car Hits Telephone Pole

Three Belleville residents, employees of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville, are in Belleville General Hospital suffering from injuries sustained when the automobile in which they were driving left the highway near the Corbyville post office and crashed into a telephone pole. The car, police stated, was almost a complete wreck, the right side of the vehicle being practically sheared off.

In hospital are Bruce G. Bankey, 21, 49 St. Charles Street, the driver of the car; Joseph Lupinette, 31, 35 Evans Street, and William Blackburn, age 43, 90 South George Street. A fourth occupant of the car, reported to be Miss Dorothy Semark, suffered a shaking up but was able to return to her home.

The accident occurred just after five o'clock when the afternoon shift at Corby's was let off work.

According to investigating officer Provincial Constable Gould, the Bankey driven car was proceeding towards Belleville when it went into a skid north of the Corbyville post office. Skid marks 69 Yeet in length were observed on the pavement, the marks being observed for another 39 feet where the car crashed into the pole.

This morning police had not yet been able to ascertain from the driver the cause of the accident, while at mid-morning extent of injuries were not known pending development of X-ray pictures, although their conditions were reported fair. The injured were rushed to hospital by ambulance with Dr. MacDonald being the attending physician.

Mr., Mrs. J. Ketcheson Honored By Bethel-Zion Friends on Anniversary

It was a fair day—the eleventh of September, 1894—when the marriage ceremony of Lily May Sayers and John Ketcheson was performed by the Rev. Dan. Williams at the home of the bride, the fine brick residence now owned by Mr. George Dickie.

In commemoration of that event the people of Bethel-Zion community gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson on the anniversary 51 years later. The celebration had been planned for the 50th. anniversary but owing to the illness of Mr. Ketcheson, it was postponed for one year. Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson today are both enjoying good health.

The Ketcheson home was filled with friends on the anniversary to do the honors of the occasion. It was a complete surprise to the two principals but with quickly collected composure they extended a welcome to all.

Mrs. Leo Ketcheson read an address following which Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson were presented with a beautiful floor lamp and a bracket lamp by Mrs. Roscoe Robson and Mrs. Delbert Rowe. Both recipients expressed their heartfelt appreciation for the kind gesture of community friends. Impromptu speeches attesting to the good fellowship and neighborliness of Mr. and Mrs. Ketcheson followed in which references were made to their services in the church and other community life.

Much interested in community work, Mr. Ketcheson has been an untiring worker and Sunday School superintendent and in church work. District cheese factory and school have also benefited by Mr. Ketcheson's wise counsel. Mrs. Ketcheson is a Sunday School teacher, member of the W.M.S. and Women's Institute, and of the Red Cross.

Council Conducts Plenty of Business At Com. Meeting

A number of recommendations passed in committee by the council on Thursday night: will give council members a full night of work on Monday evening when the regular session of the council is held. The city comptroller was authorized to instruct the city solicitor to advise the council as to ownership of the vacant lot at the rear of Belleville General Hospital, which is proposed for industrial purposes and which is claimed to be owned by the W.C.A.

Give $500 Grant.

It was recommended that the city council grant $500 to the Belleville Citizens' Reception Committee to help pay for the erection of a suitable building at the North Station which is to be used as a welcome centre for all returned personnel and the war brides. The special property committee asked that Mary Parks be granted an extension to her building covenant, that George Meades be released from the covenant as the house is 50 percent completed and that H. Leeman be given an extension of his building covenant and these requests will likely be granted on Monday. Ruth Mintz's offer of $25 for lot on Lingham Street was accepted.

Report Accepted.

The engineer's report to advertise the construction of walks under the Local Improvement Act was adopted. The Building By-law will be investigated with a view to ascertaining if it covers all modern conditions as to buildings and if not a committee be appointed to amend the same to avoid building of swimming pools without proper supervision so as to do away with future accidents as recently occurred on the Trakas property.

The comptroller was ordered to take up the matter of park property with the City Solicitor and ascertain what if any of the city property has legally been vested in the Parks-Commission as coming under their jurisdiction and have the information in the hands of the council as early as possible.

The tender of Stanley Carter to repair slate roof on the City Hall at a price of $58.00 was accepted. The Canada Cement Co., of Point Anne, was requested to investigate blasting operations at Point Anne with particular reference to the size of the charges in view of complaints from residents of Belleville, that some recent blasts have resulted in cracking plaster in this city.

It was recommended that the City Comptroller instruct the City Clerk to write the applicant, Owen Roblin, re-sewage disposal facilities on Ridley Street between St. Charles Street and Geddes Street, as the petition was turned over to him by Alderman Clapp and if properly signed to return to the City Clerk's office for consideration of Council.

A committee of Aldermen Trudeau, Armstrong, Wilbur and Clarke was appointed to investigate and report in regard to Engineer Mott's letter, re Ponton Street sewer. The construction of sidewalks on Burnham and Herchimer Streets, Victoria and Dufferin Avenues will be undertaken under the supervision of the City Engineer.

It was recommended that street oiling on north end Dufferin Avenue and Harriett Street, be left over until the Spring of 1946, also the additional oiling on Foster Avenue, be done at that time without further charge to taxpayers of that street. The assessor will be granted special solicitor to present his side of the matter before Court of Revision and Judge's Court.

Kenneth Mastin Found Drowned In Harbor

Reported missing by his mother about noon on Thursday, Kenneth Laurence Mastin, aged 2½ years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orland W. Mastin, 14½ Forin Street, was found drowned in the north end of Belleville harbor near the C.P.R. bridge early yesterday afternoon.

The little lad apparently had wandered alone into Firemen's Park and had fallen into about eight feet of water just north of the railroad bridge. James McCaw, employee of Baragar's tire repair shop, found the body when he went to the harbor to test an inner tube in the water. He saw the body just beneath the surface of the water and notified police.

According to the story told police the little lad had been in the habit of coming to LaPalm's trucking office on Pinnacle Street to ride home to dinner with his father who is a driver for the firm. He was an only child.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home until late Friday afternoon and then at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mastin, 3rd concession Ameliasburg. Funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

FO. TED YEOMANS DIES IN TORONTO

Native of Belleville, Veteran of Two Wars, Served as R.C.A.F. Instructor

Veteran of two wars, FO. Frederick Louis Yeomans, 44, of 321 Lonsdale Rd., died yesterday at Christie St. Hospital, Toronto, after an illness of several months. Since his discharge nine months ago from the RCAF, he had been associated with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Born in Belleville, where he received his education, FO. Yeomans was the second son of the late Dr. H. A. Yeomans. He enlisted in the 34th Battery, CEF., at the outbreak of the First Great War. Transferring to the RFC he served overseas and for a year and a half was a prisoner in Germany. For 19 years following the First Great War, he was an accountant with the Edison Co. in Chicago. He returned to Canada at the outbreak of the Second Great War and enlisted in the RCAF. After training, he joined the staff of No. 6 Link Training School as an instructor.

Surviving are his widow, the former Ina Richardson; a son, Horace F. Yeomans, Toronto; and three sisters, Miss Nina Yeomans and Mrs. I. Haldenby, both of Toronto; and Mrs. F. C. Donald, Montreal.

The body will arrive in Belleville shortly after noon on Saturday and the funeral will take place from the Canadian National Railways station to Belleville cemetery where interment will take place in the Yeomans' family plot.

Americans Have Plenty of Luck On First Trip

J. W. Schoener and party of Milwaukee are not as a rule superstitious but in the future they will treat the number 1 with more or less respect.

It was "first" day for the party of Americans and it brought them plenty of fishing luck. It was their first trip to Canada; their first fishing expedition on the Bay of Quinte; the line was the first out of the boat and the 26-pound 'lunge they caught off Muscote Bay was their first fish—and their last.

It was a delighted trio who reminisced in a downtown restaurant this morning after packing the big fellow in ice preparatory to shipping it home.

The Schoener's have been in the city and county for the past few days and they regard Belleville and district as an ideal vacation spot. They're definitely coming back next year.

"That was the biggest fish I have caught," was the elder Schoener's remark, "and I don't suppose I'll ever catch another like it. But at that, I'm satisfied, especially now that I have the proof of the catch and my friends won't think it just another tall story."

The visitors battled the big musky thirty-five minutes before convincing the fish it was fighting a lost cause.

Interment St. Edmund's Cemetery, Stoco.

GOTHAM EXCELS

cision to re-impose meat rationing was greeted with considerable satisfaction by many New Yorkers to whom I talked—ranging from taxi drivers to restaurant proprietors.

Whatever the situation in New York, the United States, faced with far more serious distribution and supply problems than its northern neighbor, has long suffered from inadequate supplies of meat, especially in the larger cities. Consequently, Americans, hearing reports that Canadians had all the meat they could eat, felt a good deal of resentment.

New Yorkers told me that the problem, as it concerns the metropolis, hits the ordinary householders far harder than the restaurant diner. During a 10-day visit here, I found no shortage of meat or other foods in restaurants, despite current reports in the Dominion that some of the most famous eating houses had been reduced to egg dishes five days a week.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. H. Wagar, 85 Nassau Street, Oshawa, wishes to thank Dr. George Tweed; Dr. Stobie, Dr. Miles, Dr. Dafoe; also the Nurses in the East Wing, Second Floor, for their kind attention during her five weeks in the Belleville General Hospital.

KILLED IN CRASH

Special Govt. Emissary May Visit MacArthur

Washington, Sept. 21. (AP)—A special emissary may soon be sent from Washington to confer with Gen. MacArthur on enforcement of long-range peace controls in Japan.

This was learned today as it appeared that various divergencies in policy were cropping up between what Washington contemplates in the way of a tough peace for Japan and what the Allies Command headquarters in the Islands actually are accomplishing.

One of the latest examples in the approval granted the Japanese to operate various airplane trips between their principal cities for the announced purpose of expediting administration of the Islands. Washington policy had called for no air operations by the Japanese.

A new policy directive on terms of the Potsdam Declaration for the industrial disarmament of Japan is reported to have gone to Gen. MacArthur recently.

Main points of the latest directive are:

1.—Elimination of heavy industries in Japan except those essential to the peacetime economy of the country. This is supposed to be a bare minimum,

2.—Promotion of Trade Unions,

3.—Removal of all ultra-nationalists from positions of power and influence in either private or public life.

4.—Rigid controls of the Bank of Japan.

5.—Enactment of legislation to permit freedom of speech and of meetings as one of the best means of laying a foundation for future Japanese democracy.

210,000 German Civilian Evacuees Yet in Denmark

By HELEN CAMP

Copenhagen, Sept. 21. (CP)—Denmark, finally rid of all occupying German soldiers, still has the problem of 210,000 German civilian evacuees, mainly simple farm laborers shipped from East Prussia and the Baltic last March as Allied armies tightened their pincer-hold on the Reich.

H. H. Koch, permanent undersecretary of State, said "we'll get rid of them as soon as we can" but added that this could not be done before Spring.

Meanwhile the Germans—only a small part of the estimated 7,000,000 to 9,000,000 homeless persons in Europe—are living in Danish schools and other public buildings where the German Army quartered them. They also are eating Danish food.

"We have no lumber to build barracks", Koch said, "and we haven't been able to free our schools. Our children go to school in shifts, some in the morning and some in the afternoon. And it takes a lot of food which we'd like better to send to devastated areas in France, Belgium and Holland".

Many of the refugees, most of them children and elderly persons, were moved from their homes in the path of the advancing Russian armies.

McGill Science Students to Go To St. John's, Que.

Montreal, Sept 21. (CP)—McGill University, with its enrolment swelling to record proportions, announced today that it was forming a new division at St. John's Que., where upwards of 700 students would be accommodated in buildings of the present R.C.A.F. station there.

The station has accommodation for some 800, with hospital, chapel and classroom facilities, and all first year engineering and science students are expected to make the switch to St. John's, 40 miles from here. Junior professors and demonstrators will take up residence with students at St. John's, while a bus service will be arranged for senior professors.

Out-of-town veterans make up a large proportion of the first year engineering and science classes, and the accommodation on the station will relieve the strain on university accommodation in Montreal.

Braved the Elements

The manner in which the people of Belleville and the surrounding country rallied to the support of the Belleville annual fall fair, many patrons coming from far on the third and last day both afternoon and evening, is one of the most convincing proofs of the excellent position the exhibition has earned and holds in the mind of the people of this area. Monday, the opening day, was cool and was scarcely such as might be expected to draw large crowds yet the attendance was good. The second day dawned with such adverse conditions with one of the heaviest and most prolonged downpours of rain in the memory of anyone that the exhibition was washed out for the day and night. The last day threatened rain but none fell and the crowds came to enjoy the exhibition and competition in the halls and stalls, the best in many lines it has been the privilege of the local fair to hold. There was one drawback, that the ever-popular entertainment of horse racing had to be called off and yet everywhere were big crowds for afternoon and evening. They enjoyed themselves despite dampness. This gives some indication of what the fair this year would no doubt have achieved had fine weather prevailed. It would probably have been the greatest of all exhibitions ever held in this city.

The loyalty of the people of the countryside and town and city is an inspiration to the devoted and energetic directors and officers who have been building up the exhibition to the proud place it occupies and are building up to the still greater exhibitions of the future.

The Belleville Fair is well and widely known. The district has confidence in those who are directing this great institution and who compete here and will support it every time. The fortitude of the board in carrying on despite the weather handicap is but a sign that they knew they had the wholehearted support and co-operation of the people hereabouts. The attendance of the last day shows how well placed was that confidence. The co-operation of the Garden Shows and Wallace Shows has been very highly commended for they served a purpose in the entertainment that was furnished to the thousands who were attracted by it.

From the entry and exhibition standpoint the Belleville 1945 fall show was an unequivocal success in horses of light and heavy draught classes, in cattle and other showings, including the dairy branch. It had everything that makes for a fair's success except the weather and that could not daunt either the board or the people.

And a word for the fair crowds—they were genial, buoyant, ready to be pleased and grateful for the entertainment the fair creates and brings to them. They were crowds that are Victory Year crowds. They would not forego the fair even if the elements conspired against them.

More Incriminating Papers

By their own documents the crimes which Hitlerite and Nazi Germans committed in 1938, the year before the outbreak of the war, have been revealed in official letters and reports found in discovered secret files of the Third Reich. The crimes concern the awful pogrom carried out in that year against the German Jews.

Hitlerite Germany in those days of their pride and arrogance could not have had the faintest idea that the power they had built up and so soon were going to hurl against humanity would in the year 1945 be destroyed, many of those in authority in Nazi Germany arrested and waiting for trial as war criminals and others dead such as Himmler. In their brazen confidence they could not have expected that some day documents incriminating them would come to light. Or did they care?

Now it is disclosed that the Nazi leaders' own letters and reports and documents have been found, showing the callousness, hardheartedness and inhuman attitude of the Nazi persecutors of the Jews. How the Nazis themselves could have believed that they would escape punishment here and hereafter for their crimes is difficult to understand for they were the most brutal and anti-social group that history has ever known.

Yet they have gone down, dragging Germany with them. And in Germany today are occupying troops which came from all parts of the earth to wipe out all trace of the monstrous evil of Nazism.

Fortunately for history they could not carry all the traces of their infamy with them. Their crimes were too great, their evidences so numerous that not even the mightiest war and power machine of history engaged in the cause of evil could destroy all incriminating papers. As in a whirlwind the evil works and the perpetrators of wrong and crime went down swiftly.

History will make use of such documents as an object lesson of the evil of Hitlerite Germany.

They Still Need Us

(Christian Science Monitor)

Civilians must not think that because the fighting is over the need has passed for being of service to men in uniform. A petition signed by several hundred soldiers and sailors in the Boston area, asking that the Stage Door Canteen in that city be kept open, illustrates what we mean. Declaring, "We need you more than ever," the petition says:

Now we are faced with the problem of "sweating it out," awaiting our return to civilian life. Our problems at this time need a sympathetic understanding if we are to overcome them, because now we do not have the force of patriotism and a war to win to bolster us, as we did during the emergency. The Canteen can do a very good job of helping us over the trying days ahead.

The servicemen speak appreciatively of entertainment, refreshments, and a place to relax, but what they say is "most important by far" is "to have someone sympathetic to talk to, or listen to, depending on our mood." There are not only many men in land bases and stations, aboard ships still in service, and in camps awaiting discharge or redeployment, but others who need help in greater degree. These are the lads convalescing in the hundreds of hospitals throughout the United States, who often come to the cities on leave. Service centres have an opportunity to do great good here.

Bad War for Prophets

(Ottawa Journal)

Astrologists, numerologists and prophets of various kinds and ages have been caught short in the uncertain yet abrupt ending of the world war. No harmonious sequence such as the 11th hour, 11th day, 11th month of the 1918 Armistice marks Unconditional Surrender Day for the Mikado and his minions.

But the high priests of hindsight and their followers will no doubt recover from their initial shock, devise a few "I-told-you-so" formulae and dig up writings of mediaeval and more recent seers who forecast the end of the conflict with accuracy.

A People's Victory

(Montreal Gazette)

The figures recently made public about the damage caused to English buildings by the bombs of the enemy emphasize still further that for England the war was a people's war. For of the 3,281,953 properties damaged in England by the Luftwaffe, 92 per cent. were places of dwelling.

It is more than ever clear that the morale of the English people was the target against which the forces of the Luftwaffe were hurled. No less is it clear that the victory of England was a people's victory.

Recording a Horrible Example

(Detroit News)

The entire truth of Japan's case needs to be spread before the world and written into history as a preachment, more powerful even than Germany's case, for making a working success of the World Security Charter as the means of preventing future wars. And the whole truth of the fearful havoc release of atomic energy may do is to be told as a preachment for making sure it will never again be used for war purposes.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1945, Edgar A. Guest)

YOU MEN!

"You men!" my grandma used to say
When grandpa wished to have his way.
"You men!" as if male habits are Identical and similar.

"You men!" my mother often said,
And sadly, slowly shook her head,
Implying our peculiar sex
Was born all women-folks to vex.

And there was once a maiden aunt
Who with her sisters used to chant:
"You men!" as if she knew not why
Not one at her had winked an eye.

"You men!" my Nellie says to me,
As if no good in us can be.
"You men! Yes, every Jack and John,
By women must be waited on."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 21st., 1925

Mr. A. B. Collins attended a meeting of the Liberal Association in Kingston yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Fisher are spending a vacation at Drayton, Ontario.

Mr. A. G. Brintnell has left for his home at Lauderdale, Florida, after visiting friends here.

Miss Betty Williams, Isabel Street, has returned home after spending a vacation in Montreal. She will shortly resume her studies at Queen's University, Kingston.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 21st., 1915

At the Village of Foxboro last evening a presentation was made to Mr. John A. Holgate, who is leaving there to reside in Bowmanville. Prior to taking up residence in Foxboro Mr. Holgate resided in Sidney Township and was Reeve of the township for some years and warden of the county for one year. At the last provincial elections Mr. Holgate was Reform candidate for East Hastings and was defeated. Socially he was very popular and a prominent member of the Methodist Church.

The Rev. C. T. Scott, B.A., B.D., pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church, Victoria, B. C., has been invited to become pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church in this city for a term of four years commencing with the next church year. The invitation has been accepted subject to the approval of the Transfer and Stationing Committee. Mr. Scott has a number of friends in this city who know him intimately, among them being the Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, Principal of Albert College; Mr. Geo. F. Stewart, Rev. H. S. Osborne and Mr. F. E. O'Flynn.

Isn't the weather perfectly lovely? Where will you find a nicer place to live than beautiful Belleville in sweet September?

Military Notes: The following of local interest appeared in the last issue of the Military Gazette: Fifteenth Regiment Argyll Light Infantry—Captain and Adjutant W. S. Conger is retired for the purpose of being appointed to the permanent force; Captain J. C. Maclean is transferred to the reserve of officers; Provisional Lieuts. J. A. Phillips and J. W. Kinnear retire.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrow have returned home after spending some time in the West.

Two young men, whose names were not ascertained upset from a canoe off Victoria Park yesterday afternoon during a gale. One of them held onto the canoe, but the other started to swim ashore. He became exhausted and would no doubt have drowned had not William Dumesnil and a companion gone to his assistance.

Last chance to see Harry Lindley at the opera house this evening.

Summer heat has returned: the thermometer registered 86 today.

Ald. N. Baldwin Falkiner is in Toronto on legal business.

Mr. Herbert McDonald, of Bloomfield, is spending few days in the city.

Dr. A. Macaulay, of Frankford, will shortly remove to Brockville.

Mr. John G. Frost, of Tweed, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. D. A. Benedict and family of Foxboro, will shortly leave there to reside in Rochester, New York.

Mr. Frank B. Hagerman, of Pensacola, Florida, formerly of the staff of the Bank of Montreal here, is renewing acquaintances in town.

Mr. David Waters of Owen Sound, formerly of Belleville, is visiting friends here.

Mr. T. E. Diamond, of Chicago, Ill., an old Belleville boy, and his wife and child, are stopping at Hotel Quinte. Mr. Diamond conducts a drug store in Chicago.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why do we have a "best man" at weddings?

The custom of having a best man at weddings is believed to be a survival of primitive marriage by capture, when a man seized a woman and carried her away by force.

He would naturally, under such circumstances, choose a faithful friend or follower to go with him and ward off the attacks of the girl's kinsmen while he stole away with her.

Thus, if this notion is correct, the appearance of the bridegroom with his chief groomsman or best man at the bride's home really represents a prehistoric expedition.

"Best man" is of Scotch origin and probably does not date back further than the 18th century. The earliest use of the term recorded by the Oxford dictionary is dated 1814.

"Groom" is derived from an old root signifying primarily "male child" and secondarily "man," "servant" or "attendant." Groomsmen were originally the attendants who went along to assist the best man or chief lieutenant of the bridegroom.

The wedding or bridal veil is the relic of an ancient superstition dating back to the time of the Greeks and Romans, if not much earlier. It was first worn to conceal and protect the bride from evil spirits that it was thought would harm her if she were not veiled.

"Bridal" in the sense of a wedding feast or marriage festival is not the same in meaning and origin as the adjective "bridal." It is derived from two old English roots meaning "wedding" and "ale." "Bride-ale" is still a historical term. Bride-ales (bridals) were wedding festivals at which the guests were served ale.

Gresford, Denbigh, Wales—(CP)—George Lloyd who died at the age of 102 said on his 101st birthday: "This is a fool of a war but if I met Hitler I would shoot him and be done with it."

Portsmouth, England — (CP) — The Archdeacon of Portsmouth, Ven. H. M. Hyde-Lees, acting on doctor's orders, is resigning the archdeaconry this fall.

London — (CP) — Sydney Bernstein, adviser in chief on films to the British government throughout the war, has gone back to his civilian job of showing films to the public.

London — (CP) — Salvage material from old aircraft is being used in Kenya to produce artificial limbs for wounded African Askaris.

GOVT. WEATHERS

The C.C.F. amendment criticized the government for failing to propose fundamental social and economic changes which alone could meet the pressing needs of the peace-time era, it urged that immediate steps be taken to assure full employment, adequate purchasing power, and a large-scale building program that would provide urgently needed homes for the Canadian people.

Social Credit Proposes Motion

As soon as the amendment was defeated, Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—MacLeod), seconded by Solon Low, Social Credit leader, moved a new non-confidence motion. It was in the form of an addition to the Progressive Conservative motion placed before the House Sept. 10.

The Progressive Conservative amendment accused the government of failing to demobilize the forces on a fair basis; of failing to provide a speedy and effective reconversion plan, and of failing to take adequate action to meet the housing crisis.

The Social Credit amendment added that the government had failed to meet the needs of Canada for a prosperous peace and had failed to provide the country with an effective and scientific financial policy for distributing to all Canadians their fair share of the national production without increasing taxation or the national debt.

Debate Adjourned

J. H. Matthews (CCF—Kootenay East) adjourned the debate.

Calls For Reforms.

In moving the Social Credit amendment, Mr. Hansell called for parliamentary reforms. He said Canada should adopt the American system with a fixed time for elections and with members of the cabinet not being members of the House. He felt that a defeat of a government bill in the House should be taken as a vote of want of confidence and that Senators should be elected rather than appointed.

It was the first vote in the new parliament and with a strengthened opposition, the House returned to some of the gay tension which characterized divisions when parties were more evenly balanced prior to 1935.

There were cheers, singing and desk thumping. As the division bells rung and the speaker waited to give every absentee a chance to get to his seat veteran members on the Liberal side started singing.

Popular Songs Sung

"Home on the Range" got the first call, followed by "Allouette," "There's a Long, Long Trail," "Sweet Adeline" and "My Wild Irish Rose."

Votes were never so close in the last two parliaments that the whips took the trouble to round up their followers.

Last night, Gilbert Weir, Liberal whip, and Claire Casselman, Progressive Conservative whip, searched the lobbies and when satisfied the members were all in who were coming marched down the floor together, bowed to the speaker and wheeled to their seats.

Mr. Coldwell was the first member to register his vote as mover of the motion. Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF—Qu'Appelle) drew a cheer from all sides as she cast her first vote.

Liberals Applauded

A few Liberals who split with the party on the conscription issue a year ago were applauded as they voted in line with the government party.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, received a long burst of applause on giving his first vote as Progressive Conservatives, Social Crediters and Liberals joined up to defeat the CCF amendment.

The two Bloc Populaire members of the Commons — Maxime Raymond, Beauharnois-Laprairie, and J. I. Hamel, St. Maurice-La Fleche — were not in the House when the vote was taken. Mr. Raymond said last week that he and Mr. Hamel would abstain from voting on the amendments because they were worded in general terms and added little to the Throne Speech.

Mr. Green said that Canada's voice should be heard in Pacific affairs. In no area was Canadian policy more uncertain, despite the fact that Canada was the first country to declare war on Japan the situation now called for a strong hand in dealing with the defeated Japanese.

Russia, Australia and the United States were taking their stands in the Pacific, he said.

Vital to Develop Trade

"Everyone knows how vital it will be to Canada to develop a great trade across the Pacific Ocean. Canada should be one of the principal powers in the Pacific, and yet, what is Canada's Pacific policy. Nowhere is our position more uncertain. Throughout the government has been hesitant."

Mr. Reid dealt at length with the records of labor governments in New Zealand and Australia and said that if Canadians studied the facts it would be a long time before the C.C.F. party was elected in Canada, many of the industries taken over by the government in Australia had been returned to private enterprise because the government could only operate them at a loss.

Mr. Wright, Mr. Fair and Mr. Bryce dealt with the government's wheat policy as announced Wednesday by Trade Minister MacKinnon.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

PROTECTIVE FOODS

Milk, egg yolk, cheese, green leaves, vegetables both raw and cooked, peanuts and nuts are the high calcium foods and all of these foods are now classified as "protective" foods because they supply calcium, which the ordinary refined diet so commonly fails to supply in sufficient amount, and they supply all of the vitamins required to maintain good nutrition—vitamins which the ordinary refined diet in America generally fails to supply in sufficient amount for good nutrition.

Owing to the lack of significant amounts of vitamin D in the ordinary American diet (the few items containing any supply insufficient—milk, cream, butter, egg yolk, canned salmon) every child, youth and adult needs a good ration of natural or synthetic vitamin D to supplement the ordinary diet the year around, particularly in the season or in the environment that deprives the individual of the influence of sunlight on the skin.

Thanks to the characteristic ballyhoo of the nostrum vendors, most of whom now sell vitamins to bolster up the old time dope for that tired feeling, the child-minded portion of the population (numbering thirty or forty million morons, the psychologists say) regard a "shot" of vitamins as something that gives one "pep," cures various chronic or persistent ailments or "helps" (as the funny federal regulations insist the spielers say) to build or maintain "resistance to colds"—whatever that may mean.

Whether we are speaking of vitamin D, of the anti-gray hair vitamins, of vitamin B-complex or any other vitamins or of calcium or phosphorous or any other mineral elements, or of iodine as in the iodin let me emphasize that it is food, not medicine, and any improvement in your nutritional state, your vitality or health which you may experience from supplementing your ordinary diet with any of these vitamins or minerals will not last if you stop taking the vitamins or minerals after a few weeks or months and return to the deficient diet on which you developed your weakness, run down condition or impaired health and vitality.

In the pamphlet "The Anti-Gray Hair Vitamins" (copy on written request if you provide stamped self addressed envelope) I say that an increase in vite and sense of well being experienced in the first few months of the course should be taken as a favorable sign. It should at least encourage one to continue taking the vitamins for at least a year. Hair doesn't turn gray over night or in a month. It is unlikely that the graying process can be stopped, much less reversed, in less than a year. Or any other manifestation of premature senility.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Raw Apple For Diarrhea

Please tell me if you have recommended giving young infants raw apple for diarrhea. A neighbor says you did, but I feel sure she is mistaken. (Mrs. H. M.)

Answer — Yes. For acute diarrhea, in infant or child or adult, a diet consisting exclusively of peeled and mashed or scraped raw apple and very weak tea, for a day or two, is excellent treatment. All the raw apple pulp the infant, child or adult wants.

Appendicitis Pain

Several times recently I have had a sharp pain in the right side of the abdomen. It subsides in an hour or two. Is it likely to be appendicitis? (D.C.)

Answer—No. The early pain of acute appendicitis is almost always in the epigastrium, the region of the "pit of the stomach." Only later in the course of the illness is rigidity and tenderness in the right lower quadrant of the belly manifested.

Fumigant to Kill Moths

Some time ago you gave instructions for preparing and using a fumigant against moths.

(Mrs. M. M. C.)

Using six dummies to represent airmen who might have been caught in this spectacular inferno the U. S. Air Transport Command's Ferrying division demonstrates for the first time the use of the new "water fog" method of fighting gasoline fires resulting from plane crashes. This system "puts a lid" on fires by breaking down water into millions of small particles and spreading it over a wide area, thus cooling the intense heat and aiding rescuers to save trapped airmen. The test was made in Cincinnati, O.

Wartime Control Over Group Travel To be Lifted Nov. 1

Ottawa, Sept. 21 — (CP)—Canada will lift her wartime control over group travel and conventions Nov. 1 and tourist authorities already see at least a partial return to the great tourist business which poured $108,000,000 into the Dominion in 1941.

Lifting of the ban imposed last June to ease the country's congested railways is expected to see a heavy influx of conventions from the United States. But there was one discordant note — hotel accommodation. The housing situation is critical across Canada and hotels everywhere are crowded, though the situation may ease later in the fall.

The Prices Board made no mention of hotels in its announcement that all restrictions on conventions, other meetings and organized travel groups would be removed Nov. 1.

The Board said a review of conditions indicated that present heavy travel would continue thru October. But after that the normal seasonal fall-off in travel would be sufficient to permit lifting of the restrictions.

Kennedy Critical Of Action Taken

Toronto, Sept. [illegible] — (CP)—Col. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, said yesterday it was regrettable that some growers and truckers were trying to "kill the goose that lays the golden egg" by infringing regulations of the Fruits and Vegetables Act.

He had no comment about a report from elsewhere at Queen's Park that prosecutions were about to be launched against a number of truckers and growers for alleged misrepresentation of the quality of peaches and for neglecting to stamp both the name of the grower and the grade of the peaches on baskets of fruit.

Shortage of labor reduced the number of peach crop pickings this year from five to two, with the result that ripe and green peaches were picked at the same time, Col. Kennedy said.

He added that he expected the Elberta variety of peaches would soon be on the market to take the place of the other kinds which have been subject to criticism.

Belfast — (CP) — A law passed here gives ex-servicemen, bombed-out persons and merchant navy men first choice of state or council houses.

Marriages Between Occupation Forces and Germans Not Permitted

Berlin, Sept. 21 (AP) — The United States group control council said today "there is no intention" of permitting marriages among occupation forces and Germans, or billeting troops in German homes in the American zone.

The American military government set forth its position in a statement issued on the heels of yesterday's action by the Allied control council relaxing non-fraternization restrictions to permit these two privileges at the discretion of zone commanders.

"In conformity with an agreement reached at the Thursday meeting of the Allied Control Council appropriate instructions are being issued in the American zone relaxing non-fraternization regulations," said the statement, issued at the U.S. Control Council's headquarters.

"Under this agreement all restrictions against fraternization were lifted except the billeting of troops in German homes and the marriage of soldiers and German nationals.

"While zone commanders are authorized to permit billeting in German homes and marriages of soldiers and German nationals, there is no intention to grant such privileges in the American zone," the statement said.

Yesterday's announcement by the Allied Council also had said troops might visit in German homes and have normal social relations with Germans, without specific permission from their commanders.

U.S. troops have been forbidden to enter German homes.

Obscure Radio Announcer in Vancouver Becomes One of Biggest Names in Theatreland

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 21 (CP) — Ten years ago burly Carroll Levis was an obscure radio announcer in Vancouver. Today he is one of the biggest names in London's theatreland—a purveyor of amateur talent on a gargantuan scale.

There are three Carroll Levis shows on tour in Britain at present and the cream of the talent he picks is heard weekly from Land's End to John O'Groats over a BBC broadcast.

Born in Vancouver 35 years ago, Mr. Levis likes to recall the remark of a Vancouver school principal: "This boy is either a fool or a genius. I can't decide which."

Many persons today place him in the latter category.

He came to Britain in 1936, an unknown quantity (except for his size), attired in a 10-gallon hat, red handrerchief and leather riding boots.

"I had hoped to create an impression in western clothes," Mr. Levis said, "but a day in London convinced me I was wrong. Theatre managers shied like frightened horses when I approached them."

Reverting to conventional attire, Mr. Levis invaded broadcasting house and persuaded the BBC to engage him as a writer of radio sketches. He wrote 15 in the first week and while the editors were mulling them over Mr. Levis wandered about London surveying the theatre market.

He quickly hit on a plan for organizing enthusiastic amateur performers and presenting them to the public in an attractive stage setting. During the experimental period, Mr. Levis worked daily in suburban theatres. He drew amateurs from all over Britain and appealed to the goodwill of his audiences in giving them a fair trial.

In less than three months the Carroll Levis amateurs were playing to capacity houses in London's West End and soon after that they went on the radio.

TAKEN TO NUERNBERG

London, Sept. 21 — (Reuters)—The wife and daughter of the dead Gestapo chief, Heinrich Himmler, have been taken to Nuernberg, Germany, but the role they will play in the coming trial of war criminals has not been disclosed, the Luxembourg radio reported last night. Linz, Austria, radio said Monday they were being flown from Italy to be heard as witnesses.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was talking to Shorty Judge on my front steps about different ideas such as whether we would enjoy school much more if they let us sit on swings instead of on stationerry seats, and Shorty said, Here comes Puds Simkins. Hay, I tell you a good one to let's play on him. Let's pretend to both be eating something and make him sorry he wouldn't join The 3 Dividers yesterday, he said.

And we both started to move our jaws slow as if we were chewing candy and didn't want anybody to know it, and Puds came up and sat down and started to talk about different things in generel nothing in particuler, and me and Shorty acted as if our mouths were too full to talk with and after a while Puds said, Hay, how about that club you 2 guys were talking about getting up yesterday?

What club? I said, and Shorty said, Yeh, what club?

And we both pretended to swallow something so we could talk again, and Puds said, You know, The 3 Dividers where we all wacky up whatever we get to eat between meals.

Nothing doing, you wouldn't join it yesterday, I said, and Puds said, Well no wonder, you just made the club up when you smelt the raisin muffins my mother was baking.

Go on, that didn't have anything to do with it, I said, and Shorty said, That was just a pure coincidence.

Well okay, I just thought I'd ask you, Puds said.

And he took 2 muffins out of his pockit and started to take terns biting them, and I said, Well, I dont know, maybe we'll let you in the club.

We'll think it over, Shorty said, and Puds said, You can think it under for all I care, It's too late now.

And he finished the 2 muffins with different size bites trying to look as if he was enjoying them about 10 times more than he really was, and me and Shorty are still wondering if he would of pulled them out of his pockit even if we had agreed to let him in The 3 Dividers, both thinking probably not.

On Monday evening, Sept. 17, a very enjoyable miscellaneous shower was held for Miss Lillian Sutherby, at her home, 10 Highland Ave. The evening was spent in games until Lillian opened her many beautiful gifts. After which she very graciously thanked her friends. Refreshments were served to about twenty guests. The guests departed about midnight; all wishing Lillian much happiness.

A surprise party was held on Tuesday night, at the home of Mrs. W. Lancaster, Gordon St., in honor of her 84th birthday. The family, friends and out-of-town guests joined in wishing Mrs. Lancaster "Happy Birthday". The tea-table was beautifully decorated with an old-fashioned lace cloth, the centrepiece being the three-tier cake, glowing with 84 candles. The rooms were decorated with gladioli. Mrs. Lancaster is in very good health and thoroughly enjoyed the lovely surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Reid, 76 Queen Street, are observing today the 40th anniversary of their wedding, and many friends will be pleased to extend to them congratulations and good wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Reid have with them Mrs. Reid's mother, Mrs. Coxall, of Tamworth, who is 92 years of age, and her brother, Mr. Stanton Coxall, Tamworth.

WEDDINGS

JONES—CALLAGHAN

The marriage took place at 9 a.m., September 15, at St. Charles' Church, Read, of Mary Helen Callaghan, Corbyville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Callaghan, and Lt. Edgar Allan Jones, Jr., U.S.M.C., R'td, Asbury Park, New Jersey, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Jones. Rev. R. J. Coyle officiated. The church was decorated with white gladioli and gold chrysanthemums. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Adrian Callaghan. Miss Audrey Mantle, Trenton, sang two lovely solos, "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess style gown of brocaded cream satin with a sweeping train. The marquisette yoke was edged with seed pearls; long sleeves tapered to points over her wrists. Her fingertip veil fell from a Queen Anne headdress, and she carried a white prayer book with a shower of gardenias.

Miss Maurice Maloney, bridesmaid, of Marmora, wore a chartreuse gown made similar to that of the bride, and a shoulder-length veil. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses.

Mr. William Hanley, Read, was groomsman, and Mr. Leo Quinn and Mr. John Hanley were ushers.

For the wedding breakfast at Lanthorn Inn, Belleville, the bride's mother wore a two-piece dress of contrasting mulberry and coral, with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses, while the groom's mother chose a brown dress with a brown squirrel cape and cerise accessories. She wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

Out-of-town guests were present from Asbury Park, N.J., London, Ont., St. John, N.B., Belleville, and Tweed.

Lt. Jones is a graduate of Wesleyan University, Conn., and the bride a graduate of St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston.

WANTED TO HELP

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—The eyes of a dead woman who "wanted to provide a happier life for someone living by donating my eyes to science" may give sight to an eight-month-old baby that has been blind since birth. HOLLOWAY STREET UNITED CHURCH W.A.

The ladies of Holloway Street United Church held their first fall meeting on Thursday afternoon in the home of Mesdames Hagerman and Cordes, 66 West Bridge Street, with a good attendance.

Mrs. E. Shorts opened the meeting by all singing "Safe in the Arms of Jesus", in memory of Mrs. E. Mott, who held the office of 1st vice president and lately deceased. Mrs. J. A. Dilts offered prayer.

The secretaries' reports of the different departments were given and showed progress and work done during the summer, especially among the sick where flowers and cards had been sent out.

Mrs. Moorman's group took charge of the program, Mrs. Weese conducting the devotional part assisted by Mrs. Moynes, who read the Scriptures and Mrs. Arnold Dilts, who sang very sweetly "My Task", accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Dilts. Mrs. Weese read a poem entitled "No Time for God" and Mrs. M. Denton read a paper on "The Post-War Woman". Mrs. Campbell gave a reading "The Great Guest Comes", which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Moorman gave a vote of thanks to all who had assisted and closed the meeting by all singing "Blest be the Tie that Binds". The group in charge then served refreshments and had a social half hour together.

2ND THURLOW NEIGHBORS' AID

The September meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. P. Sprackett on Wednesday, Sept. 5, with about 25 members and visitors present. Mrs. A. Mitchell, 1st vice president, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. R. Mitchell pieced a quilt-top which she donated to the Aid and it was tied during the afternoon for the Red Shield. A letter asking for clothing for Europe was read and anyone having good used clothing or new were asked to bring it to the next meeting.

A letter from Red Shield thanking for socks and two quilts was read. Clippings were read by Mrs. Doxtator, Mrs. Craig, and Mrs. Greatrix. Meeting closed with National Anthem and Grace. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and down road conveners.

BURR'S W.A.

The September meeting of the W.A. met at the home of Mrs. Ross Burr on Thursday afternoon. The attendance was smaller than usual, owing to the busy tomato and corn season. Members were pleased to welcome Mrs. Frank Burkitt, an honorary member, who has been absent from the meetings for a time. Mrs. Val Squire, Lois and Paul, were also guests. Mrs. C. Fulford gave a reading. Mrs. Squire contributed a piano solo and Mrs. Eric Edwards conducted an "Alphabetical Adventure" contest, with Mrs. Floyd Huffman winning the favor.

The sum of five dollars was contributed to the M. and M. Fund. The October meeting will be at Mrs. C. Fulford's. "Harvest", is the word chosen for roll call.

MOUNT PLEASANT W.M.S.

Rawdon. — Mount Pleasant Woman's Missionary Society convened at the church on Wednesday, September 12, with ten members and five visitors in attendance. The service opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Ross Hoard. The president used a portion of "The Members of one Family, Black and White", based on the theme "Africa is the Lord's".

Miss Doris Sine was appointed secretary pro tem.

The supply secretary requested that the knitting and sewing be completed as soon as convenient.

Plans were made to entertain the Sectional Rally on October 19.

The Autumn thankoffering will be held in connection with World Communion on Sunday, October Seventh.

The books of the circulating library were given to the president to be passed on to another auxiliary.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a synopsis of the special book "This is Africa", by Franklin Mack. Christianity made its first determined attempts to enter Africa below the Sahara at the beginning of the nineteenth century and some great missionary pioneers such as Moffatt and Livingstone gave their lives for that land.

Out of Africa's 160 million people only five million can be classified as white and the opportunity is great for more missionaries and workers.

The service closed with the rendition of a number written by S. R. Collins.

Up the Good Looks Ladder

Shirley Temple guards her lovely complexion with scrupulous cleanliness.

By HELEN FOLLETT

CLEANLINESS is the first step up the good looks ladder. It is the first law in the beauty constitution. Before anything is done to embellish the complexion, laying on the paint and the calcimine the skin surface must be scrupulously clean. If we could have clean air there wouldn't be danger of the pores picking up atmospheric dust. As it is, there must be continual scrubbing and oiling.

During the teen-age period, when life is gay and rushing, face washing is seldom what it should be. The result: blackheads, sometimes acne. Young girls and boys should be taught to use water fairly hot, to fluff up a rich suds on the wash cloth. And the wash cloth should be clean. Why not a clean one each day? Laundering is nothing at all. In the homes of some fastidious women the linens in the bath rooms look pretty dubious.

Sebaceous Oils

Sebaceous oil exuded by the glands, catches dust makes it stick. To supplement the soapy attentions, it is a good idea to give the facial premises a dry cleaning now and then. Pour some eau de cologne on a moist cloth, go over the skin surface lightly.

The alcoholic content will dig the black points from the pores. After this treatment use cold cream, patting it in. Then there will be no danger of dryness.

Be fussy about the soap you use. It should be bland, it should fluff up quickly into a rich suds.

Importance of Diet

Medical men who specialize in diseases of the skin and scalp usually have something to say about the importance of diet. If large blackheads and pus-tipped pimples are present they put a taboo on chocolate. Rich pastries are no help; they excite the sebaceous glands, may change the fine texture of the skin to a coarse fabric.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMANN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 21. (CP)— With a limited amount of sugar, home-made jellies must turn out perfectly this year. No one can afford to waste a particle of sweetening. The Agriculture Department home economists vouch for these jelly-making tips:

Use a broad flat-bottomed saucepan when making jelly, and always work with small quantities of juice, not more than eight cups at a time.

To take the guess-work out of jelly-making use the pectin test on the fruit juice to know exactly when to add the sugar. If the sugar is added before the juice is concentrated and the pectin is not in the right proportion to the acid, jelly will not set, no matter how long boiling is continued after the sugar is added.

The pectin test: Boil the fruit juice for three minutes. Into a cup or saucer measure one tablespoon of alcohol (rubbing alcohol may be used) and one tablespoon of fruit juice. Blend quickly and allow to stand half a minute. Do not taste, and do not return mixture to juice. If a clot of jelly forms, the juice is ready for the addition of the sugar. If not, continue boiling the fruit juice and testing it every few minutes, so that the sugar may be added at just the right time, and a perfect jelly result.

The grape crop is coming through this year with flying colors, but by this time of year most of us haven't much canning sugar left. To meet this situation, the Agriculture Department testing kitchen has developed this recipe for making grape juice without sugar. . . the sugarless juice will make excellent jelly next winter or it may be used for delicious pudding sauces and desserts.

To make grape juice, wash, stem and crush the grapes. Add water, allowing one pint per six quart basket of grapes. Simmer 15 minutes. Strain through moist jelly bag. Reheat juice to boiling point, pour into clean, hot containers and seal. Process in boiling water bath allowing ten minutes for pints and quarts.

Sugar may be added to the juice before processing if desired but if the juice is to be used for jelly later, do not add sugar.

Tests just completed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture have exploded the old theory that when baking soda is used in cooking green vegetables vitamins are destroyed. However, say the research workers, it is only when a minute quantity of the soda is used—about 1-16 of a teaspoon or a very skimpy pinch—that the effect is beneficial.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Oral Hygiene.

Red lips that smile, revealing snow white teeth of perfect formation! There you have a combination that totals beauty riches. Add animation, intelligence, good humor, eyes that sparkle, and the rest of the beauty formula can go chase itself into the hinterlands.

In these days of advanced dental science, it is taken for granted that a girl shall display teeth that are even, well-cared-for, and highly polished. Certainly it is more important to have professional attention for the teeth than to fling money away for personal adornment. The health of the body is dependent upon the health of the teeth, and, no matter how fastidious, daily care may be, there should be semi-yearly examinations. Catching caries when they are small is economy; the practice saves time, pain, and money in the long run.

There's no sense in waiting until an aching tooth drives one to the dentist for relief. Pain usually means infection, and infection can be carried to other parts of the body. Professional care means that the teeth will be preserved throughout the years. Unless one has it, one eventually pays too high a price.

It is believed that decay may be due—in some cases—to a diet deficiency. Drink milk for its calcium content, orange and tomato juice for strengthening vitamins. Eat raw vegetables and chew bread crusts.

A casual brushing of the teeth is not enough. They should be well scoured after each meal, with plenty of time given to grooming. Movements should be vigorous enough to polish the surfaces, yet not so violent that they force the gums away from the teeth. Brush from the gums to the ends of the teeth, pressing into the sides. A dentist will tell you that the side surfaces are often neglected. Include the biting ends; decay occurs there most often.

The most convenient brush is small, with bristles set in groups. The small brush adjusts itself to the dental arch better than a large, wide one, and is more likely to be clean. After using, rinse well with running water. When you buy a new brush, soak it for thirty minutes in a salt solution.

Helen Jameson 9-18

In these days of advanced dental science, girls should display teeth that are even, well-cared for, and highly polished.

If the bristles are long, they will buckle, prove ineffective. They should be of varied lengths. Selecting the right brush is important.

Place the bristles against the gums, and come down with a rolling motion. Be faithful in your attentions to the inner surfaces.

If the gums bleed, it is possible that tartar has formed, forcing the flesh back. Tartar is a firm substance that the brush will not remove; that is why you should go to the dentist at regular intervals. He will remove it with his little metal picks.

Massage the gums now and then. Put a dentifrice on your finger, use a circular movement. This treatment tones the flesh by stimulating the blood streams.

Stirling Couple Celebrates Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Francis celebrated their 25th Wedding Anniversary on Saturday, September 15 and on Sunday entertained about forty relatives and friends to dinner. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. Francis' grandmother, Mrs. A. Jones of Belleville, who is in her 89th year; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Maynes and Bobby and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Emmerson, Mary and Nora, all of Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Hough and Francis, of Gananoque; Mr. and Mrs. Richie Geen, of Frankford; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy, of Wellman's, who were also celebrating their silver wedding.

Those who assisted in serving were Mrs. E. Cain, Miss Helen Hick and Miss Shirley Francis.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis were married in Bethel United Church, near Tweed, Sept. 15th, 1920, by the Rev. R. T. Richards. They have one daughter, Shirley, and a son Donald, with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

The evening was spent in music and a social time.

On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Francis were tendered a surprise party when several friends called and presented them with a silver casserole. —(Stirling News Argus).

To make chicken giblet gravy, simmer the giblets (liver, gizzard and heart) and the neck in a quart of water for an hour, or until tender. Drain and chop the meat finely. Leave about 1-2 cup of fat in the pan after removing the roast chicken. Stir in 1-3 cup of flower. Gradually add cool broth and enough cold water to make a smooth thin gravy. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add the chopped giblets. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

HOUSE HEARS RELATIVE MERITS OF B.C., ONTARIO PEACHES

George A. Cruickshank, M.P. of the Fraser Valley, B.C., had the Federal House in gales of laughter as he presented exhibits of Ontario peaches (small, hard, green and with a "pink gown") and his own British Columbia peaches—big, fat and pink. "This is the kind of fruit we grow in B.C.," he said and laughingly offered the members Ontario peaches as they crowded around his baskets. Here he is, about to munch a British Columbia peach, while Jean Armstrong, left, of Ottawa, try out the Ontario fruit.

British Agent Fooled Nazis

London, Sept. 20 — (CP) — A British secret service agent, captured in France by the Gestapo, saved his life in the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp by volunteering to be a "human guinea-pig," the Admiralty has revealed.

When death seemed certain, the official story said, this anonymous operator wrote a "last letter" to a friend, but later persuaded two German doctors at the camp to let him change places with a French corpse.

The corpse was cremated in the agent's name, and weak as he was the Englishman escaped and eventually led 10 companions to safety in the American lines.

"Last" Letter

It was on Sept. 14, 1944, that beaten, bullied, tortured and chained by the Gestapo, he wrote his letter, which was smuggled to Britain. It said, in part:

"My Dear Dizzy — These are 'famous last words.' I'm afraid, but one has to face death one day or another, so I will not moan, and get down to brass tacks . . ."

After describing his capture in Paris by the Gestapo, who had tortured one of his liaison men into "squealing," he went on:

"I was subjected to continuous grilling, being beaten up and also being put in a bath of ice cold water, legs and arms chained, and held head downward under water until almost drowned, then pulled out and asked if I had anything to say.

"This I underwent six times, but I managed to hold out and gave nothing away."

For two long months the grilling went on, but in the words of the victim:

"I was offered freedom if I would hand over X—some hopes, I nearly lost my left arm as a result of the torture, as I got blood poisoning through my wrist being cut to the bone by chains and remaining unattended.

Later he was moved to Weimar—with 19 men, handcuffed the whole time, in one compartment. "We were beaten up on arrival . . . . We were confined for three days and three nights — 37 of us —in a hut nine feet by seven feet. It was hell."

At Buchenwald, where they were finally taken, 10 of the prisoners with him, the agent learned, were immediately hanged without trial and cremated. "We are now awaiting our turn," he wrote.

The letter ended: "For God's sake, Dizzy see to it that our people never let themselves be softened toward the German people, or there will be another war in 15 years' time, and all our lives will have been sacrificed in vain."

How the agent managed to "persuade" the German doctors to effect the substitution which saved his life was not told. Vernon Brown, News Chronicle naval correspondent, reported, however, that "several 'German' doctors in Nazi prison camps were British agents or in British pay."

HEAVY TRAFFIC TOLL

Toronto, Sept. 21. (CP)— One person was killed and 12 injured in Toronto traffic accidents Wednesday night and early Thursday.

Harold Breen, 17, died from a fractured skull and internal injuries received, police said, when he ran from behind a street-car into the path of a dump truck. His death increased the traffic toll for 1945 to 56 fatalities.

Big Food Stores Were Found Near Belsen Prison

Lueneberg, Germany, Sept. 20. (CP)—Maj. Adolphus Berney, of the British Army, testified today at the murder trial of Joseph Kramer and 44 S.S. Guards that he found a well-supplied German military food store less than two miles from the Belsen concentration camp.

Maj. Berney, who took charge of the administration of the horror camp after its liberation April 15, said the food store contained 120 tons of canned meat, 30 tons of sugar, more than 20 tons of powdered milk, wheat stocks and bread, none of which was issued to the camp.

Motion pictures showing conditions of starvation at Belsen were exhibited. While three blue lights threw a ghastly glow over the dock, the films that shocked the world were thrown onto a small screen on the courtroom wall.

Some of the scenes shown today were so revolting they were deleted from the films shown to the public shortly after the camp was liberated.

There was one episode showing a man with a handkerchief over his nose, driving a bulldozer into a huge pile of rotting corpses. The tangled mass was being pushed to a burying pit. Other scenes showed people fishing for water out of pools of slime.

The exhibition set a precedent in British legal procedure.

The judges already have made British legal history by relaxing rules of evidence and admitting hearsay evidence given by Brig. Hugh Llewellyn Glyn Hughes under questioning by Prosecutor Col. T. M. Backhouse.

MADOC

Crop Improvement Field Meeting Held at Madoc

Madoc, Sept. 21.—On Tuesday evening, the Hastings County Crop Improvement Association held a field meeting at the farm of Wilfred Forestell. The purpose was to discuss the results of different methods and rates of application of commercial fertilizer on corn and potatoes.

On two plots 2-12-10 fertilizer was applied at the rate of 290 lbs. and 400 lbs., to the acre respectively by the plow sole method.

The next two plots, the same fertilizer was applied at 200 lbs. and 400 lbs., to the acre with the drill.

Another strip received an application of manure and another strip was kept as a check plot without any fertilizer being used.

Mr. W. B. George, of the Kemptville Agricultural College and Mr. H. L. Fair, of Stirling, were in charge of the meeting.

Parts of each plot of corn were cut and weighed, the ears were broken off and weighed and the yield per acre of each plot will be computed and results will be shown in the report at the annual meeting of the Hastings Crop Improvement Association meeting in Stirling and at the Ontario Crop Improvement Convention in Toronto in February.

Later in the evening, a screen was set up and Mr. George explained the results of deficiencies of the different elements in the soil as shown by the slides and how to correct them.

The meeting was well attended, there being a number from Tweed, Stirling, West Huntingdon and Madoc.

What to do With Battle Wagon Is the Question

Tokyo, Sept. 21. (AP)—What's to become of the damaged Japanese battleship Nagato was a question today for which even Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, who last night took over command of American Fleet Forces in Japanese waters, had no answer.

Cmdr. Paul C. Smith, information officer for the fleet forces, said Admiral Spruance knew nothing of a rumor that the ship was to be the guinea pig in an atom-bomb test at sea.

Cmdr. Smith also said that plans to tow the Nagato to San Francisco for use as the centrepiece of a Victory Bond drive were jettisoned after orders were received from the Navy department to do nothing pending instructions.

Cmdr. Smith said: "Even if an atomic bomb were dropped near the ship and the ship disappeared, that might not be decisive proof of what would happen in a hypothetical atomic sea fight between future Navies".

The Nagato's chief damage is centred on its superstructure, Cmdr. Smith said, and not below decks. Some Navy officers doubted that it could move under its own power. Experts found a damaged forward plate in the hull which had been repaired by the Japanese in a manner they said was "very doubtful".

Three plane-carrying Japanese submarines are being prepared here for a voyage to Pearl Harbor. Many smaller components of the shattered Nipponese Navy —midget submarines and suicide boats——are being destroyed, but the rest of the surrendered naval force is being held immobile pending orders.

Prisoner of War School Conducted By U.S. Provosts

Fort Getty, R.I. Sept. 21. (CP) —The United States Army lifted the lid today from one of its top secrets—the training of German prisoners of war to help administer and police their own country.

Newspapermen were permitted to see in operation a psychological reconversion attempt by which the United States government hopes to develop a future generation of Germans which will know and prefer the democratic form of government.

Organized and governed by the Provost Marshal General's office, the prisoner of war school is conducted by officers of high educational attainments. The "students" are selected officers and men of the German army, chosen for the course from all of the prisoner of war camps in the United States.

All the students volunteered to take the course. Some are in the administrative class; others in the police class. All, eventually, will be placed at the disposal of the Allied military government now in charge of the American zone of operations in Germany.

The students, army officers said repeatedly, are anti-Nazi. Many of them served long years behind barbed wire in Germany because they had opposed Hitler's regime.

Listed among the prisoners is a former German judge, a high police official and numerous former German prisoners.

The German officers have waived right to rank and are classified, as are the non-commissioned men, simply as students. However, they receive their officers' pay allowance, under terms of the Geneva convention. Forty per cent of the students are officers.

In their two-months' course, the students are taught American history, English and other languages, military government and German history.

INJURIES FATAL

Brockville, Sept. 20 — (CP) — Victor White, 38, Mallorytown, Ont., died in hospital here last night of injuries suffered Tuesday when a cattle-loaded truck he was driving was demolished by a Canadian National Railways freight train at a level crossing near his home.

Hollywood Showed B-29 Pilots How To Blast Japan

Hollywood, Sept. 21. (AP)—From the dark vastness of a movie sound stage emerges the now-it-can-be-told story of a top war secret: how motion picture technicians, never closer to Tokyo than the Santa Monica pier showed B-29 Superfortress pilots the best way to bomb Japan.

The "set" of Project 152, as it was known, was a huge relief map of the major target areas of Japan, built to the scale of one foot to the mile. It was 80 feet long and 60 feet wide. It was complete with artificial fog and "clouds" fashioned of spun glass.

Suspended above the set from a monorail crane was a movie camera. The crane was timed to carry the camera across the scale model at a speed approximating that of a B-29 roaring across Japan.

Set at height of 56 inches above the relief map, the camera recorded what the crew of a B-29 would see from 30,000 feet. Geared to move at 6.66 feet a minute, the crane simulated the speed of a B-29 at 400 miles an hour.

Movies taken on this miniature set were flown to Saipan to "brief" the crews of B-29s.

"MARGARET CURRIE" DIES

Montreal, Sept. 21. (CP)—Mrs. E. J. Archibald, better known to readers of the Montreal Star since 1914 as Margaret Currie, died in hospital here Wednesday night after an illness of a week.

Mrs. Archibald, whose husband is associate editor of the Star, was taken ill while holidaying at Tadoussac, Que., last week. Since 1914 she had carried on the Star's "Margaret Currie" column and was the confident of thousands of women who sought her advice on problems of romance and marriage.

A native of London, Ont., Mrs. Archibald started her newspaper career in Hamilton before joining the Star here. Widely-known as a lecturer as well as for her column, she was one of the founders of the Canadian Women's Press Club.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

One-Armed Pete Gray Figures He's Through as Big League Ball Player but He's Satisfied

Tossed Out of Game by Umpire and Played in Yankee Stadium

By JACK HAND

New York, Sept. 21 — (AP) — Pete Gray thinks this is his first and last year in the big league, but is satisfied to have proved to himself that a one-armed man can play baseball in the majors and actually appear in Yankee Stadium.

"I've done everything I've ever wanted to do," grinned the highly-publicized St. Louis outfielder in the quiet of the Browns' clubhouse after he had been tossed out of a ball game by umpire Bill McGowan for the first time in the big show.

Gray, who once played for Sherbrooke, Que., in the Canadian-American loop, and after that was the property of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League for a spell, was ejected from Tuesday's tussle here after an argument over a play at first base.

"Playing in the Stadium was always a boyhood goal of mine back in Nanticoke, Pa." he said, "something I thought would never happen. Probably I'll never play here again.

"No use kidding yourself, next year will be different. All those young fellows will be coming back from service and old Pete may not have enough power to keep up with them. I know that I can field with the rest of them but that may not be enough. One thing I do know, it's no back to the minors for me.

"I won't go to Toledo if they send me there. Only place I would consider would be the Pacific Coast League. But then I might quit baseball and go back home. Used to have a pool room there, seven tables, but I gave it up, maybe I'll try it again. If they want me to play ball, they're going to have to pay me. Next year will be different."

First Time Scared Stiff

Back in a corner of the clubhouse while he pulled a white shirt and Sinatra-style bow tie out of his locker, the baldish rookie asked, "Mind tying my shoe for me?"

"First time I came into this Stadium, I was scared stiff. You know they had sold 65,000 seats ahead of time and it was a rainy day . . . the worst day I had all year, fumbled the ball and everything. But I do think I helped the Browns, we won 10 of 12 from the Yankees when I started . . .

"What pitchers bothered me? That's easy. They all did. Just look at my batting average (.219 at the latest compilation). Down in Memphis those balls drop in for hits, up here they catch them and I haven't the power to ride it out of the park. Metheny robbed me the other day, then Keller and finally McGowan.

"Do the pitchers ever throw at me? Certainly. They had me down in this series. After all they have to protect themselves too. There's no sentiment in baseball and I'm just another guy up there with a bat."

Gray revealed that he had signed to appear in eight exhibition games on the Pacific coast after the close of the season and after that, "Well, I'll just hang around and see what happens."

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

The rubber match between Johnny Greco of Montreal and Tony Janiro of Youngstown, O., scheduled for tonight in Madison Square Gardsn to decide their lightweight feud, was suddenly cancelled yesterday with the report that Janiro had an infected elbow and might be out of action for six weeks. The New York Boxing Commission ordered Janiro to appear for medical examination by its own physician.

To the surprise of general manager Herb Pennock of the Phillies, first-baseman Jimmy Foxx yesterday announced his retirement from baseball after 19 years as a major-league star to join a Cambridge, Mass., bakery company. His contract with Philadelphia expires next week.

Cpl. Charlie Ward of the RAF continued in the lead of the British pro golf tournament at St. Andrews, Scotland, yesterday by adding a 74 to his first-round 73 for a 147 total. He was two strokes up on Max Faulkner of the RAF and J. McLachlan of Ireland. Cpl. Lloyd Mangrum of the U.S. Army was in third place.

The American Baseball Association playoffs between the Colonels and St. Paul Apostles open at Louisville tonight, with the teams moving to St. Paul Tuesday night. The winners meet the international league champions for the junior world series title.

Montreal Canadiens handed Cornwall a 25-10 defeat last night at Cornwall to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five box lacrosse series between the two cities for the Cattarinch Trophy. Date of the next contest is indefinite.

Thorncliffe Park officials at Toronto announced last night the minimum purse for the seven-day Thorncliffe-at-Woodbine Park meet which opens Saturday has been increased from $900 to $1,000.

Harness racing at the Aylmer, Ont., fair yesterday saw the winners take the three events in three straight heats. The 2:28 pace or trot went to The Lee from Springfield; the victor in the 2:25 event was Tom C. Gratton from Pembroke, and Argot Dillon, from Dutton, took the 2:20 race.

By scoring six runs in the last two innings for a 9-5 decision, Thurstons won their second game against Cardinals last night at Hamilton in the senior city baseball playoffs. The winners lost a starry outfielder, Jack Dipple, when he suffered a broken leg while diving for a base.

A medical report on Ike Williams, lightweight boxing champion, at Pittsburgh yesterday revealed he suffered torn abdominal muscles in his fight the previous night in which he lost on a technical knockout to Sammy Angott in the sixth round of a 10-round feature.

BEACHES, INDIANS AND ROUGHRIDERS FAVORED ON SAT.

Big Game in O.R.F.U. Will be Between Toronto and Hamilton Wildcats

By ALAN HARVEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Two teams with exclamation-point backfields and question-mark winglines share favoritism for Saturday's scheduled football games in Ontario with a club described by its coach as a question mark in practically all departments.

The three "people's choices" are Toronto Oakwood Indians and Ottawa Rough Riders, selected on the poker player's principle that "we've got 'em, you've got 'em to get," and Toronto Balmy Beach Tip Tops, conceded an edge over Ottawa Trojans despite various player problems.

The complete Saturday card:

Ontario Rugby Union: Trojans at Beaches; Indians at Hamilton Wildcats.

Exhibition: Hamilton Tigers (I.R.F.U.) at Windsor Rockets (O.R.F.U.).

At Ottawa, preparations have been made for an overflow crowd expected to watch Argos and Rough Riders resume their bitter gridiron rivalry of the late 30s in the I.R.F.U.'s first scheduled game since football's Big Four suspended operations in 1941.

Rough Riders Favored.

Despite assorted maladies to star backfielders Tony Golab (sore back), Ken Charlton (rib injuries) and Brian Quinn (bad ankle), railbirds accorded Ross Trimble's Rough Riders a slight margin over Argos, three-time Canadian champions from 1933-38 who will rely on Royal Copeland as the spearhead of a halfline lacking the great names of Argos history.

A similar starry backfield cast gives Indians the nod of the experts at Hamilton, where O.R.F.U. leadership will be at stake. Indians and Wildcats registered soft triumphs in the respective debuts last week, but the "Co-op" Club has acquired plunging Don Crowe to strengthen an offensive built around the three Stukus brothers, Ross McKelvey, Fred Kijek and Doug Pyzer. League-leading scorer George (Scotty) Wright will carry the principal burden for Wildcats, Grey Cup finalists last season.

Trojans Strengthened.

Coach Ted Reeve, beset by personnel problems which leaves his lineup a day-to-day puzzle, still is favored as probable winning mentor in the Balmy Beach-Trojan duel at Varsity stadium. Beaches defeated 3-0 by Argos in an exhibition game last week, seem to have the necessary power to shade Arnie McWatters' Trojans who lost their opener 19-1 to Indians. The Ottawa club will be strengthened by return of Joey Richman and Frank Garvey under a service ruling lifting restrictions against athletic participation.

Montreal Hornets, entry into the Big Four assured by a league agreement to split gate receipts four ways, confine activity to practice sessions until Sept. 29. The Big Four's fourth team, Tigers, play Rockets under floodlights at Windsor.

Tight Relief Hurling Helps London Majors

London, Ont., Sept. 21. (CP)— Tight relief pitching by Bill Wagner last night gave London Majors an 8-4 victory over Windsor Auto Wreckers in the fifth game of an Ontario Baseball Association Senior semi-final series. Majors lead the best-of-seven set, which resumes in London Monday, three games to two.

Wagner relieved Tommy White with none out in the third inning and pitched three-hit ball the rest of the distance. Gerry Parent, who relieved Bob Churchill on the Windsor mound after London erupted for a five-run rally in the second inning, almost kept pace with Wagner by restricting Majors to six hits.

NO RESTRICTIONS AGAINST PLAYING IN UNITED STATES

Professional Athletes Will be Given Speedy Release From Armed Services

Ottawa, Sept. 21. (CP)—Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, announced Friday that no restriction on Canadians wishing to play professional hockey with teams in the United States will be in force this year.

Mr. MacNamara also announced that a memorandum has been sent to all industrial selection and release committees urging them to readily approve applications for the speedy release of professional hockey players from the Armed Services, who are at present posted in Canada, to play professional hockey in Canada or the United States.

(A joint statement by the three Armed Services in Ottawa today lifted the ban on servicemen participation in civilian sport, but declared they "would not facilitate this participation . . . by premature discharge or grant of special privileges.")

The memorandum to the committees said:—

"It seems entirely likely that there will be a great expansion of sports activities in the immediate post-war period; as a part of the expansion there will no doubt be a demand for a great number of young Canadians to play hockey in the United States.

"This does present an attractive field of employment for a considerable number of our young men and, more particularly, may be a real start in the rehabilitation of a number of young men now serving in the Armed Forces. The director of National Selective Service has therefore expressed the view that applications by hockey clubs for release of young men in the Armed Services should be not only readily approved but actively encouraged.

"I would ask you, therefore, to bear in mind the above considerations when reviewing applications for the release of men for employment in professional hockey".

Referring to arrangements for men wishing to play hockey in the United States. Mr. MacNamara said that while it will be necessary this year for hockey players to obtain labor exit permits from the local office of the National Employment Service, the employment offices have been advised to issue these permits promptly on application.

Since National Selective Service regulations came into effect in early 1942, various restrictions have been imposed on men leaving Canada to go to the United States to play professional hockey. For instance, a man had to clear with his mobilization board, and if he was in essential employment in Canada, he was not permitted to leave.

Apart from the requirement of obtaining labor exit permit, the movement of hockey players to the United States now will return to normal.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

This piece is being written on Thursday afternoon. The Columbian Squires are about ready to take off for Bowmanville or some other place, (it's likely to be changed at a moment's notice.) So we haven't got time and for the sports' fans' interest we're introducing Arthur Daly's column from the New Y'Yawk Times. Here he is anent the current baseball situation.

Into the Homestretch.

The baseball schedule these days is beginning to bear a suspicious resemblance to a railroad timetable although it doesn't carry that cautious notation: "Subject to change without notice." According to the original card there was to have been only one game in both leagues yesterday, the Senators vs. the Yankees at the Stadium. So what happened?

Instead, eight full contests were listed, including a double-header between the Yanks and Browns, no less, at the Stadium and the Senators against the Tigers in Washington. That the rain washed away many of them is beside the point. One almost has to be a Certified Public Accountant to keep track of what is transpiring in these final hectic days of the campaign.

But time is running short, and henceforth the weather man pitches the equivalent of a winning game for the leading Tigers and Cubs whenever he shuts out the Senators or the Cards. Both trailers are behind in the vital "games lost" column, and that's where it counts most now. Washington is in such a desperate position that it can't do much more from today on than watch the scoreboard.

The Redbirds, however, can actually do something about their situation even though it amounts to the titanic task of winning practically every fray they still have left with the Bruins. If Jolly Cholly Grimm's operatives eventually stagger through to the pennant, they'll be able to look back, mark off Sept. 14 as the turning point and make a grateful bow in the direction of Sam Breadon.

Breadon's Hobby.

The owner of the Cardinals has a hobby which almost amounts to a passion with him. He collects dollar bills. When one of his favorite but horrible twilight-night double-headers with Brooklyn was washed out on Sept. 13 Singing Sam insisted that another of those in-the-gloaming monstrosities be listed for the next evening even though it meant that the Dodgers would then have to make an all-night day coach ride to Chicago. Leo Durocher raved and ranted. The Brooks bristled and bellowed. Thereupon the indignant "ferocious gentlemen" up and bashed down the Cardinals in both ends of the twin bill. That may well have been the clincher and the money-conscious Mr. Breadon may have muscled himself out of some world series swag.

It's odd how those things sometimes turn out. Take the Brownies last season. They were more interested in winning than in gate receipts, too. Somewhere in June, when they were hotter than a three-alarm fire, they had a game scheduled with the very hapless Athletics. And along came a street car strike which crippled St. Louis transportation. There was nothing to do but postpone the game.

But the Browns, very much afraid that a soft touch would elude them, valiantly went through with the scheduled fray even though there was no one in the park except the two competing teams, the press box tenants and a travelling salesman who wandered in by mistake. You can guess what happened. The Athletics murdered them.

Then in the final stages of the season, when the Brownies were locked in a four-way struggle with the Tigers, Yankees and Red Sox, a St. Louis-Boston game was rained out in the afternoon. But Joe Cronin, a most obliging gentleman, consented to the unprecedented switch of the contest from the afternoon to the night. The ground was soggy when they started and it still was soggy at the end. The one difference, however, was that the generous Mr. Cronin had so forgotten himself as to march off with the ball game.

In spite of those two sad experiences, though, the Browns still won the pennant. Even at that it still took a photo-finish with Detroit to do it, as Luke Sewell's hungry horde performed the incredible feat of completing a four-game sweep with the Yankees on the final day of the season while the Tigers were losing to those self-same Senators who have been bedeviling them this campaign.

If Steve O'Neill lives to be a hundred he never will forget that day. "I left the ball park late", he recounts, "and sat alone in my room, staring in stunned silence into the darkness. Then my wife phoned and she was crying. Then my daughters phoned and each of them was crying. The first thing I knew I was crying, too." Finally Aloysius (Wish) Egan, the soft-hearted Detroit scout, broke in on Steve's solitude. They had a perfectly ducky cry together.

The paternal Mr. O'Neill should be dry-eyed when this campaign ends—yesterday's result to the contrary — because his Bengals still are not too far away from their world series destiny and destination. For them this year was the tough nut to crack since Detroit will get as many and as good players back from the services next season as the Yankees. They never should be far out again.

The laughing Mr. Grimm, however, cannot do other than consider the flag merely borrowed from the Cardinals—if, of course, his Cubs attain the post-season classic. For the next couple of years or so the Cards figure to have an absolute stranglehold on the National League championship. Their wealth of service talent is so awesome that they almost have enough stars to supply two full teams.

Maybe it's being too presumptuous by far to be conceding the pennants to the Tigers and the Cubs. Baseball is a sport beyond prediction or accurate forecast. Who ever would have thought, for instance, that when the Senators went fishing for trout yesterday that, right at the very start, they would hook the big one, Dizzy?

NOTED AUTHOR DIES

Rhinebeck, N.Y., Sept. 21. (AP)—William B. Seabrook, 59-year-old author and explorer, was found dead yesterday from what Dr. Samuel E. Appel, Duchess County medical examiner, said was an overdose of sleeping pills. Dr. Appel listed the death as a suicide.

Detroit Lions Will Use Krol In Backfield

By FRANK KENESSON

Windsor, Sept. 21 — (AP) — Detroit Lions, with an imposing list of additions to a pro football squad consisting of 10 first stringers from a 1944 eleven that won its last five National League games, still were worried today about a replacement for the 11th, halfback Frank Sinkwich, as they broke up their Windsor training camp.

Sinkwich, the Georgia peach who earned the league's "most valuable" player award for his all-round play last season, now is playing for an Army Air Force team in the Western United States

Detroit opens its 10-game National Football League campaign Sunday at Milwaukee against Chicago Cardinals and coach Charles E. (Gus) Dorais still is uncertain who will fill Sinkwich's shoes at the key tailback spot in the Lions' short-punt formation.

Chief newcomer to the Lions is Anvil Andy Farkas, seven-year pro veteran purchased recently from Washington Redskins. Farkas probably will alternate with Art Van Tone at right halfback. Two service dischargees, both left halfbacks with pro experience, recently rejoined the Lions to join the scramble for Sinkwich's old post. They are Charles (Cotton) Chuck Fenebock, product of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Bob Westfall, Detroit fullback in 1944, also may see service at halfback this season, also with Joe Krol, freshman standout with the University of Western Ontario in the intercollegiate union and for the last three years with Hamilton in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. Krol is an outstanding passer and ball carrier and a good kicker.

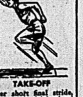
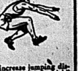
CLIP AND SAVE

RUN-UP
Run 20-30 yards. Reach top speed last 5 yards, make last stride short. Practise "run-up" repeatedly. Try to run in same spots each time.



TAKE-OFF
After short final stride, "take-off" by driving hard with body leaning slightly forward. Crouch slightly, drive free leg up and in front of you.



HITCH KICK
To increase jumping distance use "hitch kick" while in air. This is actually running in air! Take quick strides from "take-off" until landing. Practise and you will improve!

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 787

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Experts have a lot of cheek to bid the way they claim to. They pull some bids without a peek that we would be ashamed to.

SOUTH
♠K Q 10 8 3
♥A 8 2
♦7 5 4
♣A K
NORTH
♠J 9 6
♥Q J 4
♣2

The committee of experts suggested this bidding:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 S	2 D
2 NT	3 S
4 S	Pass

Their second round south two no-trump bid is wrong. It denies a rebiddable or new suit. And south has rebiddable spades. Why not show it? Is it supposed to be held as a secret from partner?

But what burns me up even more is the three spade assist by north under these circumstances. When south does not show rebiddable spades, how does north know he has spade support?

Furthermore, why does north fail to show his diamond suit is rebiddable? Is he saving it for Christmas or something? Or do the experts fit their hands to the bids instead of bids to hands?

The correct bidding is:

SOUTH	NORTH
4 D	4 S

That bidding permits each partner to tell the truth. South has adequate support for an assist of a rebiddable diamond suit. North has adequate support for an assist of a rebiddable spade suit. Such bidding applies to all hands instead of selected ones.

The more such experts tell how they bid hands, the better I like Horse Sense. So will the world in due time.

DOUG NESS SELLS RACING STABLE

Toronto, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Doug Ness, internationally-known Canadian turf figure suspended indefinitely last Saturday by the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association, sold his stable — everything from horses to pails— at an auction in the paddock at Woodbine Park yesterday.

The 15 horses, two brood mares, a lead pony and the stable tack brought $30,744.25. Prices received for the racers were among the highest paid here in years.

Ness did, however, retain one horse — the Canadian-bred eight year old Frobisher. He will be trained by Ness as a saddle horse.

Highest price was $5,300 paid by Gil Darlington of Toronto for Mr. Infinity, five-year-old handicap star of the Ness stable. Mr. Infinity has won five races this season.

Brown Hostess, two-year-old filly with two victories, was sold to Charlie Hemstead of Toronto. Art Halliwell, also of Toronto, took Spey Grass for $1,100 and Peace Picker for $1,150.

Kingston Frontenacs Defeated in Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Toronto Elizabeth Playground advanced another round in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association juvenile playdowns last night by defeating Kingston Frontenacs 9-1 to sweep a two-game series.

Normie Cormack on the mound for Lizzies subdued Frontenacs with five hits. Mulholland and Brown went well for the losers.

Detroit Tigers May Back Into American League Pennant As Senators Bow to N.Y. Yankees

Chicago Cubs on the Other Hand May Have to Win Flag the Hard Way

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Detroit may back into the American League pennant by matching Washington loss for loss but St. Louis Cardinals are taking care that Chicago will have to win the National flag the hard way.

Harry (The Cat) Brecheen played with Charlie Grimm's dancing Bruins last night, shutting them out with only six hits, 2-0, for the Cardinals' 15th victory against the Cubs.

Relegated to the scrap heap of also rans after Hank Borowy turned them back in 10 innings Wednesday, the Red Birds again are only two games behind Chicago with eight to go. Two more with the leaders are slated next Tuesday and Wednesday after the Cards entertain Cincinnati twice while Chicago is at home to Pittsburgh for a three-game set.

Contenders Idle.

Both National League contenders are idle today with the only action a twi-light doubleheader between Philadelphia and Brooklyn which dropped a 3-2 game to Boston yesterday.

Washington missing a chance to go into a virtual tie for the lead and Detroit blew an opportunity to take a commanding lead when each dropped respective 6-1 decisions to New York and Cleveland. As a result the Bengals retained their one-game advantage.

Lefty Joe Page earned his fifth decision and scored over the Senators by scattering seven hits in the Yankees' 6-1 triumph. Geo. Stirnweiss singled, doubled and homered, batting in two runs and scoring two in pacing the attack.

Allie Reynolds tossed the Indians to a 6-1 edge over the desperate Tigers just when it looked as if Detroit was going to squeeze through with a 1-0 verdict for Al Benton. The Tribe flattened the ex-sailor and continued on Dizzy Trout and George Caster for six runs in the eighth inning.

Boston swept its three-game final series from Connie Mack's Athletics, 2-0, behind Randy Heflin's six-hit chucking.

Service Athletes Can Play With Civilian Teams

Ottawa, Sept. 21. (CP)—Lifting of the ban against Service Athletes playing with civilian teams was announced by the three Armed Services in a joint statement Friday.

No special considerations will be granted servicemen, however, and they must confine their civilian sport activities to off-duty hours.

Representatives of the three Services, who met last Tuesday to discuss relaxation of the regulations, today issued the following statement:

"The three Services are in accord with Servicemen participating in civilian sports in off-duty periods, but will not facilitate this participation by re-posting, retention in service, pre-mature discharge of grant of special privileges."

Re-examination of the status of Service athletes grew out of the Ottawa Trojan-Toronto Indian football game here last Saturday, when two Ottawa players, Joey Richman and Frank Garvey of the R.C.A.F., were not permitted to play by R.C.A.F. officials.

The Trojan team claimed the three Toronto team members were also servicemen and were permitted to play.

The original ban was imposed after public complaints regarding abuses of privileges in sport were made against the Services. Service sport participation was confined to service teams and charity contests.

Columbian Squires And Toronto To Play Here Monday

Rain washed out the third and deciding game of the junior O.A.S.A. playdowns between Columbian Squires and Mount Carmel of Toronto, scheduled to be played at Oshawa on Thursday afternoon. Arrangements were completed between the managers of the two teams to play the game in Belleville on Monday afternoon, Manager Boyle of the Columbian Squires giving a fat guarantee to have the game played in this city. The teams will square off at five o'clock at Alemite Field and a winner must be declared before Wednesday next, when the winner of the series must take on Hamilton for the Provincial championship.

The Columbian Squires travelled to Oshawa in Rawson's bus and upon arrival at Alexandria Park, George Campbell, convener of the series was busy trying to get the diamond in shape to play the contest. More than 25 gallons of gasoline was burned on the diamond which made it almost perfect. The teams started to warm up but a thunder shower broke over the city and the diamond was left like a quagmire, making it impossible to play. It was first suggested that the teams return to Oshawa on Friday but Manager Boyle would not agree to this and the argument waxed loud and long. Finally a flat cash guarantee was offered the Toronto Club to come to Belleville and after a conference by the team's executive it was decided to accept the offer.

The sum offered the Toronto club is a substantial one and it is hoped that the residents will turn out in goodly numbers to help the boys along. They are trying hard to bring a championship to Belleville and the team as now composed is better than the team that went to the finals last year. It is expected that Vern Goyer will be back to take his place at shortstop on Monday.

A model airplane is [illegible] spicuous, however, and the boy who was responsible for its disappearance was seen carrying it about the grounds. Result was that he was recognized and today Max has his airplane back.

TRACTOR TRAILER BREAKS STANDARD

Struck by the tractor trailer of a Smith Transport which had cut the corner too sharply, the electric light standard on the southwest corner of the Front and Bridge Street intersection was broken last evening. The red and green traffic signal also was positioned on the standard and with the damaging of the pole this was later temporarily fastened to an advertising sign on the corner.

Canadian Sport Snapshot

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 21. (CP) — A Western Canada suggestion that Canada might be "blacklisted" out of hockey competition at the 1948 Olympic games caused scarcely a ripple among officials of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

The suggestion came from J. D. Pratt, former president of the A.A.U. of C.'s Manitoba branch, and the rebuttal is handled by Professor Nelson C. Hart, 1st vice president of the Union and representative of the Intercollegiate Union on the Canadian Olympic Committee.

Pratt said in an interview with the Winnipeg Free Press earlier this month he believes Canada may be prevented from sending a select amateur hockey team to the Olympics because of inability to satisfy International Athletic officials of the amateur status of its players.

In reply, Professor Hart told Jack (London Free Press) Park he feels there is little danger of Canada being barred from Olympic hockey. For one thing, the Professor says, the hockey series —although definitely a part of the Olympic games—is for practical purposes considered an added attraction and therefore is not governed directly by strict Olympic rules on amateurism.

Liberal allowances granted Olympic hockey teams could never be granted under the code which governs essential Olympic sports such as track and field, boxing and so on.

"So if Canada wishes to enter a hockey club in the next Olympics it is unlikely they will be called upon to clean house, for their "shamateur" code is in line with that unofficially approved by the International Ice Hockey Association, which operates the puck game at Olympic tournaments", says Park.

Quote, Unquote.

Announcement from Kingston, Ont., that Jack Parry will play with Queen's University in the Intercollegiate Football Union this season caused Mike (Kingston Whig-Standard) Rodden to publish this eulogy of the Windsor, Ont., backfield flash: "I've seen all the great backfielders during the last 38 years and I have never glimpsed one faster on the break than Jack Parry. He is the kind of player who will pull the fans out of their seats in wild excitement . . . ."

Royals Must Win 2 in Row to Take Series From Birds

Montreal, Sept. 21 (CP)—Montreal Royals, back on their home diamond, hope to even their semi-final International League play-off series with Baltimore by beating the Orioles tonight in the sixth game of their best-of-seven set-to.

The Royals who finished atop the league during the regular season to win the 1945 championship, trail 3-2 in games in the Governors' Cup play-offs. They must win two in a row to gain the right to play Newark—Victor over Toronto Maple Leafs in the other semi-final bracket—in the finals and perhaps, in the Little World Series against the American Association winner.

Red Kress probably will start for Baltimore tonight with Ray Hathaway toeing the mound for the Royals. If Montreal wins, Jean Pierry Roy, 25-game winner, will get the call for the deciding game Saturday.

The weather forecast for tonight was: Cloudy and cool.

Peterborough Girls Win From Brantford

Brantford, Sept. 21 (CP)—Peterborough Westclox girls gained a 2-0 victory yesterday over Brantford Cockshutts in the first game of a best-of-three series for the Intermediate A championship of the Provincial Women's Softball Union.

The series resumes in Peterborough Saturday where both remaining games will be played if necessary.

Isobell Bullock hooked up in a pitcher's duel with Nellie Jordbro, who allowed only five hits on the Brantford mound but was victimized by loose support afield. Miss Bullock, touched for seven hits, fanned 13 batters and always was in control.

Marg Watson scored Peterborough's first run in the second inning on a wild throw. Again in the ninth a high throw from short to first enabled Barbara Rome to reach first from where she later scored on Verna Patterson's fly to short left which fell safely.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 20

"But I can't bear to think of Folly being hurt," Marta told Hazel. "You know how proud and sensitive she is."

"Yes but I think she has a lot of common sense too that she hasn't had to use. I've decided some time ago we had done too much for Folly. Protected her too long. Maybe it wasn't up to Hilton to tell her these things but I'm sure he did it because he considers it necessary. Hilton is in love with you."

"If this is his way of showing it I'm not interested," Marta said hotly.

Wandering between their two rooms Hazel had been preparing for bed, brushing her hair and removing the makeup from her face. The sight of her sister doing these familiar things had calmed Marta. Hazel was much less emotional than the other two girls. It might be, Marta admitted that Hazel could see the picture more clearly. That still did not excuse Hilton Wood for his part in it but if Hazel thought Folly could manage alone it might be better not to attempt to find her.

Hazel to Marry.

"We can't force her to come home," Hazel continued. "And I think the effect on Folly will be better if she thinks we aren't even trying to do so. She knows where we are and can get in touch with us any moment. But if we start searching for her and bring her back like a naughty child, she'll have the upper hand for the rest of her life."

Hazel looked tired, Marta thought. Was it because the first radiance of being engaged had worn off or was it some other reason?

"We'll try it then," Marta agreed reluctantly, adding "Is everything okay with you and Charles?"

Hazel replied lightly, "Of course!"

"When are you going to be married?"

"He says in a couple of weeks. Goodnight, darling!"

"She is keeping something from me," Marta guessed. She asked then, "There isn't anyone else, Hazel? You haven't met some one you like better?"

Hazel Can't Sleep.

"No," Hazel said, kissing her. "There will never be any one else for either of us. Try to sleep, Marta. If you don't, call me and I'll fix you a bromide."

Marta promised but it was not Marta who lay awake until the dawn patrol went roaring out over the Golden Gate. It was Hazel who lay tense and straight, eyes wide open, her thoughts circling round like a flight of birds coming ever nearer an invisible, inevitable centre.

"Oh, God, help me!" prayed Hazel as she heard the planes overhead. "I love him so terribly."

At almost this same moment Hilton was awakened by Chan entering Grandpa's room with his breakfast tray. Hilton stretched, yawned, then suddenly remembering, sat up in bed. Was it his place to inform Chan that Folly was gone? No, he decided ruefully, he would leave that to Marta. But there was one thing he would make certain of before he left the house.

"If Miss Folly's soldier friend calls ask him to get in touch with me," Hilton said.

"Well if he does, give him this telephone number," Hilton said scribbling on a piece of paper. "Or better still ask him to come here to the house to see me."

Chan took the paper obediently. "I tell him," he promised.

Chan Not Worried.

He returned to the kitchen to prepare Marta's tray little dreaming of the blow in store him. Marta did not attempt to deceive him but she did conceal the fact that it was Hilton's fault.

"Miss Folly has gone away, Chan! She has been very unhappy and she does not want any of us to know where she is."

"She come back," he assured her. "Keeping everything ready for her all the same," but Marta thought she had never seen him look so old.

Early that same morning Jane Ann Tucker wakened to the exhilarating fact that she was a brand new person in a world where no one knew the girl called Folly Wainwright. Whatever she chose to do with her life from now on was her own responsibility.

Folly Likes Independence

The night before in her anger and hurt pride she had planned to stay away only until they sent some one to beg her to come back. But in the full light of day Folly found she liked her state of complete independence. It might be weeks before they could find her. Even if they did she was not sure she wanted to return.

Lying in the narrow hard bed of the Women's hotel she had sought as a temporary refuge Folly recalled every word Hilton had said to her the night before. She had never thought of herself as selfish but different from other girls. Hilton's speech had revealed a girl she did not even like. Restless, excitement seeking, hungry for love. . .immature.

She Meets Bruce.

No it was not a pretty picture he had painted but bitterly she admitted it must be true. And no one had been unhappier than that same Folly who felt as if no one needed her or depended on her for anything. Yet if Hilton had been speaking the truth there was a place for her, work for her to do which was vitally necessary.

Folly would have shrunk from the task of finding it but Jane Anne Tucker had wakened full of ambition. She would go to the State Employment Association and ask them for information. Also she must start looking for a place to room and board as she could not afford to stay at this or any other hotel.

The boarding house problem was solved by asking for a list of recommended rooms. The matter of training for defense work proved more complicated. There were a number of places which offered short courses in various types of work but remembering what Hilton had said Folly could not decide which might be most suited to her. She spent two entire days collecting information and late that afternoon on her return to her hotel she met Bruce.

"Oh, Bruce," Folly cried, feeling as if she had not seen him for years. "I thought you had been transferred some place else."

"And I thought you were married."

"Is that why you didn't call me."

"Yes," he admitted. "Although I did break down and call yesterday just to see what the score was."

Sisters Not Worried.

"What did they tell you?" she asked suspiciously.

"Chan told me you had left home."

"Is that all? Didn't he say they were upset about it or looking for me or any thing?"

"No, but I telephoned Marta later to know what it was all about."

"Go on," Folly cried eagerly.

But the boy's voice was casual. "She just said you had decided to be on your own for awhile."

"And they're not even worried?" Folly asked stunned and disappointed.

"Apparently not," Bruce said cheerfully. "Marta said you could do anything if you made up your mind to it. Of course they feel sure you'll get in touch with them soon."

They walked in silence for a few moments while the girl pondered this unexpected reaction on the part of her sisters.

To Write Hazel, Marta.

"At the Women's Hotel but I'm moving to a boarding house."

"You won't run away from me now that I've found you again?" Bruce pleaded. And rather to her own surprise Folly heard herself answering. "I'll give you my address on one condition."

"Which is not to tell your sisters where you are," Bruce surmised.

"Yes. You see I'm not Folly Wainwright any more. I'm using another name and I'm going to take a course of training in some kind of defense work."

His eyes adored her but he spoke diffidently. "Maybe I can help you there. One of my best friends works in a defense plant. But first I want to make an agreement with you. I won't say a word to your sisters about having seen you if you will write them a little note telling them you are working things out in your own way and eventually will get in touch with them."

"Why should I do that if they aren't worried?"

"Of course they're worried, Folly," he assured her. "They trust you but that doesn't mean they are not anxious to hear from you. How's about it? Is it a deal?"

"On your honor you will never tell them anything about me?"

"On my honor," he replied.

"All right. I'll write the letter now and mail it tonight so that they will have it by tomorrow."

"Fine. Then I'll help you move to your boarding house and we'll go some place for dinner," Bruce suggested.

Memories

"Yes but first I must tell you that I'm registered under my new name Jane Anne Tucker. It's the name I was christened and it seems to fit me better now than Folly."

"I'll remember but to me you'll always be Folly," he insisted. "That frightened little girl who clung to my hand in a black out and admitted she was afraid of the siren."

His words recalled to Folly her own mental image of the man who had held her hand. Tall, dark and handsome but also brave, tender and gallant. For a moment she could see this secret ideal merging into the freckle-faced soldier then she pushed the thought away. Bruce was too young, too inexperienced. It wasn't his appearance that mattered. She had learned to like his cheerful countenance, his merry mouth and thatch of sandy hair. She felt safe with him, too, and comfortable as she never had with Eric. He hadn't mentioned the count but he must have read the story about him in the papers.

"I suppose you know about what happened to Eric," she said later that evening.

"He never did look like a count to me," Bruce declared. "But I knew you wouldn't believe me if I should tell you so."

SOON TO FUNCTION

London, Sept. 21 — (CP)—Edward R. Stettinius, United States delegate to the United Nations Preparatory Commission, said last night "We are working night and day" to have the full United Nations organization functioning by the new year.

TESTIFIES 4,500

that 48,000 died at Belsen despite large German food stores near by.

Accused Frozen-Faced.

Kramer, called the "Beast of Belsen," and his co-defendants sat frozen-faced as the 34-year-old teacher described the hell of Belsen.

Mr. Le Druillenec told how he and a French colonel friend were crammed into a hut with 500 others.

"The more enterprising of the inmates slept on boards across the rafters. Most of the people were suffering from dysentery, including those sleeping above. I think I can leave the rest to your imagination."

The prosecutor, Col. T. M. Backhouse, asked:

"Could those on the floor move out of the way?"

"They could," the witness replied, "but if they did it would be hard for them to get their places back. After experience, we learned it was better not to move."

He said beatings on the head were administered by guards with sticks about five feet long and several inches thick during morning roll-call if the weakened, sickly inmates moved during the three or four hours they had to stand at attention.

"The day after we arrived," he related, "a French friend came and asked if I had inspected a long grey hut on the other side of Block 13 (where Mr. Le Druillenec was imprisoned.) He invited me to have a look through holes that were meant to be windows.

"The first window showed only a washroom—a crude place with several bodies floating about in water on the floor, but the second window revealed a room absolutely filled and I mean filled—with dead bodies. Many hundreds were in the room. In every room of that very long hut the sight was precisely the same."

He told, too, of seeing SS (Elite Guard) men whip women prisoners for lighting grass fires to try to cook, and of hut leaders distributing watery soup only to those who would pay three cigarets.

Of the feeding arrangements, Mr. Le Druillenec said:

"I suppose you have all seen an ordinary hen with a worm and five or six chasing it. We were like that. We had to keep taking furtive looks behind us to see that no one was after our food."

"The first four days", the schoolmaster testified, "I had only one pint of soup and one mug of water."

On the fifth day, he was put to work—dragging the dead to burial pits. The grisly procession started each day at sunrise and lasted until 8 p.m., he said adding:

"In the five days I spent on the burial job, no food or drop of water passed my lips."

Guards stationed along the path beat laggards, he said, and kept them from grabbing at vegetable peelings or water as they passed the kitchen. A Hungarian guard shot and killed large numbers of prisoners— "hundreds daily" —until the prisoners discovered he was shooting those who walked instead of ran with their burden of dead.

Mr. Le Druillenec said the burial workers' aim was twofold: "To choose a corpse that was short and light, and to choose one not too black."

It was while he was engaged in the burial work that he witnessed the cannibalism.

MODEL AIRPLANE PROVES TOO STRONG LURE FOR SMALL BOY

Envious eyes and the appeal of something which he did not himself possess proved too much for a local juvenile during the fair with result that when the time came for exhibits to be taken away, a model airplane shown by Max Fargie, Cannifton Road, was missing on Wednesday.

A model airplane is rather conspicuous, however, and the boy who was responsible for its disappearance was seen carrying it about the grounds. Result was that he was recognized and today Max has his airplane back.

TRACTOR TRAILER BREAKS STANDARD

Struck by the tractor trailer of a Smith Transport which had cut the corner too sharply, the electric light standard on the southwest corner of the Front and Bridge Street intersection was broken last evening. The red and green traffic signal also was positioned on the standard and with the damaging of the pole this was later temporarily fastened to an advertising sign on the corner.

POLICE COURT

City police court was of rather brief duration Friday morning with nine cases, including seven of infractions of the L.C.A. being settled out of court.

Robert Allen, local young man, was fined $10 and costs for driving without a permit, or in default will serve ten days in jail.

Charged with careless driving another local motorist had his case enlarged until next week, while the case of still another motorist charged with leaving the scene of an accident and also of dangerous driving was also enlarged one week through nonappearance in court of the accused's counsel.

RUDOLF HESS FOUND 'SUITABLE' TO FACE TRIAL

Baron von Neurath, on Trial List, Captured, French Say

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 21 —(AP)— The Russians named their judge and prosecutor today for the German war crimes trial this winter and the French announced the capture of Baron Konstantin von Neurath, one of the 24 listed for arraignment before the international tribunal.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, British prosecutor, said the question of the sanity of Rudolf Hess had been thoroughly explored and that the one time third-ranking Nazi was suitable for trial. Hess parachuted onto a Scottish moor May 10, 1941, and has since been a prisoner of the British.

The Russians appointed R. Rudenko prosecutor and I. T. Nikitchenko judge for the four-man international court.

Mr. Justice Robert H. Jackson, United States prosecutor, said indictments for the first 24 accused Nazis were ready and could be filed whenever the court was convened. He declared the German Gestapo and S.S. (Elite Guard) would be tried as organizations simultaneously with such Nazis as Hermann Goering, Hess, Joachim Ribbentrop, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and Von Neurath. A conviction of the organizations would mean that all their members would be guilty to the extent of their participation, Jackson said.

List Not "Closed."

"The trials cannot possibly begin before Nov. 1, but they definitely will be held this winter," Jackson said.

He added that the 24 listed as war criminals did not constitute a "closed list." Others likely will be added.

A spokesman for the French delegation said there had been no disagreement among Britain, the United States, Russia and France on whether war of aggression was to be classified as a crime.

The French said Von Neurath was captured Wednesday in Baden Baden.

Von Neurath was Hitler's foreign minister before Joachim Ribbentrop. Then he became "protector" of Bohemia and Moravia. He formerly was president of the secret Nazi cabinet council.

Local Branch Blind Institute to Hold Tag Day Saturday

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind employs more blind people than any other agency in America, if not in the whole world. It is not a government organization but it is recognized by the Dominion Government and the Provincial governments and given some financial support. The main bulk of the revenue required by the Institute comes from public subscriptions. The policies and financial set-up of the Institute are in the hands of a publicly elected board, none of whom are employees of the Institute. Some of the members of the Board are blind, as it is the policy of the Institute to consult with men with the practical experience of blindness in the development of a program of social service for the blind of Canada. The managing director is blind. He is, as a matter of fact, one of the best known Canadians—Colonel E. A. Baker, O.B.E., M.C.; Croix de Guerre. The librarian is blind. He is Dr. S. C. Swift, who graduated from McGill University with high honors in modern languages. There are many other blind people employed by the Institute in executive positions. The guiding principle of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is that, if a competent blind person is given some assistance and a measure of well-directed co-operation, he can take his place alongside his sighted fellows in many occupations and positions. In its twenty-three years' experience, it has proved that the principle is sound. When it is considered that there are approximately twelve thousand blind people in Canada, the extent of the work undertaken by the Institute can be appreciated. To carry on its great task it needs funds. On September 22, there will be a tag day in Belleville under the auspices of the Hastings County Advisory Board. There is an opportunity for the citizens to assume their share of an important national duty which is being magnificently discharged.

American Soldier Killed in Blast

Tokyo, Sept. 21 — (AP)—One American soldier was killed and 60 injured yesterday in the explosion of a Japanese ammunition dump at the edge of Takeyama airfield in Chiba Prefecture, army authorities disclosed today.

An undetermined number of Japanese also were injured in a blast, which occurred when an American soldier accidentally dropped T.N.T. or picric acid into the dump.

The army said there was no suspicion of Japanese sabotage.

MANY TAKE CRUISE TRIP

Montreal, Sept. 21 (CP)—Canadian Steamship Lines yesterday announced that a record 191,000 passengers had been carried on regular lower St. Lawrence cruise trips this season. Last year's total was 168,694. The lower river sailings end following tonight's departure of the S.S. Quebec from Montreal.

DECLARED INSANE

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 21 (AP) — John Borten, 65, Rochester, charged with kidnapping nine-year-old Marjorie Wick of Buffalo, last July, has been declared insane by psychiatrists who examined him for several weeks in Buffalo State Hospital. Borton has been a fugitive from a State Mental Hospital in Norrietown, Pa., since 1936.

London — (CP) — Field-Marshal Montgomery has been appointed Colonel Commandant, Royal Tank Regiment, succeeding the late General Sir Hugh Elles.

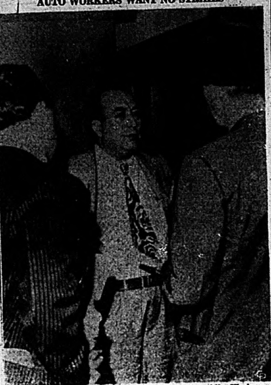
AUTO WORKERS WANT NO STRIKES



R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, is shown chatting with reporters in Flint, Mich., where the executive board of the C.I.O. met to consider plans for taking strike votes in the Ford, General Motors and Chrysler plants. Mr. Thomas said that the auto workers want no strikes. They want increased pay. The U.A.W. is demanding a 30 per cent increase in pay for the entire industry.

Tells of Horror of Forced March in Western Germany

Winnipeg, Sept. 21 — (CP) — The tortures of a 22-day forced march made by 1,500 Allied war prisoners through the bitter cold of a German winter with insufficient food, clothing and medical supplies, while the advancing Russian Army followed only a few days behind, have been described by Flt. Lt. John J. Walky, one of the men who made the trek.

From his diary, Walky told the story of the torture march in a series of articles in the Winnipeg Tribune, a story of slow marches across snow-swept German plains made on scanty food rations.

As a result of the 150-mile march the men were in deplorable condition. They all suffered from extreme malnutrition, and in the hospital of the prison camp at Luckenwalde there were 69 cases of dysentery, with many others suffering from frostbite, septic foot, diarrhea, bronchitis, muscular rheumatism and numerous other ailments.

News of the Russian offensive on Jan. 15, 1945 spread jubilation among the prisoners of the camp near Bankau, 12 miles west of the Polish border. But their joy turned to fear, then panic, as two days later the Germans ordered them to pack their kit and prepare to move. The destination was Sagan, 150 miles west, and the men walked as slowly as possible to enhance their chances of being overtaken by the Russians.

Nights Were Bad

During the first few nights men collapsed on the road and it was only sheer will power and courage that kept them going. Nights were spent vainly trying to sleep in cold barns, mangers and stalls. During the day the men's minds were occupied solely with thoughts of food. The trading market flourished. Rings, watches and lighters were exchanged for bread.

The price of four loaves of bread was a good wrist watch and civilians took full advantage of the men.

Accustomed to the lies of German guards, the prisoners smirked in bisbelief when told they would march to Sagan and there board a train for the rest of the journey. But the news that Sagan had been evacuated left them with no place to go.

They marched to the town of Goldberg where they waited for a train. The freight yards of that town were used as a parade square and the men were loaded into closed freight cars after which the doors were locked.

Because of the close confinement — as many as 65 men were packed into each car — many of the passengers fainted. In addition the guards wouldn't allow the men with dysentery to leave the cars.

On Feb. 8 the haggard group arrived at Luckenwalde where they were crowded into the barracks of Stalag 3. There they had to sleep on the floor, so close together it was impossible to move. German rations were insufficient to restore health but the men were relieved, knowing there would be no more marching.

Hong Kong Veteran Says Lack Of Equipment Made Battle "A Mess"

Winnipeg, Sept. 21. (CP)—Lack of equipment, too few men and undertrained soldiers, made the battle for Hong Kong "a mess", Pte. Harry Gyselman, of Winnipeg, said here last night.

"All our mechanized equipment was on the ship following us. It never arrived. We fought the Japs with rifles, Bren guns, revolvers, Tommy guns, two inch mortars and grenades. There was plenty of ammunition, but we needed aerial, artillery and naval support—and more men".

Pte. Gyselman, who returned to Winnipeg Tuesday, after being a prisoner of the Japanese since Christmas Day, 1941, said the Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Canada commandeered civilian trucks for use in defence of the British Crown colony.

"Some of the men had never trained at all," he said. "A few had never fired a shot before reaching Hong Kong.

"Our main shortage of equipment was artillery, aeroplanes and ships. We could have held out with better naval and aerial support.

"The whole thing was a farce. Even the pillboxes were rotten. They were supposed to be concrete, but they were a very poor grade of it. You could also put your foot through them.

"We were shipped into a trap. It was a mess".

Speaking of the Grenadiers, he said they were a heavy machine gun unit before going to the Far East. "But we changed to infantry. The first we saw of infantry equipment was on the ship.

"When we came back from Jamaica, we picked up re-inforcements in Winnipeg. Those fellows had been in the army from two weeks to four months.

"There was plenty of food but it was never distributed", he added. "The Japs had the range on all the main roads and bingo".

Advises Hospitals Against Building At Present Time

Hamilton, Sept. 21. (CP)—Dr. F. W. Routley, of Toronto, yesterday warned the Canadian Hospital Council at its biennial meeting against undertaking any building program yet because changes in price conditions were imminent.

"Price conditions now are fantastic", Dr. Routley said.

Dr. Harvey Agnews, council secretary, said that although more than 84 per cent of Ontario's hospitals were preparing for expansion, hospital officials and trustees were faced by a cost situation "not generally realized". Many boards were using the pre-war basis of $4,000 per bed whereas the current cost is about $10,000.

Food Purchases Given Preference By British Govt.

London, Sept. 21. (CP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express predicted that Britain will buy nothing "on the slate" from the United States or Canada.

"The government has decided to buy food in preference to every other form of commodity in America", said the paper's political writer, Guy Eden. "An acute shortage of currency has forced the decision, which means that Britain must do without almost everything that involves spending dollars".

In Ottawa on Sept. 7 Finance Minister Ilsley said discussions between Lord Keynes and officials of the Dominion Finance Department earlier this month related directly to financing of Canadian supplies to Britain during the immediate future. He said no final arrangement was being made at the time about long-term credits.

Lord Keynes now is discussing Britain's financial needs in Washington and some American sources have predicted he will ask for a credit or a long-term, low interest loan of up to $6,000,000,000.

Norwood Doctor Testifies At Murder Trial

Peterborough, Sept. 21. (CP)—Ernest Graham's statement "I guess I'll swing for this", was admitted by Mr. Justice Lebel in Supreme Court sitting yesterday as evidence for the prosecution in his trial for the murder of his mother, Mrs. Matilda Graham, 85, at Norwood, Ont., August first.

The expression was quoted by Dr. A. R. Atkinson, Norwood, who was called to the Graham house around three a.m., and found Mrs. Graham dying of multiple wounds on her face and head.

"I wouldn't say anything like that", Dr. Atkinson advised the accused. "Graham then asked me how his mother was, and I told him she was in a critical condition".

Whiskey and beer were drunk by Graham and his mother and Mrs. Lillian Smith, and after midnight Mrs. Smith, trying to light a cigarette at a coal oil lamp, blew out the flame. the room was in darkness. Mrs. Graham got up to go for matches, and fell heavily on the floor, striking her head with an awful bang.

Mrs. Smith said she could not make Graham realize his mother was unconscious. He was angry at the lamp incident, and was swearing that it was a stupid trick. Mrs. Smith crawled out of the room and the house and went to a neighboring house for help and a doctor. She said she was afraid Graham would beat her as he had done on several occasions.

Provincial Constable Grayling, Havelock, and Constable Wm. Parcells, Norwood, found Mrs. Graham near death in the yard at the rear of her house about 3.05 a.m., August 1. She died at 4.30 a.m. Dr. Atkinson testified that apparently, from blood marks on the floor, someone had dragged her across the kitchen and out into the yard.

Tojo Will be Moved To Yokohama Prison When Health Permits

Yokohama, Sept. 21 —(AP)— Japan's warlord Hideki Tojo will be moved into Yokohama prefectural prison with other members of his Pearl Harbor cabinet as soon as he recovers from his self-inflicted bullet wound, Lt.-Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the U. S. 8th Army, said Thursday.

The 8th Army, occupying central and northern Honshu, now has 32 suspected war criminals in cells in this jail on the outskirts of Yokohama.

Tojo is reported improving rapidly at the army hospital here, and all indications are that he should be able to move within a week.

Prophet of World's End Gives Worried Husband No Satisfaction

Toronto Sept. 21. (CP)—A man who has had his home life disturbed by a prophecy that the world will end today, the preacher who prophesied the end of the world and a reporter got together on a long-distance telephone call today—and here's what happened.

Gwynn Thomas of the Toronto Star reported first that when Ernest W. Cannon of Saint John, N.B., called 4,000 miles to talk to Rev. Charles G. Long, of Pasadena, Calif., it cost $33. But Mr. Cannon said he just had to talk to Mr. Long whose prophecy about the world ending Friday had stopped his, Cannon's, wife from pickling.

"Your statement has very much affected my household", Mr. Cannon began. "I would like to know more about the basis of your prophecy".

He went on to explain that his wife had read Mr. Long's statement that the world will end today and "won't go on with her cauliflower and onion pickles. That's not only my favorite dish. My boy is coming back from overseas and motner was making an extra supply because they're his favorites, too. Now, how about that?"

Mr. Long explained that as leader of the religious group known as the remnant of the Church of God, an angel, in a dream he had, told him the world would end. He admonished Mr. Cannon that "the Lord cannot wait till worldly tasks like pickling are finished".

"Can't you have another dream and save my pickles," asked the worried husband, then he put his wife on the phone to talk to her oracle.

"Do you really believe the Lord would end the world before the mothers again see their boys", said Mrs. Cannon. But Mr. Long was deaf to this plea, referring Mrs. Cannon to Mathew 24, verses 24 to 26.

He also told her to pray at 12 noon, 2 p.m., and 8 p.m., to ready herself for the end.

And Mr. Cannon just groaned, the reporter said, and is still waiting for his pickles.

RECOMMEND VOLUNTEER BASIS

Toronto, Sept. 21 —(CP)— Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, said representatives of five universities—McGill, Queen's, McMaster, Western and Toronto—met here Sept. 8 and decided to recommend to their governing bodies that participation in any military training program be placed on a voluntary basis.

Military training has been compulsory in Canadian universities since 1941 under the Resources Mobilization Act.

Fancy Meats Lifted From Rationed List By Finance Minister

Liver, Heart, Kidney And Tongue, Sausage Freed

Ottawa, Sept. 22—(CP)—Fancy meats came off Canada's rationed list today in a government answer to criticism of its rationing system but though most butchers approved the step, many believed it did not go far enough and still expressed hope meat rationing might yet be abandoned outright.

Finance Minister Ilsley announced in the Commons yesterday the temporary lifting from the ration of the fancy meats — liver, heart, kidney, tongue, sweetbreads and blood sausage — effective today. These may now be purchased in fresh, cured, smoked or cooked forms without ration coupons, but still rationed are fancy meats packed hermetically or processed meat containing any of the by-products of an ingredient.

The suspension makes no difference in regulations governing meatless days and restaurants and other public eating places will still have meatless menus on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Butchers across Canada, who had been complaining that fancy meats were going to waste because purchasers would not use ration coupons for them, expressed the general opinion the government move was a step in the right direction. But many believed that processed meats such as bologna, pressed ham and chicken loaf should also have been taken off the ration list.

Threats of meat sales strikes were still heard in some areas. At Victoria Arthur Wheeler, secretary of the Vancouver Island Meat Dealers' Association, said fancy meats had been a minor issue in the rationing controversy and did not change the situation. He was recommending Victoria butchers strike Monday as planned.

Waiting Return.

Butchers at other points were awaiting return of their delegates who attended a one-day rationing conference here earlier in the week at which the system was discussed with Finance Minister Ilsley, Agriculture Minister Gardiner and officials of the Prices Board.

The Finance Minister's announcement was the government's answer to proposals of the delegation of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada which at the conference here, proposed that rationing be suspended. They asked instead, a trial plan by which meat for overseas shipments be requisitioned by government agencies and the remainder equitably distributed through regular trade channels under Prices Board supervision.

But in his announcement yesterday, Finance Minister Ilsley said that wouldn't work. The government was convinced that in a very short time under such a system, the dealers would be "demanding redress as they did late in 1942 and early in 1943 and as they were beginning to do in the spring of 1945 when temporary shortages began to appear in certain eastern cities."

More Perishable.

The minister said fancy meats were being removed from the ration because these by-products were "relatively more perishable than others, and that there appears to be evidence that their sales have slowed down in some areas to a point where actual spoilage threatens to occur."

The Prices Board would examine the practicability of putting these meats back on the ration in six or eight weeks "by which time everybody will be readily familiar with the rationing system."

Should that course seem impracticable, he said the Board would take "some other appropriate step," perhaps skipping a ration coupon every three or four months, so as to keep over-all meat consumption within the target set.

Mr. Ilsley said rationing would remain in effect until it became apparent the government could fulfill its overseas commitments as well as its responsibilities to Canadian consumers.

However, the method of requisition would be used if necessary and the Canadian Meat Board, which handles exports, would be authorized to requisition such additional supplies of fancy meats as might be necessary to fill export demands.

HONOR AGA KHAN'S SON

Bombay —(CP)— Col. Prince Aly Khan, son of the Aga Khan, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General of the 6th Army Group in Germany. The award was made for meritorious service in his work as liaison officer, 6th Army Group, in France.

Mayor to Request Labor Ministers Come to Windsor

Windsor, Sept. 22—(CP)—Mayor Arthur Reaume today prepared to ask both Federal and Provincial intervention as a step toward settlement of the 10-day strike involving 10,000 production workers of the Ford Limited.

The mayor prepared appeals to Federal Labor Minister Mitchell and Ontario Labor Minister Daley to come to Windsor in person. This action was approved last night at a meeting of the (C.I.O.) policy committee and newly-formed committee invited to act in advisory capacity to assist in bringing a settlement.

M'Arthur Orders Arrest of Abe

Tokyo, Sept. 22 — (AP)—General MacArthur today ordered the Japanese government to deliver Gen. Nobuyuke Abe, until recently governor-general of Korea, into Allied custody. Abe reportedly has been at his home in Tokyo since his arrival Wednesday from Korea.

Abe served as "ambassador" to the Nanking puppet government and was Japanese premier between Sept. 30, 1939 and Jan. 15, 1940, during which period his makeshift cabinet attempted to smooth American-Japanese relations.

Suggests Lend Lease For Like Period As Britain Stood Alone

London, Sept. 22 — (CP)—The Times suggested today that retroactive lend lease for a period equivalent to Britain's lone stand against Germany "would be a reciprocal gesture which might well be regarded by the British government as a happy solution to difficulties threatened by the abrupt cessation of lend lease supplies."

The lend lease act was signed in March, 1941, the Times said, "after Britain had been struggling on alone for nine months," and "it was not until December, 1941, that the doors of the arsenal of democracy really began to swing open."

PRIME MINISTER MAY VISIT LONDON FOR CONFERENCE

Would Like to Talk With Attlee, Bevin And Lord Addison About the Dominion

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 22 — (CP) — An indication was given in the Commons yesterday that the C. C. F. will support the government when the vote is taken on the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit motions of non-confidence in the administration.

Max Campbell (CCF — The Battlefords) told the Commons that he would vote against both motions, moved in the form of amendments to the motion for adoption of the Throne Speech.

"Each of these amendments simply say that the government has failed here or failed there or somewhere else," said Mr. Campbell, explaining why he would oppose the motions when the vote is taken, possibly Tuesday. He was believed to be expressing views that bore the sanction of his party officials.

The Progressive Conservative amendment accused the government of failing to provide proper demobilization, housing and reconversion plans. The Social Credit amendment simply added that the government failed to meet the needs for a prosperous peace and also failed to provide the country with an effective and scientific financial policy.

Battle Casualties All but 26 Moved Back to Canada

Ottawa, Sept. 22 (CP)—Veterans Minister Mackenzie said yesterday in the Commons action was taken last week to deal with congestion in the out patients department of Christie Street Hospital, Toronto.

He was answering an earlier question from Hon. Dr. Herbert Bruce (PC—Toronto Parkdale).

The department was endeavoring to obtain down-town premises in Toronto so that out patients could be interviewed and screened there before going to Christie Street for treatment.

Mr. Mackenzie gave figures on bed space available for service personnel, there now were 9,603 with 6,000 more under construction. He said all battle casualties except 26 have been returned to Canada.

Later a National Defence spokesman said a total of 11,957 battle casualties had been moved back to Canada since Jan. 1, 1945. No figure was available for the war period preceding the first of the year.

Removal From Society "Completely And Forever" Asked for Child Slayers

Vancouver, Sept. 22 —(CP)— Removal "completely and forever" from contact with society of convicted slayers of children was recommended Friday night by a coroner's jury investigating the East End killing of four-year-old Dianne Blunt.

The jury found the child died of "extensive fractures of the skull and injuries to the brain . . . caused by blows from an instrument or instruments in the hands of a person or persons unknown."

The badly-battered body of the child was found last Monday in an unused garage 25 yards from her home, six days after she had disappeared.

A 12-year-old Vancouver junior high school boy has been held in custody in connection with the case since he directed police to the body. He has not been charged.

The jury termed the killing a "hideous" crime and declared that "it warrants a recommendation to the proper authorities that the person or persons found guilty of such a crime be dealt with in a manner as to completely and forever remove the guilty person or persons from the freedom or contact with society."

"Under the Juvenile Delinquency Act, juveniles up to 14 come under the sole jurisdiction of the juvenile court. This court is limited, even in a murder conviction, to sentencing the convicted juvenile to detention until 21, when release is automatic. If found criminally insane, a juvenile can be confined for life or until pronounced cured. An insane juvenile would not be charged with a crime.

Evidence that bloodstains and blond hair similar to Diane's was found on clothing worn by the 12-year-old boy said to have confessed the killing, was given by Inspector J. D. C. B. Vance, police analyst.

LIBERATED GENERAL RETURNS HOME

TERM DRAFTING NOT TO LIKING CANADIAN GOVT.

Reserves Full Right to Oppose or Remain Out of Any Peace Settlement

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 22 — (CP)—Procedure being followed in the drafting of terms for peace settlements in Europe is not particularly to the liking of the Canadian government or of the governments of the other Dominions, it is believed by informed quarters here.

This is understood to be one of the reasons why Prime Minister Mackenzie King wants to visit London soon for personal talks with Prime Minister Attlee, Foreign Secretary Bevin and other members of the new British government.

In the meantime, Mr. King's statement in the House of Commons yesterday calling attention to the primary purpose of the foreign ministers' conference now meeting in London, is taken as a hint that the Canadian government reserves full rights to oppose, and if necessary remain out, of any peace settlement drafted by the Big Five powers which does not meet with its approval.

Goes Beyond Scope

The prime minister went beyond the scope of a question addressed to him by Progressive-Conservative leader Bracken to say he wanted no misunderstanding about what the foreign ministers' conference was. It was a preparatory body for drafting certain proposals relating to peace settlements but had no authority to make the settlements. It consists of the foreign ministers of the United Kingdom, United States, Russia, France and China.

Gen. C. Foulkes At Top of List

Ottawa, Sept. 22—(CP)—Defence headquarters announced today the award of mention in dispatches to 618 officers and men of the Canadian Army for "gallant and distinguished service overseas."

At the top of the list was the name of Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, former commander of the 1st corps in Italy and on the western front and now Chief of General Staff at Ottawa.

The awards also went to two brigadiers. One was William Cameron Murphy of Vancouver, leader of the veteran 1st armored brigade through much of its fighting in Italy and on the western front. The other was Emmet Andrew McCucker of Regina, recently deputy director of medical services at C.M.H.Q. in London.

TRANSPORTATION SHUTDOWN MAY COME TO DETROIT

City Faces Gasoline-less Week Unless Break Comes in C.I.O. Strike

Detroit, Sept. 22 — (AP) — A complete shutdown in transportation threatened the automotive capital of the United States today climaxed a week of labor troubles involving some 86,000 workers.

The city faced a gasoline-less week, unless there is a break in the strike of the International Oil Workers Union (C.I.O.).

Approximately 65 per cent of the 3,400 gasoline service stations posted "empty tanks" signs. A dealers' association reported the others would be closed by Monday, halting private automobiles and trucks.

The municipal transportation system, already taxed to the limit by a shortage of bus drivers, curtailed some services. With only a five-day supply of gasoline on hand, more bus runs were expected to be withdrawn.

Taxi cabs offered only limited service.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries urged President Truman to order federal labor authorities to give the critical situation highest priority.

Meanwhile, the deadlocked automobile industry-labor trouble—no closer to a solution — saw two more plants shut down.

Closes Truck Plant

Chrysler Corporation closed its doors

Dodge truck plant. The management said 40 to 50 pickets representing Local 140 of the U. A. W. barred 800 employees from entering the factory yesterday.

Zenith carburetor division of Bendix Aviation Corporation also closed, after the management sent home 1,600 workers because of a strike of 40 foremen. The foremen said the strike stemmed from "dissatisfaction with working arrangements." The company did not comment.

There were no developments in the strike of 4,500 Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company employees which contributed to the closing down of Fort Motor Company plants leaving 50,000 employees idle.

Emergency oil supplies were obtained for key services, such as the Department of Public Works, hospitals, government services, food agencies, ambulances and the health department.

Protests were mounting. The Wayne Medical Society said "doctors cannot make calls without gasoline," and the Michigan branch of the American Automobile Association warned travellers against coming into the state.

NEW STREET LIGHT BOON TO SLEEPERS

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 22—(AP)—A new type of street lighting fixture will bring relief to "people who have to go to bed with the street light shining in their eyes" a General Electric staff member predicts. The fixture will project the beam downward.

SECRECY CLOAKS WIND-UP TALKS ON PEACE TERMS

Molotov of Russia Says That Too Much Information is Being Given Out

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 22 (AP)—In an ever-tightening atmosphere of secrecy requested by Foreign Commisar Molotov of Russia, the Big Five council of foreign ministers prepared today to wind up talks on peace treaties and discuss control of the Dardanelles and European waterways.

A reliable source said Mr. Molotov protested that the council's communiques have been too detailed, that minutes of meetings have been too extensive, and that too much information has leaked out of closed sessions.

This source said the Big Five agreed to meet his objections.

Results became apparent quickly. Last night's communique said only that the Romanian and Bulgarian peace treaties were discussed, with Soviet proposals as a basis, and that British and United States views were being considered.

The ministers are scheduled to decide today whether the entire Bulgarian - Yugoslav border should be written out on the ground that even though it might require longer and more detailed work, it would result in less probability of a future misunderstanding.

Hungary will be the next nation on the peace treaty log.

There appears to be no hurry to finish the treaties and this session is expected to break up next week. Detailed work, perhaps by the ministers' deputies, would be possible between sessions.

The ministers yesterday skipped completely Greek claims on Bulgaria because the Russians refused to listen to the present Greek government with which they are dissatisfied, and the western Allies refused to negotiate with the present Bulgarian regime.

Carriers Cannot Go Through Canal

Washington, Sept. 22. (AP)—The United States Navy's new 45,000 ton aircraft carriers, biggest warships afloat, are too hefty to pass through the Panama Canal. In order to reach the Pacific they must round Cape Horn or sail east.

Confirming this today, naval sources said it is not a case of a man building a boat in his basement too big to take through the door. It is simply recognition that the canal, as a controlling factor in naval construction, is outmoded.

The three Behemoths are the Midway, already commissioned; the Franklin D. Roosevelt, launched but not commissioned, and the Coral Sea, still under construction.

Supplemental locks, begun before the war but not completed, will eventually permit the carriers to get through the canal.

STOLEN BONDS FOUND

Aylmer, Sept. 22 — (CP) — A carnival worker yesterday found $1,200 worth of stolen $25 bonds hidden under a sheet of paper in a hotel dresser. Police identified the bonds as those taken last June from a safe owned by Dr. Douglas S. Carrie of St. Thomas, Ont.

Propellerless Plane Used in War Demonstrated at Rockliffe Air Station

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 22 —(CP)— An aerial rope-trick that saw the jet-propelled Gloster Meteor streak almost perpendicularly from 500 to 15,000 feet almost as fast as it takes to read this paragraph was performed at nearby Rockcliffe air station yesterday.

Sqdn. Ld. Sham Badoux, multi-decorated ace from Stellarton, N.S., put the propellerless fighter through its paces for the entertainment of press and technical men. When he landed he admitted to some "butterflies" in his stomach after speeds of more than 500 miles an hour and the spectators had cricks in their necks from following the wraithe-like jet across the sky.

The plane is the gift of the British Air Ministry to the R.C.A.F. and will be used for research especially in connection with fuel conservation and cold weather tests.

It is the only Allied jet fighter with actual operational experience in the war and was used successfully in stopping showers of buzz-bombs whizzing at London.

Sqdn. Ldr. Badoux demonstrated the manoeuvrability of the slim plane in 15 minutes of aerial acrobatics at terrific speeds over the airdrome. He also slowed the plane down to show its complete range of speed.

At take-off the plane's twin-jets start with a penetrating whine that turns to a prolonged scream. The jets belch waves of heat-haze and as the fighter hurls across the runway the noise drops to a rumble. As it becomes airborne, it sounds like a giant blow-torch.

The turbine jet motor opens up new vistas in transport speed. The other day this fighter craft went the 200-odd air miles to Montreal and back in about 25 minutes.

Scientists have said that when speeds of more than 1,000 miles an hour are eventually developed the current problem of drag, pressures and other conditions will be dispelled and the possibility of a trip to the moon may even be considered.

Meanwhile, the practical problem of fitting the jet propulsion into commercial life now is being studied.

M'Arthur Demands Accounting of Japs' Financial Dealings

Jap Naval Police Force Must Demobilize by Oct. 31

Tokyo, Sept. 22 — (AP) — Gen. MacArthur today demanded an account of all Japanese financial dealings from the day of the attack on Pearl Harbor to the present, including those of the imperial household whose chief tenant, the Emperor, reportedly has no intention of abdicating.

A member of the Royal Family, Prince Fumimaro Konoye, said there was "absolutely nothing" to Washington hints that Hirohito would quit the throne.

Lt.-Gen. Kenji Dolhara, Japan's top military field commander, meanwhile went to work as usual at the Japanese war ministry despite an order for his "immediate arrest," issued by Gen. MacArthur yesterday but not immediately transmitted to either Allied or Japanese arresting officers.

Two New Directives

Two additional directives were passed on today to the Nipponese government, burdened with a heavy day of order-taking. One called for the arrest of Nobuyuki Abe, former governor-general of Korea, and the other demanded complete demobilization of the Japanese naval police force before Oct. 31.

Vice Premier Konoye told correspondents that the constitution prohibits the emperor from abdicating, but he added that Hirohito might step down from the throne in event of illness. In that case, a regent would serve until Hirohito's death, then the crown prince would inherit the throne — the procedure followed in the case of Hirohito's father in 1924.

Wants Emperor's Books

In addition to a report on the books of the emperor and the government, Gen. MacArthur asked for the amount of money held by banks, insurance firms and all other financial institutions, lists of directors and top executives of all firms dealing in big money, and lists of all their heavy investors.

The scientific section of the Allied staff needs the financial reports to block, if necessary, use of Japanese money in a manner inimical to the objectives of the occupation.

Chikuhei Nakajima, Minister of Commerce and Industry in the Japanese cabinet, said in an interview that his country must reestablish trade with the United States before even the bare essentials of life for its economy can be produced.

Gen. MacArthur's instructions on the demobilization of the naval police superseded Japanese plans to keep 11,279 of the police on duty at the end of October until all arms are collected.

To Be Placed in Custody.

Naval police stores of arms and ammunition must be placed in custody of civil police by the new order.

Meanwhile, the occupation program expanded at such a pace that the president of the Philippines reluctantly complained it was responsible for a threatening relief crisis in his commonwealth.

The President, Sergio Osmena, messaged Gen. MacArthur from Manila that Allied army movements toward Japan have tied up docking space and truck transportation.

"I am sure you are desirous of doing everything in your power to prevent the civilian supplies situation in the Philippines from becoming critical even though it may temporarily slow up the implementation of military plans for the Japanese occupation," President Osmena said.

Take Over Naval Base.

Those plans called for the taking over today of Japan's naval base at Sasebo on western Kyushu. Advance Allied elements occupied the airfield at atom-bombed Nagasaki, 30 miles south of Sasebo, yesterday.

From another atom-bombed area, Hiroshima, came word that more than 100,000 Japanese in the prefecture were left homeless by the typhoon earlier this week.

Gen. MacArthur's new order for demobilization of the naval police, like all Allied orders, automatically became a legal Japanese government order by a process just approved by the Japanese privy council.

Evacuation of more than 9,000 British, Canadian, American, Dutch, Australian, and Javanese prisoners of war, recently liberated from 17 camps on Kyushu, was completed today.

8 Interrogation Rooms in Use In Nuernberg Jail

By NOLAND NORGAARD

Nuernberg, Sept. 22 (AP) — At least eight special interrogation rooms are being kept in steady use here every day by Allied prosecution staffs engaged in gathering great masses of evidence for the War Crimes trial of two dozen top Nazi figures.

Justice Robert H. Jackson, U.S. prosecutor, said the prisoners are not being subjected to "any misuse or indignity," and added he hoped they would choose their own defence counsel, instead of compelling the court to appoint defence attorneys. Even a person under arrest could be released as a defence attorney, should a dedendant desire it, he said.

Interrogators have found that Nazi prisoners and witnesses alike appear to enjoy being questioned.

The prisoners are brought to Nuernberg's bomb-battered hall of justice from their cells in the nearby jail. They come through a newly-built outdoor corridor and climb a private, guard-lined stairway to the hallway guarded by heavily armed members of the special security force. The interrogators' sound-proof rooms are draped with heavy cloth.

Few persons outside the interrogation staff and the soldier guards see the men who this winter will march into a comparatively small courtroom and face judges of four Allied powers.

Justice Jackson said 750 Nazi documents essential to the prosecution still are to be translated.

Total grants of the Ontario Government to the Belleville Board of Education for the current year amount to $112,720.37, the Board was informed at its regular meeting Friday night. This amount is an increase of $82,238.79 over grants of 1944.

Of this amount a capital grant of $21,887.93 will be made to the City of Belleville to assist in the payment of debentures.

The intention of the new scheme of grants, it was pointed out, is to aid in removing part of the heavy taxation on real property for the support of schools and to create better and more equal educational opportunities for the schools of the province. These aims are to be achieved by very moderate use for needs related to the schools and a major reduction in school tax rates.

Thus the net amount to the Board of Education will be $90,832.44, an increase of $70,527.89 over last year. Increase in the capital grant to the city this year will be $11,710.90.

The grant, broken down, will bring a gross to the city public schools of $39,950.16; to the Collegiate Institute, $30,141.50 and to the Vocational School, $42,628.71. The gross increase in grants to the public schools over 1944 is $33,701.73; the Collegiate Institute $26,772.98 and the Vocational School, $21,764.08.

796 Students Enrolled

Principal G. E. Currie in his report to Lt. Col. B. C. Sisler, chairman of the Collegiate Board of Management Committee stated that to date 796 students have been enrolled, an increase of 51 over the enrolment of the corresponding date a year ago.

He recommended that employment be given to a night caretaker for the school due to day men's long hours with the extended use of the school building during the evenings. A night man, he felt, would relieve the situation.

Erosion of the school campus, Principal Currie pointed out has proceeded to the extent that practically all of the soil that was brought in when the grounds were first levelled off, has been washed away to the street until nails and other rubble of the foundation of the old building are beginning to come to the surface. The latter jeopardizes the safety of the students using the grounds and the slope towards the street of the playing field that renders it awkward for campus activities.

He recommended that the Board consider the construction of a retaining cement or stone wall to be built along the edge of the campus next to the sidewalk of Church Street, extending from the south corner of the campus as far as required to make possible and keep the campus level.

Public School Increase.

In his report to the Public School Management Committee Inspector-Administrator L. A. Kells that the increase in total enrolment in the city public schools was 82, 46 of which are kindergarten. The full time of one kindergarten teacher was required and the remainder of the increase has been absorbed for the present. He recommended that effective Sept. 1 a birth certificate be required to be submitted for admission to the public school kindergarten.

The following teachers have been added to the public school staffs for September 1945: Miss Catharine Morton and Miss Doreen Goodfellow, both probationary; Miss Helen Govette, Mrs. E. Barry, Mrs. H. Bates, Mrs. C. Brown and Mrs. E. S. Fairman all temporary. Mr. Kells suggested that the above named temporary teachers be retained, if possible for the school year.

By Section 112 of the Public Schools Act, the minimum salary has been increased to $1,200. Rural schools are compelled to pay this minimum effective Sept. 1, 1945. Urban schools are expected to pay at least the minimum but are not liable to a penalty.

Mr. Kells drew the attention of the Board to the change in the Superannuation Act which states "Commencing as of September 1, 1945, both the teachers' and the government's contributions will be at the rate of 4%. Commencing of the same date, if the annual salary of any teacher or inspector is less than $800, it shall be taken as being $800 for the purpose of calculating the teacher's annual contribution. This replaces the former figure of $550."

The former rate of contribution to superannuation fund was 3½%.

Mr. Kells asked that action be taken regarding the placement and salary of Mr. Jack Cousins and H. R. Frink who will be discharged from the army in the near future.

Approximately 31 per cent of the school enrolment are registered in vocational courses, Principal Currie stated in his report on the Vocational School. 115 are taking the industrial course, 37 the home economics, and 105 the commercial course.

In connection with the organization of evening classes, Mr. Currie recommended that a nominal fee be collected from all who register—refundable to those who attend at least 80 per cent of the sessions.

He also recommended that registration take place on Sept. 26 and 27 from 7 to 9 p.m., and that evening classes be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday evenings starting October 2 and 4. Permission will be sought to grant the authorization of classes in machine-shop practice, welding, motor mechanics, draughting, technical mathematics, wood working, sewing, cooking, shorthand, typing, bookkeeping and junior and senior matriculation subjects according to demand.

RADIO FUSE, SECRET WEAPON, REVEALED

Captain's Wife Now Residing At Bloomfield

A Japanese-speaking officer from Toronto, Capt. Ken Woodsworth, member of the Canadian army intelligence unit engaged in aiding the repatriation of Canadian prisoners of war from Japanese camps, is reported from Tokyo today to have made the first contacts with some groups of Canadian prisoners in remote areas of Japan. He set out on his own with two N.C.O.'s and travelled to camps beyond the present reach of occupation forces.

Capt. Woodsworth is the son of Mrs. H. F. Woodsworth, Admiral Rd., and the late Rev. H. F. Woodsworth. He is a nephew of the late J. S. Woodsworth, former C.C.F. leader and M.P. Born 31 years ago in Kobe, Japan, he was educated at the academy operated by the United Church of Canada and specialized in the Japanese language.

"After my husband died, we returned to Canada in 1939 and here Ken attended Victoria College, taking political economy," said Mrs. Woodsworth. Capt. Woodsworth's wife, the former Jean Ross, is living in Bloomfield, Ont., with their two sons, Peter, four, and Dick, two.

The report from Japan states that Capt. Woodsworth's party, preceded and trailed by Japanese police, obtained sorely needed relief for one group of Chinese who had suffered 50 per cent, deaths from illness, hunger and exhaustion.

Over the protests of a police chief that he had no authority to act, Capt. Woodsworth issued instructions for suspension of work by the Chinese and provision of food for them.

MADE FOOD SURVEY

H. S. Heinz, II, head of the famous canned food products company, is shown at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York, after his return from England where he made a survey of the food situation at the request of the British Ministry of Food. It was Mr. Heinz's fourth trip to England since the war. The big Heinz plant in England was partly destroyed by a German bomb.

Extra Exemption In Tax is Urged For U.S. Veterans

Washington, Sept. 22 — (AP)—Senator George (Dem.-Ga.) yesterday advocated preferential tax treatment for United States veterans the first year or two after their discharge.

The finance committee chairman said an extra income tax exemption would help them get on their feet financially and compete with the people who held civilian wartime jobs.

Mr. George suggested it would be "reasonably adequate and fair" to extend for 12 or 24 months tho extra $1,500 service exemption on United States Army or Navy pay. But he would make it apply to income from any source.

"I don't know exactly what will be done when we get into the tax bill," he told reporters. "However, we probably will consider service men and women for some time after the war as a special class of taxpayers. Substantial justice could be done with an exemption on their taxes."

Under his proposal, veterans could add the $1,500 to the regular exemption allowed all United States taxpayers — at present $500 each for the taxpayer and each dependent.

Mr. George announced that probably late next week and certainly within a fortnight the veterans subcommittee will begin consideration of proposed changes in the so-called G.I. Bill of Rights.

The principal pressure is for liberalization of the loan and education provisions.

Plan to Set Up District Office In Belleville

Mr. Robert Cherry of Toronto, in charge of sales, distribution and services for the H. J. Heinz Co. of Pittsburgh, Penn., has been in Belleville the past few days making a survey of the surrounding area with a view of establishing here a district office to take care of the same work for the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland.

Mr. R. A. Harrison of Toronto has been given charge of the company's interests in this connection. He has only recently taken a position with the Heinz organization. For nearly five years prior to that he was on active service with the RCAF. A large portion of that time was spent in Alaska. He and Mrs. Harrison and their year-old daughter will take up residence at 113 West Moira Street at the beginning of October.

Saturday Market

There was a large variety of seasonal fruits and vegetables at the city market today with price levels showing but little change from those of a week ago.

Frost has apparently done little damage to fields and gardens of the district for the offering compared favorably with the heaviest of the current season.

Peaches returned to the market with a number of outside vendors offering baskets of good quality fruit at $1.05. Blue damsons were plentiful selling at ninety cents the 6-quart basket. Green gages were priced the same Prune plums were quoted at 20 cents the berry box.

MacIntosh apples, probably second or third grade quality were offered at 40 cents the half-peck while another variety brought 35 cents. Canteloupe was plentiful with small sizes quoted at 10 cents or 3 for 25c and the larger type ranging from 15 cents to 25. Watermelon was available at from 25c each.

Corn was quoted at 25 and 30 cents the dozen according to quality while potatoes brought 30 cents the basket or $2.25 the bag. Tomatoes sold at 25 and 30 cents the six-quart basket with larger quantities at commensurate prices. Cucumbers sold at from five cents each with pickling cukes offered at from 65 cents the basket upwards.

On the inside market first grade eggs were offered at 48 cents, seconds at 46 and pullets at 38 to 40.

Chicken offerings were fairly good with large spring birds offered from $2 to $2.25 each. Smaller birds were offered at $2.50 the pair and some fowl at $1.50.

A trim little Fairchild 61 seaplane dipped her nose over the harbor here the other day and a minute or two later settled as easily as a gull in the water to an anchorage off the new dock of the Imperial Oil Company here.

In the plane were T. "Rusty" Blakey, well-known northern pilot and J. R. G. Smyth, aerial cameraman of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

Within the next day or so, the seaplane with its pilot and camerman will swing north along the Moira River to conduct an aerial survey of the river watershed. The arrival of the plane here is the result of a request of a joint City-County Committee of the Department of Planning and Development for a general survey of the Moira River Valley to be made this year.

Photographs which will bring out in the smallest detail all topographical features of an area of 500 square miles will be taken. According to Mr. Smyth at least 9,000 pictures will be necessary to obtain the required information.

Triangular Area

A triangular area covering 500 square miles, with the apex of the triangle originating at the mouth of the Moira, and its base some 30 miles north of the city, will be photographed. From an altitude of 8,300 feet, the plane will travel in an east then west direction snapping pictures of stripes of terrain one mile in width. The pictures are taken so that each series overlaps, thus giving a double check on features below.

The pictures will be on the scale of 1000 feet to the inch.

The entire aerial survey will take 8 or nine hours, but delays have been encountered with weather conditions not being suitable for aerial photography.

Messrs. Blakey and Smyth are well experienced in this sort of work. Mr. Blakey has been flying aircraft for the Austen Airways Company since 1937 and has conducted several aerial surveys of watersheds, highways and forests. The last job the duo did was the survey of the Ganaraska Valley. They also conducted the survey of the four-lane highway scheduled between Toronto and Brockville.

While here, Pilot Blakey and Cameraman Smyth have been the guests of "Mac" McLean, manager of the Imperial Oil Company any Branch here.

Ernest Graham Given Ten Years For Manslaughter

Peterborough, Sept. 22—(CP)—Ernest Graham, 39, of nearby Norwood, was sentenced last night to 10 years in Kingston, Ont., penitenlary on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death last Aug. of his mother Mrs. Matilda Graham.

The charge was reduced from murder to manslaughter by a jur whiych deliberated four hours.

Witnesses testified at the trial that Graham and Mrs. Lillian Smith drank beer and liquor at the home of Mrs. Graham July 31 and that Mrs. Graham fell when she went to look for matches. Mrs. Smith said she went for police when Graham refused to help her lift his mother.

Medical testimony was that Mrs. Graham suffered 12 blows on right hand and forearm, 10 on left hand and arm and 13 on head and face.

THOUSANDS OF BASKETS SEIZED BY INSPECTORS

Toronto, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Federal and Ontario fruit inspectors have seized thousands of baskets of peaches in Ontario in a drive to keep green and worm-infested peaches off the market, an official of the Federal Fruit and Vegetable Division said here today.

Seizures included 4,000 to 5,000 baskets in Toronto as well as a large number on the Hamilton market, the official added. Peaches under seizure are ordered regraded and then passed for sale if satisfactory.

Stoke-on-Trent, England—(CP)—Britain's last aircraft shadow factory here is to switch over to the peace-time production of colliery equipment and refrigerators.

Countess Ciano Says She 'Loved And Admired' Father, Mussolini, Even After Husband's Execution

Rome, Sept. 22—(AP)—Countess Edda Ciano says she still "loved and admired" her father, Benito Mussolini, even after he put to death her husband, former Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano.

She denied she ever was the "Gray Eminence" in Fascist politics and said she wanted to live the rest of her days on a small island "like an ordinary woman."

"To tell the truth, I expected something better than Lipari," she said.

Correspondents observed she really was in a special position and she replied brusquely:

"I have always been in a very special position. In the end, it will be in a very special position that I will be shot.

"It is my fate that I get the worst news suddenly like an unexpected blow on the head. I was in Switzerland and I turned the radio to the Milan station at exactly the instant it was announced, 'at this moment an enormous crowd is moving toward the Plazaz Loreto to view Musolini's body.'"

She said Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress who was slain with the Dictator and whose body also was exposed in the piazza, had a great influence on her father.

"She became the true head of the government," Countess Ciano said, "I hated her because I saw where she was dragging my father."

She said she argued with her father frequently and "perhaps I was the only person who did that."

"Hitler was more human than generally believed and he certainly had charm," Edda said.

NO HOOKS NEEDED HERE

St. Adele en Haut, Que., Sept. 22—(CP)—There will be fish aplenty around Lac Rond near this Laurentian resort for the next week or so. There will be some 20,000 to be had for the picking up—if you like 'em that way.

At the request of St. Adele residents led by Mayor Henri Grignon, Professor Gustave Prevost, Director of the Quebec Biological Bureau, is clearing the lake of a variety of fish species so that it can be stocked exclusively with trout.

The clearing process consists of spraying the lake with a chemical which kills the fish—catfish, black bass, and perch—and sets their bodies floating on the surface where they are scooped up and disposed of.

Prof. Prevost says it is perfectly safe to eat the fish if anybody wants to.

FOREMAN BLAMED

Montreal, Sept. 22 —(CP)— Phileas Roy, 54-year-old foreman at the hardware house where an explosion took 10 lives last week, yesterday was held criminally negligent by a coroner's jury which investigated the deaths.

The jury brought in its findings after inquest testimony was given similar to that made before Fire Commissioner Conrad Pelletier Wednesday. The fire commission asked following his hearing that Roy be held by police pending today's inquest.

Evidence was that just prior to the explosion Roy had poured some naphtha on the floor of the warehouse basement and had struck a match and lighted it in an attempt to disprove the statement of a customer that the naphtha was "no good."

Hope for Word Soon Of Malaya Prisoners

London —(CP)— One of war's great mysteries — the condition of perhaps some 7,000 civilian internees in the Malayan jungles—soon will be solved, anxious War Office officials say they hope.

Mystery always has surrounded the fate of captives taken by the Japanese, mainly because local commanders have not been required to report to headquarters on prison and internee camps, and the number of persons held. But through the Red Cross and other agencies, some information has been obtained about internees in Japan, China, Hong Kong, and other Pacific areas. From Malaya' there has been almost nothing.

"We have no information whatever on large number of civilians who, according to the best of our knowledge, were in Malaya when the Japanese overran it," a spokesman said.

"The best figure we have is that some 7,000 persons were involved. We know nothing of the conditions under which they have lived.

"One of our first tasks, now that peace has come, will be to look for those people and give them all possible assistance."

Policewoman Says Psychology Counts

Chicago — (CP) — Rosemary O'Brien is a detective who does not believe in the use of a blackjack to bring the wayward into line.

She prefers to use psychology in her job as a detective in a large Chicago hotel.

"In doing "the only work I know," Mrs. O'Brien has proved that a soft word is far more effective than such tactics as jujitsu.

She and three others were employed last January in the first attempt in the country to use women in policing a hotel. Their main efforts were directed against juvenile delinquency.

As Irish as the Blarney Stone, Rosemary's career as policewoman springs from a heritage of police careerists. Her grandfather, Simon O'Donnel, was chief of police of the City of Chicago from the middle 90's until 1910.

GIANT CABLE SHIP

Wallsend - on - Tyne, England —(CP)— A cable ship, H. M. Telegraph Ship, Monarch, believed to be the largest in the world, has been launched in this Northumberland town. The vessel is about 480 feet long, more than 55 feet wide, and has a total coiling capacity of 125,000 feet of cable.

"KING" ANTHONY RENEWS HIS BID FOR U.K. CROWN

Former Shropshire Police Inspector Again Campaigns After Serving With Home Guard and Working in War Factory

By HENRY B. JAMESON

Anthony William Hall, affable, 46-year-old ex-police inspector of Shropshire and one-time Toronto resident, who claims he is a direct descendant of King Henry VIII and that King George VI is a commoner, has come out of his wartime seclusion to renew his claim to the throne.

King Anthony, as Hall calls calls himself, launched his bid for the title 10 years ago and predicted he would be living in the palace by 1940. He made more than 2,000 speeches in an effort to convince the English that he is their legitimate king, and he acquired quite a number of followers. But when the war came along Hall dropped all "royal" activities, went to work in a war factory and joined the Home Guard. He was a volunteer in the British army in 1914.

"Now that the war is over, I propose to continue with my campaign," Hall declared as he outlined his policies.

A vigorous advocate of private enterprise and free trade, Hall proposes that the state withdraw entirely from religion, money and business. He referred to the recent Labor party landslide at the polls as the "bloodless revolution of 1945" and predicted that "business classes" will not long stand for state ownership.

Besides wiping out all government,s municipal and oversea debts, Hall says that when he is is recognized as king he will also remove all taxes on beer, whisky, tea and entertainment.

While he styles himself "King Anthony the First of England and Prince of Wales," Hall, who once had an export business in Toronto and worked for a while in Eureka, Calif., is also flirting with the idea of reviving the ancient Irish kingdom—with its crown on his own head because his mother's maiden name was "Eire."

Hall bases his "title" on an alleged mixup on the royal family tree back in the early 1600's. King George claims royal blood through King James VI of Scotland.

"It now appears that the real King James VI of Scotland died in infancy and that a changeling, James Erskine, was placed in the dead king's cradle and foisted on the British people," Hall states in his printed campaign propaganda.

"This James VI changeling story is true," he says. "Therefore, the Wettin family—now called Windsor — is out of the line of succession. The personage known as King George VI is a commoner, Mr. Albert Wettin.

Hall claims that in 1830 a coffin containing the bones of the "real" King James was discovered in the walls of Edinburgh Castle.

"But the matter was quickly hushed up," he declares.

Little official notice has ever been taken of Hall and his theory. But that does not bother him because in Hall's book no laws passed by Parliament since 1603 are legal anyway.

The "pretender" to the throne tried to interfere with the coronation of King George by issuing a number of "injunctions" to prevent various officials from participating in the ceremony. When Hall was divorced by his first wife in 1939 on grounds of desertion, he issued a manifesto saying his "royal divorce" would not cause suspension of his campaign to secure recognition. A year later he married a former London bank clerk whom he now refers to as "Her Majesty."

Labor Asks Fair Play For Adopted Children

London —(CP)— Shocked by disclosures of maltreatment of children in Britain, the 1,070,000 members of the Transport and General Workers Union are planning an anti-cruelty campaign.

The present plan, after discussions at union meetings, is to have "guardian angel" centres set up all over the country. In addition, representatives of 280,000 labor women are meeting in Leeds to see what can be done about fair play for children in homes, boarded-out and adopted orphans.

Mrs. John Foord, a Brentford, Middlesex, factory worker, said, "We want teams of more and better inspectors, always on the lookout for undesirable conduct by people in charge of children.

"We want no more slip-ups like those we have read of lately; no more exploitation of child labor by people who adopt children merely to get work out of them. We want increased penalties, too."

COUNCIL NOT INVITED

Huddersfield, England —(Reuters)— Wilfred Haggar, borough surveyor, left in his will a request that Huddersfield corporation be not represented at his funeral. Only two council members attended a memorial service.

Urged Post-Mortem To Assist Science

London —(CP)— Lord Dawson of Penn, physician-in-ordinary to the King, who died in March, directed in his will that a post-mortem of his body be made.

His doctors, however, decided that a post-mortem would serve no useful purpose to science, as he died of pneumonia.

"What Lord Dawson had in mind was obviously that if he had died of some obscure complaint it might have been possible to add to the sum of human knowledge by carrying out a post-mortem," a relative said.

Lord Dawson's will said, "I do this because I think the public do not sufficiently realize the importance of post-mortem exaimnations beinb made, and of the advantages of knowledge, and therefore to future generations, which will thus accrue.

"Modern people did not hesitate to have operations when alive and should not mind operations done with the same care, gentleness and reverance, being performed on their bodies after death.

"Surely this is a rightful service which the dead should give the living," the will continued. "The benefit of such service to the living is very great."

TO INCREASE RATES.

Kitchener, Sept. 21 (CP) — General Hospital rates will be increased within the next few weeks, the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital Commission, announced yesterday. Chairman C. N. Weber of the commission, said present rates—$2.25 a day for a public ward patient and $4.25 and $5 for a private patient—are not even comparable with operating costs.

Code Words

The name of one of the greatest of military leaders and statesmen was used by the British as a code phrase during the war. So, Julius Caesar, who established the Roman Empire, furnished his name to signify the British plan to defend the United Kingdom from German invasion and to guarantee a firm base from which the return to the Continent was to be launched.

This fact was brought out the other day in Montreal by Major-General A. E. Walford, C.B.E., M.M., E.D., who said the code name "round up" was also employed to mean the initial plan for the defeat of Germany in Europe. How secret these code phrases were kept is clearly enough proven by the successes of the evacuation through Dunkerque and the Allied return on V-E Day when the Allied might struck the beginning of the last blows which shattered Germany.

Caesar, the Roman, had invaded Britain from Gaul, the France of his day, in 55 B.C. only to return to Gaul after a very brief stay. Julius again crossed the Channel in 54 B.C., landing in Britain and crossing the Thames to receive the nominal submission of the tribes in the south of Britain. Time changed. In the course of the weakening of the Roman Empire, the Romans left Britain, in time came the Jutes and Saxons and the Angles from the lowland areas of northwest Europe to Britain, the Angles in due course giving their name to the country, the present form of which is England. The fact of Caesar's crossing of the Thames no doubt suggested the use of the name of the mighty statesman-warrior to signify the British plan to defend the islands against German invasion and to make Britain the springboard for the attack on and invasion of occupied France which ultimately led to the German collapse.

And the word "round up" indicating the familiar scene of the American West, had an apt significance for the corralling of Nazi Germany and her gangster leaders.

"Lord Haw Haw" Condemned

The man, William Joyce, who was known as "Lord Haw Haw" and who broadcast from Germany in the interests of Adolf Hitler and his infamous regime of Nazism, has been convicted in London of treason after a fair trial in which he was given every opportunity to defend himself. His trial was just and for traitors there is one end. He is to be hanged.

His efforts on behalf of everything that was opposed to the victory of justice and humanity will have their due reward in his life's end. He had mocked at Britain's sufferings, taunted her people, exalted Hitler and tried to bolster up the world's worst gang of criminals. Had he had reason and known the spirit of the British people he could have seen that he could not make Hitler victor over such a people.

He secured and used a British passport and went to Germany and there served the cause of the enemy of Britain. In the striking words of the justice who presided at his trial he had wrapped himself in the Union Jack.

People will have no sympathy for this convicted man who would have sold the world of freedom, all the nations who serve humanity, to the cause of the Hitlerite cut-throats.

A despicable creature is the traitor and William Joyce has been proven of that evil and infamous kind. For such there can be no place on the earth among men. He desired and supported the evil against the good and at the last will meet his timely doom.

British Relief for Italy

Despite the severity of its own supply position, the United Kingdom has been playing an important part in relieving Italian distress during and following the expulsion of the Germans from the country. The United Kingdom, with Canada, has procured more than half of the total civilian supplies sent to Italy, mainly from Empire sources.

This rate of supply was maintained throughout the period when Britain was the base for the preparations for the invasion of France, when she was supplying a big proportion of the needs of the United States forces besides her own.

Supplies for Italy have been obtained by the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada from many parts of the world, including the Argentine, North and South Africa, Australia, Mauritius and the Mediterranean area. The total civil supplies sent during the period from 1943 to the end of February, 1945, was 1,404,966 gross tons, of which 544,551 (39 per cent) was procured by the United Kingdom, 168,704 (12 per cent) by Canada, and 691,711 (49 per cent) by the United States. That is, the United Kingdom and Canada together sent 51 per cent of the total supplies. These figures exclude coal supplies and the United Kingdom and United States army stocks handed over for civilian needs, totalling 360,000 tons.

Fails to Excite World

Few if any persons could have paid more than passing attention to the prediction of the Rev. Charles G. Long of Pasadena, Calif., that the world might come to an end on Friday at 7.33 a.m. Pacific Time, or in the event of delay that it might come at 5.33 p.m. Friday or possibly September 29th., or even next fall. There have been prophecies cropping up every now and then with the same result, the world still rolls on her majestic way. The prophet added a touch of today by mentioning the earth dissolving in a cloud of scattered atoms. So far the prophecy has failed and everyone who has heard of it knows it will fail.

Gaps in Knowledge

(New York Times)

There are enormous gaps in our knowledge that need to be filled. It is little short of a disgrace that after centuries we are no nearer to the conquest of cancer, arthritis, heart failure and the degenerative diseases. It is a disgrace that millions of chemical compounds remain to be discovered—compounds of which many will be of immense importance.

It is a disgrace that we cannot predict what the weather will be a fortnight hence in Chicago or New York. It is a disgrace that we have only the vaguest notion of what happens to a piece of beefsteak after it is eaten.

There are thousands of such scientific disgraces for which we must blame our niggardliness and our blindness and not the scientists.

Tojo Reached for a Gun

(Montreal Herald)

It is perhaps significant that General Tojo, No. 1 on Japan's "war criminals" list, was forced to forego the ceremonial harakari knives and reach for the rudely utilitarian revolver.

Time pressed.

But if he adhered to ritual, the rough representatives of the West might intervene.

The gun was at hand. Tojo resorted to the means at hand.

Let us hope that this is a true interpretation of Hideki Tojo's choice of suicide weapon, for it suggests that Occidental haste is actually jarring Japan—shaking the foundations of her custom-girded society.

Too many, through want of prudence, are golden apprentices, silver journeymen and copper masters.—Whitefield.

We must follow, not force Providence.—Shakespeare.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE COAXER

Well, I suppose, it's their nature at that!
Females are born with the love for a hat,
Ribbons and laces and ruffles and hems,
Pretties and perfumes and glittering gems;
Born with the knowledge men fall for a hoax!
Ellen Elizabeth's started to coax!

Knowing that tears are what all men abhor;
Knowing that if for a moment she cries
What she is after her grandfather buys;
Knowing that males are all soft-hearted blokes.
Ellen Elizabeth's started to coax!

Just like the rest of them, back through the years,
Wheedling with kisses or winning with tears.
Born with the "gimmies" and born with the art
Of getting her men-folk with money to part;
All the sweet wiles of her sex she invokes.
Ellen Elizabeth's started to coax.

PRIME MINISTER

Wants Personal Talk.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King disclosed he has a number of matters on which he would like to have personal talks with members of the new British government. He mentioned Prime Minister Attlee, Foreign Secretary Bevin and Dominions Secretary Lord Addison as those with whom he would particularly like to talk.

"I have been turning over in my mind what might be possible in that way and it may be that when the House gets along a little further with its business I shall ask the House to allow me to visit London for that and other purposes which I may take occasion to mention later on."

Mr. King spoke just before the House plunged into another afternoon of debate on the Speech from the Throne and in reply to a question from John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, who wanted to know if there had been any discussions about an Imperial Conference in Ottawa or elsewhere.

Not Possible to Go.

Mr. King said there had been no such discussions but Mr. Attlee had told the Dominion Prime Ministers it would be helpful if they could be in London at the time the Council of Foreign Ministers was meeting. This had not been possible.

"The council of Foreign Ministers is a body composed solely of the Foreign Ministers of the five great powers", said Mr. King. "There was no invitation extended to any Dominion to be represented at the Council.

"I should like to make it clear because there seems to be some misunderstanding in some quarters on this point that the Council is not authorized in any way to make any peace settlement. It is a body called together for the purpose of doing preparatory work on draft treaties and draft proposals will be submitted later to the representatives of the United Nations who will have to do with the settlement of the peace."

Peace Settlement.

The fact that Mr. King mentioned Mr. Bevin as one of the British ministers he wanted to see and his comment on the council of foreign ministers which went considerably beyond an answer to Mr. Bracken's question was taken as indicating the manner in which peace settlements are being prepared. This may be one of the things he wants to see the British government about.

It has been emphasized here frequently that United Nations not represented on the council are not bound by its decisions. The Canadian government thus reserves its right to accept or reject any draft treaty which emanates from the council and the first one to come out will be a peace treaty for Italy.

Mr. Case said Canadians should "recapture something of the spirit of the pioneers," roll back the frontier of the hinterland, tap the stores of wealth in the earth.

Re-establishment credits should be made available to widows of service personnel. The government should also consider loans to veterans establishing themselves in small businesses, just as they are to soldiers going on farms.

Wants Taxes Reduced.

Mr. Case said the budget should not be unnecessarily delayed. The people were waiting to know the government's tax demands upon them. Taxes should be reduced. Controls should be removed as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Campbell said the jockeying for world markets had led to the two great wars. Similar jockeying appeared to be in the offing. The situation would be even worse when liberated countries got into production.

He said it was false to claim that there was private industry in Canada today. Industry was controlled by a group of monopolists who also controlled the whole economy of the nation. He condemned the profit system because under it when someone made a profit, someone else was bound to take a loss.

Speaks at Length.

Col. Winters, an officer in a Canadian army engineering corps, called for an early outline of the government's post-war permanent force policy. Many good men who would like to stay with the army were not doing so because of the uncertainty about the future of the permanent force.

He spoke at length of the fishing industry in his constituency and called for increased facilities for fishermen and an extended research into the use of fish products.

Mr. Matthews, who spent 12 years as an Indian missionary, urged immediate revision of the Indian Act to make it conform with current requirements. He said the Indians should be given full citizenship rights without asking them to surrender any of their treaty and other rights.

HENRY FORD RESIGNS

HENRY FORD

HENRY FORD II

Henry Ford has resigned as head of the Ford Motor Co. and is succeeded by his grandson, Henry Ford II who is 28 years old. His father, the late Edsel Ford, was only 25 when he became president of the Ford Co.

TERM DRAFTING

Under its constitution there is provision for consulting governments of other United Nations on questions which affect their interests. The first approach to such consultation occurred last week when Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India were among countries invited to express their views on the location of the boundary between Italy and Yugoslavia, a question which includes the allocation of the disputed port of Trieste to one or other country.

Boundary Question in Dispute

Canada declined to offer an opinion but Australia, New Zealand and South Africa accepted the invitation. The ground for Canada's not accepting the invitation was that the government had little information which would enable it to offer a constructive opinion on the boundary question alone.

On the other hand, the government is understood to feel that Canada and the other countries of the British Commonwealth are deeply interested in the general character of the Italian Peace Treaty. It was felt, however, that simply putting forward an opinion on the boundary question by itself and without any participation in the decisions to be reached on that and the other phases of the treaty was not the kind of consultation which would be of any value.

External Affairs Minister Evatt of Australia, is now in London having gone there following an invitation from Mr. Attlee to the Dominion Premiers to come during the Foreign Ministers' meeting. Because of the opening of Parliament and other reasons Mr. King was unable to go. Mr. Evatt is reported from London as having stated he hoped a satisfactory procedure would be worked out for consultation.

Want Larger Share.

At the San Francisco conference Mr. Evatt, Canadian representatives and spokesmen for other so-called middle powers, worked hard for a larger share of authority for themselves in the control of the United Nations organization. While some concessions were made to their views, actually there was little change made in principle from the draft plan drawn up by representatives of the "Big Three"—Russia, the United States, and the United Kingdom—which has now become the "Big Five" with the addition of France and China.

The Middle Powers at San Francisco agreed to some things they did not like because they realized that without having the big powers in a world security organization, the whole thing would be a failure as the League of Nations failed without the United States.

May Not Sign.

The emphasis which is being placed now, and which may be expressed more strongly before long on the limited powers of the Foreign Ministers' Conference, springs partly from that experience. If the peace treaties drafted by the "Big Five" are not to the liking of smaller countries—and the Italian treaty will be the first—they may not sign them, as the United States Senate turned down the Treaty of Versailles.

There is no disposition in Ottawa to attach any blame to the British government for excluding Canada or any other country from deliberations on which it feels entitled to participate. The blame, if any, is believed to lie elsewhere. At the same time, Mr. King may feel that a frank exchange of views with Mr. Attlee on these questions may avoid misunderstandings.

PECULIAR NOTIONS ABOUT PYORRHEA

It is not the ache or pain of pyorrhea that makes the condition serious—indeed, it causes so little ache or pain that many ignorant victims do not even seek treatment until some serious complication or development drives them to doctor or dentist. The reason why one should use every preventive or, if possible, corrective measure to check progress of the degeneration is of course because one wants to maintain efficiency, stay young, retain any good looks one may have, live long. In other words one must combat pyorrhea because it impairs the function of the teeth and if unchecked cripples or destroys them. To the shame of the physicians, dentists and educators of the country, a good many people who kid themselves they have had a good education, are edentulous or nearly so when and if they pass fifty.

If you have been exposed to what purports to be education in high school or college, you will have only a vague notion of the function of the teeth. You will think, as millions of Americans fed on the same pap do, that indefatigable brushing of your teeth with whatever brand of medicated soap your favorite pretty girl magazine features, takes care of your teeth. And probably your dentist will tell you to carry on with the idiotic performance only of course give your wrist a slightly different twist, thus . . .

If you have had a high school, college or university training, then, it is ten to one that you are as unconscious as any child of the part the teeth play in digestion, assimilation, nutrition, health, efficiency, good looks, longevity. More likely you think I'm nutty about the whole subject of the teeth. That's the cue you get from a raft of dentists and most physicians.

Still, it can do you no harm to know, Stu (short for your choice of appellations ending in -dent, -pid or -ffy, whichever fits you best), that digestion of starch begins during mastication of starchy foods (vegetables, fruits, cereals) in the mouth and, if the mastication is complete the salivary (ptyalin) digestion of the food continues for from half an hour to an hour or more after the food has been swallowed, in the fundic end of the stomach where it remains almost untouched by the acid gastric juice for that length of time. Of course if your teeth are not hitting on all cylinders you cannot masticate food very well and this salivary digestion is correspondingly poor. The partly digested or undigested starchy material you gulp down must then be digested, if at all, by the pancreatic juice in the duodenum — a burden which, in my opinion, contributes to the development of diabetes. It is useless to try to give a specific name to the various health impairments that may occur from such salivary or oral indigestion, but they are pretty important if you have any great regard for health.

When doctor or dentist or both advise extraction of one or more teeth in the treatment of pyorrhea the remedy is as rational as amputation of a leg for relief of bunion. A sure cure for the bunion, all right, but hardly the method of choice if you have any further use for the leg.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How much of the moon's surface is visible?

The moon has three definitely understood motions.

It rotates on its own axis, it revolves around the earth, and, along with the earth, it revolves around the sun.

As it moves around the earth it rotates just enough to keep the same side toward the earth at all times.

The visible part does not consist of an even half of the total surface, as one might suppose, but about three fifths.

To be exact, forty-nine percent of the moon's surface is seen at one time or other, while forty-nine percent is not visible from the earth at any time.

This is due to the fact that the rotation of the moon on its axis is not uniform; that is, it wobbles slightly, disclosing both of its poles at different times and making more than a hemisphere visible from the earth.

The moon, the only heavenly body that revolves around the earth, makes one rotation on its axis and one revolution around the earth about every 27½ days; that is, it makes about 13 trips around the earth each year.

The outline on the surface of the moon, popularly known as "the man in the moon," is reversed as seen from points in the southern hemisphere. In other words, in the southern hemisphere the man in the moon is upside down.

BRINGS CHILDREN WHEN FURLOUGH ENDS

Philadelphia, Sept. 22 —(AP) —United States Navy Fireman Russell Spencer, of Lean, N.Y., brought four of his five youngsters back with him when his furlough ended yesterday, his wife being too ill to care for them. The children — Nancy Lou, 6; Donald, 5; Russell, 2; and Robert, 1 — were finally left with the Red Cross while Spencer reported for duty.

WEDDINGS

MOTT—WANNAMAKER

Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, beautifully decorated with seasonal flowers, made a pretty setting for the wedding which took place on Wednesday, September 19, at two o'clock of Marion Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Wannamaker, R.R. No. 1, Belleville and Douglas Clayton Mott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Mott, Belleville. Rev. Dr. A. J. Myers officiated.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. M. Duff, looked charming in a floor-length gown of white eyelet embroidered silk marquisette, and matching mitts. Her finger-tip veil was caught with a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of bouvardia and deep red roses.

Miss Eva Wannamaker, only sister of the bride, as bridesmaid wore a floor-length gown of lavender silk marquisette with matching shoulder-length veil and mitts. She carried a cascade of lavender gladioli.

Mr. John Ryan, of Belleville, acted as groomsman. Mr. Gordon Roblin and Mr. John O'Connor were ushers.

Mrs. Ball, of Belleville, rendered a solo, "Because", during the signing of the register.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver, to the groomsman a cigarette lighter, to the ushers, billfolds.

The bride's gift to the groom, was a leather travelling kit, to the bridesmaid, a gold and pearl glamor pin, to the organist and soloist pearl earrings.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received her guests in a gown of rust crepe and brown accessories. She wore a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, dressed in purple and fuchsia crepe with a corsage of gladioli.

Later the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Montreal. For travelling the bride wore a powder blue three-piece suit with beaver trim and dark brown accessories.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Richards, and Mrs. F. R. Henry, Prescott; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gould, Brighton; Miss Coral Wannamaker, and Miss Florence Wannamaker, Toronto; Mrs. Letitia Burley and Miss Hilda Burley, of Deseronto.

LANCASTER—CEARLEY EMERSON—LANCASTER

Thursday, the twentieth of September, at the Plainfield parsonage, a charming double wedding was solemnized by the Rev. G. T. McKenzie, when Edythe Joan Cearley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cearley, Corbyville, and Robert Mark Lancaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lancaster, Plainfield, and Marjorie Lancaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lancaster, and Flying Officer John Douglas Emerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Emerson, Plainfield, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The brides were becomingly gowned, Joan Cearley in gold wool jersey, with brown accessories and shoulder corsage of Talisman roses; Marjorie Lancaster, in turquoise blue wool jersey with brown accessories and Talisman roses.

McINROY—McGREGOR

Marmora. — At St. Andrew's United Church parsonage, on Wednesday, September 19, with Rev. E. M. Cadigan officiating, Margaret Isabel McGregor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean McGregor, of Marmora Township, became the bride of Albert Ward McInroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murney McInroy, of Bonarlaw.

The bride was wearing a street length dress of white flowered organdy and a corsage of red roses and carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mary McGregor, who was wearing a dress of blue sheer and a corsage of red roses and carnations.

KEILTY—LEEDER

A lovely early Autumn wedding was solemnized at 9.30 o'clock, on Saturday morning, September 15, at St. John's Church, Gananoque, when Rev. R. A. Carey officiated at the marriage of Jean Elizabeth, younger daughter of Mrs. Leeder and the late Mr. W. J. Leeder, of Gananoque, and Andrew Norbert Keilty, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Keilty, of Tweed.

Sister Mary Joan of Arc presided at the organ, while during the Nuptial Mass, Miss Genevieve Ledger, as soloist, sang Millard's "Ave Marie", and "A Perfect Prayer" and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother".

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. George Funnell. With her floor-length gown of slipper satin, fashioned on princess lines, with sweetheart neckline and the skirt showing a slight train. The bride wore a finger-tip veil attached to a Mary Stuart headdress of shirred net and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. George Funnell as matron of honor for her sister, was attired in a floor-length gown of gold moire, with matching headdress and shoulder-length veil and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Eileen Hamilton, was frocked in a lime green velvet floor-length gown with matching headdress and shoulder-length veil and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Thomas Keilty, of Tweed, and the ushers were Lawrence McEvoy, Madoc, and Frank O'Brien, of Gananoque.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at "Driftwood Inn", where the many guests were received by the bride's mother, who was attired in a street-length dress of grey crepe with black accessories, and a corsage of violets. She was assisted in receiving by the groom's mother, who wore a black crepe street-length dress with black accessories. Her corsage was pink roses.

SHARPE—PARR

Only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Parr, of Malden, England, life-long residents of the district, Miss Edith Elizabeth (Betty) Parr, was married at Christ Church, Malden, August 25, to Gunner William Clarence Sharpe, R.C.A., of Belleville. The Rev. J. Dyer officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory lace gown, with a headdress of stephanotis and carried a bouquet of deep red roses and white heather. The bridesmaid, Miss Florence Mould was in a pale mauve taffeta dress made on Victorian lines. Flying Officer Robert Sharpe, R.C.A.F., was best man.

Over thirty guests were present at the reception at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Gray, including Capt. Donald Dies, Shannonville. The honeymoon was spent at Bournemouth, England.

Accent on Glamor In French Styles

Paris — (CP) — French designers have decided that the end of the war means women want to get back into elegant feminine clothes.

This attitude is reflected in almost every dress, particularly the afternoon and evening gowns, shown during the first week of couturier openings here.

Necklines are daringly low, with emphasis on the bustline. Tiny waistlines are dramatized by the use of bustles and full flaring skirts.

Jacques Heim, noted for furs and sports clothes, presents a collection of designs all emphasizing and highlighting the feminine figure. He uses lustrous velvets, satins and rustling taffetas for his more formal clothes and dresses up the suave, simple lines of his well-cut spectator sports clothes with such feminine touches as high pockets, tricky collars and sharp shoulder lines.

Madeleine de Rauch, famous for sports and informal gowns, is hitting the same note. Her collection is rich in plaid, one of the season's most popular materials.

Such designers as Maggy Rouff and Worth are showing clothes which will be wearable and practical during the anticipated rigors of the approaching winter.

Worth's large collection accents the short coat in both cloth and fur. His suits are snug with marvelous moulding over the hips, and wrist-length jackets.

She makes interesting use of gadgets in adding flare to skirts. The outstanding trend of the entire collection is extravagant use of material in lavish drapes and pleats, all ultra-feminine and flattering. Afternoon and evening clothes place emphasis on bustles which range in size from moderate to huge.

Marmora

Marmora—Miss Miriam Savage is visiting relatives in Montreal.

Miss Violet Hannah has returned to Ottawa after spending two weeks vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hannah.

Misses Dorothy and Margaret Airhart were hostesses at a shower held at their home on Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Isobel McGregor whose marriage took place on Wednesday to Albert Ward McInroy of Bonarlaw.

Cpl. Don Prentice of the R.C.A.F. Angus, Ont. spent the weekend at his home here.

Don Neal of the R.C.A.F., is spending a leave with his mother, Mrs. L. E. Neal.

Mr. W. J. Cottrell is visiting friends at Point Anne.

Miss Theresa Fitzpatrick has returned to her home in Detroit, after visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. Quinlan.

Mrs. W. H. Haire and Miss Mildred Haire of Western Canada, have returned to their home after visiting the former's daughter, Mr. Pat O'Neill of Marmora Township. Mr. Joseph Haire of Toronto also spent the weekend with his sister, Mrs. P. O'Neill and Mr. O'Neill.

On Thursday, September 13th at Nerrow Church, Guildford, England, Nursing Sister, Lieut. Ellinore Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Green, Marmora, was united in marriage to Pte. James R. Barker, son of Mrs. Barker and the late James Barker of Coksville, Ont.

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Stoker W. J. Nayler and Mrs. Nayler in the town hall on Wednesday evening when a large number of relatives and friends were present to do them honor. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, for which they both thanked the donors. Mr. Frank Leal acted as master of ceremonies, in his usual genial manner. Dancing was enjoyed to music furnished by Doug Jones and his Old Timers with Harold Auger and his amplifiers. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies in charge.

Black woollen reefer with double breasted closing.

By VERA WINSTON

BACK COMES the trig and trim reefer for another season of useful and attractive service. Black woollen is used for this classic slim and simple reefer cut on double-breasted lines with self-covered buttons. There are inset arrows at shoulder and the sleeves are seamed at the outer arm with fairly loose armholes. It has a half belt in back and slit pockets at the hips.

Former Hastings Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding

On Tuesday of last week (Sept. 11th) Mr. and Mrs. Addison Walt, esteemed residents of Orangeville, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their summer home on West Broadway where greetings and good wishes from friends near and far added to the happiness and good cheer of the occasion. Among the friends who called to express their felicitations in person were guests from Toronto, London, Cleveland and other distant points as well as many local friends. The happy home was bedecked with many beautiful flowers. Tea was served during the afternoon and evening. Mrs. W. L. Templeton, of London, a sister of Mrs. Walt, Mrs. Olin Pinkel, of Cleveland, a daughter, and Miss Marilyn Pinkel, a granddaughter, were in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt, the latter the former Daisy Bryant, were married in Trenton, Ont., on Sept. 11, 1895. The officiating minister was the Rev. S. F. Depew. The happy principals were both of United Empire stock. After their marriage Mr. Walt spent many years in the mercantile business with John H. Chapman & Co., of London, and the Robert Simpson Co., of Toronto. He then farmed for a time at Mono Mills, selling his farm to Col. Beardmore a number of years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Walt then retired to Orangeville, where they spend their summers. For the past five years they have spent their winters in Cleveland and plan to spend the coming winter in London.

With true Loyalist spirit their two sons have served their country in the King's uniform. The older son, Charles, gave his life in World War I. He was attached to the Army Medical Corps. A younger son, Cecil, recently returned from active service overseas as a wireless operator. He is now residing in Hamilton.

Though now presumably living retired Mr. Walt continues active and busy with his large garden. His specialty is berries and citizens of Orangeville speak of him as the local berry king. The title is justified, especially when one considers the fine quality of the delicious fruit he produces.—(Orangeville Banner.)

Mr. Walt was born and raised in Frankford while Mrs. Walt was born in Trenton. Mr. Walt is a graduate of Ontario Business College. Their many friends in this district and Prince Edward will join in wishing for Mr. and Mrs. Walt many more happy years together.

Kingston Presbyterial Of Presbyterian Church Meets in Deseronto

Kingston Presbyterial of the Presbyterian Church in Canada met in the Church of the Redeemer in Deseronto on Sept. 20 for its fall rally. The forenoon pre-session period was devoted to the discussion of plans for properly observing the sixtieth anniversary in May of 1946 in Kingston. A pot luck dinner was served when a social time was enjoyed by all.

The afternoon session opened with a devotional period conducted by the senior auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church, Kingston, after which Mr. Matthews of the Church of the Redeemer extended the official welcome.

Roll call was responded to by one member of each auxiliary quoting a Scripture verse containing the word "peace." An inspiring address on "Peace" was delivered by Mrs. John Wallace of Ivanhoe, secretary of Children's Department work.

The report of the annual Provincial meeting was given by the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eric Larsen of Madoc. Mrs. Dimmel and Mrs. Topping of the Deseronto auxiliary favored with a duet entitled "Take Time to be Holy."

The highlight of the rally was an address by Miss Frieda Matthews, field secretary of the W.M.S. Western Division, when she chose as her subject "Focus on Auxiliaries." Many helpful suggestions were given on how to reach, touch and enlist more women in the work of the society also how to improve the quality of the auxiliary meetings.

The offering was dedicated with prayer by Mrs. C. Baragar of the Belleville auxiliary. A splendid report was given by the new treasurer, Miss Mary Nesbitt of Kingston.

The president, Mrs. Wm. Shaw, of Ivanhoe, brought the meeting to a close with Phil. 1:9 followed with prayer and Mr. Matthews pronounced the benediction. A cup of tea was enjoyed by all before departing.

Lincoln, England — (CP) — Council members here voted 15 to 11 to build cooling towers for a new generating station, after a year's controversy as to whether they would spoil the beauty of the surrounding countryside.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Coming for a Visit in New York.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are to go to New York City the middle of next month. His aunt, to whom he is very devoted and whom he has not seen for several years, lives there, and he feels that she and her family will be hurt if we don't stay with them. However, I have persuaded him that it would be better for us to stay at a hotel, write her when we are to arrive, where we are to stay, and say that we would like to come to see her one afternoon while we are there. My husband's mother thinks that we should just "walk in" and surprise them, not letting them know we are coming, but I think this would seem thoughtless. Do you think my idea is right; and if so, will you please suggest the kind of letter I should write?

R.P.

I agree with your judgment that it would be better for you and your husband to engage a room at a hotel (there aren't very many guest rooms in New York apartments, and since your husband hasn't seen his aunt for several years, it would undoubtedly be best to assume that it wouldn't be very convenient for her to have you stay with her), and either write her before you leave or telephone her very soon after your arrival. (Either writing or telephoning her would be vastly better than arriving unannounced.)

If you write to her before your departure, you might write:

Dear Aunt Jane:

My husband has spoken to me so ofte nand so devotedly of his Aunt Jane and now that we are coming to New York we are both looking forward to having the happiness of seeing you. We are arriving on (day and date here), will be at the Hotel ——, and will telephone you soon after we arrive to see when it will be convenient for you to let us come to see you.

Dearest love from Tom and me, and high anticipations of seeing you soon.

Lovingly,

Plans for the Bridesmaids.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be one of the bridesmaids at the wedding of a dear friend of mine the last week of next month. The bride is to wear a Colonial-type dress, and our dresses are also to be of the Colonial style. Now the question has come up as to what we are going to carry. The bride is to wear an orchid and carry a Rosary. As we bridesmaids do not wish to carry bouquets, what would be proper for us to carry?

2. We bridesmaids are planning to give a shower for the bride-to-be. Should this shower be given at her house or at the house of one of the bridesmaids? And what kind of shower would then be most appropriate?

One of the Bridesmaids

1. It is not you bridesmaids who have the privilege of choosing what you wish to carry . . . it is the bride-to-be who decides what she wishes to have you carry, it is she or her family who orders the flowers and the design she wishes, and it is she or her family who pays for these accessories-to-your-costume. She may choose to have you carry Colonial bouquets with your Colonial-type dresses; or larger, more formal bouquets, or an informally-designed flower-arrangement. But remember that, as bridesmaids, it is your first duty to co-operate with every plan she makes for her wedding.

2. The shower should be given at the house of one of the bridesmaids. And any kind of shower you think would be welcome to her will be appropriate: linen, crystal, china, a "personal" shower, kitchen shower, buffet-party accessories, paper shower, or, most inclusive of all, the miscellaneous shower.

Your Personality at Home

Evelyn Keyes maintains her before-the-camera loveliness at all times

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE are women who take fastidious care of their homes, everything appearing attractive and shipshape but who neglect themselves shamefully paying little heed to grooming and adornment. There are others who have chic and charm, are ladies of fashion, and their abodes are a disorderly mess.

Unwashed dishes always in the kitchen sink. Newspapers strewn about. Old magazines in the halls. Too bad. A lovely home enhances any woman's appearance. And let us not forget that the mistress of the house should be its chief ornament.

Taste and Beauty

A woman is seen at an advantage against a home background of taste and beauty. It doesn't mean that furnishings need be expensive. It does mean that they should be gay and cheerful pictures carefully selected. Rooms should be light and airy. Heavy curtains and dark walls make a room cheerless and impart a sense of suffocation.

Too much furniture is a mistake, giving the appearance of a display. There should be room to move about in.

Character Expressed

A woman's character is expressed in the home she arranges. Books lend an air of charm. One has respect for the individual whose living room walls are filled with book cases. Yes, it takes years to collect books, and one must have a love for them.

To arrange furniture tastefully one must understand something about color and line. The study of interiors is a grand hobby for any home-maker.

Above everything else, chairs should be comfortable. There should be reading lamps close at hand, small tables for ash trays and books. We've all seen the bewildered masculine guest who looks dazedly around for an ash-tray.

The home should have atmosphere, look as if it were a haven where the members of the family work, play, find peace and comfort.

SUMMONS SERVED

New York, Sept. 21 — (AP)— Edwin Burke, blind newsdealer, said last night a summons had been served on him directing that he explain in court why he failed to surrender his seeing-eye dog to the death department to determine whether the dog is vicious. The summons is returnable next Tuesday.

Another policy-holder reports

"I HAVE just completed my insurance program in The Mutual Life of Canada. I have a number of policies on my own life which adequately protect my family against unexpected loss of my income, and which will bring me and my wife monthly cheques for life when the time comes to retire.

"But I have gone a little further. We want our son John to have a College education. We have added a Mutual Life Educational Policy to our assets. When John is 18 we shall start to receive a four year monthly income with which to pay his College expenses, and this amount will be guaranteed even though I do not live to pay all the premiums.

Let a Mutual Life representative arrange an Educational Policy for your child.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Views and Problems of Men Still Overseas

Two letters from servicemen greeted me this morning, both from somewhere in Germany. You'll be interested in sharing the impressions of the soldiers about sweethearts and wives at home and fraulcins overseas.

Sorry there isn't space to give the letters exactly as they're written, but the men are too frank concerning sex, and the letters are too long for this column. Private S. J. W. says:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Please tell our wives and girls back home to quit worrying about German girls. Some of the frauleins from the upper classes are worth a second, even a third glance, but if they catch your eye, it's worm to you. Some of the easy-to-know type, from the food they've enjoyed from occupied countries, are 'beef to the heels'. It seems to make their idea of charming a guy, cow-like.

"There was plenty of fraternizing on the sly before we got the 'green light' to go ahead. Isn't it always that way in wartimes, human nature being what it is? (Some censoring here.) Lots of our fellows believe in taking their fun where they find it, but the fun seems pretty phoney to some of them, except the saps who've chased shorts and halters straight across the country from Normandy. I've seen this type of guy go off and blubber when he didn't get a letter from his special gal at home, then blow in every cent he had on some fraulein.

The other letter is from a man whose wife went off and lived with somebody else, leaving his two children with a good neighbor.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I wasn't good enough to be remembered by my wife, but she never forgot to look for the allowance sent for her and the children, while she went off with another man. She left the children, without a penny, in charge of a good neighbor. I wouldn't have known about this if friends from home hadn't written me, and now she has the nerve to ask for a divorce, which she's going to get.

"Some singer back home said the way to treat these wives is to shave their heads, and that goes for me too. Why shouldn't I fraternize with a German girl when my wife is fraternizing at home?

(Signed) "Disgusted".

The Marry Go Round

Side-Lights on Women.

Love, clothes, manners, and a shave are practically all that distinguish the civilized man from the savage—and the first three were invented by woman!

It's so hard for a man to make love to a girl convincingly when he's really serious—and so dangenerous when he's not. Perhaps, that's why lots of girls, nowadays, take over the job. They want a little artistic love-making, if they have to make it themselves.

The ageless woman is the one with that ideal combination: an old head, a young heart, and a baby face.

When all our food begins to come already cooked and prepared in cans, no bachelor will have any cause to feel sorry for himself, which looks pretty bad for marriage. Because if you can't get a man feeling sorry for himself, how are you ever going to get him to the altar?

All those diverting little love-spats, which brighten up the courtship, are merely the preliminary practice for the Main Event.

Never believe a girl, when she says she's "done with love", a dentist when he says "Now, this won't hurt", or a man when he says he's "through with women, forever".

Don't go out and buy a bittle of prussic acid, just because one love affair goes dead on your hands. Life is a highway where there are bound to be a few long, monotonous stretches between the high spots.

A girl's beautiful smile often passes for a sense of humor before marriage; but after marriage, a woman has got to laugh in the right places.

The average girl's big problem in life is to find a glamorous, generous, gay-hearted lover who can be turned into a steady, frugal, responsible, bill-paying husband.

Most men seem to think that the only way to keep up the glow of youth is by keeping the heart in constant circulation.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Lipsticks and Powder Pads

Friend No. 1 in the beauty kit is the powder pad. Friend No. 2 is the lipstick. If a cosmetic famine were to come upon us these two pets would be cherished; they are necessary; we no longer consider them pulchritudinous luxuries.

No woman can be herself if her nose shines like a good deed in a naughty world, or if her lips are naked of rose-red pigment. One's face has to be dressed.

It is a good thing for a woman to learn something about complexion styling. High-handed methods with facial high lights do not bring edifying results. One must be as sly as the fox, have the eye of a hawk; then, when the make-up is all in place, there's a chance that one may look like an earth-angel.

Consider the powder pad; the old method was to slap it in the powder box, then smack it on the nose—your nose, of course. Not now, my hearties. The first bit of fluff goes on the neck, pretty far down. You work up along the jawline, pass it over cheeks and forehead, omitting the eyelids. Put the calcimine on the nose last, when the pad is not heavily laden. At no point of this decorating business do you grind in the powder.

You have your camel's hair powder brush, you use it to remove the surplus application; then you pat the flesh lightly with the finger-tips. So!.

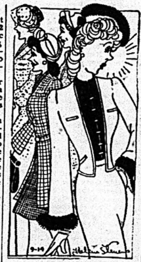
Here is one way of putting on lip rouge; it is a favorite method with some movie stars, we understand. Draw an outline with the orangewood stick that has been pressed into the coloring substance. Form two dots in the centre of the upper lip with a lipstick that has a beveled edge that permits one to follow the outline precisely and exactly. Fill in, working the pigment in with the fingers, being careful to leave no pale creases in the flesh; form a neat finish at the lip-ends.

In the centre of the lower lip one circle is formed, then spread neatly toward the lip-corners.

Quite as important as a clear-cut application, is the choice of the lipstick. Shops have numerous offerings; one's mind is thrown into a state of confusion. No beauty expert can lay down a general law for the very good reason that complexion tones vary, cannot be clearly described. But a make-up specialist can make tests and they will solve the problem.

We used to fancy that there should not be violent color contrast between lips and skin, but make-up has made advances since those days. Everything depends upon type. Some girls can get away with make-up murder and appear stunning, while others appear lithographic and uninteresting if they go the cosmetic limit.

A final suggestion: remove the lipstick smear with a cleansing oil before your bedtime face-washing. Oil is better for this purpose than is soap.



No woman can be herself if her nose shines.

Says Freedom Of India, Malaya Is Essential

Bombay, Sept. 21 (CP) — The working committee of the Indian National Congress Party adopted a resolution today asserting that freedom of India, Malaya, Indo-China and the Indonesian Islands was essential to avoid "sowing the seeds of a future war."

The resolution was adopted a few hours before the general committee session of the party convened for a session in which it was possible definite steps would be charted toward eventual establishment of an Indian government free of British supervision.

"The All-Indian Congress Committee views with anxiety the attempts being made to maintain politically and economically subject Malaya, Burma, Indo-China and Indonesia," the resolution said. "To continue imperialistic domination of these countries in whatever guise would be a denial and a repudiation of the professions made by the United Nations during wartime, and would sow the seeds of a future war."

The working committee expressed an "earnest trust" that China would "rise to even greater heights in the years of peace to come, and build up a nation united and strong — and closely allied to India and other countries of Asia."

The committee deferred comment, perhaps until tomorrow, on British proposals to set up a constituent assembly of Indian-elected representatives to frame a new constitution.

Ossie Bluege and Washington's 28 Players Only Ones Convinced Senators Still in Pennant Race

Game and One-Half Behind Tigers With Three Games Left to Play

By JACK HAND
(AP Sport Writer)

After what happened in the Yankee Stadium, Ossie Bluege and Washington's 28 ball players are about the only folks convinced the Senators are still in the pennant race.

Staggering toward Philadelphia to wind up their season with three games against the Athletics, the Senators are 1½ games behind idle Detroit which has six to play. That isn't mathematical elimination but it's too close for comfort.

Washington's weary players disappointed their well-wishers in dropping both games of their bobtailed series in New York, losing yesterday 5-3, although they cuffed Bill Zuber for 12 hits. Zuber helped them along with six walks and a wild pitch but the Nats just couldn't do it although they rallied to tie at 3-3 after Nick Etten had given Zuber a boost with a three-run homer in the first inning.

George Stirnweiss hoisted a short homer just inside the foul line around the 295-foot mark to break the deadlock and Etten drove home the other score in the seventh off Walt Masterson who had relieved Johnny Niggeling.

All other clubs in the American were idle yesterday and only a twi-night doubleheader in Philadelphia was listed in the National. The Dodgers lengthened their third-place margin over idle Pittsburgh to two full games by grabbing both ends from the cellarites, 1-0 and 11-5 behind Ralph Branca and Les Webber.

The Brooks now have won 16 out of 17 from the Phils, a domination bettered only by the Cubs' spell over Cincinnati.

New York, Sept. 22. (AP)—Baseball, which celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1939, may be missing a bet by not staging another celebration tomorrow . . . It was on Sept. 23, 1945, that the Knickerbocker Club of New York drew up a set of rules, calling for nine-man teams, three cuts to an inning and a number of other features that still stand. . . Some experts claim these rules were the first that called for a diamond and bases instead of a square with posts marking the corners, despite the claims of Cooperstown and Gen. Abner Doubleday . . . At least, tomorrow could be called the 100th anniversary of "organized" baseball. . Another Sept. 23 anniversary is that of Fred Merkel's famous "boner" of 1908, which led to the closest pennant race in major league history and the Cubs-Giants play-off for the National League pennant.

Women can "bake" their way into Sportsman's Park next Friday for the Browns-Indians game—admission charge is a cake or cookies to be distributed among the armed forces . . . No doubt the Browns would prefer something like last season, when they were cookin' on the front burner themselves. . . Maurie Waxman, of Bobby Ruffin' board of strategy, complains that Bobby spends more time worrying about bantamweight Archie Devino, whom he manages, than about his own fights. Bobby apparently is okay as a manager, for Archie fought Frank Pucci in the garden three weeks in succession.

Marty Marion, Cardinals: When you call him "Mr. Shortstop" that's saying everything. Hampered by injuries in recent weeks. . . . Len Merullo, Cubs: The day Merullo's first child was born in 1942, Len set a National League record by making four errors in one game. Been steady enough this year but there's no telling what would happen if an American Leaguer turned loose a stork over the field. . .Joe Hoover and Skeeter Webb, Tigers—Hoover, a regular the past two seasons, has been splitting the task this year with lightweight Skeeter Webb, who is an even lighter hitter. . . Gilberto Torres, Senators—came up from Cuba as a pitcher but was transformed into a shortstop and has done well enough despite weak hitting.

Toronto, Sept. 22 (CP)—Fuss about football: Coach Johnny Metras has the "strictly confidential" sign flying every time you mention University of Western Ontario football chances, but the tip is out to play a straight western ticket in the senior and intermediate college groupings. One informant says there are so many good-looking gridders at Western (the co-eds aren't bad either) that Metras could form a league of his own...

The pigskin sport came back to Windsor, Ont., last Saturday on a bigtime scale after more than a decade, but the debut by the Border City's Rockets almost didn't come off. They couldn't find a ball in Windsor for the opening game and had to wire to Hamilton Friday to ask Wildcat officials to bring one along. Fittingly, Wildcats won 21-6....

Toronto Oakwood Indians, who defeated Ottawa Trojans 19-1 in the other O.R.F.U. opener, completed 12 of 16 forward passes and committed only one fumble, an amazing record for their first league game of the season...

Dig a Hole and Bury 'Em.

Announcement by the Toronto secondary schools Amateur Athletic Association that halves will be allowed to make interference five yards ahead of the line of scrimmage produced a sympathetic reaction from Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve, formerly one of football's outstanding linemen. "There will be a lot of kid outside wings and wide secondaries carried off to the pain house this fall under those goofy regulations ....Imagine this thundering herd of halfbacks charging at some lone little outside wing....The days of the flying wedge are back, folks....Have a cot ready for junior and a reading lamp so he can keep up with his studies."

Around the Circuit.

Talking of Toronto high schools, more than 1,000 boys will participate in senior, junior and bantam rugby schedules, but there is practically no provision for soccer competition in high schools at all....Russ Nantais, manager of Windsor Auto Wreckers, one of Ontario's top baseball teams, says Bill Glane has a sinker "that drops so fast it looks as if it's being pulled down with a string." Glane, 17-year-old pitcher who worked off and on for Auto Wreckers and other Windsor district teams, signed with Brooklyn Dodgers for a reported $12,500 bonus.

EARL McCREADY TO MEET HALL

Dr. Len Hall and Earl McCready are two "name" wrestlers who are known throughout the length and breadth of at least a score of countries all over the world. The two famous international athletes, who meet in the Hume Arena next Wednesday night, hold between them wins over the champions of at least that many nations. Hall won the great International Open Tournament in Sweden in 1941, the last year the grand event of European wrestling was held. In that colossal round-up of the best that continent could produce and which lasted thirty-five nights, the powerful Hall outlasted and outfought every man-jack from giants to freaks they could throw at him. Since coming to the Eastern States and Canada to campaign while the war was on Dr. Hall has found he admits even tougher opposition right around here than he has met anywhere. And on Wednesday night when he runs into the rampaging Moose from Aurora, the good Doctor may find that to be even an under-statement. McCreary in two years of straight victories, no losses and no draws, beat and eliminated the champions of a round dozen nations. He cleaned up the British Empire situation which was badly muddled at that time and finished off the claimants in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the British Isles. Having lost the title to Whipper Billy Watson and also having come within a hair-breadth of winning it back again right in this city last week, Big Earl is right rambunctious today. On Thursday morning bright and early he was pounding on Frank Tunney's desk in Maple Leaf Gardens over the disqualification which saved Watson from sure defeat here. Tunney refused another re-match at this time telling Earl to beat Hall, if he can and then he would see.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Two corporals of the Royal Air Force placed first and second in the British P.G.A. golf tournament at St. Andrews, Scotland, yesterday. The new pro champion is Charlie Ward of Birmingham who stroked 298 for the 72 holes, one stroke better than Max Faulkner, with Frank Daley of Belfast and Bill Branch of Leicester tied for third at 301. The winner's share was £200.

A veteran of the United States links, Cpl. Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles could no not better than fourth with 302 in a tie with Bill Shankland, Australian footballer. A former British Open champion, Reginald Whitcombe, finished fifth with 303.

Gunder Haegg finished a poor fourth in an international mile run at Stockholm yesterday when Lennant Strand, also of Sweden, flashed to victory in 4:04.8, more than two seconds in front of Arne Andersson. Marcel Hansenne of France was third.

In the substitute headliner for the Johnny Greco-Tony Janiro fight at Madison Square Garden last night, Chalky Wright toyed with Humberto Zavala of Mexico to take an easy 10-round decision. Wright scaled 132 and Zavala went 138 pounds.

Byron Nelson of Toledo posted his second straight 66 in the $10,000 golf tournament at Spokane, Wash., in the rain yesterday to give him a 12-under-par 132, followed by Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., and Jack Gage of California with 136. Harold McSpaden was in fourth spot with 138.

Texas Sandman, carrying top weight of 125 pounds including jockey Mel Peterson, is the probable favorite for the $50,000 American Handicap for four-year-old horses and up at Hollywood Park today. Second choice appeared to be Bull Reigh.

Suspended in 1939, the British Amateur and Open Golf championships will be revived in 1946, it was announced yesterday at St. Andrews, Scotland, by Lord Wardington, chairman of the championship committee of the royal and ancient club.

Although he had been outpointed, Gus Mell, 19-year-old boxer of Montreal, finally earned a 10-round decision over Charlie Lewis, New York colored boy, at Boston last night. The scrap drew 4,181 fans who tooted for the Canadian all through.

If The Umpire Can't, the Tomato Can.

"HAPPY" CHANDLER failed to turn up at a dinner tossed the other day for the Montreal Royals by the Baltimore Orioles. Regret was expressed, so 'tis said, that the Commissioner had not fulfilled a promise to attend.

"A team from Maine" he said, "was playing a team from Quebec. There was a little French-Canadian outfielder on the Quebec team named Joe Petit. Joe came to bat in the ninth inning with a score tied and two men out, and singled to right field.

"When he reached first base he noticed the right fielder appeared to have fumbled the ball and he streaked for second.

"He slid into second and when he got to his feet the third base coach was waiving him on. He looked out into right field and saw that the fielder was still cuffing the ball around and he headed for third.

The coach waved him on again and he noticed that the fielder had run in behind first base and tossed the ball to the first baseman. The later ran halfway home and relayed the ball to the catcher who nailed him a foot from the plate.

"Then Joe saw for the first time what had happened. The ball had got stuck in an empty tomato can and the fielder hadn't been able to extricate it.

"There was a terrific argument and the matter was referred to Commissioner Chandler. He's over in Washington now trying to make up his mind whether you can tag a man out with a tomato can."

OLE JUPE PLUVIUS adopted an umpire's role Thursday night at Oshawa and despite the efforts of the powers-that-be to thwart him and finally got the nod and Columbian Squires & Toronto Mt. an Squires and Toronto Mount Carmels game was very definitely washed out. George (Soup) Campbell, Oshawa scribe, and OASA official battled valiantly with his henchmen to get the field into some sort of playing condition. But Jupe sent his watery legions into action and the result was a no score postponement.

The result of a long drawn out argument between team representatives and officials is that the squads will meet here on Monday afternoon at the Alemite Field for the third and deciding game. A winner must be declared by Wednesday. Squires offered the Mounts a substantial sum to play here on Monday and that behooves the fans to get out solidly behind the local youngsters with plenty of moral and financial support. Game is scheduled for five o'clock Monday eventide — so get out there and back up the youngsters. The winners will take on the classy Hamilton crew for the Ontario Junior Softball title . . .

Lots 'o Luck

JUST ABOUT NOW THE Belleville juniors are battling on foreign soil away up thar in Dresden in an effort to bring the Ontario junior baseball title to this city in two straight games. The kids took off by car yesterday at 1:30 p. m. on the long 324 mile trip to the eastern Ontario village. That's roughly 650 miles both ways. They left minus the services of the big sparkplug of the team, Vern Goyer who has a date with the navy in Kingston . . . However the lads were confident that they will bring home the bacon and if they play the same brand of heads up baseball that characterized their efforts here on Monday when they jolted the Dresdonites by a 9-3 count, then it is in the bag. Our Mr. Peacock went along.

Swan Song to a Gallant Gang.

The knife slid through a tender juicy steak with the greatest of ease. Mushrooms and onions lolled about, flanking the tender tid-bit with mouth-watering insistence. . . . It was the occasion of the farewell to a gallant gang of softballers, the Mountain View Bomberettes, worthy holders of three titles. Vic Bagnato, Flight Officer Joy Bristol, Captain Yvonne Mills and her dauntless crew of gal athletes were feted to the king's taste, and proved excellent hosts to invited newspapermen and league officials. . . . The highlight of the evening happened when President Eddie Schrieder of the Belleville Ladies' Softball League presented Captain Mills with the trophy emblematic of the city title. . . . The R.C.A.F. quarter-bloke went all out to give the gang and their guests a succulent meal and it was one of the repasts that you read about and seldom see . . . at least from a civilian point of view. . . . There was music and dancing and lots of fun. . . . The girls who won not only the City title but the Interstation and Command championships as well were charming hosts, and were nattily garbed in new maroon blazers. . . . Prexy Schrieder took along a sample of the championship crests and these will be forwarded to the squad in due course. . . . Marg. Bradfield and Yvonne Mills came out of the casualty list with no damage and all is hunkey-dory with the team. . . . Greatly missed was Vicky Hillier "iron woman" of the team, whose stout heart and good right arm were the main factors in the acquisition of the three titles. . . . Vicky now has that "slip of paper" and has gone "home to the range" somewhere in the vicinity of Regina. . . . Stout gal, that. . . .

The Shoemen have Garten, their ace hurler, readied for the fray and the game should be well worth seeing. . . . The series, so we're told, is the semi-final for the province. . . . A number of city and district fans are taking in the pastime which starts at 3 o'clock. . . . Point Anne Cementmen dropped out of the O.A.S.A. Intermediate playdowns last night in Cobourg dropping a close 6-5 decision to the Oshawa Mayfair Lanes. . . . Faulty baserunning was in part responsible for the elimination but otherwise the game was a fine sample of the pastime. . . . Oshawa meets Toronto Invictus today in the Queen City in the next round.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 778
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The rule is not to cross the street against the red light. But if a bear is chasing you, no doubt you would make your own rules trying to get out of the mess.

That's the way you should look at a rule in bridge. If you are desperate, it is sometimes a good gamble to break a rule. Take, for instance, the lead of a singleton.

Generally the lead of a singleton should be avoided if there is a more desirable lead available. But when you are desperate, a singleton lead may be a good gamble. Like in this deal:

NORTH
♠J 9 6
♥Q J 4
♣2

WEST
♠7 4
♥K 9 7 6
♦2
♣J 9 6 5 4 3

EAST
♠A 5 2
♥10 5 3
♦A 9 8
♣Q 10 8 7

SOUTH
♠K Q 10 8 3
♥A 8 2
♦7 5 4
♣A K

Declarer in the south was trying to make four spades. West had very little hope of killing the contract by a normal lead. So, he stepped out with a gambling lead of his lone diamond deuce.

When dummy hand went down, declarer could see no more than three probable losers. They were to the spade ace, diamond ace, heart king. So, it was his intention to pull trumps as soon as possible.

Meantime, however, opponents were still in the lead and one of them had other ideas. Having won the first trick with diamond ace, east studied the return lead he should make to west.

East knew that the diamond led by west was a singleton. He could almost see it by looking at the dummy diamonds. It was quite obvious to him that a diamond return would be trumped by west.

But after that, east could see only one more trick for his side; the trick he can take with his ace of trump. That makes a total of only three tricks; not enough to set the contract.

East must consider that before returning the diamond for west to trump. Should he switch to some other suit in the hope of picking up a fourth trick? What do you think?

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 22—(CP)—With parliament settled down to the rough and tumble of day-to-day debate the veterans looked over the crop of newcomers and decided the House had gained from the general election.

More than usual, the opening spate of speeches started off in travelogue manner on the relative beauties and merits of the ridings from one end of the country to the other. Among the tyros was Maj.-Gen. George Pearkes, V.C., who described his Nanaimo riding as a "paradise."

"We've been able to brush up on our geography, along with hearing some good objective speeches," said Resources Minister Glen, an observing veteran.

But the best travelogue, as usual, was given by the Commons' most travelled member, John MacNicol. He had little to say about Toronto Davenport, the riding he has represented for 15 years, but extolled the engineering accomplishment that produced the big aluminum and power development at Quebec.

During the open season, between sessions, Mr. MacNicol always visits one of the big engineering projects and subsequently reports on his visit to the House, producing entertaining facts and figures. As a result of this personal knowledge, Mr. MacNicol has often been in the unique position of being able to prompt ministers and correct members making speeches on projects in their own departments or ridings.

"I like to see these things and understand them before discussing them in the Commons," he said.

A constituent once told him he should stay home and look after his own riding and not go "galavanting" off to other members' territories. Mr. MacNicol dealt with the critic by explaining that as a result of the trip in question—an inspection of western irrigation projects—he had "drummed up" a considerable quantity of hardware business which had not only profitted the critic personally but also his employees.

Wrathy Grapes: It was the good-humored C. C. F. Whip, Stanley Knowles of Winnipeg, who introduced E. L. Bowerman to Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"I want you to meet the new member for Prince Albert, Mr. Prime Minister," Mr. Knowles said with a broad grin.

Mr. King warmly shook the hand of the man who beat him in the general election and joined in the laughter.

Said he: "Well, Mr. Bowerman if I had been able to spend more time in Prince Albert, I never would have met you."

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA

New York, Sept. 22—(CP)—The current Broadway season—scarcely three weeks old—already has turned up some of the worst productions ever to justify the habitual bad-tempered dyspepsia of professional first-nighters.

The latest two are at least as bad as the critical consensus contends—maybe worse. The daily reviews have been hurling around such unfriendly epithets as "stinking," "puerile," "abominably inept" and "some of the worst . . . playwriting on record."

The dean of local newspaper critics, George Jean Nathan, wrote in the Journal-American this week, after some expert name-calling: "If you think these are hard words, you haven't seen the show." To which this commentator has nothing to add except: Don't.

The recent two in question are "Devils Galore," about oddly enough, devils, and "Make Yourself at home," about an aging actress. A veil will be drawn over further details.

One for the people-have-more-trouble-than-anybody book is the sad case of Peter Birsh, a dancer who works for the Theatre Guild. Nightly he lays them in the aisles with a sensational hornpipe number in "Carousel." Then he dashes backstage, changes from sailor's costume to chaps and a 10-gallon sombrero, leaves the Majestic Theatre in a cloud of dust, hurtles across 44th Street, pants through the stagedoor of the St. James Theatre and gallops onstage into "Oklahoma!" In time to take part in another furious terpsichorean routine, climaxed when the villain spins him through the air and leaves him flat on his chaps, eyeing the ceiling and wondering if perhaps there isn't an easier way to make a living.

By HYE BOSSIN

Judging by her work in "Incendiary Blonde," Betty Hutton may yet become this continent's most beloved movie star. She has unmatched energy, rhythm, charm, personality and all-round talent.

She is now a first-rate actress. Her pathos are close to reality and her expression of joy lifts your spirit like a sudden sunburst on a depressingly dark day.

Her singing and dancing defy you to sit still and her serious scenes reveal a maturity unsuspected until now. There is an air of unaffected honesty about everything she does and she is becoming every man's girl and every girl's best girl friend.

Betty Hutton is the girl who, with fine frankness, recently told an interviewer from a leading New York paper of the days when she and her mother were on relief and how they lived from the change patrons of barrooms threw at her feet when, as a girl in her teens, she sang for them.

Apparently such success couldn't happen to a nicer girl.

A divorce was granted to a Detroit lady because her husband made her go to movies seven nights a week. The movies were usually double bills and the husband went to sleep shortly after he arrived at the theatre. When he awoke his wife had seen the films but he made her sit through them again . . . Dane Clark, who made a big hit in the short subject, "I Won't Play," will play the lead in the remake of "The Jazz Singer," in which Al Jolson originally starred . . . Katharine Hepburn gets the lead in "Green Dolphin Street". . . An organization has been formed in Toronto for the establishment of a civic theatre, through which Canadian actors, playwrights, etc. will get a chance and also help revive the theatre. It is a deserving effort and may have its logical climax in the establishment of a national theatre group. The public may support things by becoming subscribers.

One of the greatest films in history is "The True Glory," directed by Garson Kanin for the USA and Carol Reed for Great Britain. It is the story of the European campaign from D-Day to V-Day and will keep you nailed to your seat. . . . The producers of "Getting Gertie's Garter" weren't sure that the original ending was a good one so they created another. The film was previewed with both endings and the audience asked to pick one, broke even on the choice. So now both endings have been incorporated into the picture. . . . Gloria Warren appeared in "Always in My Heart" and then seemed to fade out. But the film made a great hit in Rio de Janeiro, where it ran for 25-weeks, and the 19-year-old actress was signed to appear in person in that city at $3,000 per week for six weeks. She is now on her second six-week engagement. And to think that she is almost forgotten here!

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was still feeling so good about being able to buy all the gas he wanted for his car that he took me for a drive to the Park Saturday, and we were walking through the scenery and pop said, Just look at those trees, every shade of brown and many shades of red and lots of shades of yellow.

Green too. I said, and pop said, Yes, you cant beat green, as the Irish poet remarked. With the possible exception of spring, summer and sometimes winter, awtum is probably the most beautiful season of the year. Just look at those leaves, he said, and I said, Do you know what kind of leaves they are, pop?

Awtum leaves, every single one, pop said, and I said, I mean can you tell the different trees by their leaves? I can, because we have a nature class in school and I belong to it. This is an oak tree, did you know that, pop? I said.

I'll go so far as to say I'm not surprised, pop said, and I said, Those 2 gold looking ones are maple, and that one with the shiny trunk is a birtch. I bet you cant point to a single tree that I dont know the name of it, I said.

It's not polite to point, and instead of being so cocky about knowing a few trees, you should feel humble about all the things you dont know, pop said. How much do you know about berds? he said, and I said, Not so much.

There, you see, some people know about some things, and some know about others, pop said. I happen to know about birds. There goes a hiffle berd. It sings in a very discontented key because it's always in a hiff, or as some people pronounce it, a huff, he said, and I said, It looked like a sparrow.

That's right, that particular one was a sparrow hiff, pop said. Look there's a riffle chested sleep walker, he said, and I said, Aw good night, pop, that really was a sparrow, I saw it plain.

What nonsense, you'd better stick to your trees, pop said.

Being the end of the subject on account of me starting to hunt for 4 leaf clovers.

MAYFAIR LANES OSHAWA, DEFEATS POINT ANNE 6-5

Lapses in Baserunning at Critical Stages Spelled Defeat for Ox Pointers

Two lapses in base-running at critical times helped to defeat Point Anne in their third and deciding game with Oshawa Mayfair Lanes played at Cobourg on Friday afternoon. The score was 6-5 in favor of Oshawa and that team will go on in the Intermediate "A" O.A.S.A. playdowns meeting Toronto Invictus in the next round. The game was an exciting one and Point Anne almost pulled it out of the fire in the ninth frame when they staged a rally that was good for two runs.

Both teams played steady consistent ball with Point Anne having one lapse in fielding, while the winners were caught off guard in two frames aided by the lapses of the Point Anne squad. It was a pitcher's duel between Maracle and Muellenester with Maracle being nicked for nine hits, giving one base on balls and whiffing four. Muellenester gave up eight hits, walked four and struck out eight. The game was a scoreless draw until the fourth when Oshawa counted a quartet of runs. Gilbert, the first man up, plastered a homer to centre and Janetos followed with a single. Drummond singled and Shestoswki grounded to Horwood who forced Drummond. Rospond then flied to centre but Genereaux dropped the ball and two scored, putting Rospond on third, who later scored on a passed ball.

Filled Bases But No Score.

Point Anne filled the bases in the third and did not score and probably lost the game right there. After Green had been retired, Horwood walked and Maracle was safe on an error. Whitehead singled and the bases were loaded. Loft flew to left field and Horwood was caught at the plate on the relay when he failed to slide going into the plate. It was bad baserunning on the player's part. Point Anne, however, got two back in the fifth when a walk and three singles netted the counters. They got another in the sixth when Genereaux singled through second. Goyer worked his way to third and when Bennett flew to centre Goyer was doubled at the plate when he hesitated after the catch on his way homeward.

Oshawa got two in the sixth when Drummond singled and Rospond tripled and later scored on an infield out. The fireworks came in the ninth, when Point Anne, after two were out, scored two and had the tieing run on the base paths. Bennett walked and Murney Green punched a homer in deep centre field. This unsettled Muellenester and he walked Horwood and Maracle singled. Whitehead was not equal to the occasion and hoisted to centre for the final out. Drummond led the Oshawa hitters with three out of four and Whitehead and Green each got two for four. The box score.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 21

"And how many real counts have you known?" Folly demanded.

"I have met several," he grinned. "Also a baron and a couple of duchesses."

Her gray eyes widened.

Playful Mood.

"Bruce Potter, you're making that up. Where would you meet any people like that?"

Bruce laughed.

"Didn't I ever tell you that I accompanied my mother to England for the coronation?"

Folly relaxed.

"No, you didn't! For a moment I thought you were serious."

"We went over on the Normandie."

"How perfectly lovely;" she jeered. "And did you have a delightful trip across, Mr. Potter?"

"On the contrary it was an awful bore," Bruce answered, delighted to see her in such a foolish, playful mood. He told himself she could not have cared much about that so called count if she could laugh again so easily.

To Make Parachutes.

What fun they had that night! Folly had been alone too much lately not to appreciate the rollicking, high spirits of this boy of her own age. But some of their conversation was serious.

During the course of the evening Bruce suggested that she learn to make parachutes. The training was free and the sewing should come easily to her clever artistic fingers.

"If I do are you sure I can get a job?" Folly inquired anxiously.

"This friend of mine will give me all the dope about it," Bruce replied. "Next time I see you I'll tell you just where to go."

Hilton In Car.

It did not occur to Folly to ask who this friend was. She had no idea that Hilton Wood who had followed her in his car to the hotel had chosen Bruce as an intermediary. But Marta's tears of joy upon receiving Folly's note made it difficult for Hilton not to confide in her. The responsibility of helping develop character in another human being is a dangerous one. He wondered now how he had ever had sufficient courage. Perhaps living in grandpa's room had imbued him with dauntless spirit of the old man. At any rate, it was too late for him to retreat. But Marta's silently reproachful attitude made him wonder if he could stay there any longer.

Although Marta had no idea of Hilton's connection with the note which assured her of Folly's well being the relief from tension made her answer to his question about moving less hostile than it would have been otherwise.

"I've been thinking the situation over," Hilton said to her one night after dinner. "Be frank about it, Marta! Would you rather I'd move?"

"You must suit yourself about that," Marta replied. "Naturally if you are not happy here you must not stay."

"It doesn't make me particularly happy knowing you hate the sight of me," he reminded her.

He Talks With Hazel.

"I don't hate you," Marta denied flushing. "Whatever you did I am sure you meant well."

"Thanks." he said dryly.

"If you leave we shall have to rent the room to some one else." Marta admitted. "And I'm sure we'd rather have you than a complete stranger."

The matter seemed to be closed as far as she was concerned but Hilton with a burning sense of injustice took it up with Hazel the next evening when Marta was working.

"I don't want to inflict my presence on anyone," Hilton stated, "It may be better all around for me to clear out."

Hazel gave him an understanding glance from shadowed gray eyes.

Decides to Stay.

"Don't go just yet, Hilton Marta is going to be terribly lonely without either of her sisters. She is going to need you. In her heart she cares more for you than she realizes. If she didn't," Hazel added shrewdly, "she would never have been so angry with you. A large part of Marta's rage is with herself for letting you drive Folly out of her mind."

"I told myself that in the beginning but this has gone on now for almost a week."

So Hilton stayed and while they no longer went to the movies Saturday night they were pleasant to each other at the dinner table. So long as Hazel or Chan were present it was easier. Then there came the night when Hazel who had been strangely evasive about her plans suddenly announced them.

The other two were at the table when she came in. Hazel's face was pale but her expression was calm.

She slid into her place saying abruptly, "Sorry to be so late. I've just signed up for overseas service."

Marta stopped eating. She cried, "Oh, Hazel, you haven't?"

"I told you months ago I was considering it," her sister reminded her.

"But that was before you were engaged. This means you can't be married."

"Yes, I know that. But we couldn't have lived together long any way. Charles is due to leave any time now. And they need nurses so terribly. You've no idea how serious the shortage is. I have to do it," she cried vehemently, "or I couldn't bear the thought of myself for the rest of my life. I've used every selfish argument against it I could think of but none of them compare with the fact that this is not a time for personal happiness. Charles has to go . Why shouldn I?"

"How does Charles feel about it?" Hilton asked sympathetically.

Marriage Will Wait

"At first he couldn't see it," Hazel admitted. "But I've finally made him realize that I'm right. It won't make any difference," she added proudly "Nothing can keep us apart if our marriage is meant to be. If it isn't. . ." Tears were gathering in her eyes but she brushed them away. "Now there's no use building this up into a patriotic sacrifice. I'm going to be with him every possible moment until he leaves. After that I'll be glad that I will be going too. It would be pretty dismal to have to wait here for him to come back."

As calmly as if she had been telling them about a proposed shopping trip Hazel ate her dinner and hurried upstairs to dress. Marta's eyes met Hilton's across the table.

"Did you ever see any one like her?" she asked.

"She's a wonderful girl," Hilton granted. "They just don't make them any finer than Hazel."

"I hope she doesn't have to go without seeing Folly." Marta sighed. "If only there was some way of telling her that Hazel has signed up. But she didn't give us any address."

Hilton said nothing but a few evenings later when Bruce telephoned as he usually did after seeing Folly the older man suggested that Bruce relay the information.

Hilton Is Unhappy.

"She's doing fine," Bruce reported. "And says she is beginning to like the work. But if she ever finds out how I happened to run into her that day she'll never forgive either of us."

"She'll never know it from me,"

Hilton said abruptly.

He replaced the telephone on the stand felling more depressed than he had since recovering from the flu. Disappointed that Marta's interest in him had proved so shallow in comparison with her love for Folly. Intuition had warned him in the beginning not to get involved in the affairs of any of his three charming landladies. Almost within his own knowledge he had swum out beyond his depth. His companionship with Marta and her sisters had filled a need he had not realized he possessed. For the first time in his life Hilton had considered marriage as a condition to be desired rather than a weight around his neck. And now what? Just the sight of Marta at dinner or hurrying out the front door at night.

He ought to walk out and leave her to her lonely fate. But he couldn't do that since Hazel had begged him not to desert her sister. There was only one answer Hilton decided pacing the length of grandpa's room, and that was to get in touch with someone else. The thought of Evelyn Newman had occurred to him more than once the past week. He had stopped seeing her because of her possessiveness but he felt now he would welcome a little warm hearted affection.

A Date With Evelyn.

With all her faults Evelyn had seemed to love him. Would she be glad to hear from him again after the months of silence? He sighed, then shrugged. Only one way to find out, he admitted, dialing a number which had once been more familiar to him than his own. Undoubtedly she would be hurt, perhaps angry.

When Evelyn's voice nswered she was none of the things he had expected. Prolonged reflection had convinced her that it was her own fault Hilton had checked out.

Although she was surprised she did not show it. She said "How nice to hear from you again. Tonight? I'm sorry, Hilton, but I have another engagement. Saturday will be fine though. Okay, darling, it's a date."

Hilton stared at the telephone thoughtfully. Now that he had committed himself he wished he hadn't. Still Evelyn had sounded unreproachful and sure of herself. Reasonably happy to hear from him and the fact that she had another engagement proved she hadn't been sitting there crying. It might be fun, Hilton admitted. They had always had fun together when she wasn't being dramatic.

How fast those weeks skipped by and not only to Hazel and Charles who knew they would soon be separated. The entire tempo of the city was speeded into a whirring restlessness. Convoys departed and arrived full of evacuees. Soldiers, sailors and marines seemed to appear by magic. Tents sprang up in the most unexpected spots and once vacant factories were cleaned and renovated for the use of barracks.

Early in the morning on every street in every district the automobiles of the defense workers were heard while at almost the same hour the patrol planes roared off into the fog.

People were not so grim as they had been at first. A police siren could bring anxious faces to windows and balconies but an indefinable optimism which no current bad news could stop was sweeping the country. We were going to win this war no matter what it cost of blood and sweat and tears.

Off to Front.

The boys departed without farewells. Their young faces were unsmiling but the loving pride of a nation followed them. The prayers of the city went up in a single petition from every one who saw those truck loads of soldiers on their way to the docks. The cream of a nation's youth was sailing for an unknown destination. It twisted our hearts to see them but reports of their stark, naked courage were already coming back and more and more civilians offered their services at blood bank, Red Cross or defense plants.

Among them was Jane Anne Tucker who found life infinitely more interesting since she had obtained her social security number. A thousand new sights and contacts, an entirely new life surrounded her in the factory where she sewed on parachutes. As a worker she found herself regarded in a diferent light.

A New Folly.

Doors opened which she had not known existed. The good will of her companions who neither knew nor cared about Folly Wainwright became important to her. She was prouder of their friendly salutations than of any other achievement in her life. Her services were needed and she was supporting herself. The beauty of being independent dawned upon her with the payment of her first check. For the first time in her whole life she felt as if she fitted perfectly into some invisible design.

TRIPLET BOYS BORN

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 22 (AP)—Triplet boys born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy V. Bouchard were called A, B, and C, for hospital identification. Yesterday the parents chose their names—Tom Dick, and Harry.

HIROHITO ENVOY

Admiral Hisanori Fujita, grand chamberlain to the Japanese Emperor, who called on Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in what was believed to be a move to arrange a meeting between the American Supreme Occupational Commander and the Emperor. The Admiral's visit to Allied Headquarters in Tokyo was an indication that Hirohito would visit MacArthur as a demonstration of professed Jap co-operation.

The Husband Pays--As Usual

A. D. McLean, branch manager of the Imperial Oil Company here is "in solid" with an American lady and her family —but the head of the American household is now looking askance at Canadian amity.

The Americans arrived in the harbor here the other day aboard a handsome cabin cruiser with a crew of two. They had cruised from Buffalo and had heard of the opportunities, beauty, and holiday facilities of the Bay of Quinte.

Anchoring their boat to the Imperial Oil wharf, they contacted Mr. McLean who gave them the necessary information and offered to drive them uptown to the shopping section of the city.

An hour or two later a taxicab heavily laden with Canadian merchandise pulled up at the wharf and deposited the American family on their boat.

"Well," McLean smiled, noticing the happy faces of the lady and family. "I see you've had a good time."

"Listen, my friend," glowered the "head of the house of Buffalo" but with a twinkle in his eye, "I appreciate your hospitality but that little jaunt uptown set me back $200. My wife is happy, the family is happy, I'm supposed to be and you laugh at me. I'm going to put that gang of mine in the brig and lock the door until we're out to sea."

Film Board Council Meets

A meeting of the Belleville Council was held at the Y.M.C.A., Wednesday evening, September 19. Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. David MacKenzie, secretary of the National Film Society—an organization which promotes the use of educational films in Canada. Mr. MacKenzie gave an interesting address, outlining in brief the history of the Society, reviewing present day activities and showing the services rendered to a Council affiliated with this organization.

Mr. Ronald C. Ward, field supervisor of the National Film Board, then addressed the Council. He advocated greater publicity for our film library and suggested holding a pre-view night the latter part of October and inviting members of all community organizations, in order to bring before them the value of visual education. Mr. Ward also informed the Council that Kingston had been established as a zone library for Eastern Ontario and would send a block of 15 or 20 films (on extended loan) to add to our library if the Council so desired.

At the close of the evening a film strip entitled "Orphan Willie" was shown and a film "Friend in Need", which portrayed the suffering of the peoples of Europe owing to food and clothing shortages. This film will be in our library next week and should be very useful in the coming Clothing Drive.

200 ARRESTS IN CONCEALMENT PLOT

Helsinki, Saturday, Sept. 22 — (AP) — Communist Minister of Interior Yrjoe Leino said today 200 arrests have been made in suppressing a widespread plot to conceal weapons and ammunition throughout Finland. Other sources estimated that at least 1,000 persons eventually would be involved in the round-up. A number of persons identified as "second officers" of the Finnish General Staff were said to be implicated.

WILL HASTEN EXPORTS

Brisbane, Australia, Sept. 22—(CP) — A Netherlands Indies rubber administration has been created, Aneta news agency said today, to hasten resumption of rubber exports from the Indies by allocating materials, equipment, labor and trained supervisors to grawers.

Youths Guilty Of 13 Charges

Ottawa, Sept. 22 (CP)—Two boys—aged 10 and 13 years pleaded guilty in juvenile court yesterday to 13 charges of housebreaking and were remanded until next week for sentence by Judge Alan Fraser who criticized civic officials for allowing conditions leading to juvenile delinquency.

It was disclosed that one of the youths was one of 13 people living in three rooms of an Ottawa house which had been condemned by the City Health Department, a fact which brought from the judge the comment that "this boy hasn't a chance."

"I don't know how long we have to go on waiting for the city officials to put a stop to this—breaking regulations — allowing people to live like this—13 persons residing in three rooms and nothing being done by authorities to find a better place for them to live.

"As long as children and their parents are living in that manner, under those circumstances, it is impossible for children to grow up without getting into trouble or at least getting a very adverse start in life."

Police officers testified the two lads engaged in a miniature crime wave breaking into 13 homes and the loot they got and damage they did amounted to more than $500. They said the boys had smashed furniture and smeared paint on the walls of some homes.

Lougheed to Take Lauzons Back

Montreal, Sept. 22—(CP)—Inspector W. H. Lougheed and two officers of the Ontario Provincial Police, arrived here yesterday to claim Ulysse Lauzon, 24, his wife Eileen, 21, and Walter Koresky, 20, all of Windsor, Ont, and will take them to Toronto during the weekend for questioning in connection with five bank holdups and a jail break in the neighboring Province.

The Lazuons and Koresky were arrested in Prince Edward Island and were transferred here by Quebec Provincial Police.

Pleasant Valley

Pleasant Valley—Rev. O. Wagar of Ivanhoe enjoyed Sunday dinner at Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cole's and Sunday supper at Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dorland's.

Miss Aldythe Arthur, a member of the Garden Brigade obtained first on her garden and first on the total score. This is her second year for winning first both times on the total score. Miss Lillian Dorland another member won first on her vegetable exhibit at the fair and also received the "County Honors" pin for completing 6 courses in "Homemaking."

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fox spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Arthur.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson and family enjoyed Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. F. Montgomery.

Mrs. Gertrude Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dauncey visited Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Curry of Peterborough and they attended Lindsay fair.

Mr. Driscell of Ottawa spent three days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Cole.

Lieutenant James Bird has to report at Toronto this week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dorland entertained Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Dorland and family, also Mr. and Mrs. George Bird and family for dinner on Sunday.

HAS NO BEARING

Toronto, Sept. 22 — (CP)—Officials of the Ontario Department of Highways yesterday expressed doubt that compulsory inspection of motor cars over five years old, as recommended by a coroner's jury here Thursday, would reduce the death toll. Age of an automobile has little or no bearing on the accident record, they said.

THE Electric METER
Is for Your Protection

EVEN though your Hydro makes electricity available to you in Ontario at a very low cost, it is important that you pay only for the amount of power that you actually use. The electric meter on duty in your home, is your protection against paying for more than you consume.

Every one of some 800,000 meters in Ontario is tested and certified by a Dominion Government inspector at regular intervals to assure complete accuracy. Electric meters are among the finest of jewelled precision instruments . . . as constantly true as the finest watch.

For your protection, Hydro installs a separate meter, exclusively for your own household. Having a meter of your own is the only possible way to be sure that you only pay for the electricity which you use. Imagine buying food from a merchant who weighs several people's orders at the same time, and splits the cost evenly regardless of the size of the orders! You want your order weighed individually when you buy food. When you use electricity your meter assures accurate individual measurement.

Low cost Hydro service in Ontario offers amazing comforts and conveniences. For your protection . . . so that you will pay for only the amount of Hydro you actually use, a Government Inspected Meter is installed for your own household exclusively.

Emperor Hirohito Will Pay Call On Gen. MacArthur

Any Atomic-Bomb Research Blocked by Allied Command

Tokyo, Sept. 24 (AP)—Well-informed Japanese sources said today that Emperor Hirohito has arranged to pay an unprecedented call on Gen. MacArthur at the latter's residence, the American Embassy building. No date was specified.

The decision on a meeting place of conqueror and conquered was reached at a recent conference between Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Fujita, Grand Chamberlain, these sources told Associated Press correspondent Russell Brines.

Official confirmation was lacking, although a meeting between Gen. MacArthur and Hirohito long has been expected. If the Emperor goes to MacArthur's residence at the embassy, it would be the first time in modern history that any Japanese Emperor has gone to another ruler for an audience.

The Allied high command today blocked any atomic-bomb research in Japan, directed rigid control of Japanese economic life including wages, prices and all traffic in currencies and negotiable assets, and moved toward a free Japanese press.

The news order directed the Imperial government to remove itself completely from direct or indirect control of newspapers and news agencies. Heretofore the ruling Japanese clique has almost completely controlled and directed news policies.

Paves Way.

Stripping Domei agency of its special privileges, the order paves the way for establishment of new and truly free competing agencies.

Two other far-reaching directives aimed at freezing traffic in currencies and other negotiable assets, to facilitate the task of "fingerprinting" Japan's assets at home and abroad.

Prohibited are export or import of gold or silver coin; gold, silver and platinum bullion or currency; and securities, cheques, bank drafts, bills of exchange, powers of attorneys, proxies and any evidence of indebtedness or evidence of property ownership not specifically exempted.

One of the Emperor's closest advisers, meanwhile, disclosed that in his opinion Emperor Hirohito did receive President Roosevelt's peace plea and the U. S. State Department's Nov. 26, 1941, peace memorandum, but ignored both when Warlord Hideki Tojo and other advisers told him it was useless to resist the rising war tide in Japan.

Had No Knowledge.

The close adviser, Marquis Koichi Kido, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, also told Associated Press correspondent Russell Brines that he believed the Emperor had no advance knowledge of the attack on the United States base at Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941.

Furthermore, said Kido, reports of abdication moves are "false."

Other well-informed Japanese sources said Gen. MacArthur cracked the whip for the first time today on Japanese government appointments from among members of formerly privileged classes. He vetoed the appointment of Seihin Ikeda, former finance minister, as president of the Central Liaison Board, these sources said. They said Vice Premier Prince Fuimaro Konoye had nominated Ikeda.

U. S. 8th Army Headquarters announced that Camilio Osias, minister of education in the Philippine puppet government, was taken into custody today and was placed in the Yokohama prefectural prison where former puppet President Jose Laurel and other suspected collaborationists or war criminals are held.

Control of laboratories that might develop atomic weapons in Japan will be both close and continual, Allied Headquarters made clear.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT

Napanee, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Ronald Markle, 18, of Napanee was arrested Saturday on a charge of stealing in connection with the cashing of a war service gratuity cheque of $124 belonging to Clarence Markle.

11,000 Elevator Operators In New York Strike

New York, Sept. 24 (AP) — Eleven thousand elevator operators and other maintenance workers in 975 mid-Manhattan office buildings went on strike at the start of the morning "rush hour" today.

Thousands of office workers began laborious climbs up stairways, including those in the Empire State building, tallest structure in the world, which normally keeps 72 elevators busy.

Locals 32-B and 164 of the A.F.L. Building Service Employees International Union called the strike when David Sullivan, president of Local 32-B, gave the signal at 8.30 a.m. E.D.T.

Union leaders indicated that unless the Midtown Realty Owners Association and the Realty Advisory Board on labor relations met their demands the strike would "spread throughout Manhattan".

The two locals have 23,000 members, and if all struck at once, service in at least 1,900 buildings would be tied up. Union officials claim a total strike also would bring out 6,000 non-union workers, tying up as many as 2,500 buildings all together.

For several months the maintenance workers and building owners have been involved in dispute. Today's strike resulted from the Union's avowed "dissatisfaction" with a United States War Labor Board settlement.

The W.L.B.'s directive gave a $2.50 a week raise to apartment house employees and decreased weekly hours of work for employees in all buildings, but turned down demands for Union security, severance pay, holiday and vacation provisions and strike and lockout provisions.

Union heads said that under the W.L.B. plant loft and office building workers would have their weekly incomes reduced.

Boy and Sister, Hit by Truck, Are Killed

St. Catharines, Sept. 24. (CP)—Shirley Wallington, nine and Gordon Wallington, ten, brother and sister, were killed today on the Queen Elizabeth highway when struck by a truck driven by John Hoover, Hamilton. Hoover, who was driving east, said he was blinded by the sun and did not see the couple.

Prisoners Going to Gas Chamber Beaten Witness Says in Describing Camp

Lueneburg, Germany, Sept. 24 (Reuters)—Zofia Litwinska, 28-year-old Lubin Jewess who survived the horrors of the lethal gas chambers at Oswecim concentration camp told her story today to a court trying 45 men and women Nazis on charges of inhuman treatment and murder of prisoners at Osweicim and Belsen camps.

She was taken to the Ouschwitz gas chamber and just as she was choking to death in the fighting, crying mass of people, was pulled out by block leader Hoessler because her husband had been a Polish officer, Mrs. Litwinska told the court.

Known as "the woman who returned from the dead," Mrs. Litwinska was traced by British investigators in search of an actual eye-witness of the execution chamber's inner operation.

Arrested in May, 1940 for being a Jewess, Mrs. Litwinska was taken to Auschwitz along with her husband who died in prison later.

"On arrival at the station at Auschwitz we were met by the S. S. when we got to the camp we had everything taken away, including my bread. I asked for a covering for my head as I was freezing. The man in charge started to hit me severely.

"Then we were given shirts which were full of lice, after being left naked for a whole day. We were then taken to block 25 where we slept in bunks, seven or eight to one bunk with one blanket for eight of 10 persons.

"We got up at three o'clock in the morning for a roll call parade which lasted sometimes until nine o'clock. If we moved during that time we were slapped on the face or had to kneel down holding a heavy stone. The time we had to kneel depended on the whim of the block leader.

"One day I broke my leg when I fell in the mud as my clogs got stuck. I was taken to hospital where I was at Christmas, 1941.

"On the day before Christmas more than 3,000 women, all Jewesses, had to appear on a selection parade at the hospital."

Mrs. Litwinska was asked by Col. T. M. B. Backhouse, a prosecutor, "who was in charge of the parade?" She rose from her seat in the witness box and pointed to Hoessler in the dock.

Describing the preliminaries to the selection parade, Mrs. Litwinska said the women "had to leave their beds very quickly and stand at attention naked in front of Hoessler and the doctors."

"About five in the morning, the trucks arrived, and naked like animals, we were loaded in and taken to the crematorium," Mrs. Litwinska added.

"Then we were led into a room that looked like a shower bath. There were towels and even mirrors.

"The whole truck was tipped up and we were tumbled out like a cartload of potatoes. I don't know how many were in the truck, I was so terrified. I don't know whether the doors of the chamber were locked.

U.S. TROOPS NEEDED IN JAPAN FOR MANY YEARS

United States Policy To Be Supreme In Control of Japan Says Washington

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP) — American policy for controlling Japan made it certain today United States troops will be stationed in that island country for a good many years to come.

At the same time disclosure of United States' plans for converting the Japanese into a peaceful people—by civil war if necessary—brought to light what probably is the key to criticism expressed by Washington officials of Gen. MacArthur's estimate of occupation force needs.

This is the revelation that United States policy is to be supreme in the control of Japan. However, when possible, agreement of the other big powers — Russia, Britain and China—is to be obtained.

Gen. MacArthur said last week that in about six months United States forces in Japan probably could be reduced to 200,000 men, a total considerably smaller than earlier estimates.

Dean Acheson, acting Secretary of State, sharply reminded the General in a public statement that policy is made in Washington and not at headquarters in Tokyo.

Confirmation Delayed.

As a result, confirmation of Mr. Acheson's promotion from assistant to Undersecretary of State was delayed in the United States Senate when Senators K. S. Wherry (Neb.), Republican whip, and A. B. Chandler (Dem., Ky.) blocked action because they contended Mr. Acheson had "insulted" Gen. MacArthur.

Washington observers suggested that United States forces in Japan would not be reduced beyond a point where American control of occupation policies would be lost.

The occupation will be long and difficult for United States policy calls for a complete revolution in Japan.

The expectation is that after the military leaders have finished their main job of disarming Japan, removing its war supporting industries and ending its military power, long-range control will pass into the hands of civilian officials.

Not Known Publicly.

These facts were not known publicly at the time Mr. Acheson voiced his criticisms of Gen. MacArthur's estimate. Nor were they known Saturday when Senator Wherry announced he had sent Mr. Acheson a long list of questions bearing on Japanese occupation policy.

It was not until hours later that the White House released the first official statement on that subject since the Potsdam declaration in August. This policy

Truman Will Present Recommendations On Atom Bomb to Congress

Washington, Sept. 24 — (AP)—The White House said today president Truman soon will submit to Congress his recommendations for the development and use of atomic energy.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters that the president "is not setting himself up as sole arbiter" of the future of the atomic bomb secret.

The president told reporters last night that he was taking sole personal responsibility for administration policy on the use of atomic energy.

Mr. Ross said he wanted to make it clear today that this did not mean that he would play a lone hand.

"The president will submit his recommendations to Congress," Mr. Ross said. "He is taking advice from the cabinet but his is the responsibility of deciding what the recommendations to Congress shall be. It is expected the recommendations will be sent to the Hill fairly soon."

There had been published reports that Henry Wallace, United States Secretary of Commerce, had insisted at a cabinet meeting last Friday that Russia be given the secret of the bomb and be made a party to development of atomic energy.

Mr. Truman told reporters last night that Mr. Wallace took no more active a part in the discussion than anyone else. The reports, he continued, were not correct.

The president went on to say the meeting was for the purpose of arriving at a decision on administration policy, to be considered by Congress, on the future of atomic energy.

In the final analysis, Mr. Truman said, he, and he alone, will take full personal responsibility for future use and development of the awesome discovery.

London, Sept. 24 — (CP) — The Sunday Pictorial said yesterday that Soviet scientists discovered the secret of the atom bomb six months ago and that the Russians "should not take much longer than another year to produce an atom bomb."

"News of the discovery," the Pictorial said, "was published in a Russian scientific paper for private distribution in March of this year."

EDITOR OF MAPLE LEAF REMOVED FROM HIS POST

Requested to Give Other Side of Repatriation Policy by Gen. Guy Simonds

By WILLIAM BOSS
(C.P. War Correspondent)

Amsterdam, Sept. 24 (C.P. Cable) — Lieut. Ed. Ingraham, of Sydney, N.S., and Saskatoon, assistant editor of the northwest Europe edition of the Maple Leaf, Canadian army newspaper, said today he has "resigned on principle" following the removal of the editor, Major J. Douglas Macfarlane, of Toronto.

Amsterdam, Sept. 24—(CP)—A Canadian Army newspaper editor, Maj. J. Douglas Macfarlane of Toronto has been removed from his post following criticism in his paper — the Northwest Europe edition of the Maple Leaf—of army repatriation policy.

The removal, first on record in British or Canadian forces in this war, was effected by Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, commander of Canadian forces in the Netherlands, who said in a statement last night he had no alternative but to do so.

In two successive issues last week the paper criticized repatriation of Canadians called up under National resources mobilization act, asking for correction of a situation permitting such personnel in garrison battalions, still non-active and newly arrived overseas, being placed in the 1st division unit for repatriation.

Some Sent Overseas.

(N.R.M.A. personnel originally were drafted for home service or service in areas adjacent to Canada but some were sent overseas starting last winter to maintain the flow of reinforcements to the army.)

Declaring the paper's contention that N.R.M.A. should be treated differently from volunteers for repatriation was wrong both morally and practically, Gen Simonds revealed that of the total N.R.M.A. personnel who fought as such, never going active, 60 had been killed in action and 192 wounded.

Washington, Sept. 24. (AP)—The war cost the United States 11 aircraft carriers sunk.

Thirty others were damaged a total of 52 times by enemy act.

A navy recapitulation today showed that all but ten of the eleven—the support carrier Block Island—was sunk or damaged by Japanese air, surface or submarine attacks. The Block Island fell victim to German submarine torpedoes in the Western Atlantic.

BIG FIVE MEETS DIFFICULTIES IN WRITING PEACE

Some Observers Predict Council of Foreign Ministers Will be Dissolved

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 24—(CP)—The Big Five council of foreign ministers turned to discussion of Europe's inland waterways and the immediate future of Austria today amid increasing indications the group was meeting serious difficulty in reaching agreements under its present procedure.

Some observers already are predicting the council may be dissolved and another means found to write Europe's peace.

This view was reflected in an editorial today in the London Daily Mail which said: "It has become clear that the first meeting of the council of foreign ministers has not succeeded. . . Before the delegates disperse some face-saving formula will no doubt be devised to cover their activities."

The immediate issue threatening Big Five unity is a Soviet objection to France and China participating in Hungarian treaty discussions. Russian complaints shelved the Hungarian talks—last peace terms on the agenda—until the procedure is straightened out.

Foreign commissar Molotov of Russia reportedly based his protest on a Potsdam agreement that only signatories to the armistices would discuss the peace treaties at the initial stage.

Spheres of Influence

The main stumbling block, which has been building up for years, seemingly involves the old question of spheres of influence. The question of outlining spheres of influence throughtout the world for each major power and deciding to what extent each power should wield exclusive control in its own sphere is high in the minds of the council delegates, but thus far has been carefully skirted in direct discussion here.

Commenting on the situation the Daily Mail said:

"Russia appears to have an indelible suspicion of the motives of the western power. . . .The only result of such conduct is to arouse counter-suspicions against herself and to forfeit the almost illimitable good will enjoyed among the mass of peoples.

Meanwhile, as the Big Five discussed the future of Austria, delegates to Austria's provincial assembly met in Vienna today in an attempt to form a government acceptable to the powers occupying Austria.

APPROPRIATIONS EXPECTED SOON IN THE COMMONS

War Expenditures And Demobilization Bill Will Come Up After Debate is Concluded

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Debate on the Throne Speech is expected to be concluded in the House of Commons early this week and to be followed by presentation of the War Expenditures and Demobilization Bill for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1946.

Conclusion of the debate will be featured by the taking of votes on two motions of non-confidence in the government, one Progressive Conservative and another by the Social Credit party. The CCF party, which saw its non-confidence motion defeated by 193 to 29 last Thursday, is expected to support the government when the votes are taken, possibly Tuesday.

Once the debating and voting on the Throne Speech has been concluded, the way will be open for the introduction of legislation, the setting up of committees, the study of estimates and for the answering of the many questions which have piled up on the order paper since the opening of the session Sept. 6.

Finance Minister Ilsley is not yet in a position to announce when the budget will be brought down. However, he has said that the War Expenditures and Demobilization Bill would be introduced shortly after the Throne Speech debate concluded.

The bill will cover expenditures of $3,365,000,000 during the current fiscal year for war, demobilization and mutual aid purposes.

War and civil estimates still have to be dealt with by members, some of whom believe that the session will last until late November, with a new one opening in February.

Many Committees.

One of the committees to be set up is that which will be given the task of selecting a design for Canada's national flag. It is not known how soon the committee will start work.

There is a move among opposition members to have the War Expenditures Committee set up again this year, and to have its meetings open to the public and press. During the war this committee sat in camera and members were sworn to secrecy.

Monty Orders No Marriages With Germans

British Army of the Rhine Headquarters, Sept. 24. (Reuters)—Field Marshal Montgomery, British commander in Germany, today issued an order that members of the British Armed forces would not be permitted to marry Germans, despite reports to the contrary.

(A spokesman for defence headquarters said at Ottawa that the order would apply to Canadian Occupation forces who are under Field Marshal Montgomery's over-all command.)

MAY BE FURTHER REDUCED

Toronto, Sept. 24—(CP)—If the Domion Government will pay $6,000 a year to cover rental of Trinity Barracks, rents of $40 to $75 a month for apartments in the building, which have already been reduced by $6, may be further reduced by almost another $6, Mayor R. H. Saunders said last night. The apartments are rented to servicemen's families.

Mass Trial of Top-Ranking Nazi Leaders Expected to Begin in Nov.

By WES GALLAGHER

Nuernberg, Sept. 24 — (AP)—After months of preliminary work it appears possible that the mass trial of top-ranking Nazi leaders, now sitting glumly in prison cells in this city from which they once threatened the world, will get under way here before the end of November.

While no date actually has been set, representatives of all four major powers— Britain, the United States, Russia and France—finally are on hand. All prosecutors have been named, two of four judges have been selected and announcement of the other two is expected momentarily.

There is no basis for comparison between the forthcoming trials at Nuernberg and the proceedings now under way at Lueneberg, where Josef Kramer and 44 of his aides at the Belsen horror camp are being tried by a British court.

Two basic points have been laid down for the court's guidance by the Four Powers. The first point stipulates that waging a war of aggression is a crime. The second provides that common knowledge may be accepted as evidence.

It will be the object of the trial to lay down a complete pattern of Nazi plotting.

2 New U.S. Labor Disputes Raise Idle to 323,000

Lumber, Sawmill Workers In Northwest Called Out

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP) — Two new disputes entered the United States labor picture today, boosting the number of idle to more than 323,000, and re-emphasizing the wage issue as the crux of most of the difficulties.

After 10,000 New York painters returned to work, the total idle stood at 240,000. Some 60,000 members of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers (A.F.L.) however, were called off their jobs in the Pacific Northwest later, while on the other side of the continent, New York city building service employees numbering 11,000 left their jobs.

Some 348 mills and logging camps were involved in the lumber dispute, which revolves about union demands for a minimum hourly wage of $1.10 as well as union determination to force industry-wide bargaining instead of individual company negotiations.

Other disputes were unchanged, the only notable event coming when Chrysler Corporation announced a conference tomorrow with officials of the C.I.O. United Automobile Workers' Union on the latter's demand for a 30 per cent wage increase.

90,000 Idle in Detroit.

Strike votes were in the picture at both Ford and General Motors, the other two members of the big three. More than 90,000 workers in the Detroit area are idle as a result of automotive difficulties.

The United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) reported an "overwhelming" majority of Chrysler employees favored strike action in polls taken in several states Sunday.

Richard T. Leonard, U.A.W. Ford Director, said a petition for a country-wide Ford strike vote would be filed wi hthe National Labor Relations Board about Oct. 1. The Union's General Motors Department already had asked the board for a strike vote among the 325,000 G. M. workers throughout the United States.

Brightest spot in the labor picture was the prospect that a month-old strike at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co. might soon end. Percy Llewellyn, newly-appointed administrator of the Kelsey-Hayes local, said there was "some possibility" of getting the 4,500 strikers back on their jobs this week.

The unsanctioned stoppage has left idle some 40,000 Ford workers and 10,000 employees of smaller plants in the Detroit area.

Traffic Service Curtailed

Bus and taxi service was curtailed and auto traffic was described by police as "below normal" as the strike of workers at oil refineries and suppliers continued in the Detroit area Sunday.

The C.I.O.'s International Oil workers followed the U.A.W. lead in demanding a 30 per cent pay boost, and informal gas rationing was instituted to conserve supplies. A conference was planned for tomorrow between industry and union representatives to attempt a settlement.

One of the largest single disputes — with 38,000 workers out —was in the plants of the Westinghouse Electric Company over six states. Demands focussed on bonus and incentive pay rates.

More than 22,000 Texas Gulf Coast oil workers were idle today as union officials travelled to Chicago for a mediation conference designed to break a paralyzing strike.

Officials of the Oil Workers International Union (C.I.O.) from Texas will meet with oil company officials Tuesday to discuss wage scales and other points of difference.

French People Swing to Left In Elections

By ROBERT WILSON

Paris, Sept. 24 (AP)—The ill-clad, impoverished people of France appeared today to have swung overwhelmingly to the left as Socialists and Communists piled up gains in local government elections.

Returns from yesterday's voting are incomplete, but with one third of the ballots tabulated for 90 councils general, Communists had gained 23 seats and Socialists 102.

The centre, represented by the Radical-Socialists and minor parties, had lost 53 seats, while the right wing, represented by Paul Reynaud's followers and other groups, had dropped 121.

No complete census of party strength will be available for another week, since many candidates failed to obtain majorities. There will be a run-off election Sept. 30 to decide these seats, at which time the usual fusion of tickets will again confuse party lines.

Detailed assessment of France's political complexion will have to wait until the national elections Oct. 23 decide the fate of the fourth republic.

Gen. De Gaulle was assured of no embarrassment when all but two of his ministers emerged victorious for unsalaried councillor general posts which provide administration for France's departments.

One woman Conservative was known to have been elected as French women took advantage in large numbers of their new suffrage rights.

Hollywood Film Booked in England Despite Criticism

London, Sept. 24 (Reuters) — The Hollywood film "Objective Burma" will be booked for British cinema houses controlled by the United Station Motion Picture Company which produced it, Max Milder, managing director for the company, said today.

Mr. Milder was commenting on British press criticisms that the picture ignores the part played by Britain's 14th. Army in the Burma campaign.

"I know the British were in Burma, but people must remember the film was not made as an historical record," Milder said. "It was made as entertainment."

Press criticism included such phrases as: "Why should we pour dollars into America to see a gross injustice"; "An enigma which should never have been made and ought to be withdrawn from exhibition"; "The film misrepresents an historic campaign to such a grotesque degree that it is amazing it was ever made."

SMALL GIRL HURT WHEN HIT BY BICYCLE

Darting out from behind a parked car near Boyce's garage, a small five-year-old girl named Squires was injured when struck Saturday afternoon by a bicycle ridden by Mrs. Leo Lennox, Albert Street. The little girl was taken to hospital where her injuries were treated, she later being permitted to return to her home.

In a second accident a Rawson bus was damaged about the radiator grill at the corner of Station and Albion Street when struck by a car driven by George Madden, Albion St. Mr. Madden was turning west onto Station Street from Albion Street when his vehicle mounted the curb across the street and going out of control struck the bus which was parked to take on passengers.

REDNERSVILLE MAN INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Ernest Russell, Rednersville, aged 50, received back and kidney injuries Friday evening at Rednersville when he was struck by a motorcycle which previously had been in collision with an automobile.

Arnold Mschke of Rednersville was riding his motorcycle in that village when at the main intersection his cycle struck the left front fender of an oncoming vehicle, the motorcycle then glanced away and struck Mr. Russell who was pumping up a tire on his automobile which was parked across the street. Although his injuries were painful Mr. Russell was not admitted to hospital and was treated at his home by a local doctor.

HUSBAND ARRESTED

Toronto, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Police who responded Saturday night to a telephone call by a woman for an investigation into a theft from her purse found the body of Harry Cooper, 48, of Toronto, on a front lawn and arrested the woman's husband, Harold Edward McBrien, on a charge of manslaughter. Police said Cooper met his death in a fight with McBrien after Mrs. McBrien had accused Cooper's wife of stealing money from her purse.

Carpenter's Power Saw Stolen

A carpenter's power saw, together with one half-horse power electric motor and 100 feet of cord was stolen Sunday night from the house which is under construction by Donald Foster, at 63 Gordon Street. Mr. Foster had been using the saw during construction of his house and had been leaving the machine on the property. Police were informed it was stolen some time after ten o'clock Sunday evening.

Two Tires Stolen.

Dundas Street service station operator, Mr. Norman Garbutt, reported to police his place of business had been broken into and two tires, one mounted, stolen.

Purchased Beer for $8.

Otherwise police circles were comparatively quiet over the weekend with the customary number of inebriates causing the most trouble. Two youths were apprehended Saturday evening at the rear of Boyce's garage with 20 pints of beer. The boys were not in possession of a beer permit and stated they had purchased it for $8. Name of the vendor was not divulged by the youths.

Chungking Radio Denies Giving Report Of Hirohito's Abdication

Chungking, Sept. 24 (AP) — The only Chungking radio making international English-language broadcasts denied today broadcasting any report in any language that Emperor Hirohito had abdicated.

(The Federal Communications Commission in Washington had recorded a broadcast in the Mandarin dialect it said originated in Chungking, announcing Hirohito's abdication.)

Helen Liu, in charge of English language broadcasts over Station XGOY, suggested it may have been a hoax or a misunderstanding—or that the source may have been some other station not in Chungking.

The Central China news agency also was unaware of such a report, but pointed out that there had been some speculation on a possible abdication.

Communion Set Dedicated To Memory of Albert Blackburn

Large congregations attended services of special significance in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday, the occasion being the presentation and dedication of a communion set which was donated by the family of the late Albert Blackburn and Mrs. Blackburn in memory of their father and in honor of their mother.

"For many years the late Albert Blackburn was a beloved and faithful member of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church," stated the pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman, in his dedicatory remarks during the morning service. "He served the church faithfully and well as a Deacon, and as Church Treasurer. Mrs. Blackburn is still a beloved member of the church. The church cherishes the memory of the late Mr. Blackburn and treasures the fellowship of Mrs. Blackburn.

"Today the Blackburn family presents to this church, this Communion set of table and chairs, these offering plates, and certain proposed wood-work to be placed under the organ, as a tribute of honor to their mother and to the memory of their father, the late Deacon Blackburn. The church would assure the donors of their deep appreciation of this gift, which I do now accept in the name and on behalf of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

"We dedicate this gift to the glory of God, and in memory of the sacrificial death of our blessed Lord Jesus Christ, through whose death our departed brother obtained an abundant entrance into his eternal rest, and we live in the glorious hope of life eternal."

The pastoral prayer was given by Rev. J. F. Dingman of Napanee, an old friend of the Blackburn family, who assisted at the morning service.

"It has been said that the late Deacon Blackburn was a faithful member of this church," said the minister during his address. "We have ample proof that he was faithful. He not only worked faithfully in the services of the church but he faithfully instructed his family in the Christian way of life, for we have here today, not one Deacon Blackburn but three Deacons Blackburn, his sons. Would that more of our parents could be as faithful in bringing up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

The Communion service was held in the evening with the Blackburn brothers taking prominent part. Prayer of thanks for the bread was given by Deacon A. H. Blackburn of Mattapan Baptist Church, Milton, Mass., and thanks for the cup by Deacon C. A. Blackburn of Blaney Memorial Baptist Church, Boston, Mass. The closing prayer was given by Deacon J. A. Blackburn, of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church Belleville.

The beautifully carved oak table and chairs and handsome offering plates, comprising the new Communion set, were used for the first time on this unique occasion.

JAPS ROUNDED UP BY BRITISH IN HONG KONG

This is the end of a round-up in Hong Kong dock-yard area. Japs face the tommy-guns of British marines and sailors as Hong Kong is taken over by a task force from the British Pacific Fleet under command of Rear-Admiral C. H. J. Harcourt, after nearly four years in Jap hands. Snipers inside the dock-yard had to be silenced.

Nurse's Report Says Health Of Children Good

Pupils of the Belleville public schools seemed to be in better physical condition, - cleaner and freer from skin diseases than they have in years, Mrs. J. C. Watt, public health nurse, stated to the Board of Education in her report on health service for the past month.

A number of pupils have been excluded from school with impetigo, the reports stated. This seems to be the season for impetigo to be more prevalent, following swimming in unclean water and it appeared to be whole families in most cases that were affected.

All pupils have been inspected by the nurse, in the classrooms and kindergarten pupils have been watched closely and some rooms inspected a second time. Several of the higher grades, the nurse reported, have been inspected a second time due to complaints from parents about their children having pediculosis; but no source was found in the class rooms but the source was definitely traced to an exclusive girls' camp.

Some Tonsils Removed.

During the early summer home visits were made to talk to mothers regarding defective tonsils. A list was prepared for the Rotary Club of Belleville and some of the children involved have had their tonsils and adenoids removed.

Of the children at Queen Victoria School who did not register until September, four were inspected and mothers given individual advice on health requirements and problems as clothing, vaccination, immunization. All mothers were asked to notify the principal when the child developed any communicable disease and to find out from the school the required length of time to be out of school.

Nurse Watt reported that all teachers have been given directory sheets for name and address and also weight charts to be hung in the class rooms. Pupils are weighed three times each year by the teachers.

A list of the nurses' activities and other statistics follows: Home visits, 15; Defects corrected, checked and recorded, 77; Children for observation, 248; Re-inspected, 42; First aid treatments, 107; Other inspection in Nurses' Office, 200; Rapid classroom inspection, 53; Parents notified of defects, etc (not vaccination)11; Sent home sick, 6; Skin (impetigo) 24; Pediculosis (dirty heads) 5; Mumps, 4; and chickenpox, 1.

Familiar Sights Look Good To Major Bob Graham After Four Years Service Overseas

"Just looking around taking in the old familiar sights. I can't remember a place that looked so good to me as Belleville when I came home, and it is good to be back again."

That was the comment of Major Bob Graham when seen on the street this mornining browsing around stores and shops and renewing old acquaintances.

Major and Mrs. Graham have just returned from a holiday in New York City.

"When does the duck hunting season open?" the Major queried.

He was told and a reporter added "Surely you don't want to go duck hunting after knocking off Jerries for four years?"

Major Graham smiled. "Why not?" he said. "You couldn't eat the Jerries."

He has lost considerable weight since he left Canada four years ago. "This coat," he said, "has been cut down once and it is still too big for me." But he isn't worrying too much over the loss of extra avoirdupois.

Major Graham went overseas in 1940 after joining the Argyll Light Infantry and after armoured corps training in England was one of a number of special officers sent to North Africa after the invasion of that continent for observation purposes. He returned to England and was made a special instructor in certain phases of armoured corps work.

He was quite severely wounded in the chest when he was struck by a piece of his own tank following a heavy action. However, he has recovered and is enjoying the long-looked for reunion with his family and friends.

Still on thirty days home leave, Major Graham doesn't know what the "army will do with me" but expects to get his discharge at the expiration of his leave.

Subs Sneak Into Singapore Harbor By Daylight

By CLYDE FARNSWORTH

Chungking, Sept. 24. (AP)—Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander in chief of the British Pacific fleet, disclosed today that three British two-man submarines sneaked into Singapore harbor by daylight three weeks before the end of the war, blew up a vessel believed to have been a light cruiser, cut the Singapore-Hong Kong marine cable, then made a clean getaway.

Severing of the cable, he said, added to Japan's confusion in its surrender by depriving the enemy of a communication outlet.

The Admiral also related that three other two-man submarines participated in the attack that sank the German battleship Tirpitz in a Norwegian Fjord.

The 60-foot midget subs were towed by tenders from Subic Bay to Borneo, and thence to a position off Singapore from which they launched their attack. They penetrated the Singapore Harbor defences, spotted the hull of a vessel believed to be a light cruiser, and laid a time charge beneath it.

It was later confirmed that the ship blew up, the Admiral reported.

Midgets do not fire torpedoes, but rather place fixed charges which are actually fastened to the hulls of the enemy vessels.

A short time later, the Midgets went to work on the marine cable. From Sir Bruce's account, they wrapped it with fused explosives and then retreated. He suggested —without explaining the technique in detail—that submarines actually emerged from their little vessels in diving suits to place the explosives.

SCATTERED ABOUT WORLD

Hamilton, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Air Minister Gibson in a radio address Saturday said the reason for the delay in repatriation of radar personnel in the RCAF is that 4,000 of the 4,500 Canadians so engaged are attached to the RAF and "scattered throughout the world."

Lack of Leadership Hampering Scout Movement in City

A very definite lack in leadership is considerably hampering the rejuvenation of the boy scout movement in Belleville since war's end, according to the boy scout field commissioner for Eastern Ontario who was in Belleville during last week.

Present membership in scouts and cub packs in Belleville is approximately 200 which in the words of the field commissioner could easily be expanded to 500 providing the proper leaders could be found. Prior to the war as many as 500 boys were interested in the scout movement in this city but activities fell off considerably during the war.

Already, however, renewed interest in boy scouts is being shown by city youth with troupes and packs remaining inactive for the past few years showing signs of renewed life.

Possibly the only woman scout master in Ontario, Miss Dorothy Osbourne, has returned to Canada from her army nursing duties overseas and already has resumed her scout activities with the reforming of the Fourth Belleville Troupe. Queen Mary School has 42 boys ready to join the boy scout movement, while another pack was recently formed at Christ Church.

High praise for two district local women who carried on as scout leaders during the absence of male leaders during the war years, was paid by the commissioner. The two leaders, Mrs. Twila Langman and Mrs. E. Goodier had kept interest alive in the scout cub movement. Scout packs and troupes are meeting regularly each week under these two leaders.

Obituary

LATE MRS. EDGAR REID

Rawdon — The funeral of the late Mrs. Edgar Reid, formerly Isabella Pollock, was held on Friday afternoon in Mount Pleasant United Church with a large cortege of relatives and friends in attendance.

Rev. T. F. Townsend, B.A., B.D., based his message on the words of St. Mark, "I Belong to Christ." This was a special request of the deceased as this text had been used in 1885 by Rev. R. M. Pope and had been a favorite text throughout the years.

Mrs. T. F. Townsend presided at the piano and Mrs. Edgar McKeown, a former neighbor and friend, sang "In the Homeland." The congregational hymns were "Rock of Ages" and "Peace, Perfect Peace."

The bearers were Messrs. Gordon Linn, Irvin Reid, W. H. Scott, Milford Wrightman, Edgar McKeown and Blake Sharp. The flower bearers were Messrs. Raymond McConnell and Lindsay McKeown.

Interment was made in the church cemetery beside her husband who predeceased her several years ago.

MICHAEL B. ACQUAFREDDO

Michael Barry Acquafreddo, age two days, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Acquafreddo, 42 Boswell Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this morning.

The funeral took place this morning from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street. The service there and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church.

LATE FREDERICK (TED) YEOMANS

The funeral of FO. Frederick (Ted) Louis Yeomans, formerly of this city, who died in Toronto on Thursday last, took place from the Canadian National Railways Station here shortly after noon on Saturday to the Belleville Cemetery where interment took place in the Yeomans' family plot. The service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. D. C. Amos, minister of Bridge Street United Church.

The bearers were Mr. W. H. Finkle, Mr. Robert Brown, Mr. Harry F. Alford, Mr. H. C. Thompson, Mr. John Deacon and Dr. Van Blakslee.

LATE KENNETH LAURENCE MASTIN

On Saturday afternoon the funeral of Kenneth Laurence Mastin, the two-and-a-half years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Orland W. Mastin, 14½ Forin Street, took place from the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mastin, 3rd concession of Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward County. The service in the home and at Albury Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. W. H. Bartlett.

Many friends of the family were present and there were many beautiful floral tributes.

BIRTHS

ACQUAFREDDO — At the Belleville General Hospital on Friday, September 21st., 1945, to Cpl. and Mrs. Michael Acquafreddo (nee Molly Belshaw), a son, Barry Michael.

IN MEMORIAM

WELCH — In loving memory of James Welch, who died September 22nd, 1944.

Gone, dear father; gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed—
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

—Ever remembered by Wife and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

Miss Maud Phillips wishes to thank friends and neighbors for their kindness during the recent illness and death of her mother, also for the many beautiful floral offerings.

French Troops Occupy Buildings in Saigon

London, Sept. 24. (AP)—The Swiss radio quoted advices from Indo-China today as saying French troops had occupied strategic buildings in Saigon after arresting several hundred Annamites and that they had the situation in the city well in hand.

The broadcast said the French troops were reinforced by liberated French war prisoners whom they had supplied with arms.

CHURCHILL IN RIVIERA

24-Hour Air Link Of All Cities Seen

Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., forecast that within the next five years no city on the globe would be more than twenty-four hours distant from any other by air. He also predicted that in the same period flying time from New York to London would be cut to five and a half hours and the trip from coast to coast would be made in five hours.

Going even a step further, Captain Rickenbacker said it would not be very much longer before our commercial airlines would be making flights to London at a speed of 1,000 miles an hour, using new-type planes and improvements developed during the war, including jet-propelled aircraft and the gas turbine engine.

"While we are not experimenting with these developments ourselves," he said in answer to a question put to him after he had addressed a luncheon meeting of the Banshees Club at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, "we are watching the field very carefully."

Mr. Rickenbacker disclosed also that in addition to the twenty Lockheed Constellation planes that his organization will put into service next June, Eastern Air Lines will begin to use the Curtiss Commando about March 1, 1946, says the N. Y. Times.

"We are on the threshold of a great new era," he declared, "in which expanding air travel will help bring the world closer together, increase our knowledge of and cooperation with peoples all over the world and, by eliminating selfishness and hate, create a condition of world peace."

The "ace" of World War I told his audience that he was greatly concerned with seeing that disabled veterans of this war did not become a "drag on society, on their families and on themselves." He called upon industry, Government, labor and finance to cooperate in 're-establishing these men as useful citizens.'

He reported that he had already hired a few "amputees" and that he would take a thousand if he could get them.

"Ninety per cent of all jobs at Eastern Air Lines," he asserted "outside of the cockpit, can be handled by amputees. And that includes my own job."

Captain Rickenbacker said that from 25,000 to 30,000 men had lost one or more of their limbs in the war. But, he added, if the same number of employees were to hire one such disabled veteran each, the problem of the "amputee" would be solved.

"Our returning service men now are better Americans than they ever thought they could be," he said. "They are going to provide us with a type of leadership never before known in our history. Make no mistake about it, the veteran is going to take over."

Paratroops May Fight Bush Fires in North

North Bay, Sept. 24 — (CP) —Paratroops may be used to fight bush fires in Northern Ontario, T. E. Mackey, regional forester, said here. Experiments with paratroop fire fighters have been successful in the United States, he said, and something along that line may be tried in the north country.

Open Letter To "Hasty Pee" Repats

Dear Hasty P.

The Prince Edward Rehabilitation and Welcoming Committee are arranging a "get-to-gether" of all "returned" Hasty P's in Picton on the 28th September.

"Fall In" at the Armouries at 1300 hours for the parade to the fair grounds (If possible uniforms to be worn).

After the dismissal there will be horse racing, ball games, etc., at Picton Fair, with a lunch provided in the later afternoon for returned men.

In the evening there will be a big dance at the armouries with free admission for returned men and their guest.

As this is the first get-together of All returned Hasty P's, it is important that it be successful. Its success will be judged by the number we have on parade. So let us make it a real Hasty P. show and have the whole gang out.

Brigadier H. D. Graham, Lt. Col. Kennedy, and a great number of others have promised to be present. "It will be good to see all the old faces again."

I am afraid the transportation will have to be arranged by individuals. But I am certain that in many cases officers and N.C.O.'s can make arrangements for their particular locality. If the committee find they can make any arrangements in this region, a notice will be placed in the local papers.

Future dates concerning the Regt. to be kept in mind:

1. The Welcoming Home of the 1st Battalion of the Regt. in Belleville (watch papers).
2. A banquet for all returned Hasty P's on the 12th of November at Picton. Details as to the above will be published in local newspapers.

For Future get-to-gethers and so that any Hasty P. can "get in touch" with an old comrade, we are going to keep a card showing the following particulars of every Hasty P. (For the time being this will be kept at Regimental H.Q., Picton).

1. Regiment particulars.
2. Home address., including 'phone number!
3. Business and business address, including 'phone number!

If the above plan is to succeed it is absolutely necessary that every Hasty P. forward the above information to me, care of Picton Armouries. If you are going to be able to attend the "Do" on the 28th please advise me, care of the same address.

All the addresses of the Old Hasty P.'s are not available, and as a result we will not be able to send a letter to each one.

May I have your co-operation, please, in passing this information along to all the boys. Because this is a Hasty P. "Do", I know that you will be there, and that you will "dig out" the rest of the gang as well.

Yours sincerely,
Angus B. Duffy, R.S.M.

The Middle East Veers Into Britain's Orbit

(By Sir Ronald Storrs in London Calling.)

Breakfast, Bournemouth, Tuesday; breakfast, Cairo, Wednesday. This is too quick travel for pleasure — treating one almost like a postal packet; but if one has to cover North East Africa, with the Sudan, Eritrea and Ethiopia, Palestine and Iraq, India and Ceylon, Italy and Paris, all in a few weeks, there is no way but air.

These impressions of the Near Eastern part of my journey are the result, not so much of official interviews and reports as of visits and talks to all ranks of all three services, to pashas, sheikhs, bishops and rabbis; to bazaar-merchants and to Bedouin Arabs — in short, fraternization.

Everywhere I detec[illegible]und base of expectancy, [illegible] always cheerful because of the dominant uncertainty; most of all, in the enemy territories we now occupy, an aching to know their fate. For Tripolitania, the western half of Libya, there are no Allied commitments, and so, many conjectures.

Most of the silly, pathetic stencillings, "Mussolini is always right", "Duce, we will conquer", have been rubbed off the little ruined farmsteads. But the deadly Italian mines in the least expected places still exact their almost daily toll of Arab life and limb; cars have still to be advised to hug the middle of the road, and sandbags are still "worn" under the seat.

Good use has been made of the pompous, Fascist buildings; Balbo's marble palace hall has become a dignified Anglican Chapel for the forces, and the Casa del Fascio, a Royal Navy canteen. The vaster Italian establishments have been converted into Army Welfare Centres, so magnificently equipped that a Parliamentary delegate expressed the fear that they would "unsettle all ranks on their return to civilian life".

• • •

Cyrenaica, the eastern — Senussi — half of Libya, has been announced by Mr. Eden as not to be restored to Italy. Yet, here also, the Senussi Arabs are in suspense —for it is only half an assurance to know what is not going to happen to you. They are sturdy; independent men, following with good effect the rules of their Senussi Order. There is very little crime among them, save the continuous and scientific looting of military stores, which they consider fair game (as ladies do the Customs).

They get on easily with British troops and shout an Arabic "Good morning Jock"— Naharak sayyid, ya Zhock — to the Brigadier's driver, he answering in English, and neither understanding one word of the other's language. They would welcome a ruler from their royal Idrisi family, with British administrative and—they hope — financial help. But there is no question of liberated Cyrenaica, Tripolitania, or, to the south, Eritrea, becoming British.

In sunny Egypt, the political barometer is apparently set fair. Egypt has backed the winner and so has lost no lives, made millions of pounds, accumulated huge sterling credits. But there is, as yet, very little to buy with their cash millions in Egypt — motor tires cost a hundred pounds apiece, and are burgled like diamonds — or with their credit millions in Britain. And, though basic Egyptian industry is solid enough, war enterprises are apt to decline at the end of a war.

King Farouk and his Government and many, though not all, of the educated younger Egyptians realize that Egypt's problem is now economic rather than political, and are grappling manfully with this grave situation. But economic and social reforms involve slogging, unspectacular research, with unpopular taxation, the red herring of external politics, with charges that the Government is subservient to her British ally is always tempting for an Egyptian opposition.

I found no trace of anything but friendship and cordiality, in striking contrast with the atmosphere prevailing after the last war. Egyptians and Britons are becoming partners as well as allies not only in commerce and industry — there are several important Anglo-Egyptian ventures —but at the bridge table and on the tennis court. Young Egypt is increasingly versed in English literature; the British Council Institutes are crowded, and their schools are so much in demand that it is difficult to maintain the supply of English teachers.

The Anglo-Egyptian Sudan had progressed immensely since my last visit, as Kitchener's Oriental Secretary, in 1914. Khartum and Omdurman are now large and startlingly clean cities. This country is fortunate in that, ever since its rescue from barbarism by Kitchener in 1898, it has enjoyed a sequence of capable Governors General, served by officers chosen with discrimination as well as by examination, to whom the Foreign Office has given a very free hand.

Unadvertised and unheckled, they have been able to proceed deliberately, limiting higher education of the Sudanese at first, to the numbers of posts expected to be vacant in the Civil Service, commerce and the professions. So that there are none of those unhappy black-coats, without work to employ their brains or will to use their hands, who elsewhere is the East swell students' demonstrations and abuse the patience of the public and the police.

Nine lawyers are enough for six million Sudanese: Palestine with less than one-third that population enjoys over a thousand. On the other hand, there are scientific Sudanese agriculturists and doctors performing with distinction major operations. The students of Gordon University College, Khartum, speak good pure English which has doubtless furthered their success and popularity so far afield as Exeter College, Devon.

• • •

I flew from Khartum across the Red Sea and walked what Lawrence 20 years ago called "the soft padded streets" of Jeddah. These were being holed and poled for the green pennons of King Ibn Saud.

For 20 years Ibn Saud has kept order from the Red Sea to the Persian Gulf, with a strong hand, but without oppression. In 1925 pillage had reduced the annual Mecca pilgrims to 3,000, but the 3,000 returning home in 1926, his first year of rule, spread so different a story that in 1927 there were 75,000. Britain has throughout the East no truer friend than this great man. When, during our darkest days, Arabs in Syria and Palestine were being tempted to join Hitler, his counsel never wavered: "Do nothing against the friendly British Government."

Most of the peoples of whom I spoke desire to work with, but not under, Great Britain. Anxiety for Palestine, very real from Tripoli to the Persian Gulf, has not yet displaced us from their regard; and their respect has been enhanced by British courage and endurance, long solitary, that made possible the Allied victory.

Officially Denied Amelia Earhart Jap Prisoner

Tokyo, Sept. 24 — (AP) —Recurring rumors that Amelia Earhart, long missing woman flier, was alive and a prisoner of the Japanese brought an official denial from Commander Tonosuke Otani, secretary to the Japanese naval adjutant.

He said he had made a thorough check with the home ministry, foreign office and other authorities and there was no basis for believing that Miss Earhart and her navigator, Radioman Red Noon, were alive.

for CATARRH,

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA, ANTRUM, SINUS ALSO CATARRHAL AND BRONCHIAL COLDS!

What is LANTIGEN?

Lantigen is a specially prepared dissolved vaccine and has been used successfully in the treatment of various diseases. Lantigen is not a patent medicine. Lantigen is a bacterial vaccine in a dissolved state, is devoid of drugs and safe to take. Lantigen is a natural aid. It is produced from the bacteria which are peculiar to the particular disease requiring treatment. In the preparation of Lantigen the organisms are destroyed by a process of dissolution thus releasing the active principles from the bacterial bodies. Being in a completely dissolved state the vaccine is operative locally by absorption into the tissues of the tongue, tonsils, throat, and the intestinal tract and is further operative by means of its distribution throughout the system. More than 150,000 people in Australia have enjoyed relief from the distressing affects of catarrh and allied conditions.

Writing in the "British Medical Journal," speaks as follows in the issue of January 15, 1936: "In my experience, the oral antigens have been mostly employed for cases of Catarrhal infections, rheumatic conditions and catarrhal enterocolitis: Clinical response has been quite definitely marked." This important statement, however, heralds the dawn of a great release for Catarrhal sufferers.

Aerial Survey

How quickly man's new accomplishment in the air is being used to advance man's welfare is seen in the uses to which the plane is now put. Saturday's newspaper told of the making of an aerial survey of the watershed of the Moira River and of the photographing of many thousands of views to have the data to be assembled for the City-County Department of Planning and Development.

Not many years ago this would have been impossible. Now with the developments of aviation a new method has been opened up and it is being utilized here to acquire the information desired.

Not only has the plane become an adjunct of our fast advancing civilization but photography is steadily advancing and is being made to play as in the war where its part was of the greatest value, a role that will continue to grow in importance industrially and otherwise.

These two inventions which have been carried so far along the road of progress make possible an immense amount of data at great saving of time and some of this information of course not being otherwise possible or available, in this truly amazing world of man's new accomplishments.

Returning Men Bring Inspiration

Servicemen are returning in a steady flow from Europe to their homes in Canada. In every village, town and city there have been and will be innumerable gatherings to welcome the young veterans back to take their place in the country's progress.

This flow of young life of the nation back from the experience of war, a great duty carried out with glory to their native land, is bound to have an enriching influence upon the nation. There can scarcely be a person in the whole Dominion who is not influenced directly by the coming home of these youths who have helped to maintain freedom and the way of life of democracy. They have passed through experiences which have been trying and grim and have come out of them with credit to themselves, to the Allied Nations and to their own country.

Now they are back to fill another patriotic duty — to make Canada greater and better and to help her to achieve the highest and noblest that it is possible for a nation to attain to.

Their inspiration they took first of all with them overseas into the inspiring company of the service people and the civilian folk of the United Nations. Inspired by their great cause, they have come back with a high vision of their Dominion's place in democracy. This zeal they pass on to their relatives and friends and it passes into the currency of inspiration of the country at large.

Religion's Place in Life

Protestant denominations in Canada and the United States are planning Religious Education Week September 30th to October 7th., "Character for a Free World" being the theme.

In a comment Justice R. L. Kellock, of the Supreme Court of Canada says "there is no substitute for the Christian standard of right and justice and as the Christian Church is the only agency dedicated to its establishment, it is of the greatest importance that people, old and young, should be intelligent regarding the heritage of the church and have an actual appreciation of its basic tenets. Education is the process that brings this about, and religious education, as secular, is the need, consciously or unconsciously, of every individual."

It is pointed out by President Dr. F. W. Patterson of Acadia University, that the observance "grows out of the conviction that 'the good society' for which we strive in which men shall do justly and love mercy, shall have a religious basis and can come into being only as men walk humbly before God. Other means of promoting the good society are not ignored but with a Christian motivation will prove wholly inadequate. Legislative bars may restrict the freedom of the leopard but cannot change its spots."

"Religious education must begin where all education begins, in the home and churches and Sunday schools are handicapped unless the home supplies the foundations on which they can build. For the essence of a sound education is not the truth that is taught but the spirit that is caught," Dr. Patterson notes. He declared that the observance will be fruitful only as it inspires the home as well as other educational institutions to a ministry of example and instruction that will continue long after Religious Education Week has passed."

Chancellor Gilmour of McMaster University remarks that "as life becomes more complicated religion must also become profounder and more exacting if it is to survive . . . Our religion is the ultimate simplifying formula of our lives. Without a centre in God, life is bound to be fatiguing and confusing and despairing. Complexity is inevitable. There can be no return to the days of Samuel and David. But complexity can be understood and interpreted. For the Christian this interpretation is that "'in Christ all things hold together.'"

B. K. Sandwell, editor-in-chief of "Saturday Night," says that it is well that Canadians along with their American neighbors should devote some of their time during one week in the year to thinking about the importance of religious education to the welfare of their respective nations and adds that "a people which is uneducated in the supremely important subject of man's relationship to the universe, the purpose for which he was created, the obligations that purpose lays upon him, is a people that is illiterate on the most vital of all the matters that concern it."

Having gone through the greatest of wars in history the people may well study their individual and social relationship to religion and to the support which it has been to the justice of the cause in which the nation fought.

Fashions in Friendships

(Christian Science Monitor)

So Generalissimo Franco has suppressed the Falangist-Fascist-Nazi salute, because "circumstances derived from the World War have caused what was a sign of friendliness and cordiality to be wrongly interpreted and gave it a meaning and value entirely different from what it really represents!"

El Caudillo has not misread the signs in concluding that the salute is in disrepute. But he's a bit mistaken about the interpretation. The world well knows that when he imposed the salute by decree back in 1937, it was a sign of friendship and cordiality for those neighbors of his, the Sawdust Caesar and the Paperhanger-turned-dictator. They, too, were making hay while the authoritarian sun shone, and stiff-arm methods made the Fascist salute an appropriate common gesture. It was the high sign for the new low in national regimes.

But fashion has a peculiar habit of switching styles, and straitjacket regimes are decidedly declasse this year. Evidently Franco has heard that the handclasp of free men is replacing the slave salute. But the old style will do for his exit gesture.

Fascism and Gangsterism Alike

(Milwaukee Journal)

The Nazi and Fascist leaders all had mistresses who were the counterparts of American gangster molls. They were supposed to provide the comfort and the relaxation for men who played for the high stakes of ruling the world.

Mussolini's moll died with him. So did Hitler's, if we are to believe the stories that come out of Berlin's last days. Some other of the molls have been rounded up and will appear against their "boy friends" at the Nuernberg trials.

Fascism and gangsterism are alike, even to the molls.

50 YEARS AGO

Sept. 24th., 1895

The 15th. Battalion will parade to the hospital lot this evening and no doubt the usual crowd of people will be there to watch the men drill and listen to the band.

A portion of the river bed is now bearing a thriving crop of weeds. The water has never been so low.

Messrs. Harris & Walton are completing a portable hunting lodge for local deer hunters. They like to be comfortable.

The temperature varied 46 degrees between noon yesterday and seven o'clock this morning.

Mr. W. Flint Jones, former drygoods merchant, is to enter journalism as the editor of the Daily Ontario. The Intelligencer wishes him success in his new field of labor.

EDITOR OF MAPLE

When the Canadian Army was hard-pressed last Autumn and Spring, N.R.M.A. men were sent over as reinforcements, he said, adding: "I believe the feeling was that if they did their stuff they would be accepted as equal member of the army. They did their stuff and it is morally wrong now that the fighting is over to say they should be treated differently."

Should Print Other Side.

The General's action in removing the Maple Leaf Editor came after discussions Thursday and Friday between Gen. Simonds, Maj. Macfarlane and Lt.-Col. C. W. Gilchrist of Saint John, N.B., Canadian Public Relations chief of the British Army of the Rhine.

"I gave him what I considered the other side of the picture and told him he was under an obligation to present those aspects as well as his own personal views in the Maple Leaf", Gen. Simonds said.

"This he refused to do, and further stated he refused to adhere to the principle that balance expression of opinion as opposed to his own personal views should govern the editorial policy of the Maple Leaf. Under these conditions I considered I have no alternative but to order his removal as editor."

In response to Gen. Simonds' request that he publish an editorial giving the "other side of the picture" and cease the differentiation between N.R.M.A. and volunteer personnel, Maj. Macfarlane said he would not authorize such an editorial. He added the matter under discussion was an injustice to which there were not two sides. He said he was willing to publish Gen. Simonds' statement on repatriation in the paper's news columns but Gen. Simonds was not agreeable.

No Alternative.

Calling the editorial shuffle a "clash between personal principle and policy", Col. Gilchrist said he was sorry to see Maj. Macfarlane got but there was no alternative.

"It is clearly stated in the Charter that there shall be a complete editorial taboo on any internal military question which would tend to cause antagonism or set one group against another", he said. "Maj. Macfarlane has strong personal views on repatriation. The editorials in question were published without reference to me. I first read them on return from a conference in London. Maj. Macfarlane was adamant and I must admire him for standing firm on his principles. Nevertheless application of Maple Leaf policy is my first obligation."

Col. Gilchrist said removal of Maj. Macfarlane would be a great loss for the paper "reflected much of his personality".

In Montreal, Defence Minister Abbott said Sunday night he had no statement to make at that time regarding the removal of Maj. Macfarlane. He added he believed Gen. Simonds' statement covered the situation.

PRISONERS GOING

"There were cries and tears, people were shouting and fighting each other. Healthy people and weak people.

"Then I saw fumes coming in from a window. I had to cough very violently. Tears streamed from my eyes and I had a choking sensation in my throat. I could not look at the others, each of us was engrossed only in what was happening to himself.

"At that moment I heard my name called. I had not the strength to answer but I raised my arm. A man took my arms and pulled me out.

"Then Hoessler placed a blanket round me, took me to hospital on a motorcycle. I still have heart trouble quite frequently and headaches.

"I was taken to the political department of the hospital and told that I had been taken out of the gas chamber because my husband was a Polish officer.

"I was then employed as the laundry block leader. Later I was put to cleaning latrines with my own hands. There were no brooms or brushes or any sort of cleaning materials."

Mrs. Litwinska walked along the dock and identified 14 of the accused, including Josef Kramer, S.S. leader at Oswelcim and later at Belsen, and Irma Grese as Nazi personnel who had taken part in the outrages she had described.

Earlier in the course of her evidence Mrs. Litwinska had collapsed and while being led from the court had pointed to Hoessler and cried: "Here is the murderer who is responsible for the deaths of so many."

Hitler Didn't Chew the Rugs

(Minneapolis Tribune)

We don't suppose most people took very seriously the wartime report that Adolf Hitler was so upset he had taken to rug-chewing, but it was good for a laugh in days when we needed all the laughs we could get.

You'll be interested to discover how the tale originated. It seems there's a German slang word, — "Teppichfresser," applied to one who paces back and forth until figuratively and maybe even literally, he wears a path in the rug. The word, translated, means "carpet-eater". A Nazi radio propagandist used the word to impress Germans with Hitler's preoccupation with problems of the war, and an English radio monitor, who lacked either "Sprachgefuhl" or a sense of humor, or both spread to the world the news that the frustrated Adolf had taken to rug-eating.

We publish this footnote in the interest of truth and enlightenment — but reluctantly 'withal, for some chump is sure to write in and say we've disillusioned him about the issues for which the war was fought!

The Pyorrhea Specialist

An instructor in a dental college, recognized as a leader in his field by dentists and physicians alike, participating in a hymposium, held by the local medical and dental societies, cautioned dentists about prescribing diets or dietary supplements for their patients, lest they lay themselves open to the charge of practicing medicine without a licence.

That quibble, coming from a representative member of the profession, indicates what is wrong with American dentistry, in my one-horse country doctor opinion, namely, inferiority complex. For all the pretensions of the dentists they themselves are painfully conscious that, after all, they are not doctors. The remedy for this sad complex is now at hand, but it will take another 10 years or so to begin to show an effect — students who plan to practise dentistry are now required to take the full course in medicine first, and then whatever special or technical training may be further required to qualify the M.D. to practice dentistry. Harvard was the first American college to institute this plan — unquestionably other dental schools will have to moderaize their curricula or fold. In future American dentists will be doctors and no fooling.

One presumptive authority writing on pyorrhea in Vol. 10, The Cyclopedia of Medicine, Surgery and Specialties (Davis Co., '43), becomes carried away by his enthusiasm for the role of "specialist" and oraculates or talks down to us ordinary doctors and dentists thus: "Genuine pyorrhea without a gingival pocket does not exist." Implying you see, that when we ordinary doctors or dentists fool around with what we imagine is pyorrhea the chances are it is not genuine pyorrhea — if you want to be sure you have the genuine thing you had better disregard these doctors and dentists around here and go straight to a specialist.

Gingival pocket, my eye. Any dentist or doctor who knows the difference between pyorrhea and giant hives must see numerous cases of pyorrhea wyithout gingival pocket or pockets, and it is absurd for any "specialist" to say these are not "genuine".

It is only fair to quote the author's statement more fully:

"Genuine pyorrhea without a gingival pocket does not exist. Furthermore, a pyorrhea pocket without pus does not exist. A gingival pocket is, therefore, a necessary accompaniment of pyorrhea. The pocket results as a sequence of alveolar atrophy. It has therefore been said that alveolar atrophy causes pyorrhea. (Alveolar atrophy means wasting of the tooth sockets — bone, gum and all)

But what causes alveolar atrophy? The answer lies in the causes enumerated above. (Hereditary predisposition, such systematic diseases as malnutrition, diabetes, gout, the presence of salivary calculus, trauma by uneven impact of the teeth during mastication, mechanical irritation by overhanging fillings, ill-fitting dental restorations, etc.) The alveolar atrophy is the first stage . . . followed closely by pocket formation and suppuration. (End of quotations)

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Iron

Fourteen year old daughter has been receiving iron shots. Have been told a tablespoonful of champagne night and morning would be better for her than the iron injections. Please give your opinion. (Mrs. R. M. W.)

Answer—No ground for the notion that any sort of alcoholic beverage is beneficial to an anemic individual. Send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Blood and Health".

Epilepsy

Young woman has had epileptic fits, once when I happened to be present, and I was nearly scared to death. Another girl who noticed how scared I was said that if a person is nervous she would develop them herself. (H. N.)

Answer— Fright or "being nervous" has nothing whatever to do with epilepsy, so you need not give it another thought. I have no advice or information on epilepsy —the subject is outside of the province of health, something that demands individual consideration of your own physician.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

There is a common belief that no tomcat has more than two colors; in other words, if a cat has three or more colors it is a tabby.

An Indian reservation established in 1758 at Indian Mills in Burlington County, New Jersey, is supposed to have been the first such reservation within the limits of the United States.

How is the surname of Anne Boleyn pronounced?

"Boleyn," the maiden name of the second wife of Henry VIII and mother of Queen Elizabeth is correctly pronounced "BOOL-in," the first syllable rhyming with "wool." Anne Boleyn was the daughter of Sir Thomas Bullen, and in her time the name was spelled either "Boleyn" or "Bullen." In Shakespeare's "King Henry VIII" the name is spelled "Bullen." The name is spelled "Bullen" on tapestries presented to her by HENRY VIII and still preserved at Hampton Court. The pronunciation is the same for both spellings. Anne was about 39 years old when the King had her beheaded in 1536.

About ninety per cent of all white Persian cats are deaf. In fact the same is true of other white cats that have been bred from white stock. Deafness and albinism are associated in all animals. "Albino," from Latin "albus," white, is the biological term applied to a pigmentless individual of a pigmented species. It is the condition in which the dark pigment is absent and the yellow seems nearly so. The absence of these pigments for some unknown reason, affects unfavorably not only the vision of the animal but the hearing as well. Some cat fanciers say that purebred white Persian cats with two blue eyes are generally stone deaf, while those with one blue eye and one pink eye usually can hear.

Snakes sleep in the sense that they take physiological rest comparable to sleep in mammals, but they do not have eyelids and they cannot wink or close their eyes. The eyes of a snake are protected by immovable sections of the outer skin which permit the eyeballs to move underneath and which are shed periodically with the rest of the epidermis. Just before the reptile sloughs the eyes become dull as if covered by a glossy film, but they become clear and brilliant after the skin is shed.

War's End Brings Rush Of Students to Universities

By FRANK HINDS
(C.P. Staff Writer)

Toronto (CP)—A bumper crop of students, thousands of them just out of uniform, is jamming the corridors of the University of Toronto's registration offices and the corresponding registrars' offices of the four arts colleges.

With an average pre-war university population of 7,500, this year's campus will have to find facilities for at least 10,500, an official spokesman estimated. But it is still impossible to compute what the exact registration will be with the flood of applications being received daily.

No difficulty is anticipated in providing for arts students on the campus, beyond the ever-present problem of housing. But it's a different story in the science courses. To date 900-odd students including 600 ex-servicemen, have applied for admission to first year engineering alone. Only four hundred of these may be accommodated for lectures on the campus and the remainder will be enrolled in the engineering faculty "annex" at Ajax war industry plant near Pickering, Ont.

Ajax Division, with dormitories and classrooms, will become a little engineering school in itself starting January 2, 1946, and housing men in first, and possibly second years.

The faculty of medicine has been split into two courses — one for 150 ex-servicemen who will be given an [illegible] five-year course in medicine and the other for a similar number of civilian students who will take the regular six-year course. The pre-medical course, normally two years, will be telescoped into a one-year course for servicemen. From then on the regular four-year medical course will be taken by both ex-servicemen and civilian students. Restrictions on the size of the medical courses is necessary because Toronto's student hospitals just have not enough patients to provide study for more than 300 students in any one year.

Many Servicewomen Apply.

Even some of the women's courses are being restricted because of the number of ex-servicewomen applying for admission. Occupational and physiotherapy have both been restricted to some extent, but all ex-service personnel wishing to enroll in either course will be accepted.

In the arts courses, commerce and finance is the most popular with returned men. In this connection the university has also provided a special business course for older veterans and for veterans without the qualifications to enter "C and F". The 10-month course is confined to ex-service personnel.

Worst problem of all is that of housing. College residences will be taxed to the limit to take in the maximum number, but the eventual solution can only be found in the co-operation of Toronto home-owners in the university area who are willing to take in students for the school year. The university has been advertising in Toronto's newspapers for rooms for students.

To help the serviceman in his various problems both prior to registration and after his university career begins, the university has stationed a special advisor in the registrar's office to look after veterans' applications. A university advisory bureau will be set up shortly to take care of veterans' problems during their time at university.

Edmonton Boys Learn to Shoot

Edmonton (CP) — A sportsman's dream of an open-air rifle club for boys that would teach them to become marksmen and eliminate the danger of accidents from firearms in and around Edmonton, came true almost overnight. It is the first club of its kind in Canada.

Late in June D. E. C. (Dan) Campbell, former newspaperman and well known Dominion marksman, approached Police Chief Reg Jennings with his plan and asked for financial assistance in organizing a junior rifle association.

Jennings arranged for a grant of $100 and found a natural range within the city limits. Organizing of the Edmonton City Rifle Club started immediately and today, in little over a month, the club has a membership of more than 250 boys ranging in age from 12 to 18.

For a long time city police had received many complaints of wanton discharge of firearms by boys within the city limits and reports of damage to property. This always seemed to happen when small predatory game was scarce and the old standby — telephone and telegraph wire insulators on poles—got the works.

Jennings declared that if any boys were brought before him he was going to "suggest" they join the club but in the last month there hasn't been a single complaint registered.

"It costs the boys nothing," Campbell says, "and they get the best instructions that Edmonton marksmen can give them." Many of the boys have their own rifles, he added, but non-ownership of a rifle does not bar them from membership.

The only epense to the young marksmen is their .22 calibre shells which they can buy through the club.

While on the range instructors are constantly on the job to correct their faults. Range discipline is conducted along the lines of established military range procedure.

On the ranges there are enough targets so that there is no tiresome waiting to get a few shots in. There are 30 targets on the 25-yard range and relays of boys fire 10 shots at a target. The boys usually spend their time in between relays comparing targets and "spotting" for those firing.

Lumber for the targets was provided free of charge and leading Edmonton merchants have offered trophies and prizes for the boys shooting in competition. One of the biggest stores here has offered an inter-city trophy for competition between Edmonton and Calgary—if Calgary organizes a similar club.

All new members in the club start in the tyro class and move up progressively. Their targets are turned in after each relay and are witnessed and dated. The boys will eventually reach the stage where they can enter targets in the Dominion small-bore association and shoot for Dominion championships.

London — (CP) — A bus conductor, H. W. Richardson, just demobbed from the services, said, when asked how he managed to be so polite: "I'm so happy to be back in Civvy Street, I'd give a pound to the first person who could make me lose my temper."

London — (CP) — Heath Row, London's great new civil airport, will be open for traffic in about a year with its runways free to all nations and airlines with which the British government makes operating agreements. American airlines will have 31 of the 38 "gate" positions.

MARKED GASOLINE

1. On and after October 1, 1945, gasoline will no longer be marked for special uses.
2. Marking of gasoline for special uses under the jurisdiction of the Oil Controller for Canada having been discontinued, the tax exemption purchase permit system is thereby ended.
3. Farmers, fishermen, guides and tourist outfitters will be entitled to claim refund of the Provincial Gasoline Tax where applicable. Claims, accompanied by receipted invoices, must be submitted to the Gasoline Tax Branch, Department of Highways, Parliament Buildings, Toronto within six months from date of payment of invoices.
4. A simplified method of assuring prompt payment of refunds, eliminating affidavits for each claim, has been worked out.

As there is no rationing of gasoline in Canada, marked gasoline, under the jurisdiction of the Oil Controller for Canada, has been eliminated, thereby ending the tax exemption purchase permit system.

To meet the desire of everyone to be relieved of wartime restrictions, the Provincial Government has developed a new system as free from controls and difficulties as possible. A simplified refund form has been prepared which eliminates the necessity of an affidavit being taken for each refund claim. This form may be obtained on application to the Gasoline Tax Branch, Department of Highways, Toronto, Ontario.

- The ending of marked gasoline sale removes difficulties made necessary by this wartime control.
- Complaints were made that marked gasoline was detrimental to the equipment in which it was being used.
- Records and reports necessary under the marked gasoline system will no longer be required.
- Extra storage facilities will be unnecessary for the separate storage of graded and marked gasoline with consequent saving to the consumer.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jones, R.R. No. 1, Trenton, wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Olive Helen, to Garnet Ernest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stapley, Stirling, wedding to take place Saturday, October 6, in Lorne Ave., Gospel Hall at 2.30 p.m.

Miss Muriel Hibbard has left for Toronto to attend Victoria College.

Miss Shirley Jackson has gone to Toronto, to attend Library School.

Mr. John Doyle is leaving for Ottawa, to enter the course in medicine at Ottawa University.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold O'Sullivan visited with relatives in the city over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Colling have returned from an extensive trip to Hamilton, Niagara Falls and Western Ontario points.

Mr. John Funnell has left for Toronto, to enter St. Michael's College, University of Toronto.

Pte. William O'Brien, of the Canadian Provost Corps, stationed at Windsor, Ont., spent the weekend at his home on John Street.

Miss Vera Flindall, Gordon St., left this morning for Toronto, where she will enter the course in Occupational Therapy at the University of Toronto.

Mr. Donald Hubble, 3rd of Sidney, left this morning for Toronto, to enter his second year in engineering physics at the University of Toronto.

LAC. J. H. Deschenes, RCAF, and Mrs. Deschenes, of Belleville, visited the Thousand Islands and Niagara Falls, while on their holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reid, Cedar Street, daughter, and daughter-in-law, are holidaying in Toronto, Niagara Falls and Buffalo this week.

On Friday, Sept, 21, a delightful miscellaneous shower was held by Mrs. T. G. Hammett and Miss Dorothy Hammett for Mrs. P. Foley (nee Anna Greatrix). About 35 guests were present. The room was beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers joined to an umbrella on the floor around which the gifts were placed. During the evening, games were played and later Mrs. Foley opened her gifts and thanked her friends for their thoughtfulness. Following this dainty refreshments were served.

A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Ethel Bradshaw, Front of Thurlow, when relatives and friends gathered recently to welcome her eldest son, Staff Sergeant L. E. Bradshaw, recently returned from overseas. The evening was spent in games after which a dainty lunch was served. A younger son Private Ray Bradshaw, expected home on the same draft was detained in England for further army service.

Women's Activities

COLLEGE HILL WOMEN'S GROUP

The September meeting of the Group was held at the home of Mrs. G. Wagg, 67 Lewis Street, with a good attendance. Mrs. Rose, the president, was in the chair.

Mrs. Bird, who is in charge of Sewing activities led a discussion regarding the work which is to be done during the coming months. Mrs. Tebworth, treasurer gave her report which showed a satisfactory balance on hand.

An interesting program of contests was staged by Mrs. Storms and Mrs. Wilder and bountiful refreshments in picnic style, were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

MARMORA CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The September meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart School on Thursday evening, with a good attendance. The meeting opened in the usual manner with the President, Mrs. E. D. O'Connor, in the chair. Correspondence was read and discussed and letters of thanks were read for gifts of fruit, from members who had been ill. The president discussed the selling of tickets on a fur coat to be raffled by the National Council of the C.W.L. A box of used clothing is to be packed for the National War Services Clothing drive, and a committee was appointed to pack the box, and members requested to donate articles. Cheques were presented to Patricia Brady and Michael Forestell, as the prize winners, who tied in their marks in the Entrance examination. Mrs. Rose Johnston gave a splendid report on Red Cross work. Prizes were then awarded to the children, who obtained the highest marks in the examination on Christian doctrine.

Rev. Father Farrell addressed the meeting. He thanked Mrs. Warren for lending her cottage for the June meeting and congratulated the members on their good attendance. He extended his sympathy to those bereaved by the war and urged a quiet readjustment to pre-war times. He also spoke of the atomic bomb and hoped there would be no future wars. He hoped the members would keep up their work in post war time and keep on sending clothing to the needy war victims.

It was decided to hold a bingo on Oct. 8, to purchase the prize to be raffled at the bazaar. The members were asked to each donate three articles to the Fancy work table at the bazaar. A word contest sponsored by Mrs. J. Black, was won by Mrs. Rose Johnston. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies in charge and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

COMING IN very noticeably is the soft look and curved contour. A suit of rose-pink tweed has a shoulder yoke and a softly bloused back controlled by tucks at the waistline in back.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Now The Tanned Skin Goes Mottled

She is now struggling in a sea of beauty worries.

How happy was the nut-brown girl when she stretched upon the silver sand and let the sun turn her into a replica of an Egyptian beauty. She took on a dark bronze exterior, and was she proud of herself! True enough, she looked healthy and husky, and healthy is fashionable. But, what now, lassie?

She who was on the top wave of summer loveliness is now struggling in a sea of beauty worries. The brown velvet skin surface has gone piebald. It is mottled; it is a thing of shreds and patches. Tan does not, like the Arab, pick up its tent in the night and go hence. It shuffles off here and there. It makes itself obnoxious. It is time now to start a battle against it.

Use cream freely. Every night, after the face washing, apply a lotion made by combining equal portions of lemon juice and peroxide. Make it fresh twice a week. Apply with pledgets of cotton, let it dry. In the morning use tepid water, dry, and on with the lotion again. That'll fix the tan.

Even more stubborn are red patches on chest and shoulders caused by sunburn that didn't go brownish. They won't look one bit pretty with the formal. And this is no time for nature to take its course, nature caring nothing at all about the matter.

What must be done is to parboil the reddened skin scales. Moist heat is a bleaching treatment. There is, in fact, no such thing as a bleach. The color of the skin surface cannot be changed; discolored scales are removed; new ones take their place. The epidermal coat is in a constant state of decay and renewal. It comes and goes. Bleaches merely hurry up the process.

To condition the upper portion of torso that has been subjected to strong sunlight, make it a practice to have a prolonged soapy scrubbing every day. To get yourself a nice, new, white hide you will have to use a brush with firm heavy bristles. Before doing that, lie in the tub — have the water fairly hot — and soak for at least ten minutes.

Use plenty of soap. Don't spare elbow grease. Brush and brush and brush. Then dip down into the hot water and soak some more.

Follow with an alternating hot and cold shower. Friction the body surface with a coarse turkish towel that takes hold like the pangs of a guilty conscience.

At bedtime, after you have creamed your complexion, anoint chest, neck and shoulders with the emollient.

How to Announce an Adoption

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband and I have just adopted a 2-weeks-old baby boy. We have many relatives and friends here and in different parts of the country, and would like to send them announcements. Is it possible to buy this kind of announcement already printed? If not, will you please tell me the proper form to use?

C.S.

I have never seen a printed form for the announcements of an adoption, and I am fairly sure that you will not be able to find one. However, you may send a formal announcement in the third person, or write notes to your relatives and intimate friends and send the formal announcements to others.

The formal form may read:

Mr. and Mrs. John Sheridan have the happiness to announce the adoption of Robert
aged one month

(or whatever the baby's age is when the adoption papers have been signed).

You may have this form engraved or printed on white cards, but it is entirely correct, and more personal, to write these words (spaced as indicated above) on rather large-size white cards, or on the inside pages of Informals, if you have these.

If you prefer to write notes (and naturally in some cases they will be more appropriate), you might write something like this:

Dear Betty:

John and I want you and Tom to know that we have just adopted a baby. His name is Robert, he is a month old, and we pray that we will make him as happy to be with us as we are to have him in our lives and in our hearts.

We hope you'll be able to come to see him soon . . . he's a fine, sturdy young man, and we are mighty proud of him.

Affectionately.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have recently been married, and avidly read everything you write about the correct use of one's married name, both formal and informal. But yesterday I was perplexed, when I had to introduce myself at a party, as to whether I should have said "Mrs. Smith" or "Mrs. Arthur Smith" or "Alice Smith." Which form is correct for a self introduction?

Alice

A married woman introduces herself as "Mrs. Smith" or "Mrs. Arthur Smith", so that a stranger may know the correct title by which to address her. (To the stranger "Alice Smith" would mean that the title is "Miss.")

A Visitor . . . Popular or Unpopular?

By Mrs. Beeckman

If you are the kind of guest who isn't invited again, you will be very wise to do a penetrating X-ray job on yourself to find out why. This self-examination, if honest and complete, may be an important turning-point in your life — turning constructively and joyously toward a more graceful design for your thinking and living and therefore toward your greater popularity as a person and as a guest.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wise Not to Marry One Man While You Think of Another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 26 years old and have been out occasionally with an older man. He has asked me to marry him. He could give me a beautiful home and almost everything that I'd want, but I do not love him Here's why:

When I was 18, just out of high school, I started going with a young man who was studying to be a doctor. We had a wonderful friendship which lasted three years. Then it seemed to me that our going together might interfere with his studies and that it would be many years before we could marry.

Our families both agreed that we'd better part, which we did. That was five years ago. He has made good and is practising medicine now, but has never made any attempt to see me, though we live in the same city. And I know he is not attentive to any other girl. He always seems to be on my mind, and I don't think it would be honest to say "yes" to one man when I still love another.

Hesitant

You're very wise not to marry one man while you continue to think of another. Why don't you write a friendly note to the doctor and say that you'd like to see him again? I'm sure he will still remember you, and it will be a good way to find out whether you care as much for him as you think you do.

One Reason for Quitting—Thought Engagement Rings Too Expensive

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For two years I went out with a young man who is now in the Navy. He's 22 years of age and I'm 23. He wanted me to become engaged to him last December but I thought we'd better wait because his mother seemed opposed to my religion, and because I thought engagement rings were too expensive. When he went into the Navy we corresponded. In a few months my letters started dropping off, and he wrote that we'd better break off. He said he still loved me, but intended to stay in the Navy after the war.

The death of his mother changed all his plans about staying in the Navy and he wanted to start going with me again. But I could not make up my mind. We're writing to each other now, and he keeps saying how anxious he is for the war to end so he can come home. I know I still like him, but am

Undecided

Your heart must be your guide in deciding whether you marry this young sailor or not. Your writing fewer letters to him for reasons stated, and his reply that he still loved you but thought you had better break up, was just lovers'-quarrel stuff and showed you were both hurt and were trying to get even with each other.

The way you react when you see him again will be the real test of your feelings. Marriage as you have observed is not all love-making and honeymoon. As well as love, there must be respect and confidence. If you have these sentiments toward the young man it would be well to marry him. If you doubt it would be better for both if you parted.

Girl Gossiped About Husband — Wants to Make Dates With Wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a woman of 20, married, and have two children. My husband is in the Army. A certain girl came to my house and told me my husband had been out with a married woman when he was home on furlough. I have faith in my husband and don't think he'd do such a thing, but it really made me angry.

This girl is now trying to get me to go out with her on dates, but I love my husband very much and won't do it. Do you think I should ask my husband if this gossip is true, or should I go and have good times and forget my husband? He is now overseas.

(Mrs.) P.B.

You are very sensible to refuse to go on dates with a mischief-making girl who gossiped about your husband. Don't you know there are certain types of people who enjoy spreading unfounded rumors?

Didn't Marry for Love First Time—Now He's in Love With Younger Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a young man of 23 years, and the girl I'm in love with is five or six years younger. Her brothers say I'm not in love with her and that it's only my imagination.

I've been married four years, but didn't marry for love. I had to marry the girl because she was going to have a baby. And now we're going to get a divorce. My wife says she never loved me and wants to be free.

The girl I'm really in love with is the first love of my life and I don't know whether she loves me or not. She told my brother she'll go with me after I get a divorce. How can I find out whether she cares for me.?

J.P.S.

As you're not divorced, and the girl has said she will not go with you until after you're free, why don't you give all parties concerned more time? You've had one unhappy marriage — why run the risk of making another with a girl who is little more than a child. And there is the question of your son who is not responsible for all the discordant elements that have entered into his young life. He's really the one who has my sympathy.

You'll probably think I'm an old grouch, but I'd suggest that at 23 years of age you wait a little while before marrying a second time.

Address of Organization Called "Alcoholics Anonymous"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Would it be possible for you to publish in your column the address of "Alcoholics Anonymous?" We would indeed be very grateful to you.

(Mrs.) J. W.

I'm very glad to give you the address where you should write to get the location of the Chapter nearest your home. The address of "Alcoholics Anonymous" is Box 658, Church Street Annex, New York, N.Y.

The Marry Go Round

Caution! Watch the Signal Lights!

With so many men returning from the jungles and the far-off lands to the heart of civilization and women, it is only fair to warn the eager and susceptible young warrior of some of the things he has forgotten about the femmes.

Even in ordinary times, a man is very apt to get his signals mixed, and make the wrong turn or pursue the wrong girl; but men who have been away from our women for a few months or years are more impressionable and therefore a little slower about understanding them than ever.

For instance a man will shy and run timidly from some guileless girl who hasn't the slightest designs on him, and dash blithely into the arms of the girl who is determinedly trying to bag him. He doesn't understand that most women have to be read backward like a Chinese scroll.

A girl who admits frankly that marriage, a home and a husband are the Big Ambitions of her life always frightens him. Yet he is perfectly safe with a girl like that. She is not trying to put anything across; she is just being honest because she is innocent. He is probably the last man in the world she would think of marrying.

But when he meets a girl who sweetly disclaims any interest in marrying, and firmly declares that she will never let marriage cramp her life or interfere with her career, that is his dangerous moment. By that gesture, she chloroforms his caution, reassures all his doubts and strips him of his defences. To him she looks exactly like a green light!

He nonchalantly steps on the accelerator, and doesn't notice where he's going until he finds himself getting a ticket (marriage-certificate) from the justice of the peace. Then he knows it's "life." He merely got his signals mixed! Too bad!

When a girl admits that her tastes are luxurious, and that she's looking for a husband who can supply her with sables and ermines and all the things that go with a pent-house, a man with a modest salary shudders and gets very cold feet.

But he is foolishly alarmed. No girl with two brain-cells would talk that way if she had designs on him. She'd soft-pedal the luxury-stuff, and probably begin scolding him for his extravagance, and urging him to save his money and buy government bonds. Or she'd begin singing the charms of the fifty-fifty marriage, and solemnly vowing that she'd never give up her work.

Many a man who has listened eagerly to this line has soon found himself shopping for perambulators, mowing the lawn, and paying the rent.

Some men are afraid of the romantic girl who clings and hangs around a man's neck; yet no man is in much real danger from that type. For even if she's serious, few men fall for any girl so obvious. But when a girl insists on being "just a good pal," it's time for him to be cautious and put on the brakes.

It's all a matter of understanding women, and knowing their signals; and this takes a little experience with lights and shadows of the feminine code.

Enjoyable Bath Picks You Up

A sprinkling of lavender-scented water-softener makes a luxurious bath

By HELEN FOLLETT

WOMEN who don't enjoy their baths are the jump-in-and-leap-outers. They don't take time to relax and enjoy the exhilarating effects of a good scrubbing. There's nothing like it to set one up. When you feel that your feathers are trailing, and you haven't even strength to heave a sigh, fill the tub with warm water, get in and relax.

The moist heat will take the curly-cues out of your tangled nerves and, if you soak long enough, tired muscles will enjoy release from tension and the wear and tear of the day.

Freshly-Washed Look

Demon bathers carry a nice, freshly-washed look. Some of them take a soapy scrubbing at bedtime, have a quick, cold shower in the morning. Certainly every self-respecting individual should have a lathering and scouring once a day.

The human hide carries a film of sebaceous oil and deposits left by perspiration, not to mention atmospheric dust picked up by the neatest among us. Unless this debris is cleared away the skin does not function normally as an organ of elimination.

Soap and Elbow Grease

Be generous with soap and elbow grease. Use a heavy brush. A wash cloth is anything but effective. Suitable for the face cleaning, of course, but not for the body surface. It's nice to add bath salts because they soften the water, make the bath more cleansing. Friction with a tonic afterwards is pleasant and refreshing.

If you like a perfumed bath lotion, be particular about your selection. Heavy odors, just aren't right, somehow. Those most suitable are notably pine, eau de cologne, lemon verbena and lavender because they do not offend. It's luxurious to have soap, powder and bath salts of the same scent.

Every bath should finish, of course, with the application of a deodorant or deterrent in the arm pits. Don't take a chance of meeting up with old enemy B. O.

Fashion Flashes

IN SHORT, it seems to be the short, fur-bordered coat that is taking over. It's nice, too, seeing that so many of these coats are designed to be worn loose over frocks and belted, tunic fashion, for wear with a matching skirt.

CLEVER COMBINATIONS are evident in some of the new ensembles. Grand for travel, for everyday wear, is a casual frock in aqua and black striped wool jersey, made with softly tied bow neckline and easy skirt. With it a loose, full-length coat of the aqua with revers and cuff facings of the striped fabric.

Police Balance Theory Against Eyewitness Story

Toronto, Sept. 24 (CP) — Police today balanced theory against eyewitness testimony in the mysterious shooting of Barbara Ellis, in hospital after a bullet believed fired from a revolver passed through the calves of both legs as the 18-year-old girl sat on a living-room couch in her east-end home.

Mrs. Jessie Lowe, landlady of the three-room Gerrard St. apartment, told police that "immediately after the wounding occurred late Saturday she saw a soldier wearing a red flash on his shoulder run out the front door.

Officers described as "ridiculous and impossible" the suggestion that the shot was fired by someone standing in the front hall. They said the furniture arrangement, position of the girl and the direction from which the bullet struck indicate the bullet could have been fired from the back kitchen or from a short, narrow corridor leading from the kitchen to living room.

One police theory was that a revolver, dropped either in the corridor or in the kitchen, may have accidentally discharged but Mrs. Lowe and her 19-year-old son, William, denied there was any weapon in the house.

Blond and cheerful, Miss Ellis said from her hospital bed she had never seen a weapon in the house and was inclined to accept her landlady's [illegible]

The girl said she was chatting with two girl friends when she felt a "stabbing pain" and slipped off the couch. She heard a "ringing noise," she said, but didn't see anyone enter or leave the room.

Lila Kimber, 19, one of the girl friends, was standing in line with the front hall. "I don't know how the bullet missed me," she said.

War Veteran On Dispensary Staff At Lattimer's

Veteran of six years active service with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, Mr. H. E. Little, formerly of Brighton but now of Wellington has joined the dispensary staff of the Lattimer Drug Store. He assumed his new duties on Friday last.

Mr. Little graduated from the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto, in 1931. He married the former Margaret Steen of Wellington, and has a son 13 years of age. He expects to move to Belleville as soon as housing facilities permit.

He joined the R.C.A.M.C. on Sept. 14, 1939 in Toronto and went overseas in Sept. 1941. He remained in England with his unit No. 2 Canadian Casualty Clearing Station until July, 1944 when he went to France and landed on the flaming beachheads of Normandy.

His unit was one of the foremost of its kind near the front lines, receiving wounded some forty minutes after they were hit. He went through the hell of Caen while another major operation in which he participated was the crossing of the Seine River. He saw action in several minor engagements in France and finally arrived in Belgium where he took part in the battle for the Schelde Estuary. Other actions were at Tilberg and Nijmegen.

His unit was the first C.C.S. to cross the Rhine and it continued up through Germany. At Meppen, the unit captured an entire German hospital and utilized its facilities and staff of doctors, nurses and orderlies to look after German wounded. The unit finally arrived at Leer, Germany on the day the "Cease Fire" sounded.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King travelled to Frelighsburg, Que., Saturday to attend a birthday for Adelard Godbout, Quebec Liberal leader, who is 53 today.

He made the trip amid reports that Mr. Godbout would be offered a federal post but Mr. King seemed to answer these reports by saying at Frelighsburg that Mr. Godbout was the right man to have in Quebec and "we want him there."

Not Offered Position

In addition, Mr. Godbout himself said when questioned that he had not been offered a federal position.

Other reports were that the Liberal leader wished to start party organization in Quebec. Mr. Godbout has said that he expected Premier Duplessis who defeated the Liberal administration at the Quebec polls a year ago, to call a new election this fall.

Should another election be called it was expected Mr. Godbout would accept support from the Federal Liberals as he did in 1939 when his party defeated Mr. Duplessis' Union Nationale government.

And at Frelighsburg Mr. King indicated Mr. Godbout would get this support, saying "we will see to it that he is returned there (in Quebec) in the next election.

Wholesale Arrest Of Jap 'Big Shots' Ordered By U.S.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Sept. 24. (AP) — Wholesale arrest of the big shots who directed Japan's whole war effort has been ordered by the United States Government in a move to smash Japanese militarism and ultra-nationalism.

Along with this, the Government has directed that if democratically-minded Japanese start armed revolt against their overlords, Gen. MacArthur's occupation forces are not to interfere—except to protect themselves and serve other occupation aims.

The action on arrests was disclosed Saturday night along with White House release of a four-weeks-old statement of Japanese occupation policy formulated by the State, War and Navy Departments. Approved by President Truman, the instructions were sent to Gen. MacArthur by the joint Chiefs of Staff before the formal surrender of Japan, Sept. first.

The declaration reveals for the first time that the United States is supreme in directing Japanese occupation policy, although where possible actions are agreed upon with the other Allied powers beforehand.

Not an Order.

The outline itself has not the force of an order, but is for the instruction and guidance of Gen. MacArthur. However, it was learned that essential points have been set forth in specific orders to the general.

On the point of the cleanup of Japanese leaders it is expected here that a wave of arrests will be forthcoming in Japan during the next few days, based on a second Allied war criminal list.

The statement was made public by the White House as a result of recent controversy in Washington over who is formulating occupation policy and what it is.

The declaration calls for sweeping charges in Japan's economic, political and social systems — changes which include proposed "dissolution" of the great family monopolies which dominated Japan's trade and industry.

The general is also instructed to remove and exclude from public office or positions of private responsibility Japan's militarists and ultra-nationalists.

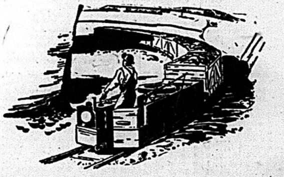
Why should a paint company operate MINES?



So you can be sure of uniform quality of Glidden Paints

Take lead for instance. Glidden White lead, vastly improved in our research laboratories, has been famous for years in the paint industry for its uniform quality, whiteness and covering ability. We also operate our own barytes mine to supply the raw material for the lithopone used in certain Glidden paints as well as by many other paint manufacturers for the same purpose. It is also used in the manufacture of linoleum, oil cloth, rubber and paper.

Glidden operates its own ilmenite mine from which is produced titanium dioxide, the whitest and best hiding pigment known. "Micalith G", an exclusive Glidden mining project, has many distinctive features in paint formulation, such as improving durability, moisture resistance and anti-chalking qualities.

The Glidden Company is also one of the large producers of dry colors on the continent. These are used not only for paint but also for linoleum and printing inks. Many of the bank notes used today are printed with inks made from Glidden colors.

Our research work with many kinds of metals has also led to other new developments. We make vast quantities of cuprous oxide for use in anti-fouling ship bottom paints. We make iron powder and copper powder for the production of intricate gears and parts.

Research in all these many branches contributes a great deal to the development of better paints for your floors, walls, woodwork, furniture, etc. So when you buy paint, varnish or lacquer you can be sure of the highest quality if you look for the name "Glidden".

Thornbury Wins First Game In O.B.A. Int. 'A' Playdowns Defeating Bata 3-2 in 12 Frames

Contest Was Pitcher's Duel Between Smith and Garten, Errors Figured in Scoring

In one of the most brilliant hurling duels seen in these parts for years, "Smoky" Smith, former Collingwood - Guelph southpaw, bested Jack Garten, in a thrilling twelve-inning battle at Batawa on Saturday afternoon, and led his Thornbury nine to a 3-2 victory in the first game of the Ontario Intermediate "B" Baseball semi-final series. The teams play the second game in Thornbury on Wednesday.

It was a game in which costly errors accounted for four of the five runs scored and victory for the visitors.

For twelve innings Garten and Smith threw their fast curves and fireballs past opposing batters with the regularity of clockwork. Smith struck out 19 Shoemakers and walked none. Garten allowed only 5 hits, whiffed an even dozen and issued the only walk of the game to the first batter to oppose him. The only extra base clout of the game came in the 5th when Walt. Gerow drove a double to centre field.

Erred Four Times

The Shoemen erred four times and each miscue was costly. The visitors bobbled three times and these misplays were equally valuable to the Shoemakers. Bata got ten hits off Smith, three of them bunched in the 8th when Haffey, Solmes and Muffitt beat out singles in succession, for one run. Smith settled down and retired the next trio in order.

What looked like the break of the game came in the second when Peacock, Bata centrefielder, dropped Smith's high fly to centre. Crysler struck out and May lifted a high fly to centre. Goldsmith drove a ringing single thru short and Smith galloped home. That was all until the 8th and it looked like curtains for the Batamen, until Smith was nicked for three hits and the tying run.

The visitors went out in front in their half of the ninth, when Muffitt, Bata second baseman erred on Cesar's grounder. He went to second on a passed ball and scored on Fawcett's hit to centre field. Garten tossed Lougheed out and struck out the next two for the side.

In the bottom half of the 9th, Peacock drove out a single to right field and went to second stealing. Garten got on when the Thornbury catcher miscued on a passed ball, and Peacock came in with the tying run. "Smoky" struck out the next three batters.

Paved Way for Defeat

The teams battled scorelessly until the last half of the twelfth when Haffey, Bata third baseman, paved the way to defeat with his bobble of May's grounder. Crysler was safe on a fielder's choice as the Bata infield failed to nip May at second. May got to third on Goldsmith's infield out, and came home when Haines, Thornbury catcher "pushed" a weak grounder to the shortstop, who committed a gross error of omission by nailing the batter at first for the second out instead of trying to nip the runner at the plate. The next batter grounded out and that was that.

The fielding and pitching can be judged perhaps by the box score which states the catcher and first basemen of the Thornbury team accounted for 31 of the 36 putouts, while the same position players for Bata were responsible for 29 retirements.

WESTCLOX WIN TITLE

Peterboro, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Peterboro Westclox girls defeated Brantford Cockshutt Cardinals 7-4 Saturday to capture the Provincial Women's Softball Union intermediate championship in two straight games.

Timely hitting by Peterboro and loose defensive play by Brantford marked the difference between the teams, both of whom used two pitchers. Blanche Laballister and Nellie Jordbro pitched for Brantford, J. Withers and Isobel Bullock for Peterboro.

TIGERS ONLY NEED TWO MORE WINS TO CLINCH FLAG

Detroit Has Four More Games to Play While the Senators Are Finished

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

Detroit Tigers returned to their annoying habit of backing to the American League pennant Sunday when they suffered a humiliating 5-0 drubbing by the St. Louis Browns.

However, the Tigers now need only a single victory in their remaining four games to clinch a tie, or two triumphs to insure the flag, as the wobbly Washington Senators could do no better than split with the last-place Philadelphia Athletics.

The Tigers meet the Indians twice and the Browns two more times, while the Senators concluded their 1945 schedule with Sunday's twin-bill.

Nels Potter was superb against Detroit, in registering his eighth straight triumph, and his 15th of the year. He handcuffed the Tigers with two hits and gave up but two walks. Paul (Dizzy) Trout, making his fifth appearance in the last nine games for Detroit, was the loser.

Fail to Hold Lead.

The Senators failed to hold a 3-0 lead, then with the score tied at 3-3, lost the game 4-3 in the third overtime frame when outfielder George Binks lost an easy fly ball in the sun to set the stage for the winning Philadelphia tally.

Marino Pieretti celebrated his 24th birthday by annexing the second game for Washington 4-2. Doubles by George Case and George Myatt in the eighth brought in the deciding marker.

The National League struggle remained unchanged, as both contenders, the leading Chicago Cubs and runner-up St. Louis Cards won their games. The Cubs humbled Pittsburgh 7-3 in the first game of a scheduled double-header. The second game was called off on account of darkness. Andy Pafko's grand-slam homer in the third inning climaxed a six-run outburst against Elwood (Preacher) Roe and sewed up the contest for the Windy City outfit. Hank Wyse gained his 21st triumph.

Cards Closing Ground.

The Cards hammered four Cincinnati pitchers for a free-scoring 9-6 victory over the Reds to remain 1 1-2 games behind the Cubs with six games remaining to seven for the Cubs.

New York Yankees spoiled Dave Ferriss' day at Boston by defeating the Red Sox Rookie Ace 2-1 in the nightcap of a double header, after the Bosox had won the opener 6-5 in 14-innings. The second game was limited to five innings by darkness.

Bobby Feller gained his fifth win of the year since his release from the Navy by pitching Cleveland to an 8-2 victory over Chicago White Sox.

Brooklyn divided a double-header with Philadelphia, winning the opener 9-0 and dropping the afterpiece, 4-3. Hal Gregg notched his second one-hitter of the year in the opening game win over the Phillies. A second-inning single by Rene Monteguudo ruined his no-hit effort.

GRIMM PLACES CUB OUTFIELD WITH THE BEST

By JIMMY JORDAN

Chicago, Sept. 24. —(AP) — When and if the Chicago Cubs swing into World Series competition, American League fans are going to have something to marvel about when they see Charlie Grimm's outfield of Bill Nicholson, Andy Pafko and Harry (Peanuts) Lowery swing into action.

Probably more so than a well-balanced and fast infield, that trio of fly-chasers is more responsible for the Cubs pennant drive than any other single factor.

True, the Chicagoans have had good pitching, in fact have had the best pitching staff in the league with such a first line as Claude Passeau, Hank Wyse, Hank Borowy, Ray Prim and Paul Derringer, and with Paul Erickson, Hy Vandenberg, Bob Chipman, Lon Warnecke and Ray Starr to handle not only relief duties but an occasional starting assignment.

But Charles Grimm places a lot of emphasis on his outfield. He rates those three ahead of the great Cub outfield of 1929—Riggs, Stephenson, Kiki Cuyler and Hack Wilson—on the defensive side.

"They cover as much ground, and they whip the ball in quicker with deadlier throws. That's important. It cuts off many extra base hits", Grimm says.

They cut off many extra runs, too. All season long players were left stranded on third base when one of the three took a fly ball for a second out and then with a fast, accurate throw prevented the runner from scoring after the catch. And others have been nipped at the plate trying to score on that play, too.

Outfield Veteran.

Nicholson, of course, is the veteran of the outfield. But this World Series will be the first for all three. Bill came to the Cubs in 1939 and has been playing right field since. While he has been in a batting slump this year, he led the league both in runs batted in and homers in 1943, and runs scored, runs batted in and homers last year.

Lowery came up from Los Angeles in 1943, and played both second base and shortstop before he finally wound up in centrefield. Then he went into the service, came back this year to find Pafko planted in the middle garden, and has been playing left field since.

Pafko has been rated by many as the best centrefielder in both leagues this year—his second in the big time. The 23-year-old Wisconsin native, as Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates put it, "steals hitters blind", by pulling down line drives or coming in to take Texas League flies that are base hits in almost any game. His speed afoot, his fast, accurate throws from the outfield and his batting, all combined, make up one of the most potent factors in the rise of the Cubs from fourth place last year to first this year.

"That's an outfield any manager would rate first", Manager Del Bisonette of the Boston Braves said on his last trip here. It would put almost any team at least two notches higher in the league."

And that, combined with a veteran infield and a top pitching staff, is what Grimm will rely upon to bring him his third pennant and first world title.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 24. (AP)—The guy who was talking might have had a peeve against the United States amateur Athletic Union. A former staunch supporter of that body, he had become involved in a more commercialized branch of "amateur" sport and had been tossed gently from its councils, landing on his left ear . . . but there was some point to his remarks. . . ."Baseball", he said, "is waking up to the fact it has to interest kids in the game and is spending a lot of money on it. . Other sports are putting a lot into development, but what has the A.A.U. done? . . . You'll notice that every runner in the indoor winter meets was developed in high schools and colleges . . . . Why not take a 10 per cent cut in the receipts of the Big Meets— The promoters get it all, anyway —and spend the money developing Athletes?"'

Pick 'Em Yourself.

Al Schoendienst, Cardinals— brought up this year as the latest and best thing in shortstops, Red found Marty Marion had a mortgage on the job so he switched to left field. Switching comes easy to him; he was a right-hander but became a switch hitter to overcome the handicap of an injured eye. . .Peanuts Lowrey, Cubs— was signed at a Los Angeles tryout school for $1, which was a fair investment, since peanuts was the Cubs' Sparkplug in a July drive from fifth to first place. . . Hank Greenberg, Tigers— when Slugger Hank came out of the Army, July 1, the Tigers came out of the Doldrums. They nearly went back in when Hank sprained an ankle. He is the big man of the Tiger pennant drive . . . George Case, Senators—one of the real speedboys of baseball and his .300 batting average as lead-off man gives him plenty of chances to steal.

OAKWOOD INDIANS ARGOS, BEACHES WINNERS ON SAT.

Toronto Heads O.R.F.U. With Win Over Hamilton, While Argos Win Last-Minute Game From Ottawa

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Twenty-six thousand fans evenly distributed at league games in Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton today recalled a "Hogtown Saturday" for football marked by Toronto triumphs in all three scheduled games.

The Queen City conquests, achieved in tensely-fought fashion, left Oakwood Indians in undisputed leadership of the Ontario Rugby Football Union with two victories and no defeats following a 6-4 verdict over Hamilton Wildcats.

Similarly, Argonauts held sway in the Interprovincial Union on the basis of a last-ditch, 11-9 decision against Ottawa Rough Riders in the Big Four's first game since 1941. Balmy Beach Tip Tops, successful 24-11 at Varsity Stadium in their debut against Ottawa Trojans, slipped into joint tenure of the O.R.F.U.'s second slot beside Wildcats.

The Argo-Rider clash was typically tooth-and-nail. The team coach Ross Trimble admits, is short on reserve strength apparently proved it, blowing a 9-1 lead in the fourth quarter when Royal Copeland hit Billy Myers with 2 touchdown - gleaning forward passes.

Myers, 21-year-old Saint John, N.B., native, seized the payoff toss fewer than three minutes from the end and streaked 20 yards to decide the dramatic battle.

Youth Has Fling

Youth had its fling in Toronto as well. An unheralded outside wing from coach Ted Reeve's string of substitutes — 22-year-old Dick Gibb from Hamilton — tipped victory scales for Beaches by setting up his team's first touchdown and personally counting the second on a wild 50-yard run.

Moments before the half-time whistle, Gibb filtered into an Ottawa extension, tipped a long lateral downfield and outpaced all pursuers to fall on the bounding ball behind the goal posts. It was Gibb's first game since he joined the R.C.A.F. in 1942.

Trojans could not cut down the Beaches' lead despite two touchdowns by playing coach Arnie McWatters. Beaches, scoring a touchdown a quarter credited major scores to Gibb, Stu Scott, Hugh Cuddie and Tommy Ford, three converts to Scott and a single to Bobby Porter.

At Hamilton the veterans took over. Three singles by Fred Kijek — possibly the best kicker in Ontario — and a placement by Annis Stukus sent Indians ahead in the first half 6-0 before Joe Capriotti lubricated his accurate passing arm. He began clicking in the fourth quarter and George (Scotty) Wright capitalized for a placement, but a possible equalizing placement in the ebbing moments went to the deadline for a single.

Montreal Hornets and Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four were not scheduled Saturday, but Tigers roared ominously in a 21-1 humiliation of the O.R.F.U. Rockets under floodlights at Windsor. Touchdowns by Dick Groom, Mike Hedgewick and Rudy Manorek marked the rout.

COSSA To Get Under Way

Tonight at the Collegiate Institute, at 7.30 to be exact, officials of the C.O.S.S.A. will sit in solemn conclave to iron out the wrinkles for the fall and winter sports terms. Les Shiels, president, will be in the chair with the faithful Tom Moffitt, holding down the secretarial chair. It is the annual get-together of the association and officers for the coming year will be elected.

Discussion will be held on rugby schedules and whether the situation will permit junior or senior entries or both. The six-man idea also the twelve-man system will come under fire at the meeting.

In addition, basketball and hockey prospects in the various schools will come under discussion. In the southern group of the COSSA are BCI; St. Michaels; Ontario School for the Deaf and Albert College, as well as Picton, Napanee and Trenton. The northern group is comprised of Marmora, Stirling, Madoc and Tweed.

All interested are urged to be present.

A Fine Athlete

Tucked away in the corner of a page in a Glasgow, Scotland newspaper a few weeks ago was a "squib" reminding Scottish readers that in 1917, James Haggerty won a mile race run at Hampden Park, Glasgow, in the fast time of 4 minutes, 20 and three-fifths seconds . . .

Jim, or "Scotty" as he is more familiarly known now resides in this city, and it was with a lot of exertion and persuasion that Jim would talk of his former track activities. However he did answer a few questions and some research provided the rest.

In his first year with the Eglinton Harriers he won the 5-mile cross country; and 2 and 6 mile road races; the ½-mile at Ardrosson, the mile at Saltoats; the 2 mile jaunt at Dumbarton and the mile held in Celtic Park, Glasgow.

His second year with the Harriers saw him annex the 7 mile cross country run for the Scottish title; the 14 miles walking handicap and in the 1½ miles steeplechase at Celtic Park he finished first. He has competed four times in this special Scottish event finishing with a first, two thirds and a second.

Later he won the Irvine Harriers 7 mile cross country championship race; the one mile open at Hampden Park; the two mile jaunt at the Kilmarnock F. C. Sports Day and the Scottish Western District Cross Country title over a seven mile course. He was the runner-up in the Scottish National ten-mile race.

'Scotty' has put on some weight since those hectic days but he still retains a love for what his idea is the king of outdoor sports.

Splinters

Byron Nelson, topflight golfer in the divot-digging fraternity approached the desk in a hotel in Spokane shortly before a tournament began and told the clerk:— "I'm Byron Nelson, have you a reservation for me?." "I'm afraid not" replied the clerk, "all our rooms are reserved for golfers." . . . "Wonder" says N'Yawk columnist, what Larry McPhail's reaction was to the feat of Hank Borowy, his gift to the Cubs, in achieving his ninth National League victory the other night. The quiet gentlemanly Jerseyite needs only one more triumph to match Iron Man McGinnity's exploit of being the only man ever to win a total of 20 games in both leagues in the same season." . . .

Tough One to Lose

It must have been heartbreaking to Jackie Garten, clever Bata southpaw to lose that 3-2 decision to Thornbury on Saturday afternoon. He allowed just five hits, but his mates bobbled at times when miscues meant runs. At that the game produced a fine exhibition of southpaw hurling by two brilliant pitchers who are alike as two peas. The control was perfect as evidenced in but one walk in twelve innings. "Smoky" Smith's fireball was working to perfection and he was topflight in the clutches. But it was one of those games when victory hinged on the breaks, and the breaks this time came with the errors. Had not Peacock dropped that fly in the second; Solmes thrown to 1st in the 12th; Haines, Thornbury pitcher let two passed balls get by him, etc, that game might have gone on indefinitely. As it was, Bata got the only earned run of the pastime . . Haines, the Thornbury receiver, is a colorful bloke . . . At least on the sunny side of 50 years, he wears a railroad engineer's cap instead of the conventional lid of the baseball player . . . He disdains spikes; has never worn them in 35 years of baseballing and doesn't intend to . . . He sports ordinary shoes with high leather heels . . . An unorthodox batter, he chokes the club high up the handle and pokes at the ball like a spear-wielding fisherman at a big carp. And, he seldom misses. He "pushes" the apple; seldom past the infield, never swings and seldom, very seldom strikes out; he had four infield outs and a pop to the pitcher out of five on Saturday . . . His last poke however was paydirt in the 12th. With one out and a runner on third, he "pushed" the pill between third and short and galloped for the bag . . . And there came the prize error of the game. The third sacker fielded the ball perfectly and elected to throw Haines out at 1st instead of nipping the winning run at the plate . . .

All Even.

Up thar in Dresden where every man and his dog takes their baseball secondary only to taxes and meals, the Belleville Juniors ran into a smart right-hander named Holmes, who hogtied them for nine innings and sent them home with an 8-1 defeat to even the junior baseball championship series at one game each. . .The St. Louis men could do little or nothing with Holmes' slants, getting only four blows from his delivery. . .The Belleville pitching was anything but the kind seen in championship games, with Bunton, starting pitcher, who was yanked in the fifth, passing no less than eight Dresden batters. . .Fitzpatrick who relieved him was not much better, being nicked for four runs in the remainder of the game and allowing four consecutive singles in his first inning on the mound. . . . .Dresden played far better baseball than they played here and appear to have age and experience on the local youngsters who will have to be at peak form to bring the title here. . . .At time of writing there was no word of the venue of the third and deciding game.

NEWARK BEARS AND MONTREAL IN PLAYOFFS

(By The Canadian Press.)

The stage is set for the International League play-offs' final struggle between the pennant-winning Montreal Royals and the runners-up Newark Bears, with the first game going under the lights in Montreal tonight.

The Royals squeezed into the last act by downing the pesty Baltimore Orioles 4-1 Sunday to take the best-of-seven semi-final round 4-3. The Bears have been marking time since they ousted third-place Toronto, 4-2, in the other bracket last week.

The Montreal club, which sailed to the championship by six games over Newark, had to make it the hard way against Baltimore. The Royals were hanging on the ropes when they returned to Montreal for the last two semi-final games, with Baltimore enjoying a 3-2 stranglehold in decisions.

But a 1-0 victory Saturday tied it up and Sunday's clincher sent a capacity throng of 22,500 into happy hysterics.

The stars of Montreal's Sunday punch were Johnny Gabbard and Roland Gladu. With Montreal holding a 2-0 lead at the start of the sixth, Jean Pierre Roy, the Royals' 25-game winner, was clipped for singles by Frank Skaff and Sherm Lollar with one out. The righthander tightened up and walked Ab Wright and Joe Mellendick forcing in a Baltimore run. Roy was replaced by Gabbard and the reliefer promptly put down the threat by forcing Jim Tropea to hit into a double play.

Gladu, a big gun in the Royals' attack all season, walloped a two-run homer in the eighth to sew up the game.

DR. LEN HALL

EARL McCREADY

That cheerful little fellow from California who bears the moniker of Dr. Len Hall, and who regards mayhem as something that is necessary to ultimate victory in the wrestling ring, is matched with Earl "Moose" McCready in the main bout at the Hume Arena on Wednesday next. "There'll be no disqualification this time," the stocky Californian growled. "I'm not going to do any fooling and this bout will end for all time the McCready threat." But the "Moose" is smiling. He regards the Hall howls as something to be taken in stride and that the outcome of Wednesday's battle is already assured. Hall is the rugged aggressive type of mat villain who stops at nothing to get a fall. McCready, as is well known, is the clean, scientific brand of wrestler and is ready to show the Phighting Pharmacist that it will take more than the outside-the-ring boasts to pin his big shoulders to the mat. On the same card is John "Fingers" Katan, who will take on Walter Sirois, while Bunny Dunlop will show his wares against Irish Tom Collins. Advance sale at Cook's Tobacco Shop. Doors open 8.15 p.m.; first bout at 8.45.

LESSON NO. 789

Clever defence in bridge is instinctive with some players. Few of us have that knack to a high degree. Most of us must work it out by the sweat of our brain muscles.

When south was declarer at four spades, west made the gambling opening lead of his singleton diamond. His partner in the east could read it as a singleton. Declarer could, too.

So, when east plucked that first trick with diamond ace, he knew west would trump a diamond return. But this and his two aces were not enough to spike the contract. Another trick must be found.

If west held the heart king and could take a trick with it, the fourth and defeating trick was there. But west must cash that heart king before south has a chance to dump hearts on dummy diamonds.

If east returns a diamond at once, west will trump. After that it will be too late to develop a heart trick for west. The east ace of trump will be forced out before hearts can be led twice.

Because any return from west except a trump will be taken by south who will then lead a trump. East could go with the ace and then lead a heart. But south would hop up with the ace and take out trumps to make the diamonds good for sluffs.

Therefore, before returning a diamond, east must lead a heart. South goes with the heart ace to shoot a trump. East runs with the ace of spades and comes back a diamond.

South is unable to stop that diamond and west ruffs it with his remaining trump. He now lays down his heart king and pulls in the setting trick. Because opponents have thus taken four tricks; two aces, a trumped diamond, and the king of hearts.

It is merely a matter of timing.

Local Junior O.B.A. Entry Defeated by Dresden 8-1 In Second Game of Finals

Date and Locale of Third and Deciding Game Not Yet Set

By STAFF REPORTER

It's all even in the Junior O.B.A. provincial playdowns between Belleville and Dresden today as the result of the western boys showing a complete reversal of form Saturday when on their home diamond they poled out a decisive 8-1 victory over the locals.

The series for the provincial championship now stands at one game each with the date and the locale of the third and deciding game still to be decided.

On the day's play the Dresden boys easily deserved their win despite the fact their first three runs were gifts by the local club. Eight walks in the first six innings by Bunten gave the homesters their opportunity to go into the lead and they made no mistake while the locals were seemingly handcuffed at the plate by Roy Holmes, sturdy righthander, who set them down with but four singles.

Bob Bunton was the choice for hurling duty by Coach "Speedy" St. Louis, but it just wasn't Bunton's day. A high mound seemingly put him slightly off balance and wildness repeatedly got him into trouble. In the sixth after seven hits shoved four runs across the plate he was relieved by Fitzpatrick, who allowed seven hits and four more runs for the balance of the game.

Entirely Different Team.

Dresden were an entirely different team from which the locals defeated here last Monday by a 9-3 count. On their home diamond they showed more confidence and gave their pitcher superb support. Holmes walked but one man, and that intentionally, allowed but four singles and set an even dozen of the locals down at the plate. Bunton walked eight and struck out seven while Fitzpatrick got three on strikes.

Three walks in the first inning netted the Dresden boys their first counter, the first one doing the damage as a throw to second by Soules on an attempted steal went to centre field and the runner came all the way around.

A hit and three successive walks in the fourth was good enough for Dresden's second counter, while a single and a double in the fifth saw the homesters go further ahead. Belleville scored their first and only run of the game in the fourth when Bush beat out an infield hit, went to second on an infield out and scored on Fitzpatrick's single.

The balloon really blew up in the sixth as the Dresden boys suddenly found Bunton's hurling to their liking. A screaming double and triple sent the local hurler to the showers, while Fitzpatrick was treated but little better as four consecutive singles sent in three more runs. A home run by Cook in the ninth completed the homesters' scoring.

Over Five Millions Bet on 8 Races At Belmont Track

(By The Associated Press)

A crowd of 49,614 turf fans wagered a record total of $5,016,745 on the eight-race card at Belmont Park Saturday, the handle erasing the former mark of $4,304,616 at the same New York track, August 16. The crowd also set a new record in a total wager of $210,082 for betting on the Daily Double and handed in $404,230 for bets on the steeplechase for a new high in that type of racing.

Altogether, at nine tracks in the United States Saturday there was an aggregate attendance of 16,652 turf followers and the money that turned over in the betting figured at $13,947,692.

Toronto Croftons lost the women's championship in the National Softball tournament at Cleveland yesterday when they bowed 5-0 to the Jax of New Orleans in the final tussle. The Canadian girls reached the pay-off tilt with a 1-0 decision against Rex Hanovers of Gastonia, N.C., earlier in the day.

Toronto Tip Tops were ousted from the men's division of the Cleveland Softball Carnival Saturday night when they were blanked 1-0 by the Flint, Mich., Orangemen in a 19-inning marathon. Pitcher Charlie Justice of the Orangemen, a colored boy, held the Toppers to two hits and fanned 27 batters.

Snubbed by the Russian, who withdrew without explanation, "British, American and French troops staged a "Little Olympics" at the Berlin Olympic Stadium which the Americans won by an overwhelming score. A crowd of 15,000 saw them pile up 94 points to 43 for the British forces and 25 for the French.

London smashed out a total of 16 safeties off two Toronto McCormick pitchers and took the first game in a best-in-three O.B.A. final at London Saturday night when they defeated the Toronto team 20-5.

St. Catharines Athletics gained a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Lacrosse Association finals Saturday at St. Catharines by defeating Brampton-Lakeshore Combines 14-7 behind tight goaltending by Bill Whittaker.

Meaford defeated Ridgetown 3-2 Saturday at Ridgetown in the second game of the Ontario Softball Association Intermediate C second-round play-offs. Ridgetown won the first game of the best-of -three set which will be decided at Stratford Wednesday.

The Women's World record for the 400-metre run was broken at Paris, France, yesterday when Claire Bressoles of France, covered the distance in 61.9 seconds, cutting one second from the old mark held by Anna Larsen of Sweden.

In United States College Football Saturday, Wisconsin and Great Lakes Naval training station engaged in a scoreless tie. On the other hand Duke walloped South Carolina 60-0 while Minnesota trounced Missouri 34-0.

Bryon Nelson of Toledo, Mr. Golf himself, came out on top once more in the Spokane, Wash., open yesterday when he carded an eight-below-par 64 in the final round for a 66 aggregate, seven strokes better than Harold McSpaden in second place.

An outsider in the betting, Bull Reigh defeated last year's winner, Paperboy, by a neck in the $50,000 American handicap at Hollywood Park Saturday to take $42,600 first money.

Although Russ Johnson, ace hurler of Hamilton Beavers, last year's Ontario Senior Softball Champions, fanned 18 batters and allowed only four hits, his team was eliminated from the Provincial playdown Saturday when Windsor copped the second straight game of their series 3-2.

Nick Libett of Stratford Kroehlers pitched one-hit ball Saturday at the Classic City to enable his team to register a 3-1 victory against Hamilton Harvesters in the first of the playdown series for the Ontario Intermediate "A" title.

The Hamilton Ont., Crosby's defeated the McGee's 9-1 at London Saturday night to take the second straight game of their O.A.S.A. Senior "B" series, in which the visitors accumulated 12 hits including three home runs.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 22

"I don't see how I ever endured it," she said one Saturday night to Bruce. "Gadding from luncheons to cocktail parties, from movies to dances. No wonder all my friends joined something as soon as possible. They were bored to death."

"You're not bored any more-" Folly smiled.

"I haven't time. You are the only contact with that other life I seem to need."

He put his hand over hers.

"I'm that guy you met in a blackout, remember?"

Folly nodded. Could she ever forget the shock of finding him so different than her picture of him? But as he held her hand she recalled, too, the magnetic force in his clasp. He had driven all fear from her mind. She would always feel safe with Bruce.

"Don't ever leave me," she heard herself saying.

"Darling," he whispered, adding after a moment, "It's a miracle I haven't been sent before this. By the way, Folly, your sister is leaving any time now. Her captain left over a week ago."

They were sitting in the corner of a crowded night club as oblivious to the noise and laughter about them as if they had been alone.

Gone Two Months

"I want to see her before she goes, Bruce, but in a way I dread it. If I go home they'll want me to stay and I'm happier as I am. I like my shabby room in the boarding house. It is the first time in my life I've had absolute privacy."

"No one has any right to say where you should live," Bruce agreed. "But I do think your sisters should know where you are. It's been almost two months now."

Folly sighed. "It's been fun, hasn't it? Knowing we have a date every weekend; having you telephone me. I've really learned to appreciate you, Bruce."

He said simply, "I love you, Folly! I've always loved you. From the very first."

He spoke without expectation of a reply. From the profound depths of an emotion which had never faltered and suddenly in that moment all her defenses against him crumpled. Instead of a freckle-faced, sandy haired soldier, Folly saw the man she had always wanted.

What did it matter that he was neither tall nor handsome when spiritually and mentally he was her mate? How blind she had been not to realize that true worth of a devotion which as he had told her long ago loved in spite of her faults? His good natured features, his blue eyes and merry generous mouth seemed infinitely dear to her.

Without waiting for him to ask her again she said, "I love you too, Bruce."

The smile he gave her then was one she would never forget.

Plan to Marry

"I've been thinking you did, sweetheart! But I wasn't sure if you knew it yet."

"Do you still want me to marry you?" she asked.

"Will you, Folly?"

"Yes! I suppose it isn't very pratcical of us but I can go on with my work."

Bruce did not seem to be thinking about that part of it. "I've a furlough coming up," he said excitedly. "If you can marry me then I'll take you to Santa Barbara to mee my parents."

As simply as that it was settled. Many marriages were being made now with even less preparation, Folly reminded herself. With far less knowledge of each other. During those weeks when she had been alienated from her sisters she had become intimately acquainted with Bruce.

Happy With Bruce.

She knew his fine sense of honor, his chivalry and sweetness. There was a dependability about him. You knew that no matter what happened Bruce would never let you down. But more than any other argument was the fact that she felt happy with him. Falling in love had been like waking from a long restless sleep to clearer vision. Little by little Bruce had become necessary to her. Almost unconsciously she had begun to seek his approval. Not just to be loved in spite of her faults but to correct those weaknesses so that he could admire her.

This was not the mad infatuation she had felt at times for Hilton nor the deliberate attempt to better her condition which had made her consent to marry Eric. This was as sane and wholesome as a summer breeze. No wild wind of stormy passion but the kind of loyal sunny understanding which would grow with the years they lived together.

"I can't believe it yet," Bruce said later as he kissed her goodnight. "Do you want to sleep on it and give me your answer tomorrow?"

"It's true, darling!" She added smiling, "You see this is Jane Anne speaking and we Tuckers are too stubborn to change our minds."

Since she would be working again on Monday Folly decided to make her appearance at home the next day. Taking the suggestion of Bruce she telephoned first. Chan answered, becoming so excited at the sound of her voice he could scarcely speak he finally managed to say, "You coming home, Missee?"

"Yes," she replied. "Please tell the girls that I'll be there before noon."

"I tell them." he promised.

Solved Her Problem.

For the first time Folly realized what her sudden disappearance must have meant to him. Yet by doing so she had solved her problem. She had been pampered too long. Waited on and adored. If she hadn't left when she did she would never have felt the necessity of going to work. Remembering the things Hilton had said to her which seemed so cruel at the time she had to admit they had been true. Strange how one's point of view could be so completely changed in less than two months.

As she walked toward the house on Washington Street she found her heart warming toward all of them. She could see Chan watching her from the drawing room window as she climbed the steep flight of steps. Before she could ring the door was open. The smile on the old man's face stretched from ear to ear as he said, "Your sisters are upstairs, Missee Folly."

But Marta was already running down the stairs crying, "Folly, darling" with tears of welcome rolling down her cheeks. Hazel was close behind. Folly found herself crying too.

"I couldn't let you go without seeing you again," Folly said as Hazel kissed her.

"I hoped you wouldn't," Hazel answered. "But how did you know about it?"

"Bruce told me. I've been seeing him every weak."

"Bruce?" both sisters repeated. "But we've seen him too and he's never even mentioned you."

"He couldn't," Folly confessed tossing her hat on a chair and seating herself on Marta's bed. "I just happened to run into him and we made an agreement. I was to write and tell you I was all right if he would not tell you where I was."

The two older girls exchanged glances. So Bruce had been responsible for the note which had reassured them.

"I'm sorry you felt you had to run away," Marta began. "If it hadn't been for Hilton of course you wouldn't. He had no right to talk to you as he did."

"Hilton was right," Folly surprised them by saying. "What I needed more than anything else was a job. Well, I have one. I've been working in a defense plant making parachutes. And I like it."

"You look as if you did," Hazel said. "I've never seen you look so happy."

"I've another reason for that," Folly admitted. "What would you think if I told you I am going to marry Bruce?"

The light in Marta's eyes, the approval on Hazels face spoke for themselves.

"Bruce is a grand person," Marta said. "But I never thought you'd realize it."

"I've realized a lot of things the past two months," Folly replied. "I wouldn't go back for anything. When I think how bored I used to be. How absolutely unnecessary I felt. I don't see how either of you endured me."

"We happen to love you," Hazel reminded her. "Even if at times you were what Hilton called a spoiled brat."

At this second mention of Hilton's name Folly cried, "Where is Grandpa? I'd like to see him."

Bruce Calls.

"He hasn't been around much lately," Hazel answered. "We never see him except at dinner."

"Will he be here today then?"

"I suppose so," Marta said indifferently but the color in her cheeks was deepening. To think how she had treated Hilton when everything Folly was saying proved that he had been right. No wonder he had suggested moving. She wondered now why he hadn't done so.

In the midst of the babble of conversation which followed the telephone rang and Chan bellowed as he used to before Folly had taught him to come upstairs, "Missee Folly, your soldier boy is calling."

"My soldier boy," she thought as she ran down the stairs. "It used to make me furious when anyone said that and now it is true."

"Changed your mind yet!" Bruce asked anxiously.

"No, have you?"

Hilton Forgiven.

"I guess I don't have to answer that. But this may be a shock to you. My furlough is coming up next weekend. Will that be too soon for you."

Folly replied staunchly, "Not if I can get time off."

"Suppose you can't?"

"Then I'll take it anyway," she promised.

"Look, darling. I'm coming over. Will you stay there until I arrive?"

Folly said she would and turned to see Hilton standing in the doorway of his room. His glance in her direction was uncertain. Should he leave or had she forgiven him? Folly smiled and called, "Hi ya Grandpa!" which settled their relationship for all time.

"How are you, Folly?" Hilton cried taking her hand. "Are you feeling as wonderful as you look?"

"Never felt better. And you?"

"Oh, I'm fine," he assured her but his eyes evaded hers.

"You look tired," Folly said frankly. "What have you been doing? Burning the candle at both ends?"

This was so near the truth that Hilton grinned.

"Never mind about me. Tell me about yourself."

While they were talking dinner was announced and the other two girls started down the stairs. Marta's quick glance at Hilton was a plea for forgiveness but he did not see it. He had learned now to expect nothing from her.

All during dinner the four of them laughed and talked without Hilton and Marta exchanging a direct word or look. It was Hazel's plans they were discussing. Hazel had her orders to be packed and ready to leave at any moment for an unknown destination.

A Gay Party.

"Why don't you stay here until I go?" Hazel said to Folly. "It can't be more than a few days."

"I'm leaving myself at the end of the week," Folly told them. "Bruce is having his furlough then."

"So soon?" Marta cried while Hilton said, "So you're going to marry your soldier after all?"

"If he'll have me," Folly retorted.

On the surface it was very gay and merry with Chan opening a bottle of Grandpa Tucker's cherished sparkling burgundy. Bruce arrived in time to drink a toast to his future bride and one to Hazel. Underneath were the shadows of future partings but no one mentioned them.

Toronto, Sept. 24 —(CP)— Maj. William Jones of suburban New Toronto — first British officer to contact Marshal Tito after being dropped by parachute behind enemy lines in 1943 — received a decoration today from the Yugoslav government.

Notice of the award was sent by Dr. L. Y. Leonpic, Yugoslavia's ambassador in London. It is known as "Order of Services Rendered to People, First Class, High Merit Order."

Maj. Jones, who won the Distinguished Conduct Medal with Bar in the First Great War, went overseas to join the R.A.F. as an instructor early in the second war. Transferred to the army on a "special mission," he was dropped by parachute in the mountains of Yugoslavia and was on his own for some time before contacting Marshal Tito's forces.

Since then, he has been British liaison officer for Yugoslavia.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 24 — (CP) — Trading expanded to new high figures for the year and at 1 p.m. the turnover was 1,925,000 shares. The Rouyn Township stocks featured the trade, helped by the announcement that an important find had been made on the Eldona property.

Eldona traded more than 400,000 shares and advanced 40 cents or more to around 1.73. The adjoining property, Donalda, gained 20 cents, Senator added 12 cents, Bagamac 6 and other golds showing gains on smaller volume included Aumaque, O'Brien, Frobisher, Nib Yellowknife, Pamour, Macassa and Upper Canada.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 24 —(AP)— Modest rising tendencies persisted for selected stocks in today's market although many leaders were unable to surmount exceptionally light selling.

Declines of fractions to a point or so were in the majority near the fourth hour.

Supported were Eastern Air Lines, at a 1945 peak; Du Pont, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Lehigh Coal and Navigation, North American and Kennecott.

Gains of ¼ each were recorded at mid-day for Distillers Seagrams and Dome Mines. McIntyre was off ¾.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 24 (CP)—Cattle steady to 25 cents lower, hogs unsettled and other classes unchanged. Buyers claimed cold stores were filled up and had little space for fresh arrivals.

Good quality steers weighed in 11-11.75. Heifers 6-10. Good butcher cows 8.50-9. Good bulls 8-9.

In calves, suckers 10-14, grassers and drinkers 6-9.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, September 24 —(CP) —Cattle trade was dull up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. A few early sales were at steady prices but later bids were 25 to 50 cents cwt. lower on beef cattle. Sheep were 50 cents higher. Veal calves were firm. Lambs were steady. No price was established for hogs.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 5,700, calves 1,100, hogs 600, sheep and lambs 3,000. Unsold from last week were 200 head of cattle. Fresh receipts included 1,900 head of Western cattle.

DEMANDS EVACUATION

Alexandria, Egypt, Sept. 24 — (Reuters) — Evacuation of Egypt by British forces and unity for Egypt and Anglo-Egyptian Soudan was demanded in a communique issued by the Egyptian government yesterday.

CHINESE GEOGRAPHY

China is divided into 28 provinces.

Details for Welcoming Regt. To This City Are Announced

Lt.-Col. B. C. Donnan, chairman of the general committee, announced that the locale of the reviewing stand has been changed from in front of the County Buildings on Pinnacle Street, to a point across the street in front of the Salvation Army Citadel. This will afford the thousands of spectators, who, it is expected will throng the terraces of the County Buildings grounds, a better view of the march-past and of the taking of the salute by Brigadier Howard Graham, D.S.O., and Bar.

Rations for 800 Available.

Arrangements have been made with officials of Military District No. 3 at Kingston, whereby rations for 800 men will be available. The troops will be fed and refreshed, buffet style, from tables set up in the interior of the Armouries. A regimental aid post, with available ambulances will be positioned in the office of Dr. Russell Scott, Campbell Street.

It is expected that some 300 "Originals" of the First Battalion will be on hand to welcome their old buddies. These former Hasty Pees, all of whom will wear uniform, will meet at the Armouries 90 minutes before the time of arrival and will parade to the C.N.R. Station, 30 minutes prior to the time the regiment detrains.

The "repats" will take up a position inside a large enclosed area at the station from which the general public will be barred until the regiment has detrained and formed up in parade order.

Route of March

The route of march, subject to change, will be from the C.N.R. station, down to Front Street, south on Front to Victoria Avenue; east on Victoria to Pinnacle and south on Pinnacle past the reviewing stand to Campbell, then west on Campbell to Front Street and south on Front to Bridge, east on that street to the Armouries where the regiment will be officially welcomed and fed.

The General Committee has suggested to the general public, which it is believed, will throng the city in unprecedented numbers, to bring along lunches, as hotels and restaurants of the city will be unable to cope with the heavy demands.

The names of Lieut.-Col. B. C. Sisler, commanding officer of the Argyll Light Infantry (T) and Captain S. A. Sword, officer commanding the 34th (R) Field Battery R.C.A., have been added to the General Committee.

Major Clifford Broad to Greet H & P. E. Regt. at Halifax

Major Clifford Broad, Belleville, one of the originals of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has been selected to represent the district and will officially greet the regiment when it lands in Halifax at a date to be announced, Lt.-Col. B. C. Donnan, chairman of the District Reception Committee, stated today. It is expected that the date of arrival of the unit will be announced within the next day or so.

Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy, well known R.S.M. of the First "Hasty Pees" will go to Montreal and meet the regiment there before it proceeds on its way to Belleville and home.

Major Broad, who was selected to lead the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment contingent to the Pacific, will confer with the commanding officer and his staff of the regiment regarding the details of the general reception planned here on the day of arrival.

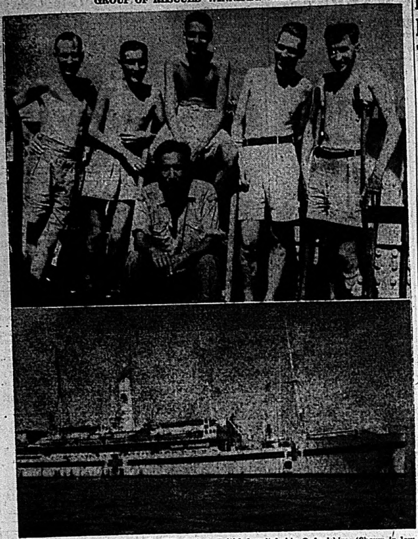
GROUP OF RESCUED WINNIPEG GRENADIERS



Despite torture, starvation and filth during their almost four years in Jap prison camps, these six members of the Winnipeg Grenadiers give out with wide smiles during their trip from Hong Kong to Manila, where they prepare for the best part of the journey home. Erosion of Campus Report Referred To 1946 Board

William H. Finkle gave notice at the Board of Education meeting that he would move at the next meeting of the Board that a committee composed of the Chairman of the Board, chairman of Public Schools, chairman of finance and the Administrator survey the educational accommodation of the city, from the viewpoint of future requirements and report the advisability of securing control now of land, that may be necessary for future public school purposes.

The report on the erosion of the campus presented to the Board, was referred to the 1946 Board for consideration, when drawing up the budget.

The offer of the Belleville Ministerial Association to continue their work with Grades VI and VII was accepted with appreciation by the Board while a resolution was adopted requiring the presentation of a birth certificate for pupils applying for admission to the public school kindergartens.

Minimum Salary Adopted

The Board also adopted a minimum salary of $1,200 per annum for public school teachers, effective September 1. 1945. This action was taken pursuant to legislation enacted by the Ontario Government setting this minimum salary for elementary schools in this province.

Subsequent to the announcement of a new schedule of school radio broadcasts, which are scheduled to begin Tuesday, October 9, the Board directed that a suitable radio be purchased for the Queen Victoria School, when such an article is available. Direction was also given regarding the reinstatement and salary of Messrs. H. R. Frink and J. M. Cousins, public school teachers now on active service with the Canadian Army.

Proposals Approved

The night school proposals re the Vocational School of Principal Currie as outlined in Saturday's edition were approved by the Board, also the admissions of pre-vocational pupils. It also approved the texts contained in the principals Collegiate report.

The chairman of the Property Committee, W. J. Harrison and the Administrator were empowered to take any action regarding the insulation of the boiler, and an electric pump at the Queen Alexandra School.

The report of the cadet expenditures and grants for the year showed disbursements of $560 and grants received, $421.50.

The Board requested the secretary to write to K. J. Colling newspaperman who has "covered the meetings" for some time, expressing its regret at his absence and extending every good wish for a speedy recovery.

It also expressed the desire that the principals of the schools arrange to be present at the next Board meeting, with new members on the teaching staffs.

Three Families Left Homeless

Port Robinson, Ont., Sept. 24—(CP) — Three families were compelled to make a hasty exit from an apartment house Friday night when flames gutted the interior. Port Robinson is near Welland.

The occupants, 19 people, lost must of their furniture and clothing in addition to considerable cash and war bonds.

Damage to the building was estimated at $3,000. Fire brigades from Welland, Thorold township and Thorold South fought the fire.

"Mighty Mo" Rated Most Potent Ship

Washington—Japanese surrender parties, coming aboard the superdreadnought Missouri in Tokyo Bay, saw what the United States Navy proudly calls "the most formidable craft afloat." This colossus of the sea, dubbed "Mighty Mo" by its crew, is the last word in super naval construction, says the National Geographic Society. It has been with the fleet only 10 months.

But those were busy months, and the Japanese have often felt the Missouri's terrific wallop. Joining the Pacific Fleet in November, 1944, and the Third Fleet and the mythical Fifth Fleet in January, 1945, the Missouri was part of the force which made the first carrier raids on Tokyo. Its thunderous 16-inch guns helped blast a path for Marines invading Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

For two months the Missouri protected carriers of Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Task Force 58 in mounting raids on the Japanese home islands. On VE-Day it was detached and returned to an advance base for refitting as Admiral F. Halsey's flagship.

Struck Once

The Missouri has been struck only once, on April 11, by a suicide plane, with no casualties and little damage.

This naval giant is a study in superlatives. Fourth, and probably last, of the Iowa class of super battleships, the Missouri displaces nearly 53,000 tons when fully loaded. Its over-all length is 860 feet; beam, 108 feet. A speed of over 30 knots gives it claim to being "the fastest battleship in the world." Nine 16-inch guns and formidable lighter armament make it probably the most heavily-gunned ship afloat. Its ponderous, yet wieldy, size makes it, next to the solid earth itself, the most stable gun mount in the world for those 16-inch rifles, each of which can hurl a ton of steel and explosives 20 miles with deadly accuracy.

Statistics on the Missouri almost defy imagination. Costing nearly $100,000,000, its construction required about 4,000,000 man-days of work. In building the ship, 300 miles of electric cable, 15 miles of manila and wire rope, over 1,000,000 rivets, more than 4,000,000 feet of welding, 90 miles of piping, 15,000 valves, and 900 electric motors were used or installed.

The ship's electrical plant would be capable of providing electrical energy for the total industrial and civilian demands of a city the size of Sante Fe, N. M. One hundred and seventy-five tons of blueprint paper were used in plans for the Missouri. About 156 tons of paint was applied to protect its surface, and at the launching almost 50 tons of special greases coated the ways.

The present Missouri is the 3rd United States battleship to bear that name. In addition, during the Civil War, the Confederate States built an ironclad steam ram, named for the "show me" State.

The first Missouri was one of the Navy's early steam paddle-wheel ships. Commissioned in 1842, the vessel was destroyed the next year by a disastrous fire in the harbor of Gibraltar. The second Missouri was a first-class battleship of 12,500 tons, commissioned in December, 1903. It rendered valuable service in World War I, and was scrapped in 1923 according to the terms of the Washington Naval Treaty.

President Truman and his family have a personal interest in the present Missouri. His daughter, Mary Margaret, launched the ship at the Brooklyn Navy Yard in January, 1944. A nephew of Mr. Truman serves on the ship as a first-class seaman. Mr. Truman, then a Senator, was the principal speaker at the launching ceremonies.

FRIENDSHIP MEANS A HELPING HAND

"Behold ... the harvest", said Calvert 300 years ago

EARLY in the 17th Century, Calvert, famous English statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, pioneered mutual understanding between England and America by establishing colonies in Newfoundland and Maryland.

It was truly written of this great pioneer: "On Anglo-American relations, Calvert was the best informed man in the Old World."

Calvert said to his colonists three centuries ago: "Behold... the harvest!" A greater harvest of his vision is today's close partnership between Britain and the United States.

The Future of the World Depends on Friendship

It is our birthright as Canadians to foster the friendship between England and the United States for the benefit of world security.

Close neighbour of America, key member of the British Commonwealth, we are the friend of both, the link that joins them in common understanding. We of Canada have an important responsibility in the preservation of this great partnership.

Montreal Shoppers Anxious as Dealers Close Meat Shops

Elsewhere in Canada Move To Spread Strike Eased

(By The Canadian Press.)

Montrealers, beset by almost mass closing of butcher shops and, in some instances, grocery stores as well, today watched anxiously this expression of protest against meat rationing while elsewhere throughout Canada the move to spread the strike movement eased.

However, latest reports indicated at least some butcher shops closed in the following cities and towns: Edmonton, Camrose and Lethbridge, Alta., Victoria and other Vancouver Island centres; in Nova Scotia towns of Springhill, Parrsboro, Pugwash, Oxford and Collingwood. It is meatless Tuesday in all Canadian hotels and restaurants, and in those centres the majority of residents will join in its observance because butchers have locked shop doors.

There was no suggestion from outside the Montreal area that butchers felt any more at ease about a system of rationing they have proclaimed as being bound in red tape. But at meetings last night in Toronto, Saint John and Hamilton they decided to hold in abeyance, possibly to Oct. 1, their decision to close up shops.

Montreal felt the main impact of the shop closings. There gangs of butchers roamed through the streets, forcing fellow dealers to close stores. Not only the meat section of chain stores, but entire establishments were closed.

Enlist Aid of Dealers

More than 1,000 Montreal butchers at a meeting last night decided to continue their strike against the present system of meat rationing. Claiming to represent the views of 100,000 Montreal consumers, they said they would enlist the aid of other dealers in their fight.

But from one quarter came an expression of disapproval. The Quebec provincial executive of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada said in a statement issued last night at Bagotville, Que., that it was convinced the protest strike in Montreal "is not, at this moment, the practical and constructive solution to this thorny question".

May Give Lead

Halifax-Dartmouth dealers will decide tonight what action, if any, they will take. They were among the first in Canada to threaten strike action to protest against rationing. Their decision is expected to give the lead to many other butchers in Nova Scotia.

Meanwhile in Ottawa Finance Minister Ilsley said in the House of Commons Canada should not become a "quitter nation" by refusing to shoulder her share of the consequences of the war. After telling the Commons that Canada has undertaken to export 310,000,000 pounds of meat in the last four months of this year, he said she should see the job through to the end. That job, he asserted, would not be finished as long as there was hunger and starvation in Europe.

Montreal, Sept. 25 —(CP)— More than 1,000 Montreal butchers decided at a meeting here last night to carry into a second day their strike in protest against the government's present system of meat rationing, and to enlist the support of other meat dealers in their move.

Meanwhile, violence threatened to break out in various parts of the city yesterday as gangs, reported 100 strong, roamed about the streets compelling retail dealers, by intimidation, to stop the sale of meat and in many cases to close their doors. By late afternoon, almost butcher shops in the northend, and in suburban Verdun and Outremont, were closed plus a few stores in the westend.

A number of chain stores which had planned to remain open, reached an agreement early in the day to close their meat counters, but some of these later were ordered to lock their doors.

Groups of men went through Bonsecours Market, and several smaller markets in scattered parts of the city, and ordered all meat dealers to shut down.

"They were nice about it," commented S. Morante, head of a wholesale meat distributing firm, "but I suppose if anyone refused, they might have become tough."

Special arrangements were reported being planned by the Prices Board to see that merchants who open their doors today obtain sufficient quantities of meat to go around.

At last night's meeting, attended by more than 1,000 French, English and Jewish butchers, several speakers said that rationing was not necessary.

"Ottawa is trying to help sell a few more head of cattle abroad at the cost of starving us at home," one butcher said, adding that livestock production in Denmark and England had increased this year.

Varying Views On Statement Of Mr. Ilsley

Ottawa, Sept. 25—(CP)—Leaders of opposition groups in the Commons had varying views last night on Finance Minister Ilsley's Commons statement on meat rationing in which he outlined the storage and transportation facilities and discussed the necessity for rationing. They were interviewed by The Canadian Press after Mr. Ilsley finished speaking.

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, said the statement indicated the necessity for rationing. Solon Low, Social Credit leader, suggested alternatives to rationing should be explored.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader commented:

"The public has waited a long time for this statement and I'm sure they will read it with a great deal of interest."

Mr. Low said he personally favored Canada giving all possible help to the rehabilitation of European countries but he questioned whether alternatives to rationing had been fully exposed.

MINISTERS SWING INTO ACTION ON MEAT RATIONING

Ilsley Claims Canada Should Not Become "Quitter Nation" In Outlining Reasons

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Sept. 25 (CP)—With Agriculture Minister Gardiner stressing the production side and Finance Minister Ilsley reviewing statistics, the government yesterday swung its front bench members into the Throne Speech debate on the question of meat rationing.

Arguments as put forward by the two ministers were:

1. That from both humanitarian and economic considerations Canada should assist in feeding Europe.

2. That the present meat supply does not permit increased shipments without rationing to reduce home consumption.

3. That meat production can not be increased at the farm level because there is not enough grain to feed more livestock.

Although the war is over as far as the shooting goes, Canada should not become a "quitter nation" and refuse to shoulder her share of the consequences of war, said Mr. Ilsley while outlining the reasons for re-introduction of meat rationing.

After saying that Canada has undertaken to export 310,000,000 pounds of meat in the last four months of this year, he said Canada should see the job through to the end. That job would not be finished so long as there was hunger and starvation in Europe.

Gardiner Replies.

Mr. Gardiner, replying directly to opposition criticism that if rationing was necessary government policies which permitted a

German General Staff Abolished, Sweeping Allied Decree Issued

Berlin, Sept. 25. (Reuters)—A proclamation issued today by the Allied Control Commission gave the Allies sweeping control over German life, including her relations for other countries, and decreed abolition of the German General staff.

It also indicated the Germans may in the future be required to pay for the cost of the occupation.

The proclamation, drawn up at a meeting of the Commission last Thursday, announced that all military formations and organizations, including the General Staff, will be abolished. It prohibited any group which might develop military characteristics, or which is designed to carry on the German military tradition, under whatever guise.

It contained these provisions:

The Allied representatives will regulate all matters affecting Germany's relations with other countries. No foreign commitments of any kind will be entered into by German authorities or Nationals without Allied sanction.

All German diplomatic and consular officials abroad are recalled, and their property and archives are at the disposal of the Allies.

The German authorities must furnish all information and documents necessary for the trial of Nazi leaders as war criminals and ensure the attendance of witnesses.

The German authorities must comply with any directions the Allies issue for defraying the costs of the maintenance, pay, accommodation and transport of the forces and agencies stationed in Germany, the costs of executing the requirements of unconditional surrender and payment for relief in whatever form it may be provided by the United Nations.

The control commission will specify the times and conditions under which German civilians and officials are evacuated from territories both inside and outside the 1937 frontiers of Germany, and the German authorities will make the necessary arrangements for the reception and maintenance of the persons evacuated.

The German authorities are to comply with Allied directions for the repeal of Nazi legislation and for the reform of German law and the German judicial, administrative police and educational systems, including the replacement of their personnel.

They also must comply with Allied directions concerning the property rights, titles and interests of persons affected by legislation involving discrimination on grounds of race, color, creed, language or political opinion.

In any proceedings before any German court or authority, judicial notice will be taken of all Allied declarations and proclamations, which shall override any provisions of German law inconsistent therewith.

German Nationals will be prevented from leaving German territory until further notice, except as authorized or directed by the Allied representatives.

The Allied representatives will exercise such control as they deem necessary over all or any part of German finance, agriculture and industry.

Production and acquisition of war material, and the possession, maintenance or operation of any aircraft are forbidden.

The German authorities and all persons in Germany will hand over to the Allied representatives all gold and silver in coin or bullion form, and all platinum in bullion form, situated in Germany, or possessed by any German bank, company or cartel outside Germany. All foreign notes and coins will similarly be handed over.

Germans Had Plans To Strike at England In 1940, Papers Show

By ROSS MUNRO
(CP War Correspondent)

Berlin, Sept. 25—(CP Cable)— Documents discovered here reveal that the Germans in the autumn of 1940 were preparing to strike at southern and southeastern England with 22 divisions and with 17 divisions in reserve, it was learned today.

Attack in that area of Britain would have involved Canadian troops there within a day or so of the landing.

The mystery surrounding German plans for invasion of Britain is gradually being unravelled and although no one here will say for certain that the final operation appears to have been the general plan.

The initial attack was to be carried out by the 16th and 9th German armies forming army group "A." The 16th Army was to sail from Ostend, Dunkerque, Calais, Boulogne and the mouth of the Somme River, to land on the Kentish Coast between Margate and Hastings. The 9th was to leave Dieppe, Le Havre and Caen to make an assault on the British coast between Brighton and Portsmouth.

Airborne Landings Planned

Airborne landings were planned north of the Romney Marshes which lie between Folkestone and Hastings, on the South Downs behind Brighton and on Beachy Head east of Brighton.

After the landing of Army Group "A," Army Group "B," comprising an enlarged 6th Army, was to sail from Cherbourg to land west of Bournemouth in Weymouth Bay.

The landing forces of the two army groups was to comprise 11 infantry and two mountain divisions with a mobile force of six armored, two motorized and one S. S. division.

The Army and the Army Group Reserve set aside for the invasion totalled nine infantry divisions and eight additional infantry divisions available from the general headquarters reserve, the discovered documents revealed.

German Secret Mortar

RAILWAY SYSTEMS IN EUROPE BEING RAPIDLY REPAIRED

Only Sound Basis on Which Europe's Economy Can be Built

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 25—(CP)—Damage to European railway systems through war, German looting, and occupation is one of the continent's worst economic ills and strenuous efforts are being made to get them in full operation again.

Food and coal distribution, vital to prevention of famine and epidemics this coming winter, largely depends on the rapid solution of the railway problem and in many respects the railways are the only sound basis on which Europe's economy can be rebuilt.

The railway problem is gradually becoming a civilian concern and a provisional organization for European inland transport, formed by agreement among governments of France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Holland, Norway, the United States and Britain, is advising various European governments and authorities on getting railway traffic moving again.

Repair of worn-out and war-damaged transport has received special attention from this organization.

France has made the best recovery in Europe and now all important links between Paris and the rest of the country are operating.

Main Lines Working

Main lines in Belgium are working out of Brussels to Antwerp, Ghent and Liege but the country lost 65,000 rail cars and 1,000 of its best locomotives during the war, through air raids and German confiscation. Orders for new rolling stock have been placed in Britain and the United States and Canada is producing 220 locomotives for Belgium.

In Holland, the Germans took away practically all rolling stock and wrecked the magnificent electric railways but two express trains a day are now running between Amsterdam and Nijmegen and the Amsterdam-Rotterdam-The Hague triangle route in West Holland has been resumed.

The British and American occupation forces in Germany are gradually getting railways there working and the high commands are concentrating on the lines to and from the Ruhr for coal movement.

TWO-DAY BATTERING

London, Sept. 25—(Reuters)— Britain's west coast, from Somersetshire in the south to the windswept seaboard of Scotland is recovering from a two-day battering by gales and torrential rains. The storms, also spreading to the channel coast wrecked ships. Last night a further warning of mines adrift in the channel was issued.

SPECIAL BILL

Toronto, Sept. 25—(CP)— Train whistles blamed for causing residents of Suburban Etobicoke Township to lose sleep may soon be silenced in the township, Deputy Reeve Clive Sinclair told a council meeting last night. A special bill will be introduced in the House of Commons to enable Etobicoke to ban whistling of trains.

MEN AND WOMEN OFF WORK IN U.S. TOTAL 350,000

Chicago, Sept. 25 —(AP)— The United States government moved today to unsnarl the increasingly heavy traffic of strikes and work stoppages along the country's labor front.

The number of men and women off their jobs by strikes and forced shutdowns across the United States touched around the 350,000 mark, the highest in months. Some 100,000 workers joined the strikers within the last 24 hours as strife gained headway. Increased wage demands were the cause of the majority of the disputes.

As the government stepped in to attempt to effect a settlement of a spreading oil strike which already has left idle 30,000 workers, there was no immediate indication other front-ranking stoppages would be called off.

Headlining the troubled labor front was New York City's strike of 15,000 A.F.L. building service employees. Business in the metropolis was partially paralyzed after the workers left their jobs yesterday. Elevators halted in more than 2,000 office and loft buildings, including the 102-floor Empire State Building, the famous Woolworth Building and others. Hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers were inconvenienced by the strike, called in protest over a United States War Labor Board ruling on wages and hours. Hotels and apartment houses were not immediately affected by the strike.

Detroit's turbulent labor situation, however, continued to share in the spotlight. Governor Harry F. Kelly of Michigan ordered an investigation of the month-old strike of 4,500 workers at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company which precipitated lay-off of 50,000 Ford Motor Company automobile employees. Some 90,000 were idle in the automotive capital of the United States over labor disputes.

Jap Guards Told POW's Jap Planes Bombed London

Liverpool, England, Sept. 25— (Reuters)—A Japanese guard told a British prisoner that Japanese planes bombed London so heavily that its millions "fled to the jungle."

The story is told by Cpl. Stanley Bruce, 33, of Liverpool, now in Calcutta awaiting repatriation. He was taken prisoner in Sumatra in March, 1942, and had to work on the building of the Burma-Siam railway.

"Japanese guards used to try and impress us with the way the war was going," he wrote. "One who spoke English, said in all seriousness that Japanese planes were bombing London and New York ceaselessly and had bombed London so much that all the people had gone to live in the jungle.

"He said they could not rebuild London because there was no bamboo left."

'BEAST OF BELSEN' BEAT WOMAN WITNESS TELLS

Dora Szafran Says Juana Bormann Set Alsatian Dog On Women Prisoners

Lueneburg, Sept. 25 — (Reuters) — Pretty 22-year-old Dora Szafran testified today she had seen Joseph Kramer "Beast of Belsen" beat a woman severely with a stick when the woman fell out of line in a working party at Osweicim concentration camp in Poland.

Yesterday, Miss Szafran told the court that Juana Bormann had set her Alsatian dog on women prisoners who had gone lame and could not keep up with the others.

"Bormann boasted to another labor leader about setting the dog on to the internees. When the dog went for the woman's clothing she rebuked it and said 'at her throat,' commanding it to choke her to death," Miss Szafran added.

"As the woman died after the dog's attack, quite a crowd gathered around. Bormann then told the labor leader who came to see what it was all about, 'this is my work' and pointed to the body."

Kramer's Wife to Testify

The wife of Joseph Kramer arrived at Lueneberg today and it was learned she may give evidence on behalf of her husband.

Describing the alleged shooting of 50 people outside the Belsen cookhouse on the day of liberation by British troops, Miss Szafran said: "When I asked one man why he was shooting he said: 'Do you think that when the English people come here you will be better off?' "

Maj. Cranfield: "I put it to you that this incident only occurred in your imagination and that the whole incident is a tissue of lies?"

Miss Szafran: "Perhaps the report was not made correctly but I swear the whole thing really took place."

The witness was asked by Col. T. M. Backhouse, prosecuting, to tell the court more about the conduct of Irma Grese, a woman S.S. guard.

Mother is Shot By 5-Yr.-Old Son

Chapleau, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP)— Shot accidentally by her five-year-old son, Mrs. Rose Lalonde, 38, of Sultan, Ont., was fatally injured Sunday.

Mrs. Lalonde had attended the Catholic Church, leaving her two children, five-year-old Wilfred and 12-year-old Richard in the house. During her absence the boys went to a neighbor's home and borrowed a .22 rifle. They were playing with the rifle in the backyard when Mrs. Lalonde returned.

Mrs. Lalonde entered the house with the older boy who placed the rifle at the kitchen door. The younger boy picked up the rifle and aimed it at his mother.

The gun discharged, the bullet striking Mrs. Lalonde in the heart. She died almost instantly.

Coroner Dr. Young and Provincial Constable H. G. Lapp investigated and found death was accidental. The woman's husband, Pte. Wilfred Lalonde, stationed at North Bay, was notified and left immediately for his home.

Hong Kong to be Soon Cleared Up But Will Lack Pre-War Lustre

By HAL BOYLE

Hong Kong, Sept. 25 — (AP)— The war has finished and now Britain is polishing up this crown jewel of the Orient, tarnished by the conflict.

Already British divers are at work clearing away the wreckage of Japanese ships sunk at the piers by Allied bombers. Hundreds of Chinese laborers are removing rubbish and the rusted remains of bomb-blasted buildings near the docks.

Hong Kong itself will soon be in working condition but it will be years before this gem colony regains its pre-war lustre.

Hong Kong's three largest hotels, the Gloucester, Hong Kong and Peninsula, are open and crowded with former refugees and military personnel.

Commercial life is slowly reviving.

But something, perhaps final, has happened to the old way of life in Hong Kong as it was lived for decades by British, American, Indian and Portuguese business adventurers who found fortunes in tapping the rice and Chinese markets here.

Most of the mansions are now ruined shells. Only a few were destroyed by bombs or artillery. After the occupants fled or were interned, the mansions were subjected to two waves of looters, first the Japanese conquerors and then the poverty-stricken Chinese.

Some owners want to stay. Some want to leave Hong Kong forever. Some do not know where to turn. They look into the future with sick eyes and hearts. Death has broken up some families. Many businesses have vanished. The people of "the Peak" are free, but many will never know the lush times of yesterday again.

"It would break your heart," said an English woman in the Stanley Bay internment camp, "to see Hong Kong as it is and to remember it as it was."

Japan's Occupancy Might Last Many Yrs.—MacArthur

Denies Forces Could Be Withdrawn Within 6 Months

Tokyo, Sept. 25 — (AP) — The occupation of Japan "might last many years," although with minimum occupation forces involved, Gen. MacArthur said through a headquarters spokesman today.

The statement denied that the supreme commander ever had stated that occupation forces could be withdrawn from Japan within six months. Ted Dealey, president of the Dallas, Tex., Morning News, said Sept. 21 in a signed article that Gen. MacArthur had told him the occupation could end in six months "if we are not too ruthless and cruel."

Today's statement, issued by a headquarters spokesman, asserted that this was incorrect, and "what he said was that occupation forces, under favorable conditions, could be reduced to minimum size in six months.

"He has stated that the occupation itself might last many years."

More U. S. Troops Land

As he spoke, combat-clad United States veterans of war in the Pacific were dashing ashore at Aomori, expanding the ground-forces occupation to the northernmost tip of Honshu.

Associated Press correspondent Duane Hennesy reported from Aomori that green clad American soldiers backed by silently ready machine guns and mortars, splashed through the surf to the land.

There wasn't any shooting. A lone Japanese stood waiting. On his arm was a band that said "Interpreter."

Stripped of special privileges by the Allied Command, Domei news agency probably will quit, its president, Inosuke Furund, reported today. He said he had decided to recommend its dissolution to the next meeting of the Board of Directors. Noting that 3 major Tokyo dailies were considering formation of a new agency, he said "it would be impossible to make both ends meet" if Domei attempted to operate in competition.

Clamp on New Controls

Armed with a presidential directive making it clear that he is the highest authority in Japan, Gen. MacArthur meanwhile clamped other controls ever more tightly on Japan's political and economic life.

Latest decrees forbade making arms, ammunition and aircraft; promised priorities necessary for production of food, clothing and houses; required careful reporting of virtually every large-scale financial transaction; unshackled the Japanese press; and spurred democratic education.

Military authorities continued their roundup of suspected war criminals and reported today that Nobuyuki Abe, Japanese ex-governor general of Korea, has been permitted to remain under guard in his Tokyo home due to illness. He will be removed to jail upon recovery to await questioning or trial os one of the men on the Allies' "wanted" list.

DREW PRAISES RECORD

Oshawa, Sept. 25 —(CP)— Premier Drew of Ontario and Leonard W. Brockington, K.C., of Ottawa, last night praised the record of W. H. Moore, K.C., Liberal member for Ontario riding in the House of Commons from 1930 to 1945. Mr. Moore was guest of honor at a testimonial banquet here.

Tough-on-Japan Policy Endorsed By the Congress

By JACK BELL

Washington, Sept. 25 — (AP)— A hard peace for Japan had the official, if indirect, approval today from both the White House and the United States Senate.

The Senate's 69-to-1 approval of Dean G. Acheson as Under-Secretary of State was interpreted widely as a roundabout endorsement of the tough-on-Japan policy Mr. Acheson has championed.

Similarly, President Truman's clarification of Gen. MacArthur's authority was looked upon as notice to the Japanese that they will have to obey the general's orders without question.

Mr. Acheson's confirmation came yesterday after a short-lived fight by Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican whip. Senator Wherry sought to sidetrack the assistant secretary's promotion back to the Senate foreign relations committee.

Senator Wherry contended Mr. Acheson had rebuked Gen. MacArthur for estimating that he could get along with 200,000 troops to police Japan six months from now.

Not Something to Argue About

President Truman's new directive to Gen. MacArthur notified the Japanese that the Potsdam Declaration is a statement of policy, not something for them to argue about.

The order told Gen. MacArthur:

"You will exercise your authority as you deem proper to carry out your mission. Our relations with Japan do not rest on a contractural basis but on unconditional surrender. Since your authority is supreme, you will not entertain any question on the part of the Japanese as to its scope."

New Members Join 'C. P.' Board

Quebec, Sept. 25 — (CP)—Two new members were appointed to the Board of Directors of The Canadian Press at the Board's semi-annual meeting yesterday. They were Victor Sifton, Winnipeg Free Press and R. J. Rankin, Halifax Evening Mail.

In appointing Mr. Rankin to the vacancy caused by resignation of Senator W. H. Denis, the Board passed a resolution of grateful thanks to Senator Denis as one of the pioneers of collective newsgathering who 'gave to that movement much of the impetus that contributed to its notable success.'

The CP Board meeting is one of a number of newspaper conferences continuing throughout this week. A special general meeting of Canadian Press members will be held Wednesday. Also on Wednesday directors of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association meet, and on Thursday C.D.N.A. members generally.

Forty Candidates Are Confirmed By Archbishop

Madoc, (Special).—Confirmation for a class of forty candidates was held in Madoc Sacred Heart Parish on Sunday, when His Grace Archbishop O'Sullivan of Kingston, visited this village. His Grace presented an eloquent address to the congregation with an address from the people being read by Mr. Phillip Rivers. An address by the pastor, Rev. F. D. Hyland was also heard.

Following the confirmation ceremony the congregation proceeded to the new Sacred Heart Cemetery on the highway east of the village where the Bishop blessed the cemetery. Twelve visiting priests were present at the cemetery, as well as a large concourse of people.

Two Automobiles In Collision

Damages amounting to approximately $35 resulted to two automobiles when they were in collision near the intersection of West Moira and Murney Streets on Monday.

Stephen Licence, 299 Front St., was driving north on Murney St., when the auto he was driving was struck by another driven by Harvey Murray, 212 Coleman Street, as the latter was turning on Murney from Moira Street. Murray told police the steering gear of his auto locked as he turned the corner and he was unable to avoid striking the Licence driven vehicle.

Five Belleville RCAF Personnel On Ship Arriving

Five Belleville and four Belleville district RCAF personnel are aboard the troopship Nieuw Amsterdam which is expected to dock at Halifax on Saturday, according to information received from Air Force headquarters at Ottawa.

Personnel aboard the ship will be cleared through repatriation depot at Lachine at which place they are due October 1st. Only exceptions to this will be Maritime personnel who will be sent on leave directly from the ship. RCAF officers point out the accuracy of the list cannot be guaranteed because of the possibility of last minute deletions and additions prior to the ship's departure.

Belleville personnel aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam include Squadron Leader, Clifford E. W. Murphy, son of Mrs. J. J. Murphy, Harriett Street; Flight Lieut. H. W. Hollingsworth, 4 West Moira Street; Flying Officer N. A. Fitzgerald, 169 Foster Ave.; Flying Officer W. L. Pigden, 179 Dundas Street; Sgt. W. A. P. Ashman, Picton; Sgt. F. E. Fraser, Napanee; LAC. J. REV. F. A. SMITH IS NEW RECTOR OF ST. THOMAS'

Maj. Smith Recently Returned to Trenton Parish From Overseas

Major, the Rev. F. Arthur Smith, rector of St. George's Church, Trenton, has been appointed to the rectorship of St. Thomas' Church in this city. The announcement of the appointment, which is to take effect on November first, was made this morning by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Kingston.

The Rev. Arthur Smith was appointed a padre early in the war and served overseas. He returned to parish in Trenton a few weeks ago. He succeeds the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, who was appointed recently by the Bishop to the important office of Diocesan Commissioner with headquarters at Kingston.

Police Blotter

Approximately $35 in cash is missing from the cash box at the Superior Cleaners following a break-in which occurred over the night, local police were notified this morning. In addition to the cash being taken, other contents of the box were rifled, it was reported.

War souvenirs sent home from overseas were reported missing from the home of Mrs. York, Wellington Street.

Police apprehended two or three residents who had been imbibing too freely, they spent the balance of the night in the cell block at the police station.

Henry F. Zola, Montreal, was apprehended for auto theft in that city and was held in custody pending the arrival of escort to take him back to answer charges.

Peterboro police reported the theft of a 1934 Ford, licence number 299Y3, with local city and provincial police being warned.

To Produce New Auto

HENRY W. KAISER

JOSEPH W. FRASER

The Kaiser-Fraser Corporation may sound like a vaudeville team but it means business—big business. It was formed by Henry J. Kaiser, famed for his shipbuilding miracles during the war, and Joseph W. Frazer, president of Graham Paige Motors and of the new corporation, which will build a new automobile called the "Kaiser" in the Wollow Run plant, which was manufacturing bombers during war. The corporation has leased the huge plant for five years. The corporation will begin operations with capital and surplus of $20,000,000.

Killed in Action On Last Trip Of Bombing Tour

Reported as missing when his bomber aircraft failed to return last November from a bombing raid over Hamburg, Flt.-Sgt. Clifford E. T. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cook, St. Paul Street, is now believed to have been killed in action on that date, according to word received by his parents.

He was a veteran of 29 bombing missions over enemy territory when he failed to return from his 30th trip. He was an air gunner in a Lancaster bomber.

Flt.-Sgt. Clifford E. T. Cook

Born and educated in Belleville, Flt.-Sgt. Cook was employed by the Corbin Lock Company in this city prior to his enlistment in the army. After serving a year military officers discovered he was under age and he was discharged. He later enlisted with the R.C.A.F. and after training as an air gunner received his wing at McDonald, Manitoba. He proceeded overseas in March 1944 and became attached to an R.A.F. operational wing.

Kinsmen Require Additional Money To Carry on Fund

A total of nearly three and three quarter million cigarettes sent to Belleville boys overseas is the proud record of the Kinsmen Fag Fund which in less than two weeks will celebrate its fourth anniversary.

To date this year the local Kinsmen club has sent overseas 635,400 cigarettes, according to Fag Fund chairman, Kin Buster LaBarr.

Although Canadian soldiers are rapidly being returned to Canada, there are still thousands of boys overseas as is indicated by the fact that according to Kinsmen records 522 Belleville boys are still on the other side of the Atlantic waiting for transportation to this country or members of the occupation forces.

It is to raise funds to help continue sending cigarettes to these boys who have done a swell job, that the Belleville Kinsmen are holding their annual Fag Fund tag day on Saturday.

Citizens of Belleville and district in the past have been generous in the support of this cause and with the need still great Kinsmen are again asking for the dimes, nickels and quarters which will assure local boys still overseas getting the cigarettes which they deserve.

POLICE COURT

A total of 26 cases comprised the docket at city police court Tuesday morning with nineteen cases of illegal parking and infractions of the L.C.A. being settled out of court.

Ten local residents accused of intoxication paid $10 fine and $3 costs, while four others accused of "having liquor" paid the same amount. Three paid fines for illegal parking and one other motorist paid $4.50 for sounding his horn excessively while driving on Front Street.

Another motorist on his plea of guilty of being in charge of a motor vehicle while drunk will spend seven days in jail and have his licence suspended for three months, while still another, arraigned on a like charge, was remanded for one week subject to bail of $1,000.

On a vagrancy count, Roland Charron was sentenced to five days in jail, dating from the time of his arrest, while Orville Laird was remanded for one week subject to bail on a charge of intoxication.

COMMUNITY DRIVE BY 4 SERVICES GETS UNDER WAY

Post-War Needs on Home Front Will be Very Heavy

Although overseas hostilities have happily ceased, with a corresponding decrease in the amount of funds needed for the continuation of services for the fighting personnel, demands of service organization on the home front are continuing, or are even increased.

Many new problems are confronting the four service organizations, the Children's Aid Society, the Salvation Army, the Victorian Order of Nurses, and the Y.M.C.A., and the demand for funds to carry on this necessary work will be great.

Citizens of Belleville and district for the next two weeks are being asked to lend their financial support to the Community Chest Campaign which is being sponsored by the above four organizations. In a combined appeal they are asking for $15,000 to assist in carrying on their work.

Chairman of the Community Chest campaign today pointed out that the need is greater—that the demand is imperative. New problems including the care of children, the sick and suffering, and possibly one of the greatest importance—the readjustment of returned men from the armed forces, are confronting the service organizations.

The campaign will run from Monday, September 24 to October 10, and Community Chest campaign officials ask that canvassers be welcomed when they call some time within that period.

Story of Draining Steep Rock Lake Told Rotarians

The interesting story of the draining of Steep Rock Lake which covered iron ore deposits amounting to approximately thirty million tons, as told to the Kiwanis Club a few weeks ago, was unfolded to the Rotary Club on Monday by Leonard Dandeno, superintendent Eastern Division, of the Hydro Electric Commission.

Mr. Dandeno pointed out the aid furnished to Steep Rock in its giant project by the H.P.C. in the construction of miles of transmission lines and power supplied to work the huge pumps, two of which could supply water for the domestic use of fourteen of the largest Canadian cities.

The conventional method of mining, that of sinking a shaft and constructing drifts failed in the Steep Rock project and it was deemed necessary to drain the lake which had an area of four square miles.

To drain the lake, another body of water some 40 feet higher than Steep Rock had to be diverted. This was done by tunnelling the rock in the lake bottom and water diverted to other lakes through the channel.

Describes Pumping Methods

Mr. Dandeno described the method of pumping from two large barges which lower the water at the rate of half-inch daily. Pumping began in July, 1943. The first ore was taken out a year later. More difficulty was experienced when the shorelines began to drop in. One man lost his life in one of these miniature landslides.

The first shipment of ore via Port Arthur was made this year and the Steep Rock people are harboring hopes of constructing facilities for refining at the lakehead. It is anticipated that one million tons will be taken annually from the Steep Rock deposits. At present the ore is worth $6 per ton laid down at the lower lake mills.

High Iron Content.

The ore, Mr. Dandeno said is of a high iron content or approximately 60 per cent pure iron and is comparable to the Swedish, said to be the best in the world.

He outlined the work done by the Hydro Power Commission in facilitating the work of the northern mining areas by the construction of hundreds of miles of transmission lines, and the providing of power to all parts of the district.

He was introduced by Rotarian Oswald Scott, while club thanks were expressed by Rotarian Fred Fisher. President "Mac" McLean was in the chair and received a fine ovation from his clubmen. He was in a "fine" mood and many erring Rotarians paid handsomely for their "misbehavior."

Hospital Auxiliary Reports $1277 Raised for Year

The annual meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary took place in the Nurses' residence with Mrs. H. Wray in the chair last Thursday.

Mrs. Wray thanked the members for their support during the year and turned the chair over to Mrs. L. Langlois to receive the report of the nominating committee. The following officers were nominated: President—Mrs. H. Wray; First Vice President, Mrs. L. Langlois; Second Vice President, Mrs. J. Forrester; Recording Secretary, Mrs. J. Marsh; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. G. Barclay; Treasurer, Mrs. S. Camken; Convener, Mrs. A. E. Miles.

After the president resumed the chair, plans were discussed for the coming year. A tea and home-cooking sale are being planned for November.

Mr. Barclay gave a report of receiving the invalid chairs and thanked the auxiliary for its donation. He also gave a report on the past improvements that have been made at the hospital in which the auxiliary has helped a great deal. There is still a need for voluntary help for the flowers and the auxiliary decided to continue this service for the next month.

Mrs. Langlois gave a report on the work the auxiliary is doing in the ward on second floor. This is progressing as rapidly as possible.

After the usual monthly report, the annual reports were given, the total receipts for the year totalling $1,277.35. This sum was raised chiefly by four money-making projects—a tea and sale at Mrs. Forrester's; a fashion show at the Capitol Theatre; the annual mixed bridge held in the recreation room of the nurses' residence; and the annual tag dag in September. It was reported that the auxiliary had continued to send cigarettes monthly to its adopted soldier and had received some very interesting letters from him.

The social welfare of purchasing small comforts for patients who could not afford them was carried on. These consisted of shaving and dental necessities, tobacco, papers, magazines and games.

The Auxiliary has given $350 to the hospital to pay for the building of a refrigerated tray-morgue. It also bought a new oxygen tent at a cost of $388 and gave $250 for the refurnishing and redecorating of the two nurses' sitting rooms, and $75 toward the equipment for the kitchenettes in both residences. The Auxiliary purchased two new wheel chairs at a cost of $150 and at present is purchasing window drapes and easy chairs for the rooms in the second West wing. At Christmas $25 was given to a committee to purchase suitable gifts for the indigent patients and a similar sum was spent at Easter for baskets for patients in the public wards. In June, a shower of flower containers, which were greatly needed, was held.

Starting in April, two ladies were on duty at the hospital each evening, Sunday excepted, to take care of the patients' flowers. According to the administrator, Mr. Barclay, this was one of the greatest helps the institution received freely. The Auxiliary also assists in ward-aide duty whenever necessary.

Films and Projector For Foxboro District

Films and moving picture projector will in the very near future be received by the Foxboro District Film Council, members of that organization were assured last week during a special meeting which was addressed by Mr. Ronald Ward of the National Film Board.

During the meeting Mr. Ward read a communication from Ottawa assuring the council of the immediate arrival of their sound projector, while application is being made to the National Film Board for 15 reels of films on extended loan. These will form the nucleus of the film library, of which Mrs. Wanda Sine, as secretary, has been made custodian.

Pending the arrival of the sound equipment and films it is expected that in the very near future the council will be in a position to offer programs for schools, churches, and adult educational groups. This service will be free with the exception of a small service charge for films. The machine will be operated by qualified operators, to be chosen from the organizations represented in the council and trained by Mr. Ward.

Attending the Foxboro meeting were Mr. David Mackenzie of the National Film Society, who spoke on the work of that organization; Rev. Lloyd Shorten, of Foxboro; Mrs. Brooks Allen, B.S.A., president of South Hastings Educational Association, and Mr. R. H. Macklem, inspector of public schools. Representatives fro mthe Foxboro Farmer's Cooperative Women's Institutes of the district, and schools and churches of the community also attended.

Senators Protest Umpire's Decision In Sunday's Game

Washington, Sept. 24 — (AP)— Owner Clark Griffith of Washington Senators today protested Philadelphia's 12-inning 4-3 American League victory over the Senators yesterday in the first game of a doubleheader.

"They've taken the pennant away from us on a technicality, and I'm protesting to Will Harridge, league president," Griffiths told a reported.

He referred to an umpire's decision that Buddy Lewis, Washington outfielder, dropped a fly ball in the eighth inning when Philadelphia made three runs and tied the score.

On that play, Mayo Smith of the Athletics sent a fly to right which Lewis apparently caught for the first out. But Lewis dropped the wet ball as he started to return it to the infield.

Umpire Eddie Rommel ruled Smith safe. Manager Ossie Bluege objected so strenuously that Bluege was banished from the game. The Athletics took advantage of that break to score three unearned runs and send the contest into extra innings for their 4-3 victory.

Doubtful if C.P.R. Will Build Another 'Empress of Britain'

Montreal, Sept. 25 (CP)—D. C. Coleman, Chairman and President of Canadian Pacific Railway, said Monday in an interview that it was doubtful if Canadian Pacific "will be disposed to build another Empress of Britain," which was torpedoed during the war. Mr. Coleman returned recently from a visit to Great Britain.

While in Britain, he had been told of a movement to conscript a vessel to replace the 42,500-ton liner, and present it to the company "as a mark of admiration for our service to the Empire during the war."

Belleville, Ontario, Sept. 24th., 1945.

DEAR FRIENDS,—

While we rejoice that hostilities have ceased on all fronts, nevertheless we are confronted with great need to keep our house in order and to support these four united organizations in view of the many new problems that now face them, including care of children, the sick and suffering and, last, but not least, the readjustment of the returned men from the armed forces.

The four organizations who are making this appeal for help to take care of a heavy load, are forced to go all out in an effort to raise $15,000.00 to provide for the continuance of essential work for the coming year.

The uniting of four organizations in one appeal avoids the making of four individual calls, thus saving time of all concerned. It therefore becomes necessary to give for the benefit of four and not just one.

All districts are forced to make an appeal once a year, (Toronto and other points are doing the same thing at this time), to take care of those who are unfortunate and underprivileged. Belleville Citizens and industries rank among the most fair and generous givers. It is a well known fact that Citizens of Belleville and Vicinity pride themselves on putting their dollars to work on welfare to relieve suffering and degredation.

Remember—The need is greater and the demand imperative.

I can find no better paragraph to close my appeal than to say "A land of happy people means all of us, so give of your own free will when the canvasser calls during the period from September 24th. to October 10th., that every Citizen may understand the co-operation of freedom and mutual understanding."

Yours very sincerely,
C. B. MORGAN,
Chairman.

Returning to Standard Time

Whatever the individual's or the municipality's preference on the question of the advantages and disadvantages of "summer time" or daylight saving time, which comes to an end with the coming of Sunday, September 30th., the history of the change of "time" is interesting. Advanced time has been Dominionwide under order-in-council for some of the war years. Now as the Dominion measure is lifted with peace restored municipalities revert to standard time. Some time in the future during the coming winter the question of daylight time for summer months will no doubt come up in numbers of municipalities.

Prior to the war daylight saving time was entirely a matter of the regulation of a local municipality with many cities and some towns adopting it for the summer months, but many towns and the villages and other rural communities and countryside adhering to standard time the year around. In the summer of 1940 when some of the urban and other municipalities were following summer or daylight time, daylight saving time was made obligatory across the Dominion for the summer. In January 1942 an order-in-council made daylight saving time obligatory the year round in the Dominion for the same reason that it was made necessary in 1940 for the summer, namely as a power-conserving step. Britain has been long familiar with summer time; when war came there a like course was pursued, advanced time being made general the year round and latterly there has been double daylight time for Britain for the summer.

In going back to standard time, Canadians will be able to rise later, and retire an hour earlier at least until next spring when some municipalities will doubtless deal with the "time" question whether or not to go on fast time for the summer of 1946.

When the poet sang years ago, "Backward, turn backward, O time, in thy flight," he meant to turn back the years and make him "a child again just for tonight." Of course there will be none of this imaginary turning time back in reverting to standard time.

The change will be noticed in the mornings by a good many workers and others and in the evenings too.

One thing is sure there will be one hour inserted during early Sunday, when the time does seem to stand still. That hour "saved" will be the hour that was "lost" or "dropped" 'way back in 1940 or in 1942.

That hour, marking the entry upon daylight saving time generally, served its purpose in the saving of power in the time of war and in other ways as has been pointed out on many occasions.

Can Have Their Haggis

Canadian Scots like Scots of all time will have their haggis served at that bonnie banquet on St. Andrew's nicht, November 30th., this year, though it is one of the meatless days in Canadian public eating places.

Two years ago the authorities of the Prices Board wrestled with the haggis problem and then made the occasion an exception as it fell on a Tuesday night, Tuesday being one of the meatless days in that year, explaining the action in this way "because as many Scotsmen contend it is a hardship to eat it as maintain it is a hardship to do without it."

This year they allow the haggis to be eaten without further authority.

Haggis is described in Everyman's Encyclopedia as an ancient Scottish dish, called by Burns "chieftain of the puddin" race. The stomach bag of a sheep having been well washed, turned inside out and salted, is filled about half full (room left for expansion) with the liver, heart, lungs of all the animal all minced, together with a large onion, half a pound of oatmeal, a pound of suet, salt, pepper and half a teaspoonful of mixed spice; the addition of the juice of a lemon and some good stock is also found to be an improvement. The bag is then securely sewed up and left to boil for about three hours."

There is nothing now in the way of the ceremoony of the piping in of the haggis at the great annual St. Andrew's festival two months hence.

10,000 Called Britain From M.E.F.

Peter Haddon, just returned to London from the Middle East, where for five years he controlled the BBC message program "Cairo Calling," told listeners to "In Town Tonight" a few of his more amusing experiences.

The program was of great import to the forces in the Middle East from the early days of 1940 onwards. The Mediterranean was closed, and Egypt was "virtually 15,000 miles from home." Mail was perforce very erratic. So messages were collected from an enormous area throughout the Middle East—numbering 10,000 all told in the five years.

Haddon gave an instance of what the mail difficulties could be. A lad asked to be allowed to broadcast home. Haddon explained that the waiting list ran into thousands and asked what special claims this soldier had. Pulling a letter from his pocket, he made this reply: "Well, I've just heard from the wife that 'the funeral was lovely,' but I'm blowed if I know who's dead."

Many of the fellows who broadcast were in one of two categories—"the tongue-tied and the verbose." As examples, Haddon recalled a young fighter-pilot on the aerodrome at Gabes asking to be allowed to broadcast to his mother. "A grand type," in Haddon's words—"D.F.C. and Bar and all that." He had just landed from an operational flight, and during the whole of it had been speaking volubly through the intercom. Yet, although he was tried six times he couldn't articulate one word at the microphone, and he had to give up.

Another story was of hard-luck and disappointment at the receiving end. When one family received the BBC advice that Bill — as we'll call him — was to broadcast on the Sunday morning, their excitement was great and they invited all the neighbors to come in and hear him. But just as Bill was about to speak, his mother fainted. And everyone was so busy attending to her that Bill's message was completely unheard.

Hong Kong Memorial

(Montreal Herald)

The tide of public favor sets against conventional war memorials in Canada today. The soldier cast in bronze, the granite shaft displaying its "roll of honor," are less popular than they were a quarter century ago.

But there is one group of heroic dead for whom some such permanent and impressive memorial seems peculiarly appropriate—the men who fell in the defence of Hong Kong.

These were the first Canadians to die in the war against the Axis.

The record of their gallant service should be proclaimed on the scene of their sacrifice, for all the East to see.

Let their story be told in granite or marble or bronze, with the conventional symbols of national honor and remembrance, that the Orient may be very certain Canada does not forget her sons.

The Bicycle

(Baltimore Sun)

For those who fear that the brave new world may streamline all the joy out of living, here's one note of comfort. The British are going in for the bicycle on a grander scale than ever before—yes, the old-fashioned push as you go two-wheeler with a handle bar to be grasped and a seat to be sat on by a person who has to use his legs to get him where he wants to go. So certain are the British that the human animal will want to retain some of the simple things of the good old days that they plan to produce six million a year—twice the pre-war total.

I AM OFFERED A CHANGE

Strange things to me the postman brings.
Not long ago a letter came
From Youngstown, O., to let me know
That mine was a "selected name."
The missive ran: "You're just the man
For tasks the post-war years will bring.
We've chosen you to join a few
To train for air conditioning.

"In moments spare you can prepare
And keep your present job the while.
You'll quickly learn more wage to earn
With wrench and driver, plane and file.
Well 'gladly show how blowers blow
And rooms are given the touch of spring.
With brace and bit you'll soon be fit
To service air conditioning."

Dear friend, dear friend! These lines are penned
In answer to your offer kind.
I grieve to state it comes too late.
Mechanic'ly I'm not inclined.
It seems a shame you chose my name.
At no one's doorway could you ring
And chance to find so dumb a mind
To study air conditioning.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

SEPTEMBER 25th., 1925

The plans for the observance of the 60th. anniversary of the founding of Christ Church Parish are well under way. The Jubilee tea will be held in the city hall on October 14th.

Mrs. Diamond of Bass Lake, is the guest of Mrs. Wiggins, Everett St.

Mr. S. B. Rollins, reeve of Tweed village, was a visitor in town today.

Miss Nonna Clinton, of Wellington, is the guest of Miss F. Embury in this city.

Ninety new members will join St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reid, and son, Donald, of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, are the guests of the former's uncle, Mr. C. M. Reid, Bridge St. East.

30 YEARS AGO

SEPTEMBER 25th., 1915

The late Harvey Warner, of Napanee, left the sum of $1,000 to Albert College.

On the 26th. inst., the Rev. Charles George Smith, B.A., B.D., pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church in this city, will celebrate the 5th. anniversary of his arrival in Belleville from New Haven, Conn. His pastorate has been marked by spiritual and material progress in the congregation. The mortgage debt has been reduced from $11,000.00 to $5,000.00, a new pipe organ has been installed, class rooms built and the church decorated thru'-out. The membership of the church has greatly increased.

40 YEARS AGO

Potato rot in this section of the country is far more serious than at first anticipated. An idea of its extent may be gathered from the fact that one farmer in Thurlow Township had five acres planted and is not digging one hill owing to the rot being so extensive.

The work of building the revetment wall on the east side of the river is progressing satisfactorily.

The steamer North King will leave Belleville on Sunday night at 11.35 o'clock for Rochester, N.Y., giving all day Monday in that city and returning home Tuesday morning early. Return fare $1.00 (Advt.)

Mr. James Kenney has left for Toronto to attend university.

Mr. Gerald Ponton has left for Toronto where he will become a student at Toronto University in the department of practical science.

Mr. Ed. Harrison, who took honors in science at the University of Toronto, will shortly return to the university to take up other studies.

50 YEARS AGO

SEPTEMBER 25th., 1895

Business is still brisk in the building trades.

The dredge is doing good work in widening the cut in the harbor.

Mr. Harry Fowell's pony ranaway today on Pinnacle St., and was caught before doing any damage.

The Moira River seems to have lost itself somewhere; at all events it is not in its usual bed.

Mr. R. C. Clute, Q.C., of this city is Crown Prosecutor at the assizes in Peterborough.

Mr. Percy C. Nash will leave tomorrow for Montreal.

Mr. William Webster, Collector of Customs here, was in Port Hope yesterday on business.

Mrs. and Miss Fowell of Woodstock are visiting friends here.

Three Attempts at Tunnelling Failed at Bowmanville Camp Through Alertness of Veterans

Bowmanville, Ont., Sept. 24 (CP)—Three tunnelling attempts to escape from the German officers' prisoner-of-war camp near here were made during the war, it was disclosed, and all were thwarted by alert men of the Veterans' Guard of Canada.

Individual prisoners escaped now and again by ingenious means but most of these attempts likewise were unsuccessful. One prisoner even hid in a fertilizer wagon expecting to get away undetected, but he didn't.

Sixty miles of barbed wire surrounding the camp, the former Ontario Government Boys' School—now is being removed and school officials are asking for a speedy return to its normal uses.

War Labor Board Approves Raises For Tire Workers

Ottawa, Sept. 25 (CP) — The National War Labor Board in a decision announced today approved increases for workers in a number of classifications at the Dominion Rubber Co. plant in Kitchener, Ont.

The ruling was given on a joint appeal by the company and the United Rubber Workers (C.I.O.) against a decision of the Ontario War Labor Board.

In the company machine shops the Regional Board had granted some increases but turned down an increase of two cents an hour for machinists, engine lathe operators, machine assemblers and crib keepers. The National Board ruled the increases should be authorized.

The National Board also approved a two-cent increase for skilled tradesmen in the tire factory maintenance department and authorized a new schedule for machine shop foremen giving them 15 per cent more than the rate of the highest skilled tradesmen they supervised.

British-American Oil Agreement Has Been Reached

London, Sept. 25 — (CP) — Conclusion of a tentative British-American Oil agreement covering the world-wide export of petroleum by British and United States oil companies was announced yesterday.

The agreement provides for a proposed treaty which must be accepted by both governments to be effective. It would not be concerned with domestic oil production in the United States, but sets forth the principle of equality of opportunity for nationals of both countries in exploration and development of oil concessions throughout the world.

The proposed pact would create a committee to recommend the practices to be employed in development of British and American Oil holdings in such important producing areas as the Middle East and South America.

The agreement, replacing one that was withdrawn from the United States Senate last year after meeting opposition from a portion of the American oil industry, follows the broad outline of the original proposal but, said one of the experts of Mr. Ickes' staff, does not contain some of its "ambiguities."

Blackpool Has Eye For Lost Kiddies

Blackpool (CP) — A lost property office equipped with babies' feeding bottles, tiny chairs, toys and games instead of shelves for parcels has been opened by the Blackpool police for lost children.

So many children were "lost" on the beaches and in the shops that a special house had to be opened beside the police station. Many of the children are claimed within an hour and grateful parents gladly sign on the dotted line that they have received their lost property back in good order.

SIREN USED TO ATTRACT BOYS LOST IN BUSH

Timmins, Sept. 25 (CP) — Fifteen-year-old Guy Belanger and 17-year-old Leo Rinfret, Timmins, were found in the bush in the Kamiskotia area Monday morning by Provincial Police after being lost since yesterday afternoon.

AWAITS WORLD'S END

If the world has not come to an end at the time this photo is printed, then Rev. Charles Long, 72-year-old head of a Pasadena, Cal., cult may be a few days off. With his flock he fasted in preparation and gave Friday, Sept. 21 as a tentative date—although this could be moved up to the 29th, he said, or even 1946. While certain that the atomic bomb had signalled the end, the California prophet wasn't quite sure whether Western or Jerusalem time's to be used.

EVERYBODY NEEDS A GOOD BREAKFAST

More than half of the school children in many rural and urban communities in Florida, children in all grades from the first up to the twelfth show signs of rickets and many of them also show indications of vitamin C deficiency. In some communities nearly two thirds of the school children (aged 5 to 19 years) had the angular stomatitis of riboflavin (vitamin G or B2) deficiency (don't let these twelve shilling words throw you—I'll explain what they mean as soon as I run out of breath) and the follicular conjunctivitis ("granulated eyelids") and roughened dry skin of vitamin A deficiency.

Note that this nutritional deficiency occurs among children from all types of homes (not just among the poor, as too many Wiseacres assume when they hear of malnutrition) and in an area where, if anywhere in America, sunshine (for vitamin D) and fresh fruit and greens (for vitamin C) and greens and vegetables (for riboflavin) should be plentiful. I wonder what those ever ready experts who ridicule the idea of nutritional deficiency here in America will say about this. The Florida State Board of Health published the findings in Florida Health Notes for May, '45.

"Angular stomatitis" is a characteristic sign of riboflavin deficiency—paleness of the lips, particularly at the angles of the mouth, piling up of whitish, macerated tissue there with a pink background, perhaps fissures or cracks in the natural wrinkles at the corners of the mouth.

Follicular conjunctivitis is a redness and irritation of the lining of the lower eyelids particularly and perhaps also the covering of eyeballs at either side. The lining of eyelids appears "granulated." There are usually considerable itching, burning, photophrobia (fear of or dislike of bright light) and a sensation as though there were sand or cinders in the eyes.

These are the typical manifestations of riboflavin (vitamin G or B2) deficiency, but probably in every instance there are deficiencies of other B-complex vitamins as well since riboflavin never occurs in any food without the other vitamins of the B-complex. So for prevention or cure of angular stomatitis (sometimes called cheilosis or cheilitis, which means abnormal or sore condition of lips) and/or prevention and cure of "granulated eyelids" (not to be confused with the red sore eyes of the contagious trachoma), increased intake of the entire vitamin B-complex as this group of vitamin naturally grows in foods such as wheat, beef or calf liver, green leafy vegetables, green or dried peas, milk, eggs, oatmeal or oaten grits, is always preferable to pure riboflavin or pure thiamine (B1).

The skimpy breakfast so many people take, if they take breakfast at all, and the inadequate breakfast so many school children get if they get breakfast at all, explains the wide prevalence of these generally unrecognized nutritional deficiency diseases or conditions here in America among all classes of people rich and poor—wiseacre and intelligent.

Talks to follow will deal with the adequate breakfast.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Hernia Recurred

Submitted to operation for hernia six years ago. Now it has returned. Could the injection treatment be used when operation has already failed? (M.L.)

Answer—Yes. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for monograph on "Hernia" (rupture, breach). If I know of a physician in your vicinity who is skilled in the injection method I'll be glad to give his name and address on request.

Family of Fans

We are a family of Dr. Brady fans. I have just taken off 18 pounds weight without any discomfort or trouble, by following the instructions in your fine booklet. (Mrs. A. W. H.)

Answer—I am happy to hear it. Any reader who has some reducing to do may have a copy of the booklet "Rules for Reducing" — inclose twenty-five cents and a stamped envelope bearing your address.

Well, It Is Stupid

You say it is stupid to suffer from piles. I have been operated on twice and am no better. I lose considerable blood and am quite anemic. (G.W.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet "It Is Stupid to Suffer From Piles."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How do "thoroughbred" and "purebred" animals differ?

In popular usage "purebred" and "thoroughbred" are virtually synonymous. They both refer to animals that have been bred from the best blood through a long line and whose pedigrees have been recorded for a number of generations. "Pureblooded," "registered" and "pedigreed" are used in a similar sense. All of these words, when used in the popular and general sense, apply to domestic animals of all kinds.

It is equally correct to speak of purebred and thoroughbred sheep, cattle, hogs, and even chickens. Farmers often refer to such animals as "blooded stock."

Sometimes "thoroughbred" is extended to the vegetable world, and we hear of thoroughbred strawberries and other plants.

However, when "thoroughbred" is applied to horses it has a specific meaning. Horse breeders like to restrict the terms to breeds of running horses eligible to registration in the American Stud Book, the General Stud Book of England and affiliated stud books for thoroughbred horses in other countries.

A thoroughbred horse must have a pedigree, but every pedigreed horse is not necessarily a thoroughbred. Likewise an animal may be registered without being either purebred or thoroughbred.

A purebred or thoroughbred animal must be of one breed and of unmixed strains.

To be a thoroughbred a horse's ancestors must be recorded in the stud book for several generations—five in America and seven in England.

Some authorities, including the U. S. Department of Agriculture, favor restricting "thoroughbred" to thoroughbred horses exclusively and using "purebred" and "pureblooded" when referring to other animals.

One of the brightest spots in Britain's post-war industrial picture is the change which is coming over South Wales. It is no longer a "depressed area", but rather a district for which a firm future is being built.

Eugene Brunning, one of the Board of Trade's regional directors, has just drawn up an industrial map of the region. There is no wishful thinking about it; it is the picture of positive developments only.

New industries are being distributed evenly in all parts of South Wales and Monmouthshire. Hundreds of companies have indicated their intention of starting plants in the region. In place of the mass unemployment predicted as an immediate sequence of the end of the European war, there is an insistent demand for more workers in every civilian occupation.

"South Wales and Monmouthshire is achieving balanced production," wrote the industrial correspondent of the Cardiff Western Mail after a tour of the area.

"The area will no longer be dependent on the trade cycles of heavy industries.

"Industry is to be taken to the people; the trend in the other direction which robbed South Wales and Monmouthshire of so many thousands of its best workers in the inter-war years has been reversed. The drift to England has been checked, and the drive into Wales has begun."

YOICKS:—Election results notwithstanding, traditional England seems to be holding its own. The word has been given out that 175 of the 200 hunts in Britain will be in full cry this autumn.

Meets are all restricted, however and there must not be more than two a week. Another sad factor is that the fox population has dwindled considerably.

Grouse also are scarce this year in Scotland and the prospects for the shooting season which opened August 13th. are rather poor.

HIGHLAND REVIVAL: — The prospect of small industries being re-established in remote areas of Scotland is receiving the attention of students of economics as the peacetime reconversion goes ahead.

One such factory is being opened at Garrabost in the Hebrides. The brickworks built 70 years ago and long unused is being prepared for use, because Stornoway town council decided that it was silly to pay £10,000 ([illegible]) in freight charges on bricks to build 234 new houses.

'Europe Is Back In the Middle Ages'

(By GEOFFREY PYKE in The Manchester Guardian)

The disaster confronting Europe this Winter will probably kill more people than the first two bombs of the atomic epoch. Most of the Japanese in Hiroshima and Nagasaki died instantly. The Europeans will die slowly and painfully, of cold as well as hunger, and they will usually have to watch their children die first; hence the official expectation that they will not be content to die quietly—especially the women.

It is widely supposed that the root of the trouble in Europe is the shortage of means of transportation. This delusion is dangerous because it stands in the way of a fruitful formulation of the problem. Europe is suffering from the cumulative effects of several mutually aggravating shortages, but the fundamental factor is lack of power and of the equipment to use it. Power is needed to plow fields, to produce fertilizers, and to process, preserve and transport food.

• •

We are accustomed to think of the modern age as rich in power. In fact it is lamentably poor. All the developed power in the world before the war amounted to no more than one-eighth of a horsepower per head, and Europe as a whole had no more than an average share. Yet without that meagre ration of power Europe could maintain only about a quarter of its present population. Hitherto the world has been living just above the power-poverty line; in a decade or two atomic energy may give us real power-wealth; but for the time being dislocation and destruction have put much of Europe below the level of power-survival.

Apart from the still unharnessed energy of atoms there are only four significant sources of power: water, petroleum, coal and food (as fuel for animal and human muscles). Hydro-electric resources are obviously incapable of rapid expansion on a large scale. Petroleum supplies are more flexible, but there is a universal dearth of oil and petrol engines. Coal is the crux; Europe would need twice as much oil and oil-burning machinery as it had before the war to balance the loss of only six per cent of its pre-war coal supplies. But Europe, besides having lost its imports from Britain, is producing coal at less than half the pre-war rate. Relatively little help can at this stage be expected from the United States; the coal shortage is world-wide.

• •

There remains only muscle-power — chiefly human muscle power, for Europe has lost at lease 25 per cent of its horses, and horse-breeding takes time. It is not commonly realized that even in the United States, the home of cheap mechanical power, about half the energy expended in agriculture is still muscular energy. In pre-war Europe, the writer estimates, muscle-power — half of it human—did nearly a third as much work as coal and more than oil and water put together. Nor is it generally recognized that the human body is an exceptionally economical engine. It is heavy per horsepower exerted, but not until the recent improvement of the Diesel did man develop a mechanical engine that surpassed himself in thermo-dynamic efficiency.

A man's body will convert into useful energy about 360 of the 1,820 calories contained in a pound of sugar, which is extracted from the beet at the cost of an equal weight of coal. A steam locomative of average efficiency (about 5 per cent) needs two pounds of coal to produce the same number of work calories. It is only when coal is abundant, and when more can always be got by raising the price, that we can afford to use it so prodigally.

Today in Europe the supply of coal is both short and inelastic. For lack of coal to process its beet crop France alone had this year lost 300,000 tons of sugar — the equivalent in calories of a year's food for 1,500,000 adults. Britain and the United States will have to make good that loss from their own inadequate stocks or let starvation take its toll. In such circumstances, even if locomotives were plentiful, it would be simply criminal to waste half the extractable energy in what little coal Europe has at its disposal by burning it in locomotives instead of using it to produce muscle-fuel.

• •

There are some kinds of engine, such as central electricity stations, which are more efficient than human engines in terms of power output per ton of coal consumed, and these should have first claim on Europe's resources.

But what remains when their needs are satisfied must be reserved for the production of food, for it is only by fuelling and harnessing as effectively as possible the muscles that would otherwise have to be maintained in idleness or in relatively unproductive employment that Europe can produce enough power to keep all its people alive during the next two or three years.

This conclusion is, no doubt, distasteful. It is natural enough that people who have grown up in the age of steam and electricity, and who now stand on the threshold of the atomic era, should regard the idea of driving machines by muscle-power as retrogressive —"a return to the Middle Ages."

But the plain facts are, as everyone with access to the relevant data must know, that in terms of power output per head of population Europe is already back in the Middle Ages, and that only intelligent exercise of its potential muscular energy can prime the pump of progress in time to stave off mass starvation.

Singer Finds Fame Has Its Problems

New York (CP) — To Jo Stafford, fast becoming Dinah Shore's closest rival among the nation's feminine vocalists, the hardest part of being a famous singer is the mugging.

"They want me to mug when I do a turn on stage at the Paramount. They ask me to mug in night clubs and even when singing for a record. Singing is easy but making faces is a problem," says blonde, baby-faced Jo, whose ballad-singing is as leisurely as her California speech.

Winner of a radio popularity poll taken among servicemen in the Pacific last January and singing on the Ford Motor hour on Sunday, Joe tries hardest to please her younger fans.

"It's the kids who stand in line for stage shows or buy the records that make you. It would be professional suicide to wear a dress that they didn't like or try to fool them in any way."

Clothes are a particular problem for her anyway. For several years she has been dieting to lose weight. Now that she is 35 pounds slimmer, she has had to give up all the clothes she brought from California.

Born in California.

Jo and sisters Christine and Pauline grew up in Long Beach, California, attending Polytechnic High School. The three girls sang on the radio in California, later in Chicago. But Jo's season with the Pied Pipers in the Tommy Dorsey band made a professional of her. Now she is leaving them to branch out solo.

She doesn't know yet how it feels to be famous. "So far I've merely got a little more fan mail and more requests for favors. It seem only a few weeks since I was a self-conscious girl back in California, studying for exams.

Maybe, she says, the fan mail will come later. But so far success means saving your voice (training yourself not to yell at football games), posing and posing for publicity pictures, rehearsing and making records, and competing with other talent at benefits.

After a night club engagement in New York, Jo plans to return to California to make a new record album. She has no eye on the movies, feeling she is too tall —being over five feet seven. But her manager, Mike Neidorf, likes to remind her that if Hollywood wants you bad enough, a few inches will make no difference.

Loyal Customers Feted by Grocers

London (CP) — Dark memories of the dingy years when sirens wailed and flying bombs fell were wiped away for a group of London women when their grocers threw a party.

And what a party it was! Miss Esther Gibbins of Walworth and her partner, Miss Florence Lee, decided they should do something for the customers who had stuck with them all through the raids. Bright and early one morning 32 women queued outside their grocery store. At nine o'clock the door opened, and in trooped the customers.

They had their ration books, but this time they did not mean as much as usual. Out came the glasses. For the faithful customers there was Scotch, gin, rum or beer.

They had a round, plus "one for the road." They put on paper hats.

Outside the charabanc driver was loading up 20 cases of beer, ham, egg and corned beef sandwiches. There were cigarettes, too—20—no less—for each customer.

As the glorious loading went on they had another one—maybe two—"for the road."

First on the bus was Mrs. Lawrence, 54, who had no alarm clock, and had been up since 4 a.m. to be sure she would not miss the party.

Off they went to Southend in the charabanc. On the way they had a picnic and another one—perhaps two—"for the road."

There was an accordion along, and the music was fine.

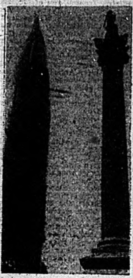
They got right into the swing of things with the other holidayers at Southend. Down on the beach some of them went for a paddle in the shallow water, and one or two even had a real dip.

Then they came home, all tired out and happy, and not forgetting the little courtesies to the road.

TEEN-AGERS "GET TOO MUCH RADIO"

Brantford, Sept. 25 (CP)—S. R. Laycock of Saskatoon, President of the Canadian Federation of Home and School Associations, said in an address here Saturday night that boys and girls in their teens "get too much radio and movies today." He said youth would do better to exert itself to find a philosophy of life with some meaning.

TRIUMPH AND MENACE



The figure of Nelson, atop the Trafalgar Victory column, still looks down triumphantly on the menace that failed— the V-2 rocket, super terror weapon that the Nazis devised and hurled against London. Harmless now, the rocket bomb, is the chief exhibit in Trafalgar Square in the forthcoming thanksgiving savings week drive.

Says 3,000 Died In Japanese Camp For Dutch Children

Brisbane, Australia, Sept. 25—(Reuters) — Miss Hans Reyns, teacher in a Japanese internment camp for Dutch children said on arriving here that 3,000 children died in the camp since last May.

She was accompanied by two of the children who survived.

Miss Reyns said many of the children had to help dig graves for their playmates and children of six made to sweep floors and dig trenches. When they reached ten years they were expected to do the work of men.

Utah Women Fight Polio

Salt Lake City (CP) — Utah women from farm and ranch areas, where doctors and nurses are scarce enough in the best of times, are getting into the fight against poliomyelitis.

They came as volunteers from all parts of Utah for the first training classes to be held by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Some travelled 500 miles to attend.

A wartime dearth of professional help for polio victims, especially in thinly populated areas, has pointed up the need for substitutes. Already several of the 158 graduates of the four-day school held here are at work in the state's largest polio centre.

The work of the volunteers consists in applying hotpacks to infected muscles to prevent spasms and pave the way for physiotherapists to prevent the crippling effects. Special techniques of bedside nursing were also taught.

1,000,000 RUBBER TREES DESTROYED

London, Sept. 25 (CP) — Japanese troops cut down more than 1,000,000 rubber trees in southern Malaya to clear the land for farming during their occupation, the New Delhi radio said in a survey of British rubber resources.

SOUTH AFRICANS SET HIGH TARGET FOR BRITISH AID

National Scheme for Food Gifts Takes Shape as Tons of Sweets Sent to British Children

Cape Town (CP) — Food gifts to Britain as gestures of thanks for victory are becoming popular in South Africa and a national scheme with a target of £1,000,000 ($4,500,000) is also being considered.

One Johannesburg firm has donated ten tons of sweets for British children and appeals are now being made for another 20 tons.

In regular trade South Africa has shipped £4,000,000 worth of goods to Britain this year and half as much again is to be sent before December. Shipments are made up of cheese, jam and dried fruits, citrus and vegetables.

There is no serious threat of unemployment among European ex-soldiers in South Africa, authorities say. There are 39,900 jobs available and another 10,000 likely will be open when industry expands. A total of 42,000 require jobs.

The future of natives being released from Union defence forces was discussed at a Johannesburg conference of veterans' organizations. A memorandum will be presented to Prime Minister Smuts with various suggestions, including the formation of an organization along semi-military lines for the training of ex-soldiers in skilled jobs. A government demobilization official said army discipline had made the native a better employee and he was entitled to the best the country could give.

A suggestion that South African women act as "missionaries to the war-torn world" has been made by Prime Minister Smuts. Speaking to a conference of women's auxiliary forces, he said they were in a fortunate position for this work and could do much among other peoples.

At home there was also much to be done for non-Europeans. "We feel very much concerned over the black under-dog," Premier Smuts said. "If we really want to make a healthy progressive country we'll have to give more attention to his welfare."

A warning that South African industrialists cannot use the tariff wall to sell locally-made goods at high prices was given by F. J. Dutoit, secretary of commerce and industries, addressing the Transvaal Chamber of Industries. The cabinet member said tariffs were imposed to help industries to prepare to face overseas competition and not to be prostituted to secure exorbitant profits at the expense of the consumer.

An ambitious plan to expand the South African police force has been announced by Dr. Colin Steyn, minister of justice. With men returning from the army and many recruits expected he intends making the force fully mechanized and equipped with the latest communication equipment.

Dr. Steyn also announced major plans to establish direct liaison facilities with Scotland Yard and the American Federal Bureau of Investigation, with an exchange of personnel possible in the future.

D.D.T. PROVED EFFECTIVE

London, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP) — Experimental use of D.D.T. in local taverns, restaurants, dairies, creameries, abbatoirs and horse stables has been "highly successful" and the insecticide may be used in all such establishments next year, Board of Health officials here said.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Sept. 25 (CP) — The boys at the "repat" centre in England said, frankly, they didn't believe it.

The story told by the Canadian Spitfire pilot, now back home, of the adventure which led to his capture and two years in a Nazi prison camp, just sounded incredible. But it was true. R.C.A.F. Overseas Headquarters have received a letter from a Netherlander who saw it happen.

The flier, PO. J. E. Abbotts of (1073 Third Ave.) Owen Sound, Ont., was on an escort flight over Holland on July 29, 1943, when, he related, his Spitfire went out of control and began to crash.

Abbotts was thrown out of the fighter, but instead of getting clear of it he slid down its tail and his parachute hooked to the little radio mast of the aircraft. As the Spitfire hurtled earthwards he struggled desperately to free himself but was unable to do so.

Death stared him in the face, he thought. But as it neared the ground the plane miraculously straightened out skimmed over a rooftop, and came to land in a field of tulip bulbs at Hillegom. The plane was only slightly damaged and the pilot suffered little harm.

That was the story. Now, in corroboration, a letter from Albert Phillips of Hillegom relates that he and other local people saw the plane come down and land with the pilot hanging near the tail.

Phillips wrote to the RCAF not so much to give details of the incident as to request that they put him in touch with PO. Abbotts. He confessed that he "bagged" the plane's propeller as a memento, and it now occurred to him that perhaps Abbotts "might like to have it as a souvenir of that plane which did his duty so wonderful to save his life by landing so beautifully all by itself."

Overseas H.Q. have put him in touch with the Owen Sound pilot.

Music to soothe Canadian airmen impatiently awaiting repatriation was promised when the famed RCAF Overseas Band took off from London for a 30-day tour of France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

The band, under the direction of Sqdn. Ldr. Martin Boundy of London, Ont., was slated to give concerts and broadcasts in Schleswig-Holstein, Amsterdam, Paris, Brussels, Hamburg, Eindhoven, and wherever RCAF men are stationed.

The 51 expert musicians have played all over the British Isles and before the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace.

FREE PRESS FOR JAPAN

Tokyo, Sept. 25 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur directed the Japanese government Monday to remove all barriers to the collection and distribution of news and stripped Domei agency of its monopolistic privileges.

An order intended to "encourage liberal tendencies in Japan," threw the field wide open to all foreign news services and to any Japanese service wanting to compete with Domei.

The imperial government was ordered to remove itself completely from direct or indirect control of newspapers and news agencies—which means Domei, the only one in Japan and the mere mouthpiece in the past of militarists and others of the ruling clique.

Col. Donald Hoover, civil censorship officer, said that "this is a military step to insure a free press."

WEDDINGS

HAWKE—LEWIS

Albert College Chapel was the scene of a lovely wedding this afternoon at four p.m., when Barbara Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Martin Lewis, and Donald Edgar Dean, son of Dr. and Mrs. Mervyn Saunders Hawke, were married by Dr. Bert Howard. The chapel was decorated with white gladioli and wedding music was played by Miss Aileen Caldwell, Toronto.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore traditional white satin and a long veil, held by a headdress of orange blossoms. She carried a sheath of white gladioli. Miss Betty Hawke, Sudbury, was the bride's only attendant. Little Miss Mary Elizabeth Welsman, Toronto, was flower-girl and Master David Hetherington, of this city, was ring bearer.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Danny Hawke, Sudbury, and Mr. Harold Thomas and Mr. Charles Fick, Toronto, were ushers.

At the reception, held at the bride's home, Mrs. Lewis wore grey with fuchsia accessories, while the groom's mother wore brown with turquoise accessories. The home was beautifully decorated with colorful gladioli.

For the wedding trip to Toronto and points north, the bride wore a woods-green suit with black accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hawke will reside in Sudbury.

CHAMBERS—GUNTRIP

Many-colored gladioli blooms decorated St. Clement's Anglican Church, Toronto, for the recent marriage of P/O. Joan Doreen Guntrip, WRCNS, and Pte. Harold Wesley Chambers, RCEME, with Rev. T. W. Barnett officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Guntrip, while the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chambers, of Corbyville, Ont. Mr. F. Bollard played the organ and accompanied Mrs. Dorothy Cooper, soloist.

The bride's gown was made of imported silk lace, fashioned with a square yoke of net, basque bodice, peplum, and full ballerina skirt ending in a small sweep. A Mary Queen of Scots headdress of shirred net held her fingertip-length veil, and she carried her mother's ivory prayer book trimmed with streamers and pink Sweetheart roses.

Her only attendant was Miss Hylda Fisher, in a long dress of minuet blue silk jersey, with matching headdress and shoulder veil, and bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and cornflowers.

Mr. Clarence Chambers was his brother's best man, and ushers were Mr. H. Fisher, uncle of the bride, and Mr. H. Connor.

For receiving at the reception, the bride's mother wore an olive green silk crepe, with tan accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother assisted in moss green crepe, with brown accessories and corsage of Butterfly roses and cornflowers.

PRYOR—HOGLE

September 22, at seven p.m., in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Katherine Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Hogle, became the bride of L/Bdr. William Claude Pryor, Toronto, son of Mrs. George Carson, Lakeview. Rev. H. O. Eastman performed the ceremony and S. A. Gordon, cousin of the bride, played the organ. Ronald Elmy sang "The Lord's Prayer", during the ceremony, and "Through the Years", during the signing of the register. The candlelight ceremony was performed in a setting of white candles, white gladioli and ferns. The auditorium was decorated with a full train. The softly ons and candles all in pink.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a peacetime bridal gown of pure Sien Mousselaine satin in rich ivory with a full train. The softly molded gown had novel mother-of-pearl decorations at the shoulders and neckline. A coronet of white ostrich tips held her finger-tip veil and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Miss Harriet Cronk, as maid-of-honor, and Miss Doris Curry, cousin of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, wore lime green gowns of Miracle crepe, princess style with matching half-hats. Misses Gweneth Smith and Jean Mackey, Toronto, as bridesmaids, were similarly gowned in rose. All carried nosegays of roses, 'mums, and cornflowers.

Groomsman was L/Bdr. Mervyn Smith, Toronto, while Mr. Edward Burn, Belleville and Mr. A. F. Pue, Brandon, Man., were ushers.

For the reception, held in the church auditorium, the bride's mother received in a navy crepe ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, in a pastel floral crepe with black and white accessories and Talisman roses. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake.

For the wedding trip to Gull Lake and other western points, the bride wore a Persian blue suit with British tan accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. On their return the couple will live in Toronto.

Guests were present from Cochrane, Brandon, Man., Lakeview, Ottawa, Smiths Falls, Kingston, Peterborough and Toronto.

ST. HILAIRE—GILHOOLEY

The marriage took place at nine a.m., September 15, at St. Michael, the Archangel Church, Belleville, of Mary Margaret Gilhooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gilhooley and Everett James St. Hilaire, Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry St. Hilaire, Trenton, Ont. Rev. Father O'Donnell officiated. Wedding music was played by Miss D. Grant.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white satin with lace inserts. Her finger-tip veil fell from a Queen Anne headdress and she carried a bouquet of red roses, fern and baby's wreath. Her only ornament was a gold cross worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day.

Miss Loyola Gilhooley, bridesmaid, wore a floor-length gown of pink chiffon and shoulder-length veil, caught to her hair with pink roses and she carried a bouquet of pink and white asters, fern and baby's breath.

Mr. Harry Long of Glen Miller, was groomsman.

A buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride, 54 East Moira Street, the bride's mother wore a black and pink ensemble with black accessories and a corsage of pink gladioli, while the groom's mother chose a two-piece dress of gray with black accessories and corsage of pink gladioli. Following the buffet lunch the bride and groom left amid showers of confetti on a trip to Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the bride travelling in a rose dress with black topcoat and black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver, to the bestman, an engraved billfold and the bride's gift to the bridesmaid an identification bracelet.

My Backache Gradually Disappeared"

Could any woman tell a happier story about backache than this:

"About 6 weeks ago I started having awful pains in my back. At times I could not straighten myself and I got depressed and worn out. I could scarcely carry on with my household duties and everything was being neglected. It was then I saw a Kruschen advertisement and I decided to give Kruschen a trial. I started by faithfully taking a small teaspoonful in hot water in the morning, and in three weeks—my word, what a difference! The pains gradually disappeared and though I am now 46, I really feel years younger."—Mrs. H. M.

There is always a cause of backache: and in many cases it can be traced to toxins or poisons, which stay in the system instead of being eliminated. And that is where Kruschen saline treatment can be of real help to you. Kruschen is a balanced combination of mineral salts . . . and its action is to help your organs of elimination. By taking Kruschen faithfully for a few weeks . . . as Mrs. H. M. did . . . many people have found joyous relief from wearisome backaches and rheumatic pains. The Kruschen saline treatment costs so little to try . . . Use it in your own case. Kruschen has helped others. Why shouldn't it help you? All drug stores have Kruschen at 25c. and 75c.

Autumn Beauty

By ALICE ALDEN

THE SHORT skirted dinner suit, beautiful enough for all but formal events is an acquisition to almost any wardrobe but that of the recluse. And even a hermit would come out of hiding to look at or wear Ben Reig's new two-piece bolero costume that combines black crepe and rose pink satin. The bodice of the dress is cap sleeved and attached to the banded dirndl skirt. Jewel pearl and silver embroidery circles the dress neckline, which is as low in back as in front. It also trims the jacket revers. A pink rose and short black ostrich plume make the hat which completes this New York costume.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Care of White Hair.

War-time activities that have cut down the leisure hours of many women are responsible for the popularity of white hair, which today is fashionable. Many of the old girls who had dyed their hair came to the conclusion that frequent touch-ups were a bother, so let the white threads have their own way.

Every woman knows that a silvered hado is beautiful, that it forms a softening frame for the face, but no woman wants it. It isn't hateful in itself; it is just that it seems to suggest advancing birthdays, and that's not fair when we're all fighting to stay young in appearance.

The sensible woman accepts the pigment changes because she knows that, once started, the use of dye must go on and on until the end of time. There is no good stopping-place. There is no magic that will remove the stain once it is applied, and there is the matter of expense. The overhead is something terrible. It is difficult to find an expert operator who won't make a mess of the job. As for home treatment, that's out, unless only a few scattered white streaks are to be treated.

The overhead is something terrible

If the decision is in favor of the snowy nimbus, a woman should make a beauty asset of it.

Keep it beautifully clean. Use a shampoo medium that is safe and bland. A home cleansing agent is made by placing a small bar of castile soap in a quart mason jar, filling the jar with boiling water, letting the solution stand three days before using. Pour off the clear top liquid for use. Rinse the hair after a thorough brushing, then foam up the soap until it is like beaten egg white. There should be three soapings, and three rinsings with a bath spray and a strong current of water. The sprays serves better than the shower, as it pounds into the front and back hairlines instead of just on the crown of the head.

Brushes and combs must be kept scrupulously clean. It is convenient to have two sets.

Of all hirsute thatches, the white one must be neatly arranged. No scrambled effects are allowed, if one is to stand up under a critical survey. A few rags and shreds here and there will make a woman look downright blowsy.

Waves, ringlets, or rolls are an improvement on straight strands that are likely to make the face appear brittle. The swirl still holds good for the middle-aged contingent. The up-do-arrangement has charm and dignity if perfectly designed.

Whether or not one blues the tresses is, of course, one's own business. This good-looks whimsy seems to be popular.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Writing to the English Bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last night my husband's aunt informed us that her son, who is in the Army, was married in England, a few days ago. At present he no longer is stationed in England.

Would it be proper for me to write a congratulatory note to his bride? No doubt she will come to this country in the near future, and I thought that perhaps a friendly note to her would be an opening to a close friendship. If you approve of my writing this, will you please tell me how I should word it? And also, since she and I are now cousins-by-marriage, should I begin the note "Dear Nora", "Dear Mrs. Smith" or "Dear Cousin Nora"?

P.C.

A charming plan you have, entirely proper of course, and your letter can express such good wishes and such a warm-hearted welcome that your cousin's bride will be assured that she is coming to relatives who are kind and understanding. Your cousin will be proud of the courtesy and thoughtfulness of his cousins, you and your husband, and your letter will show his bride that her new husband has the kind of relatives brides are proud and happy to have.

Begin your letter either to "Dear Nora" or to "Dear Cousin Nora" (not to "Dear Mrs. Smith" since she is now a relative of yours):

Dear Cousin Nora:

And how very delightful it is to my husband (who is your Bob's cousin) and to me to have the pleasure of thinking of you as our cousin and to extend a warm welcome to our hearts, to our family, to our country. Bob has always been a great favorite of ours, as he is to all his relatives and friends . . . of course you know how his charming personality and fine character endear him to all who know him! . . . and our hearts are all ready to give loving welcome to you whom he has chosen as "the dearest girl in the world". And we hope that soon you will be coming to this country to receive this welcome in person!

Every good wish, every devoted wish, to you for your and Bob's happiness now and always, and the high-hearted hope that we will have the special delight of greeting you here very soon.

Affectionately,
Patricia Smith Collins
(Mrs. Henry Collins)

(I have included your formal name because since her husband is not stationed in England, she may need this for her reply to you.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Beau Larceny—What Do You Think of it?

Is a girl who steals another girl's sweetheart a snake? Or, does that old adage, "All's fair in love and war", excuse beau larceny?

Did you happen to read an account in this column about two girls called Violet and Jonquil (not their names) who were war workers and shared a tiny apartment with the understanding that when the best boy friend of either girl called, the other was to make herself scarce?

The boy friend in question, like a collector, may have had a yen for what was scarce and difficult to acquire, for he waylaid Jonquil as she was on her way out one evening and invited her to dinner. Violet was his girl, and she was expecting him to propose that very evening. Well, Jonquil after a few heroics over what she was doing, not only went to dinner with the young man, but charmed a proposal out of him, a subsequent letter tells me, and they are to be married. Naturally, Violet decides to be a bridesmaid.

Here are some of the letters: N.B.C. writes "I wouldn't say Jonquil was a snake. It just happens she appealed to the boy friend more than Violet. Maybe if the two girls had re-made their rules and allowed the other one to be present when the date arrived, there wouldn't be so much curiosity about the vanishing girl. You know the old saw: 'The grass on the other side of the fence is always greener'.—(Signed N.B.C."

L. M. J. writes: "Your story of Violet and Jonquil might have been my own, though I never resorted to the rule of 'coast clear' when my fiance was about to call. My roommate managed to meet him outside, and the first thing I knew was the tearful confession they were in love. It just about wrecked my faith in human nature. But the following year I met my present husband, and like the heroine of the fairy tale, we've lived happily ever after. My date who fell for my roommate has been twice divorced. My best to Violet; she's well rid of him.—L.M. J."

Women's Activities

ROSLIN W.I.

The September meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. Leslie with a good number in attendance.

The President, Mrs. H. Chisholm presided. Plans were made for the next meeting which will be held in the School in October.

Mrs. H. Sayers was leader for the day and gave an interesting paper, a discussion on Current Events followed.

Mrs. M. Hamilton read a paper on "Canadian Women in Agriculture", which had been prepared by Miss Alice Wilson.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

MADOC W.I.

On Friday afternoon Madoc W.I. held their September meeting at the home of Mrs. C. Henderson With the President, Mrs. George Hill in charge a short time was spent in singing. Mrs. Aylsworth at the piano. Minutes and communications were dealt with. Letter of thanks was received from a war bride, Mrs. Whiteman, for wool blanket presented to her by the W.I. A donation of ten dollars was given to the Tag Day for the Blind. Current Events were ably handled by Mrs. Tanner. Gleanings from the address given by H.R.H. Princess Alice at the 14th Biennial Dominion W.F.I. convention held in Vancouver, were read by Mrs. C. Moon. The topic for the day, "The history of the British Flag", was given by Miss Mary Mackintosh. Arrangements were made for the Fair Day lunches at the Institute Booth at Madoc Fair, and members are asked for donations of pies and cakes. A vote of appreciation to those who contributed to the program for the meeting was given by Mrs. J. Caskey. The singing of the National Anthem closed a very profitable meeting. Afternoon tea was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. K. Tanner and Mrs. C. Whytock.

MADOC RED CROSS

On Friday evening, the chairman, Mrs. K. Nicol, of the Women's Red Cross Division called a meeting to be held in the Red Cross Rooms Community Hall to make plans for the fall. With a splendid representation of the executive present, it was decided to have the work rooms open on Monday and Thursday afternoons and evenings of each week. There will be plenty of work for everyone and the Red Cross plans to work on civilian needs for war-torn Europe. Quotas in service needs will be completed. The committee ask all those interested in the work to come to the work rooms as often as possible.

A SOFTLY feminine look, rather than the fussy, fluffy type of thing is indicated by the fall indoor fashions. The neat, uncluttered look of the slack suit shown here is especially popular with college girls and young careerists. The slacks of black velveteen are combined with a jacket of warm pink ribbed rabbit's hair and wool. The jacket has the current deep armhole, and has cuffed sleeves. Diagonal darts from the side seams give shape to midriff. It has a two button closing, velvet cuffs and collar.

Council Defeats Motion to Sell Property Near Beaches But Another Meeting Will be Held

Capt. Partridge Who Wants Land for Industrial Site Explains to Members Type of Business to be Conducted

Despite the absence of important business the City council did not conclude their regular session on Monday night until the midnight hour. Most of the evening was taken up with a matter that was disposed of at a previous meeting and now goes back to the committee stage and another meeting of the parties interested. It has to do with the selling of a piece of property south of the Belleville Hospital and near the Beaches Association property for an industrial site. Present at the meeting last evening was Captain Partridge, one interested in the deal, the chairman of the Industrial Commission, R. A. Pringle with maps and data for the council members to see and hear. Ald. Chamberlain at the end of the discussion recommended "that the council sell the firm represented by Capt. Partridge the land required by them for their industry reserving 60 feet along the waterfront for beach purposes." This recommendation failed to carry but a meeting will be held in the near future as Capt. Partridge is in no hurry for a decision.

Wants City Laid Out

Mr. Pringle suggested that the council fully lay out industrial area of the city so that the Commission would not have to sell a property and then have the council veto the whole deal. He suggested that the city purchase a tract of property a thousand yards on both sides of the city limits. The Mayor stated that he had promised a delegation to the council on Thursday night a full investigation and that he was surprised to know that the W.C.A., who owns the hospital owned one of the lots that was being sold for industrial purposes. The Mayor stated he was not against industry coming to the city and that he had had a conference with officials from Sidney and Thurlow townships with regards to increasing the limits of the city. He stated there were few industrial sites in the city and very few building lots and he thought a good idea would be to get an expert town planner and prepare a plan for civic beautification that could be completed in the matter of years. "A new council comes in and changes what we do because there is no prepared plan to work on" said Mayor Follwell. "The commission is handicapped by showing sites to prospective customers and then find out they are not available."

Suggests Committee

The Mayor suggested that a committee be formed to investigate and meet with the Hospital Board and the Beaches Association and try to work out some plan by which this property can be obtained by the industrialists that want it. Ald. Thompson asked "what do you hope to approve by the formation of the committee? Capt. Partridge then addressed the council and stated he and his partner had been swept off their feet by the Industrial Commission. He stated that the plant proposed would make cement blocks and cinder fibre but building materials were not available at the present time. "He tal" said the plant would be operated by electricity and there would be little noise. "We are going into this thing with limited capital" said Capt. Partridge "but I think we have something to offer and we can supply out products at less cost than either Toronto or Otawa, where this material is made at the present time."

25 To Be Employed

Asked by Ald. Trudeau how many would be employed, Capt. Partridge stated there would be 25 the year round and if the brick agency was taken on more men would be required. Ald. McDougall asked if it was the intention of the firm to clean up the front of their property and Capt. Partridge stated "It will not be an eye sore. Ald. Thompson stated "we heard so much about Zwick's Island being wanted for a park when another industry wanted the property and I know there has not been a shovelful of dirt taken off the property to make it into a park as was promised." Ald. Clapp "That industry was asked for plans and specifications but none was forthcoming."

No Comparison

Ald. Allin "I took an extensive drive through western Ontario during the weekend and we have nothing to compare in this district with the parks in that area. I know we have no land but St. Thomas when they wanted land they went out and bought it and turned the property into beautiful parks. We have beautiful approaches to our city but we are sadly in need of parks.

Ald. Thompson. "If I was looking for a site for industry I would certainly pass their city by because the council has not bacbone enough to stand by its bargains. This ended the discussion and the motion was defeated.

The city engineer was asked to select locations for four skating rinks at King George School, Queen Victoria School and the East and West playgrounds for the coming winter and that these areas be put in proper condition before the winter season arrives. A building covenant was released for an owner so that he could float a loan to complete his residence that is now 50 per cent complete. A white centre line will be marked on the curve at corner of Charles and Pine Street. The city council will act as hosts to a party making a survey of the Moira River on October 15th. A dinner will be held. Three street lights, such as are installed on street at present time will be placed on Bridge St. and North Front Street. A petition from Mrs. Phillips and others requesting construction of a concrete sidewalk on east side of Foster Avenue from Franklin to Wills Street will be referred to the city clerk and engineer for checking and if sufficient application will be made to the Ontario Muncipal Board for their approval. The West End Motors was granted permission to erect a used car electric sign on the front of their premises.

Not Given to Press

A number of letters were received by the council protesting the sale of park property to the Canadian Legion for a Community Hall but were not given to the press after a vote had been taken. There were thirteen in the council chamber when the yeas and nays were recorded on giving the letters to the press and were recorded Yeas Aldermen Allin, Armstrong, Clapp, Follwell, McDougall, Trudeau, Nays Mayor Follwell Alderman Chamberlain, Clarke, Hyde, Wilbur and Woodley. Ald. Thompson refused to vote. Under the heading of enquiries Ald. Woodley asked "When is a report on the Riverside Drive going to be given and City Solicitor stated the report should be ready the early part of Oct. Ald. Woodley also asked what the responsibility of the city was if the ramps placed on the street for bicycles were struck by a car. The city solicitor stated that if the ramps were placed there by the council's consent and they were collided with by a car the question of damages would have to be settled by the city. Ald. Hyde wanted to know how long the city had before it had to have ready a by-law on the sewage disposal plant to be submitted to the people and Mr. Collins stated that four weeks before election would be sufficient. Ald. Chamberlain inquired about the street signs and the City Engineer and Ald. Clapp stated there were a few to be put up but in some cases owners of houses had refused to have the signs tacked to their property.

City Would Be Liable

Ald Hyde wanted to know if the council had any jurisdiction over the incessant blowing of locomotive whistles in the city. Mayor Follwell explained that if the blowing was discontinued and an accident happened at the crossing he believed the city would be liable for the damage. Ald. Follwell wanted to know if there was no insurance that could be had to cover this loss as he was in agreement with the Alderman regarding the excessive use of whistles. The Mayor asked the clerk to write the railways that whistling be curbed to a minimum within the city. Ald. Thompson stated there were a number of lots with weeds on them but Ald. Trudeau informed the councillor that he situation was in hand and pretty well under control. He stated that a shortage of help was the reason that the work was not all completed at the present time. Mayor Follwell complained about a tree on Strachan Street and the condition of the market square after a market day. Ald. Clapp thought that containers should be put on the market and the vendors asked to throw the rubbish in them before they left the market.

By-laws Passed

A number of by-laws were passed and Ald. Thompson strenuously opposed the one amending the building by-law to permit the Upper Canada News Agency from erecting a warehouse on the corner of Cedar Street and West Moira Street. The committee reported their approval of this building.

Mr. Collins addressed a letter setting forth details on the property wanted for an industrial site. The letter stated.

Gentlemen:

Your letter of July 18, 1845, in connection with financing the installation of a flood lighting system in the baseball park was considered by the Commission at its meeting on July 26th and I have been directed to advise you that under existing legislation there is no means whereby your Commission can make a loan out of surplus funds to the City for the purpose of financing the installation of lighting equipment for the ball diamond at the Belleville Exhibition Park.

You will, of course, appreciate that the regulations as set out in The Power Commission Act are very specific and are so worded that local Commissions, or this Commission, have no authority to leviate therefrom.

Yours very truly.

Re: Leeman Request For Opening in Sidewalk 19-21 E. Bridge St.
Gentlemen,—

The Committee consisting of Aldermen Trudeau, Armstrong and Chamberlain, appointed to investigate the request of Mr. E. Leeman of 247 Front Street to obtain permission to have an entrance made through the sidewalk at 19-21 E. Bridge Street, are favorable to granting this request, providing Mr. Leeman has a suitable cover installed at this location as discussed with him at the time of the meeting. The installation is to be under the supervision of the City Engineer.

Yours very truly ,

Special Committee Report

A special committee on the follows—

September 24, 1945.
His Worship Mayor Follwell and Aldermen of the City Council,
Belleville, Ont.

Re: Ponton Street Sewer

Gentlemen:

Your Special Committee beg to report that we inspected the property on the east side of Ponton Street, namely Lot 1 purchased from the City by Mr. Caddick and Lots 2 and 3 purchased from the City by Mr. Alyea.

In order to provide sewer facilities for these lots, an 8" sewer line would have to be constructed from Benjamin Street manhole in a northerly direction along the east side of Ponton Street for a distance of approximately 200' and three laterals installed.

We would recommend that the total cost of this work be paid for by the owners of this property, if they require the said work to be carried out by the City. An extension of time could be arranged for payment, if the owners so desire, and the City Clerk be instructed to advise these property owners accordingly.

Yours truly,

H. J. Armstrong, H. J. Clarke, Chairman of Finance. F. G. Chamberlain. Charles A. Mott, City Engineer.

15 Minute Service

Mr. Fred Rawson of the Rawson Bus lines was granted permission to conduct a 15 minute service on the West Hill. The bus will run along West Bridge Street to Dunbar St. thence along Dunbar pass Holloway Street United Church to Benjamin Street and then to Yeoman Street, down West Moira to Cedar and along to Front Street then along North Front to Grove and through Grove to Geddes and on to College Street and then along the regular route to the place of beginning. There being no further business the council adjourned.

I Display My Chinese Vocabulary

Not long after becoming acquainted with the Chinese I decided it might lead to a better understanding on my part if, in one swift hurdle, I could surmount the barrier of the babel of a foreign tongue and learn the language . . .

And learning Chinese is not something to be accomplished in six easy lessons. Under even ordinary circumstances I am not a good linguist. But when I started to learn Chinese I was in another world of strange sounds, even stranger meanings, and with nothing at all to cling to.

I have been told that there are over forty thousand Chinese words. The average person can get by very well with two thousand. Five thousand at his command will place a man in the well-read class . .

But that is only the beginning. You can say one word in seven different tonal inflections and with each inflection the meaning of the word changes. The result is that you really don't speak Chinese at all—you sing it!

So I studied Chinese and felt very proud of myself. My friends helped me, and were patient. I soon had a simple, working vocabulary, and displayed it on all occasions.

"Do you really speak Chinese?" my American friends would ask.

"Certainly," I would reply and roll off a few words. It was a wonderful parlor trick . .

Then one day I met my downfall.

It was at a tea given by the Drama League at the Hotel Pierre in New York City for the current celebrities of the theatrical season. All the stars were there, a few playwrights even, and among the guests of honor was Dr. S. I. Hsiung, a scholar from Peking, whose play, Lady Precious Stream, was being done that winter on Broadway.

Each guest of honor that day very nicely had someone to act as an official host. Did Dr. Hsiung speak English? Nobody knew for certain. Yet someone hinted timidly that if he had translated the old Chinese play into English he must know a word or two.

Then it was remembered that I knew "all about the Chinese, and speaks Chinese, too, like a native." So I was delegated to act as official host to Dr. Hsiung.

He arrived at the tea in good time, smiling and bland, clad in Chinese dress. His wife, a diminutive creature whose loveliness made everyone gasp with pleasure, was with him. I was introduced to Dr. Hsiung by the reception committee.

"He speaks Chinese," meaning me.

Silence fell. All the dowagers in Christendom, it seemed to me, gathered about breathless. They were eager to see an exhibition of Chinese good manners. "For the Chinese are a polite race you know."

It was up to me to put on an act. I bowed. Then I looked the learned and the scholarly Dr. Hsiung straight in the eye and without a single pause, rattled off quickly and briefly all the Chinese I knew. It sounded like a speech . .

Dr. Hsiung bowed gravely, gave me a gracious smile and then rattled off his reply in Chinese. I bowed again. He bowed . .

What I had said to Dr. Hsiung was "Good morning how are you. I am very well thank you how are you where are you going I am going home have you eaten rice today I have eaten I have not eaten yes no one two three four five six seven eight nine ten thank you please good luck Happy New Year present day very warm here is to your good health lobster Canton style in their shell."

Had I known more I would have said it.

Later I was alone with Dr. Hsiung and his wife and I asked him in English if he had understood what I had said.

He replied, in beautifully soft-spoken English, "No. Did you remember what I said?"

"No," I answered.

Then we both laughed.

That's one thing I like about the Chinese. They understand a joke and will never let you down—Reprinted from "Shake Hands With the Dragon," by Carl Glick, copyright 1941 by Whittlesey House, a division of McCraw-Hill Book Company, Inc.

For needy and destitute in war-torn lands . . .

In war-torn countries throughout the world, countless thousands of dazed and destitute people are today without adequate clothing, blankets or footwear. During six horror-filled years of war, the clothes on their backs have been worn to pitiful shreds.

The need is urgent — bitter winter weather is at hand. And the answer to the need lies largely in the clothes closets and attics of Canada—among the serviceable discarded wearing apparel that hangs there, idle and unused.

Look over your family's wardrobe — now! Pick out every garment you can possibly spare — overcoats, suits and dresses, underwear, sweaters and work clothes . . . anything in usable condition . . . anything out of date, out of fashion.

There are 125,000,000 men, women and little children in Europe alone who need your help—now! Will you do your share?

RAY HATHAWAY BETZEL'S CHOICE AGAINST BEARS

Newark Only Won Seven Games Out of [illegible]2 From Montreal This Season

Montreal, Sept. 25 (CP) — Ray Hathaway, whose two-hit performance Saturday, combined with Freddie Pfiefer's ninth inning fumble, enabled the Royals to down Baltimore 1-0 and remain in the playoffs, is managar Bruno Betzel's choice to face Newark Bears tonight in the postponed opening game of the best-of-seven final series for the International League's Governor's Cup. He will be opposed by right-hander Frank Hiller.

Lucky Tom Warren was slated to hurl for Montreal in last night's scheduled contest but the postponement brought a change of strategy and Betzel's decision to work Hathaway. Bill Meyer, Newark skipper, has Ray down as "the fellow who may give us trouble."

Meyer, in a pre-game interview made no secret of the fact that he would sooner have met the Baltimore Orioles than the Royals in the final series. The Bears trounced the Birds in 17 out of 22 games during the regular season but won only seven games out of their 22 with the Royals. Royals eliminated Baltimore in the semi-final series.

As for Montreal hitters, Meyer expressed the utmost respect for Roland Gladu and added that you have to be careful with a fellow like Red Durrett, "who is apt to hit the ball out of the park if you make a mistake with him."

Meyer and Betzel, though rival managers in the present series, once were jobbies with the Louisville Colonels. Meyer was said to have been a pretty fair catcher, while Betzel was a second baseman. They roomed together for years, both at home and abroad, and when Meyer got married, Betzel was best man. When Bruno marched to the altar a year or so later, Bill Meyer was the logical choice for toastmaster at the wedding party.

Their baseball careers later carried them along devious trails.

Both are ready for the fight. Betzel says:

"How am I going to battle the guy I used to room with for over 16 years? Well, I'm going to give him strictly the works. He plays the running type of baseball. We'll see if he can run on guys like Al Todd, and Gus Brittain and Charlie Ferrell."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Take your choice dept.—bringing the possible world series centre fielders front and centre:

Andy Pafko, Cubs — Last season the Cardinals' Billy Southworth tabbed Andy as the year's most promising rookie. This year he isn't just promising. As a kid Pafko used to push the clock ahead to get his brothers up in time to play ball. Now he'd probably like to push it ahead to the end of the season—with the Cubs still in the lead . . Buster Adams, Cardinals—shuffled off to the Phillies last year. Buster was brought back this spring. Somewhere along the road he apparently picked up the knack of home run hitting to go with his speed afoot...Doc Cramer, Tigers—a veteran rated as one of the game's greatest defensive outfielders, Cramer also has added some slugging to his repertory this season....Bingo Binks, Senators—he's the one lost that fly in the sun on Sunday, with the result that Washington likely will be dropped from further consideration in this space.

Billy Conn's first professional public appearance after he gets out of the army will be on Bob Hope's radio show.

Toronto, Sept. 25. (CP)—Perhaps Uncle Dan'l Parker of the New York Daily Mirror was a trifle premature when he started asking questions about the announcement last week that the rubber match between Tony Janiro of Youngstown, O., and Johnny Greco of Montreal, scheduled for last Friday, had been cancelled because of an infection in Janiro's left elbow.

Parker wanted to know how Promoter Mike Jacobs managed to arrange a substitute match between Chalky Wright and Humberto Zavala on such short notice. He was inquisitive, too, about the boil that caused Janiro to request a postponement—especially when, as Parker stressed, Janiro had been examined by a New York Boxing Commission physician two days before and found in perfect shape.

Well, Parker isn't in doubt any longer about the boil. It was unveiled for his special benefit, he said in a follow-up column, by Janiro's Manager Frankie Jacobs. The boil, "more cute than acute, but withal a beri", was perched on Janiro's left funny-bone "like the crater of Fujiyama".

"Whether boys such as Bat Nelson and Kid Broad would have called off a profitable match on the head (no pun) of such a gathering of foreign matter is something I couldn't answer, since I never asked them", says the apparently unrepentant Parker. "However, as official witness of the uncovering of this glorified pimple, I hereby attest that when Tony Janiro secured a postponement of this third fight with Johnny Greco from Friday night to Nov. 9, because of a beri, he had the authentic matter to back up his claim".

Around the Circuit.

Word that Tony Golab showed signs of strain in the late stages of his first big four football game after three years in the R.C.A.F. coincides with a tip from Ottawa that the Rough Riders ace, still carrying flak fragments in his back, may be a victim of war weariness. One informant quotes the Golden Boy as saying he "never felt worse" and another report says Tony is showing little enthusiasm for football. . . . Jack Shewchuck, defenceman for Boston's National Hockey League Bruins in the winter, won the Brantford-Norfolk Counties Golf tournament Saturday with a 75, three strokes over par. . . W.J.G. Macdiarmid, senior Canadian War Services officer for the Young Men's Christian Association, reports softball is top sport among Canadian troops still overseas, with volleyball a close second. In a recent one-month period, 92,398 uniformed men took part in Y-arranged softball games and 68,559 turned out for volleyball.

ATHLETICS WIN SENIOR ONTARIO LACROSSE TITLE

Defeat Brampton-Lakeshore Combines and Will Meet B. C. Champs Next Month

St. Catharines, Sept. 25. (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics last night captured the Senior Ontario and Eastern Canada Lacrosse championship by defeating Brampton-Lakeshore Combines 13-5 in the sixth game of a best-of-seven series.

Victory gave St. Catharines a 4-2 edge in the series and qualified them to meet the British Columbia champions at Vancouver next month in the Mann Cup final series. Athletics defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies in a bruising set for the Mann Cup last year.

Netminder Bill Whitaker, recently adjudged the league's most valuable player, dominated the contest with one of the greatest displays of his career of more than a decade. Whitaker held the sharpshooting combines scoreless through a 20-minute stretch in the second half.

Thorpe, Smith, Urquhart, and Mackie counted two goals apiece for St. Catharines, who finished the regular season in second place behind Brampton. Gord Gair led Combines with two tallies.

Last night's contest was billed as for the Eastern Canadian Championship because the Quebec Association has announced it would not challenge the Ontario champions.

Myers Sells Self To Coach Selkirk Of Toronto Argos

Toronto, Sept. 25 —(CP)— It's too bad for Ottawa Rough Riders that Billy Myers is a good salesman as well as a good football player, dressing-room chatter at the Toronto Argonaut training camp indicated last night.

The 21-year-old speedboy of the Argo half-line, whose two fourth-quarter touchdowns gave the Double Blue a thrilling 11-9 victory over Riders at Ottawa Saturday, injured his shoulder in a scrimmage last Wednesday and the club physician ordered him to rest.

But Billy, who wears contact lenses because of weak vision, talked Coach Ted Morris into letting him make the trip. Myers sat on the bench for the first three quarters of Saturday's game before Morris decided to gamble on using him.

Argos feel they were fortunate in defeating Riders, who fielded a starting team averaging about 200 pounds per player.

"I don't know how we stayed within 30 points of Trimble's (Coach Ross Trimble) giants," said Argo Manager Earl Selkirk. "They were terrific with first Tony Golab, then Ken Charlton and then Ace Powell smashing our wingline to bits. Fumbles saved our bacon on a few occasions when they were touchdown-bound."

Lloyd Waner, one of the onetime famous brothers with Pittsburgh Pirates, left fir his farm in Oklahoma yesterday after announcing he had hung up his baseball uniform for the last time. "Little Poison" weighing only 150 pounds, had been hurling them effectively for the past 18 years in the National League.

Waner will be with the Pittsburgh organization again next season, it was announced, but not in a playing capacity.

Jack (Spider) Armstrong, veteran Toronto lightweight knocked out Chuck Jackson of Manchester, N.H., last night at Fitchburg, in the fourth frame of what was to have been a 10-rounder.

Toronto Oakwood Indians, leaders of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, announced last night arrangements have been made for Indians to meet Toronto Balmy Beach under floodlights Friday at Maple Leaf stadium.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs opened their campaign today for the Intercollegiate Union senior football title they won in 1939 as coach Johnny Metras summoned 50 candidates for the team's first practice. Metras, who said an additional 25 candidates are expected today, estimated a week will be required to sort out "the possibles and the impossibles" for college football's first season since 1939.

Arthur King, Toronto negro featherweight, knocked out Maurice Auger of Montreal last night in the first round of a scheduled five-round bout on a boxing card at Toronto. King scored the knockout with the first solid punch he landed. A left hook to the stomach. In the 126-pound class, Roland Prairie of Montreal scored a fourth-round technical knockout over Jerry Downes of Belleville, Ont.

Patsy Zaccano, 141 1-2, of Montreal, did not last two rounds against Pat Scanlon, 141, of Ozone Park, N.Y., in a scheduled 10-round feature at Holyoke, Mass., last night. Scanlon claims a record of 78 ring victories during the past couple of years.

A Grand Gesture.

A great big bunch of orchids to Art Young and his Stewart-Warner-Alemite Corporation for their generous gesture in providing the cost of transportation and subsistence to the members and officials of the Belleville Junior Baseball Club in the long jaunt (650 miles) to Dresden and return over the weekend. Mr. Young was informed, or already knew that the youthful club was in dire circumstances from a financial point of view and faced losing the game by default if something wasn't done in a financial way.

Long an ardent baseball enthusiast and one who knows much more about the game than the ordinary fan, Mr. Young and his company generously offered to take the team and its officials on the long trip—and pay all expenses. And when you figure out gasoline for five cars for a 50-mile jaunt, plus hotel bills for a ball team and officials—well—brother—that just aint hay.

Players and officials alike were loud in their expressions of appreciation of the gesture today and Mr. Young and his company have won the sincere gratitude of the team. It was an expression of community work that is worthy of emulation, and an interest in the sports welfare of the city and its youth that has been sadly lacking for some time.

A Grand Finale.

Don Boyle's fine pitching arm aided and abbeted by some fine clubbing in the clutches by his mates, swept the Columbian Squires into the Junior O.A.S.A. finals here last night when they sunk the Toronto Mount Carmels under a 16-5 avalanche to clinch the third and final game of the semi-final series. . . .The youngster was good. He let down the Queen City prides with five hits and despite an injury when Fitzpatrick, his catcher, nailed him in the ribs with a fast throw to second that laid him low for the moment—and raised the hopes of the Carmelites—the kid like Phoenix rose from his accident and went on to win the best game of his softball career. The Columbian Squires, so we are told, play Hamilton in Hamilton next Saturday in the first game of the Ontario junior title series. . .The series terminated was a "rain" series, and for a moment last night it looked as though the teams would play another game. But Ole Sol came out in all his glory and that was the antidote for a lot of headaches for both managers. The Carmels were loose in the field, but the Squires took advantage of all the breaks that came their way. Their batting eyes were good in the clutches as witness the 7th when Goyer smacked out a triple with the sacks loaded. . . But to Don Boyle goes the honors. The flipper was good and he did a noble job. . .His support was excellent although at times it wobbled a bit. . .Even the big Goyer was guilty of a miscue. . . But that is past history. So, on to Hamilton—and the title.

Protest Committee Already Has Work

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP)—The Protest Committee of the Ontario Rugby Football Union will meet today in Hamilton to consider a protest lodged by Hamilton Wildcats following their 6-4 defeat by Toronto Oakwood Indians, O.R.F.U. Secretary Harold Bailey said last night.

Wildcats claim a fourth-quarter placement attempt by George (Scotty) Wright, ruled a single point by the officials when the ball rolled to the deadline, should have been declared good for three points.

The placement, if declared good would have tied the score 6-6.

Detroit Tigers Can be Sure Of Tie in American League By Winning a Game From Indians

Chicago Cubs Must Also Win One From Cards to Ensure Team Winning National Flag

By JACK HAND

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Will Harridge and Ford Frick might well devote some time today to the interesting possibility of a pennant tie in either or both major leagues as the top contenders enter the final nerve-gnawing six days.

It's never happened before and probably won't this time but if Detroit loses three of its last four and the St. Louis Cardinals sweep two more from Chicago the confusion will be knee-deep.

Best chance for a deadlock is in the American where Washington has finished its season and has nothing more to do than wait and pray for the Tigers to get knocked over by Cleveland and St. Louis. When Harridge rejected their protest of Sunday's first game the Senators' last chance to gain was snuffed out.

Steve O'Neill has a chance to be sure of at least a tie by beating Cleveland today in the opener of a two-game set and he has nominated Al Benton to do the job. If the big fellow wins, it will be Hal Newhouser tomorrow to apply the clincher.

At least the Tigers won't see any more of Bobby Feller who faced them three times since he came out of the navy. Rapid Robert worked against Chicago Sunday and won't be ready for the two with Hank Greenberg and Co.

The Cub-Cardinal two-day series opening at Wrigley Field today is loaded with World Series possibilities for the gallant stretch drive of the champion Red Birds has caught the fancy of the public.

Beaten 15 times in 20 starts by Billy Southworth's gang, the Cubs now are only 1½ games ahead of St. Louis. The Cubs are faced with the necessity of winning at least one of the two games or dropping out of the lead for the first time since July 8.

2 Liberated POW Drafts Coming in Oct.

Ottawa, Sept. 25 (CP) — Two further drafts of liberated Canadian prisoners of war from the Far East are due to arrive at San-Francisco Oct. 13 and 14, defence headquarters announced Monday.

The drafts will arrive on the vessels Joeph Dyckman, carrying 13 officers and 32 other ranks, and the Admiral Hughes, carrying 13 officers and 147 other ranks.

Headquarters also announced that 67 liberated prisoners arrived at Vancouver Monday from San Francisco.

SCOTTY WRIGHT CLOSELY PRESSED IN SCORING RACE

Arnie McWatters and Billy Myers Add to Totals After Saturday's Games

Toronto, Sept. 25. (CP)—Arnie McWatters and Billy Myers scooted past the opposition to score two touchdowns each in the Eastern Canada Senior football picture Saturday but the brilliant displays weren't good enough to oust Scotty Wright from the individual scoring lead.

A compilation last night by The Canadian Press showed that Scotty, veteran kicking half with Hamilton Wildcats of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, piled up 13 points in the two games played by the Cats. He kicked all four points as Hamilton lost a desperate 6-4 battle with Toronto Indians in Hamilton Saturday. The previous week he rang up nine counters, including the first touchdown of his lengthy career, when the Cats walloped Windsor.

McWatters, another veteran who both plays for and coaches Ottawa Trojans in the O.R.F.U., scored all but one of the Trojan points as Toronto Balmy Beach, making their seasonal debut, walloped Ottawa 24-11 in Toronto..

Myers, native of Saint John, N.B., pulled down two forward passes to amass his ten points as the big four season opened after a four-year wartime blackout with Toronto Argonauts sweeping to a dramatic, last-minute decision over the Rough Riders in Ottawa.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 790
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is no magic to expert bridge plays. Comparisons, percentages, and simple mathematics decide the safest plans. Experience helps remind the player of the safety play to select.

At a no-trump contract, declarer always looks first for all the tricks he can surely take without losing a trick. Then he looks for the safest plays that may bring in the balance he needs.

If necessary to establish a suit, he determines the entries he needs and the probable division of the outstanding cards in that suit. This tells him whether he must give away a trick quicker or later.

See what you have up your sleeve in this deal:

NORTH
♠9 3
♥8 5 4 2
♦A Q J 4 3
♣7 3

WEST	EAST
♠10 7 5	♠8 6 4 2
♥J 10 9 6	♥Q 7 3
♦K 5	♦8 7 6 2
♣Q 10 8 5	♣J 9

SOUTH
♠A K Q J
♥A K
♦10 9
♣A K 6 4 2

South is declarer at a six no-trump contract. West leads a heart. Declarer can see nine cinch top tricks; four in spades, two in hearts, one in diamonds, two in clubs.

Somehow he must contrive to take three more. It is not possible to do so in diamonds. So, he must first work the diamonds. Simple reckoning.

With outstanding cards, an odd number most often divides equally as possible; an even number, unequally. With opponents having six (even number) diamonds, expect them to split four and two.

One opponent with four diamonds will block the fourth round of that suit. Then, dummy will not have an entry for making good the fifth diamond. Declarer must be willing to lose a diamond right off the bat. He must save his second diamond for the dummy entry.

South wins the first heart trick and leads a diamond. West covers with the king. Instead of winning with dummy diamond ace, however, let west keep that trick. After that, dummy is entered with a second lead of diamonds and the rest is in the bag.

Put the profits in war bonds.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop took me for a ride in the car on account of him still feeling like celebrating the sensation of being able to get all the gas he wanted even if he has to pay for it, and all of a sudden he had to stop on account of the cars in front of him stopping and the man behind us started to honk his horn like anything, and I said, G, pop, what's he honking for, you cant do anything about it till the other cars move first.

That's just what the poor deluded honker cant imagine, pop said. He belongs to the great tribe of drivers who believe that every other motorist is an incurable moron whose sole object in life is to block traffic without the slightest justification. Well, let him honk and get hot under the collar and red in the face and hard in the arteries. He's not going to make me mad and ruin my appetite by upsetting the even flow of my duckless glands. I'm one of the few filosophical drivers who can make allowances for other men behind other wheels, even for the unfortunate specimen who's doing all the honking behind me, because it's not his fault that he wasn't even in the building when common sense was handed out, pop said.

Which just then the cars all started again, and pretty soon pop had to jam on his brakes on account of some man in a red car cutting in ahead of us and wizzing around the corner, pop saying, Well of all the moronic murderers, I'd like to puntch that idiot's nose as flat as his brains.

Well jimminy, pop, maybe he had a reason too, I said. Maybe he was trying to keep from running over a dog, or maybe somebody in his house is so sick he has to get a docter quick even if he has an accident doing it, I said, and pop said, Maybe nothing, it's just soft headedness to make excuses for inexcusible assinine dolts that turn driving into a curse instead of a pleasure.

And he talked to himself mad about 3 more minutes and I stayed filosophical.

Proving the people that cant drive are probably the only ones that never get mad about it.

GERMANS HAD

The invasion plan called for the two beachheads of Army Group "A" to link up and the first main objective was a line running northeast from Portsmouth toward Aldershot and Guildford, then eastward to Leatherhead where Canadian headquarters was located and on through Caterham to Gilbury on the Thames Estuary.

British and Canadian forces were to be smashed in the Hedgerow country of Kent, Sussex and Surrey and the Germans then intended to drive ahead of their second objective — a line from Colchester on the east to the mouth of the Severn north of Bristol on the west.

London was to be cut off and strong mobile forces would then break through to occupy the important coastal towns and industrial areas of the Midlands.

The code name for the invasion was to be "Sealion."

No D-Day Date Mentioned

These enemy documents disclose that the earliest top-secret warning order from German general headquarters to the 16th Army was sent out Aug. 17, 1940, but no D-day was given in the warning. The order merely said the "date will be set later." An invasion operation order prepared by Army Group "A" in September was also found.

During this threatening period of late August and September, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton was commanding the composite British-Canadian 7th Corps which was the Southeast England anti-invasion force.

A fully-equipped 1st Canadian Division stationed in the Caterham-Reigate area due north of Brighton was prepared to launch immediate counter-attacks against any landing. The 2nd Canadian Division had just arrived from Canada and was at Aldershot. It would have been committed rapidly for action because defending forces were extremely thin throughout the area at that time.

Columbian Squires in Finals Of Junior O.A.S.A. Defeating Toronto Team in 3rd Game 16-5

Team Will Proceed to Hamilton on Saturday for First Game of Finals

Don Boyle, Columbian Squires' pitching ace, whipped back into form last evening and in one of his best hurling exhibitions of the season turned back the Toronto Mount Carmels 16-5 to annex the third and deciding game for the O.A.S.A. junior semi-final championship at the Alemite Field.

The youthful hurler had the visitors practically eating out of his hand during the entire piece despite the fact that a fast relay from Fitzpatrick, Squires' catcher, to second, knocked him out temporarily in the seventh. However he came back as strong as ever and went on to win in easy fashion. He whiffed nine and walked three.

The Carmels were blanked for five innings getting only two hits in that period. Then Boyle paved the way himself for three visiting runs when he made a bad throw to first to get a runner. Two Carmelites got on board and Choma poled a homer through second base for three runs. The Mounts got their remaining pair of markers in the eighth on a hit and an error.

Steadily Pecked at Offerings.

The Squires bats pecked steadily at the offerings of the Carmels starting hurler, Gorman, hitting one run in each of the first, third and fourth innings. A pair of walks, a couple of well placed bunts and Bunton's double in the fifth were responsible for four Squire runs and the game was tucked away.

They broke out again in the seventh with four solid smacks aided by two Mount Carmel errors and sent eight runners galloping across the plate. Vern Goyer was the hero of the innings, when he drove a towering triple to left field with the bases loaded.

That was the end of Gorman and the Carmels rushed Wolf into the pitching breach. They nicked him for a pair of hits before the side was retired and scored another run in the eighth on a walk, an error and two infield outs.

Goyer with a triple and a single led the Squires attack with J. Wardaugh, Fitzpatrick, Bunton and Culkin getting two each and Rollins, Donovan and H. Wardaugh donating singles to the cause.

Choma and his homer (no poetry intended) were the batting highlight of the Carmels hit parade with Barbaza, Gorman, Wolf and English hitting singles.

The Squires will go to Hamilton on Saturday to take on the junior prides of the Ambitious City in the first game of the Ontario junior softball championship.

The score:

Mount Carmel	000 003 020—	5	5	5
Belleville	101 140 81x—	16	13	4

The teams:

Squires — J. Wardhaugh, Rollins, Fitzpatrick, Goyer, Bunton, Boyle, Donovan, Culkin, H. Wardhaugh.

Mount Carmel — Hort, Barbaza, Gorman, Holpe, LeMore, Mantel, Choma, Wolf, Piccinnini, Nichols, Strojuk, English.

Umpires:
Chris, Toronto; Thomas, Belleville.

Twelve-Man Rugby Will Replace The Six-Man Style COSSA Decides

N. A. "Pete" Beach Elected President at Annual Meeting; Looks Like Good Season

N. A. (Pete) Beach, Albert College athletic director, was elected president of the Bay of Quinte section of the C.O.S.S.A. at the annual meeting held in the Collegiate last night. Vice president is Miss Morton (B.C.I. and V.S.) and secretary-treasurer is T. E. Moffat, Tweed.

Present were Les Shiels, B.C.I.; Mr. Clare, O.S.D.; Mr. Frost, Trenton; Miss Leverence, O.S.D.; Miss McCormick, Trenton; Miss Morton, B.C.I.; Mr. Townsend, B.C.I., and Mr. Doran, St. Michael's.

Conveners appointed are N. A. Beach, rugby; Mr. Clare, hockey; Mr. Doran, boys' basketball; Miss McCormick, girls' basketball.

During the several discussions the section decided that 12-man rugby would be played as will be in the northern section of the group which embraces Madoc, Marmora, Tweed and Stirling. Entries made at the meeting included: Senior 12-man rugby, Trenton and Albert College; Junior 12-man rugby, St. Michael's, Belleville C. I., and V.S. and Albert College. Picton and other schools of the southern section have until September 29 to forward entries if they so desire.

Hockey and basketball were the topics for discussion and the general consensus was that interest is increasing generally in these sports and a larger number of entries than usual will be forwarded.

The meeting declared itself as not being in favor of lowering the junior age to under 16 on September 1st. At present it is under 17 as at Sept. 1st.

A discussion took place on awarding crests to the teams leading at the time junior rugby and hockey schedules were postponed last year. It was decided that as no champions had been declared and no arrangements made to give crests to the leading teams, none would be awarded.

The financial statement showed that the section has a credit of $6.50.

O'Neill to Use Benton Against Cleveland Team

Detroit, Sept. 25 (AP)—Jittery Detroit Tigers today called on former Sailor Al Benton to assure them of at least a tie for the American League pennant by beating Cleveland Indians in the opener of an all-important two-game series here this afternoon.

The navy veteran, hard luck man of the Tiger pitching staff, has not finished in his last 11 starts, but Manager Steve O'Neil of Detroit gave him the choice assignment, commenting, "I know he can win."

The big right-hander sported a record of 13 wins and seven losses as he prepared to hook up in a pitching duel with Allie Reynolds, a 19-11 winner for the Indians.

The Tigers, still mindful of the 1944 season when they stayed in the thick of the pennant fight until the last day of the season, put in an extra practice session Monday, sharpening up their batting eyes for today's tussle.

The Detroiters' batting attack looked pretty sad on their last appearance Sunday, as Nelson Potter of the Brownies blanked them 5-0 but O'Neill said he figured the Bengals were due to break out with a rash of base hits that would cinch the pennant.

The Indians and Tigers have equally divided the 20 games they have played this season, with Benton holding a 1-1 record for his own jousts with the Ohio club.

Soviet Ambassador Calls for Removal Of Francis Franco

New York, Sept. 25 — (AP) — Nikolai Novikov acting Soviet ambassador to the United States, called last night for the removal of Gen. Francisco Franco as head of the Spanish government and said he should be tried "as a war criminal."

Novikov, charge d'affaires of the Soviet Embassy in Washington and acting ambassador in the absence of Andrei Gromyko, addressed 17,000 persons at a Madison Square Garden rally sponsored by the Spanish Republican government in exile.

Prof. Harold J. Laski, chairman of the British Labor party's executive committee, addressing the rally by radio from London, urged the democracies to withdraw their recognition of the Franco regime and recognize the Spanish government-in-exile, now functioning in Mexico.

The Russian representative said Franco, through actions against the Soviet Union, had "put himself on the same level with Hitler and Mussolini and, in the same measure as they, is subject to prosecution as a war criminal."

Laski, emphasizing that he was speaking "in a purely personal capaocaan capacity as a private citizen," said in his address "our duty is to withdraw recognition from Franco. Even though it is in exile, the republic is still in being.

"Our peoples did not make immense sacrifices in this war to perpetuate either a tyranny like that of Franco, or the unedifying mythology of the Vatican-sponsored king of Spain, training hastily to learn the vocabulary of the four freedoms, while making it painfully evident he finds no meaning in the words."

MINISTERS SWING

decline in hog production were to blame, said Canada's 1945 hog output, down from 1944 was the peak of which Canada was capable under normal conditions.

The high 1944 production was made possible by the huge crop of oats and barley produced in 1942. This created surplus which made possible not only peak Canadian production but high production in the United States.

Now, however, the situation was that at the start of the 1945-46 crop year there was a carry-over of only two-months feed supply and the smallest crop of coarse grains in western Canada since 1937.

The government had tried to place earnings from livestock on the same basis as earnings from grain. In asking farmers to take stock of their situations, it had reminded them that until recently it had not been easy to market all wheat produced but there was a market for every pound of livestock.

Got to Have Grain.

"So we have said the tendency ought to be to get down on wheat and up on feed grain and livestock production," said Mr. Gardiner. "But no farmer can produce more livestock without grain and I can say to the House now, without fear of contradiction from any farmer in Canada, that unless we have a more bountiful crop in the summer of 1946 than we had in summer of 1945 it will be absolutely impossible for the farmers to increase their livestock production before the end of 1946."

Expected to End Today.

"If more than 300,000 children in Europe are threatened with death this year, the question of whether there should or should not be rationing should not worry us very much if we feel that rationing will provide them with more food," said Mr. Gardiner.

The Throne Speech debate is expected to end today after 12 days of talk in the first and major debate of the new parliament. Prior to resumption yesterday, Justice Minister St. Laurent said he had received petitions from the Dominion Loan and Mortgage Board, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Hudson's Bay Company, asking for disallowance of four acts passed by the Saskatchewan C.C.F. government within the last year.

Acts in Dispute.

The acts were the Farm Security Act; the Mineral Taxation Act of 1944 and its Amending Act of 1945 and the local Government Board Special Powers Act. Oral representatives of the loan and mortgage firm would be heard Oct 11 and those of the C.P.R. Oct. 15. The Hudson's Bay Company had not asked to make oral representations.

Mr. Ilsley, making a long-awaited statement on meat rationing based on requests from members, said impatience with rationing arose from a feeling the war was over, but while the shooting had stopped the consequences of war still were present.

Mr. Ilsley said the figures he had collected were not new but might not have all been put together in a single statement before.

Canada Gave Word.

Following the tripartite meat conference at Washington recently, he said, Canada agreed to send an additional amount of meat to the United Kingdom and liberated countries above the amount previously contracted for.

This would bring total shipments up to 789,000,000 pounds, made up of 225,000,000 of beef, 450,000,000 of pork and 114,000,000 of canned meats. Actual shipments in 1944 were a total of 860,000,000 pounds, made up of 129,000,000 pounds of beef, 692,000,000 of pork and 39,000,000 pounds of canned meats.

Mr. Ilsley said slaughtering of beef, veal and mutton in the first eight months of this year totalled 1,180,000,000 pounds, a drop of 207,000,000 pounds below such slaughterings in inspected plants in the corresponding months of last year.

Export requirements were about 70,000,000 pounds below shipments of last year.

Little Meat in Storage.

Meat in storage in Canada at Sept. 1 was approximately 49,000,000. This compared with 70,000,000 on the corresponding date of last year. When rationing was discontinued Feb. 28, 1944, meat in storage was 150,000,000 pounds.

Due to heavy cattle runs of the last few weeks sharp freezing facilities into which meat to be frozen must first be placed were being used close to capacity and in some localities there was congestion but it was expected this situation would be cleared up this week.

"There are no serious problems in respect of ordinary holding cold storage space," Mr. Ilsley said.

"At the moment cattle runs are at an all time high. The inspected kill for the week ending Sept. 1, 1945 was 41,477 which set a new record. For the week ending Sept. 15 the figure increased to 46,293. As long as there is reasonably orderly marketing of cattle, it appears that the slaughtering facilities of the country are adequate to handle the expected slaughterings of cattle which for the last six months of 1945 are estimated at about 900,000 head."

Considerably Below 1944.

Hog slaughterings would continue to be considerably below the record figures of 1944.

"With respect to transportation facilities the United Kingdom Ministry of Food is prepared and able to provide ample shipping for all the meats we can export," Mr. Ilsley said. "The supply of refrigerator cars for movement to seaboard also presents nd difficulties. There is therefore no reason to anticipate the kind of bottlenecks that occurred early in 1944.

"For the current year 1945 meat consumption per capita has been running at the rate of 145 pounds per annum. The scale of rationing is designed to reduce consumption to the annual rate of about 130 pounds per capita. This is about 12 per cent below 1944 but about 12 per cent above pre-war."

Mr. Ilsley said to understand why the government imposed meat rationing it was necessary to look at the background and at Canada's wartime relations with her Allies.

Dependent on Other Countries.

During the war Canada had been dependent on other countries for many essential things not produced in sufficient quantities here, such as coal, gasoline, and cotton from the United States; sugar from the United States and parts of the British Empire.

"Our Allies and partners have treated us with great fairness," said the minister. They had all operated on the principle that as far as possible there should be equality of sacrifice all round.

Mr. Ilsley said the obligations of Canada to other countries in the matter of food were not specific. It was not easy to spell them out in detail.

"If, however, we are to carry out both the letter and the spirit of our commitments," he said, "it is obvious that we must make efforts to provide as much meat as we can."

Should See Job Through.

"This ration ought not to be a quitter," he said. "This nation should see the job through to the end. You cannot say that we have seen the job through to the end when you have conditions such as I have described in so many of the liberated countries of Europe.

(A ration equivalent to one thin slice of ham a week is in force in France, one fifth of a pound in Holland, no meat at all in Greece and Yugoslavia.)

"I think our people are disposed to look at it that way. If one were to get out his pencil and try to prove mathematically that we would, in the short run or the long run, gain materially by cutting consumption of meat from 145 pounds to 135 pounds per person he might not be able to prove it.

Adding to Heritage.

"But when we act in character, when we keep our word, when we fulfill our obligations, when we act with humaneness and charity to other countries, when we help not only Canada but the world to some extent to get on its feet, I am sure that we are really adding to what I may call the national heritage. We are giving ourselves and our children and our children's children just cause to have pride in the fact that they are Canadians. We are making the name of Canada honored and respected."

Other members, speaking on a variety of topics ranging from the government's wheat policy to reforestation, were heard. They were Roland Beaudry (L—Montreal St. James); Anthony Hlynka (SC—Vegreville); Harry Jackman (PC—Toronto Rosedale); C. E. Stephenson (PC—Durham); Jean Lesage (L—Montmagny-L'Islet); E. G. McCullough (CCF-Assiniboia) and D. J. McCuag (CCF—Maple Creek).

Mr. Hlynka asked that the Canadian government urge Britain and the United States not to force displaced persons in Europe to return to the Russian sphere of occupation, he said many persons were committing suicide rather than return to their countries under Russian occupation.

SKELETON COACHES IN BOMBED RAILYARD

This railroad station in Yokohama was put out of business by accurate bombings by B-29 Superfortresses. From this point the Japs sent materials of war to their far-flung empire and moved troops to various fronts. All that remains now of this once-busy centre are the skeletons of railroad coaches, blasted freight cars, twisted steel rails and bomb-gutted station house.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 23

Hazel had already said goodby to her fiance and she told herself she couldn't leave quickly enough. Folly and Bruce would be next. . . Nice that they could be married first. In a way it would make the separation harder but at least Folly would have the right to his name. It would have meant a lot to have been Mrs. Charles Gates instead of a lonely heartbroken girl who might never again see the man she loved. But one mustn't think about that.

Hilton left soon after dinner but Folly and Bruce sat in the drawing room discussing their plans until nine o'clock that night. They would be married at home with no one but her family present and leave that same evening for Santa Barbara. Folly was surprised to see how differently both sisters treated her since her return. As if by supporting herself she had established her right to their respect.

Marta asked, "What will you wear, Folly?" as if she had not bought the pale blue suit which hung in Folly's closet.

Folly Back Home

"I don't see why I shouldn't wear the blue suit," Folly said. "I seem to have been saving it for something."

With equal uncertainty they consulted her wishes about coming home.

"It would be nice," Hazel said wistfully. "If you could stay here until I leave."

"I don't see why I shouldn't," Folly agreed. "After all it will only be a week. When Bruce and I come back we'll take an apartment until he has to go."

When she had gone, Hazel said to Marta, "Isn't it strange how mature Folly seems? You wouldn't believe two months on her own would have made such a difference."

"I'm beginning to realize that we did her a great injustice," Marta said thoughtfully. "All the time we were making sacrifices for her we were really limiting her experience to our own narrow little world."

"We thought we were protecting her," Hazel reminded her. "Don't start worrying about it, darling!"

Waits for Hilton.

Hazel felt sorry for Marta who would soon be left in the house alone. Hazel suspected that Marta had been suffering over Hilton. She knew the long extra hours of work had been a strain upon Marta's nerves and vitality. But these were days when one did not complain. To have unfilled time was a disgrace.

"It's better for her to be busy," Hazel thought saying affectionately, "Coming to bed now?"

Marta flushed.

"I thought I'd listen to the radio for awhile."

Hazel said, "Goodnight then. I'm trying to catch up on a lot of lost sleep."

After her sister had gone upstairs Marta turned on the radio but she was listening for the sound of Hilton's car. If only he would come home early tonight so that she might talk to him for a few moments. She had been so miserable since their misunderstanding. She could not endure another night of it.

It seemed hours but was only a little after ten when she heard his car drive into the garage. Marta waited until she heard the heavy doors close and his tread up the outside steps. Her heart was rocking against her ribs. She hoped he would see the light and come in of his own accord but Hilton went into his own room. And a moment later Marta was calling him on the telephone.

They Meet Again.

Thinking it was Evelyn whom he had just left checking up on him he answered brusquely.

"It's me, Marta," she said nervously.

His tone changed to one of cautious politeness.

"Yes, Marta, what can I do for you?"

"May I speak to you for a few moments?" she faltered. "I mean will you come in here?"

"Why not?" he replied but there was no joyous acceptance of her invitation. She could speak her piece if she wished but Hilton had no intention of making it easy for her, Marta lifted her head. All right, if he wanted to be unkind. She would be too proud to let him know she cared. When he appeared in the drawing room his casual attitude was a bit overdone but Marta was too confused to see behind the smoke screen of his indifference.

"May I light my pipe?" he asked politely.

"Yes, of course! I won't keep you long," she assured him.

An Apology.

"I just wanted to tell you that I know now how right you were in what you said to Folly. She admits it herself and I've never seen a girl so changed. It was very unkind of me to blame you as I did but I was frantic with worry."

"I told you she could take care of herself," he said, drawing on his pipe.

"I know you did," she admitted humbly.

"As a matter of fact I followed Folly the night she ran away. When I saw her going to the Women's Hotel I knew she was using her head. It was simple then to get in touch with Bruce and have him appear to run into her. I knew she wouldn't have anything to do with me but I felt she might take my suggestions through him. . ."

"Then you knew where she was all the time and didn't tell us?" Marta asked beginning to be angry again.

"I didn't want you to know, Marta. At that point it would have ruined everything."

"Yes, perhaps it would," Marta could say that now after talking to the new Folly.

Marta's large gray eyes surveyed Hilton wistfully searching for some evidence of his former ardent affection but his expression was cold.

There must be some one else. She no longer held an intimate place in his heart. So although he said, "Think nothing of it, Marta. I can understand how you felt. Naturally you were upset and after all I had no right to interfere in your affairs even if I did it with the best intentions."

She had hoped he was going to say it was because he loved her but it was obvious that no such idea was in his mind.

Another Woman?

He rose saying, "For your sake I'm glad she came home before she was married."

She said faintly, "Then everything is all right between us again? I mean the way it used to be."

"Everything is okay," he said heartily.

Marta knew it wasn't true. She told herself she deserved it but she hadn't believed a man could recover so quickly. She should have known it after her experience with Jim, who married someone else only a few weeks after proposing to Marta.

Hilton had been on the verge of proposing to her, too. She knew that. Only another woman could have changed him so quickly. Why couldn't he understand that her own denunciation of him was because she had been falling in love with him, too; neglecting her duty to Folly or what she thought was her duty.

In spite of Folly's reappearance Marta went to bed depressed. During the past two months it had not occurred to her that Hilton would not be glad to return at any moment she chose to forgive him. His attitude tonight proved how wrong she had been. No matter how genial their relationship on the surface Marta suspected that it would never be the same between them again.

During the week which followed she had little time to think about it. Folly came home the next evening to the delight of Chan who carried her suitcases proudly upstairs to the sewing room. And immediately preparations were made for the wedding which was to take place on Friday afternoon.

Folly and Bruce were married in the drawing room before a fireplace filled with green branches, flanked by tall vases of lilies. There were white candles on the mantlepiece, roses spilling from crystal containers all over the room. But the bride who was the first to be married in the old house wore neither veil nor white satin. She was sufficiently bridelike in the pale blue suit with her soft dark curls rippling beneath the blue feather hat and corsage of white orchids no more delicate than her lovely face.

Sisters in Tears.

It brought tears into the eyes of her sisters to look at her. She was so young and fair yet so sure of herself. Marta squeezed Hazel's hand and pressed a handkerchief against her lips. Lowered vitality and strain had disturbed the poise which had been one of Marta's most admirable characteristics. Hazel, whose suffering had been alleviated by periods of intense joy, was calmer. But she could not refrain from thinking. "It might have been us. But if it had Charles would be gone just the same and then what would I do?" Hilton staring at Bruce whose jolly face was for once entirely sober was thinking the same thing. "It could have been me but it's much better this way."

Of all the witnesses Chan was the only one whose entire attention was concentrated on the bride. How beautiful she was! If she had been his own daughter he could not have been more proud of her. Her marriage to that spy would have been a tragic mistake but this young, fresh-faced soldier would make her a good husband. He would be good to her without spoiling her. Her sisters had indulged her too much, giving her art lessons, encouraging her to draw one-eyed ladies covered only with feathers and flowers. Serenely disregarding his own part in catering to her whims Chan fervently wished that some day when this war was over he might live in Missee Folly's home and raise her babies—a task he was sure she would not be capable of handling.

And now the ceremony was over and everyone kissed the bride except the old man who waited in the background until Folly called to him.

"Aren't you going to give us your blessing, Chan? You're partly responsible for this you know."

TRANSPORT REPORTED MISSING

Auckland, New Zealand, Sept. 25 —(CP Cable)— A R.N.Z.A.F Dakota transport with 21 airmen aboard has been reported missing in the South Pacific. The plane—due to arrive here Monday afternoon from Espiritu Santo, New Hebrides—was last heard from, at 10 a.m. yesterday and at latest report was 24 hours overdue.

11,000 R.C.A.F. Aircrew Reserve Finally Released

Ottawa, Sept. 25 (CP) — Eleven thousand members of the R.C.A.F., transferred from active service to the air force's trained aircrew reserve when the defeat of Germany lessened aircrew requirements, are ow finally released from the service, Air Minister Gibson announced last night.

Even though their full documentation was completed when they were transferred to the trained aircrew reserve, they were not at that time finally released. Mr. Gibson said, however, that now with announcement of their release from service, no action by the individual is necessary to assure his status.

All former personnel of the trained aircrew reserve, as well as all other members of the reserve, will shortly be given the opportunity of "re-engaging if they so desire, for continuing service during the transition period until September 30, 1947," Mr. Gibson's statement said.

"The purpose of such continued service is to meet the requirements of the R.C.A.F. during the period following the end of hostilities and the ultimate organization of the post-war (regular) air force. Those who have so served will be gievn special consideration for enlistment or appointment to such permanent force."

The minister's statement reminded trained aircrew reserve men, now they are released, they are required as from today to apply within three months for their former civilian job if they so desire and if they are to have the protection of the reinstatement in Civil Employment Act. Also, they now are automatically eligible for all other benefits which accrue to released R.C.A.F. personnel.

Taxes Must Not Be Wet Blanket Says Jackman

Ottawa, Sept. 25 (CP)—Harry Jackman, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Rosedale said yesterday in the Commons that he regretted the principles at least to be followed in the forthcoming budget had not been communicated to the House.

The budget had a great deal to do with jobs. It should place emphasis on production by restoring incentive for increased production.

(Finance Minister Ilsley said in the Commons last week that he could not give a date on which the budget would be brought down. There has been speculation on Parliament Hill, however, that it might be brought down before the ninth Victory Loan opens Oct. 22.

"Taxes must not be a wet blanket on production or incentive," said Mr. Jackman.

So far as the remainder of the present year was concerned there was not much need of tax reduction except in the lower income brackets. But for 1946 there had to be a real promise of removing taxes from incentive if business men were to do the planning and give the leadership that was necessary for full employment.

"Present taxation leads to state socialism," he said. "Nothing could lead there more directly or more quickly than present taxation, if long continued."

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP) — Industrial, base metal and western oil stocks had gains this afternoon on Toronto exchange, while golds were down narrowly. Volume was down from Monday at 1,109,000 shares.

Eldona weakened to 1.45 and recovered to 1.65 for a net gain of 2 cents. Donalda and Senator were down a cent or two.

Smelters and Labrador were stronger base metals and Uranium was off 20 cents to 1.95.

The steel, brewery and miscellaneous industrial stocks had a margin of modest gains. Canadian Car pfd. and Canadian Food Products added 2 points.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 25—(AP)— Buying of rails, steels and air transports helped the stock market pull out of a rut today, and while exceptions were plentiful, favorites touched eight-year peaks with gains of fractions to around two points.

Prominent on the advance were N. Y. Central, Union U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Studebaker, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Goodrich, Anaconda, American Smelting, American Airlines, Eastern Airlines, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont and Texas Co.

Canadian issues met some support at midday. Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore each were up ¼ while Dome Mines gained ⅛.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 25 — (CP)—Cattle trade was slow at steady prices and hogs, calves, lambs and sheep sold steady up to mid-session on the livestock market here today.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were:— cattle 600, calves 300, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 700. Unsold from yesterday were 2,500 head of cattle and 1,000 lambs.

Prices in the trade included:

Cattle: butcher steers $10-$11, heifers $10.50 down, a few boners $6.50-$8, butcher cows $7.25-$9.00, canners and cutters $5-7. bulls $6.50-$9, stockers $8-10.25.

Calves: $13.50-14 for choice, common vealers downward to $8, grassers $7.50-8.

Lambs: $13.50-$14 good ewes and wethers, $12.50-$13 bucks, $9-$10 culls.

Sheep: $2.50-7.50.

Hogs: dressed, grade A $18, grade B1 $17.60, sows $14.50.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 25 —(CP)— Prices were unchanged in trading today on the livestock markets. Receipts: Cattle 112; sheep and lambs 267; hogs 164; calves 91.

Management of the markets stated that, due to the retail butchers' strike, which closed most shops, local dealers were not anxious to buy, claiming that their coolers were filled up.

Quality of cattle offerings was very plain. Just medium quality steers sold at 10-11. Heifers ranged from 6 to a top of 10. The good cows on sale were offered at 8.50-9, medium were 7.25-8.25 and canners and cutters 5-6. Good bulls brought 8-9 and common 6 up.

Calves were largely inactive, with veals offered from 10-14 and drinkers and grassers from 5-8.75. Ewes and wethers offered at 13-13.50, bucks 12-12.50, medium 9-11 and culls 2-7.

Sheep were 3-6.60.

Buyers bid 18 for hogs and sows were 15-16 dressed.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 25 — (CP) — Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today: London $17.35 plus transportation; Peterboro $17.10 plus transportation; Hull $17.75 delivered; all grade A. Peterboro reported sows $13.50 plus transportation.

Edmund Silcox Killed When Hit by Auto

Toronto, Sept. 25. (CP)—Edmund Silcox, 22-year-old son of Rev. C. E. Silcox, of Toronto, was killed last night when struck by an automobile as he adjusted his motorcycle on a North Toronto street. Police said the driver of the automobile which struck Silcox, a fourth-year medical student at the University of Toronto, was Sidney Barnes, Toronto, who has been charged with careless and dangerous driving.

While police were removing wreckage of the motorcycle two automobiles collided at the same spot injuring one of the occupants slightly.

Cobalt's Mayor Sees Boom Ahead For Cobalt Area

Cobalt, Ont., Sept, 25 —(CP)— Mayor Calvin Taylor said that Cobalt is on the verge of a boom because of an announced increase by the United States in the price of imported silver.

Noting that the U. S. had boosted the price from 45 cents in U.S. funds to 71.11 cents an ounce and that the Prices Board in Canada had fixed the Canadian price at 40 cents, Taylor said that "mining promoters, however, have picked up every available bit a space in the city in anticipation of relaxation of the Canadian regulation."

"There isn't an abandoned silver mine shaft for sale in this district," the Mayor added.

Urges Dentists To Show Interest In Dental Affairs

Ottawa, Sept. 25 —(CP)— Dr. A. A. Cameron of Ottawa, president of the Eastern Ontario's Dental Association, on Monday urged members at the 68th annual meeting to show an interest in "our dental affairs, because if we don't, someone else will—possibly a politician—to our detriment."

He asked for full support for the dental associations in Ontario and Canada, especially for the Canadian Dental Association, whose president, Harvey Reid, was at the meeting.

Dr. Cameron said the association would aid in the rehabilitation of the dentists of the Canadian Dental Corps by helping in location of offices and by referring former patients back to them.

He added that all members should give "council and aid" to members of the C.D.C. who are starting in civilian practice.

Members of the nominating committee included Dr. J. Manderville, Pembroke, Ont., and Dr. E. B. Sparks, Kingston.

Say Java Japs Told Not to Yield To Any Java Group

By ALAN HUMPHREYS

Singapore, Sept. 25 (Reuters)—Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, supreme Allied commander in Southeast Asia, has instructed Japanese forces in Java, principal Dutch colony in the East Indies, not to hand over authority to any Java faction, it was understood here Monday.

The Japanese, whose forces still control Java five weeks after the official Japanese surrender, are believed to have asked S.E.A.C. headquarters for guidance after a Javanese Republican faction demanded to be put in authority. S.E.A.C.'s reply was "no."

The Australian correspondent who has returned to Singapore from Java said he had seen Dr. I. R. Soekarno, leader of the Indonesian Nationalist movement, who was quoted last July by the Japanese Domei agency as appealing to the Javanese to fight with Japan.

The correspondent said Soekarno wanted to proclaim his assumption of authority, but the Japanese warned him to desist. The Nationalist leader has formed a cabinet of 17 ministers, and has established himself in a building which once housed the finance ministry.

"Among the Dutch at Batavia there is no disposition to discuss the political situation," the correspondent continued. "They obviously are disturbed and are taking no chances of clashes while there are so few Allied armed forces in the country."

Tramcars in Batavia bore roughly-painted legends in English calling for freedom and self-determination and declaring "better to hell than be colonized again."

U. C. Missionaries Plan to Go to Japan

Calgary, Sept. 24. (CP)—Plans are already underway for Canadian missionaries to go to Japan, Right Rev .Jesse H. Arnup, D.D., Toronto, moderator of the United Church of Canada said in an interview here Saturday.

Dr. Arnup is in Calgary to conduct meetings in the interest of the "Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom", sponsored by the United Church.

Dr. Arnup said Canadian missionaries were well treated during their internment in Japanese prison camps.

Urge Govt. Action Clear Markets Of Surplus Cattle

Markdale, Sept. 25 (CP) — A joint meeting of the executive members of the Grey County Federation of Agriculture, Grey County Hog Producers' Association and Grey County Beef Producers, held here, went on record as favoring "government action in clearing the markets of all surplus cattle at all times as a means of preventing depression of prices."

The resolution carried this rider: Until such an agency operates we are opposed to the present system of meat rationing."

The group asked that full information be given to the press and radio of livestock shipments to packing plants as well as public yards.

"The producers feel they should be informed of the total receipts at packing plants as well as at public yards," T. Stewart Cooper, agricultural representative, said.

GBS Declares Japan Should Be Evacuated

Le Havre, Sept. 22 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw, in an interview with an army camp newspaper editor, declared that American forces should evacuate Japan to insure world peace and threaten her with atomic bombs if she does not behave.

"Sitting on a country with a pistol in hand will only waste young people's lives away," the Irish dramatist told Pte. Ronald H. Wolpert, of Brooklyn, N.Y., in an interview to appear in "Goldbrick," the weekly newspaper of Camp Phillip Morris re-deployment centre, here.

Interviewed by Wolpert while the soldier was on furlough in England last week, Mr. Shaw compared the American occupation of Japan with British policy after the Irish rebellion, and said, "We will never have peace unless we respect peoples and countries as equals."

Mr. Shaw said he did not believe his advice about evacuating Japan would be followed. As a result, he said, "Of course there will be another war. All the factors that caused this war still remain. But not right away. We are all thoroughly bankrupt at present."

While in England, Wolpert said, he was determined to interview Mr. Shaw, despite the advice of professional newspapermen that it would be extremely difficult. Wolpert walked in a side door of Mr. Shaw's isolated country home—found him taking an afternoon nap and waited to chat with him for half an hour after the playwright awoke.

Suddenly Mr. Shaw asked, "How did you get in here, anyway?"

When Wolpert explained, Mr. Shaw hesitated and then smiled.

"Well, you've crashed the gate," Mr. Shaw said laughingly. "Congratulations."

Will Maintain Meat Rationing as Long As Needed-Gordon

Meat Strike Now in Third Day May Extend to All Supplies

Montreal, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Nearly 100 stores in Montreal, most of which sell meat in one form or another, opened their doors today after being closed yesterday or announcing that they would be closed today as the result of visits from vigilante groups seeking to enforce a strike in protest against meat rationing.

Most of the stores, which opened and said they would remain open unless violence forced them to close, were of the chain-store variety. Some 50 Thrift-Stop and Shop stores were open, following the announcement of general manager R. J. Ward last night that the stores would open as usual. In addition, 15 or 23 Steinburg Groceterian stores were open and about half the city's A.&P. stores.

There were no reports of violence. The chain stores began opening despite an announcement from most of them last night that they would remain closed.

In addition to the chain stores the meat department of the T. Eaton Company remained open in uptown Montreal. A delegation claiming to be from striking butchers visited the department yesterday, but no closing followed and today the department was jammed with shoppers.

A few private butcher stores also were open, although the number was small. On the other hand, a number of grocer stores which were closed by vigilante groups yesterday remained shut today.

As strike leaders here announced that shops would be closed until rationing was lifted, Donald Gordon, head of the Prices Board, said in a press statement in Vancouver that meat rationing would be maintained as long as needed, and he added:

"A relatively small but vocal group including a bunch of hoodlums in Montreal who have forced the closing of some of the stores there are getting far more attention than they deserve."

While no confirmation could be obtained from the strike enforcement committee as to whether "pressure tactics" would be used by the "vigilantes" to close up grocery stores, it was learned that yesterday afternoon a Rosemount grocer was told by cruising group to close his store, even after he protested that he did not sell meat. He was told "you are selling rationed goods, such as butter and sugar, so close up".

The town of Mount Royal, Montreal suburb, was cut off from all food provisions by the forced closing of its five meat and grocery shops, and civic authorities last night telegraphed Prime Minister Mackenzie King asking for Federal intervention because "all stores in our town have been forced to close by mob methods. We are powerless 'to maintain order'.

Strike Action Threatened

Meat dealers in other parts of Canada, including Victoria, Edmonton, Lethbridge and Camrose in Alberta, and a few small centres in the eastern section of the Nova Scotia mainland, remained closed, while in other cities and towns strike action was threatened for next Monday. In some sections, protest meetings are still scheduled for further discussion on procedure.

Mr. Gordon said that Canadians as whole are strongly in favor of meat rationing, and he predicted that the strike movements would die out. He was sure the United States would not abandon meat rationing until the need was ended, and until Canada was consulted.

Big 5 Council On Problems Of German Peace

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 26 —(AP)— A sudden improvement in the atmosphere around the conference table was reported today as the Big Five council of foreign ministers scheduled a discussion of the problems of the German peace.

Members of several delagations who earlier had commented on the growing tension at the conference could not explain fully the new friendliness, but it was pointed out that the discussions had veered away from the knotty question of Russian insistence on participation in Mediterranean control and Anglo-American demands for a voice in Balkan affairs.

Tentative plans for a December meeting in Washington of an Allied control commission for Japan have been placed before the council by the British delegates, it was reported reliably, reviving a plan under pressure from the Dominions, particularly Australia.

Russian approval of such a plan was expected, although Foreign Commissar Molotov apparently would prefer to tackle the problem immediately. He is reported to have criticized United States policy in Japan sharply, complaining it was too soft, and asking establishment of such an Allied council.

Despite an official Paris prediction last night that the council would wind up its conference today, turning over unresolved questions to deputies, it seemed likely that two or three more sessions must be held.

NEW OPPOSITION MOTION THWARTS END OF DEBATE

Bracken Amendment Is Defeated 163-57 But New Motion Asks For Floor Prices.

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 26 —(CP)— A Progressive Conservative demand for floor prices under all farm products was thrown into the arena of the Commons last night, thwarting what many members thought was a tight plan to end the Throne Speech debate.

Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (PC-Souris) just back from a visit to his Manitoba constituency where he harvested his crop, moved the new amendment after the House had voted down, 163-57, an amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, moved Sept. 10 by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader.

Earlier the Commons had defeated without a recorded vote a sub-amendment moved by the Social Credit party.

Mr. Bracken's amendment, one of non-confidence in the government, accused the administration of failing to provide proper demobilization, reconversion and housing. The Social Credit sub-amendment had added that the government had failed to give Canadians a proper monetary policy and failed to provide for a prosperous peace.

Souris Member Heard.

After defeat of these two motions a vote for adoption of the Throne Speech appeared to be the next move. However, Col. Ross proposed another amendment, calling for a price floor based on not less than 90 per cent of parity pending the establishment of a more equitable basis for all farm prices.

(Parity is considered that point where prices for farm products are in fair relation to the price the farmer has to pay for goods and services. In some cases the period of 1928-1929 has been chosen to fix a parity for farm prices.)

Col. Ross based his move on the government's recent action in announcing a peg on export wheat prices at $1.55 per bushel and a guarantee of a minimum price of $1 per bushel for the next five years. The announcement drew criticism from many Western members. Col. Ross said a price of $1 basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William meant about 80 cents on the farm and that was not enough.

Col. Ross' amendment was the fourth proposed from the opposition in the course of the first major debate of the new parliament, now in its third week. Besides the two amendments defeated last night, a C.C.F. amendment was defeated last week.

Won't Vote for Adoption

Speaking briefly before votes were taken on the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit amendments, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader said his party would vote against them because they offered criticism only without constructive suggestion. The Party also would vote against adoption of the Throne Speech, which is tantamount to a vote of confidence in the government.

GENERAL ELECTION PROMISED SOON FOR ARGENTINA

Armed Revolt Under Gen. Arturo Rawson Quelled and Leader Jailed

Buenos Aires, Sept. 26. (AP)—The Argentine people, showing growing signs of restiveness under the current military government, were offered the prospect today of a general election possibly before the end of October.

Foreign Minister Juan Cook told a news conference it was "within the realm of possibility" that the elections promised by President Farrell might be called within the next several weeks.

In any event, he said, "the promise to call elections before the end of this year will be faithfully fulfilled."

The government appeared to have the situation in hand today following an armed revolt yesterday under Gen. Arturo Rawson, leader of the 1943 revolution that overthrew President Castillo.

Rawson and Gen. Osvaldo Martin, one of Vice President Juan Peron's inner council until he was relieved last week of command of the 4th Army Division, were jailed at Cordoba, for inciting officers and men of the Cordoba garrison to rebellion.

Communications with Cordoba, 12 hours by highway from Buenos Aires, were interrupted and details of the revolt were not received. A new indication of unrest, however, was seen in a strike which halted subway, bus and streetcar service at midnight.

Jailed at Cordoba.

Army officers loyal to Peron jailed Rawson at Cordoba, provincial capital at the foot of the Andes.

Gen. Ambrosio Vago, Martin's successor in the command, ordered the two arrested for inciting officers and men of the garrison to rebellion.

A statement by Peron credited the "determined and energetic attitude" of the garrison with averting the uprising, and said Rawson and Martin would be held incommunicado "until the prosecuting judge can act".

"The government has taken the necessary measures'", Peron added, and "there is tranquillity throughout the republic."

Those measures included the interruption of communications with Cordoba and prohibition of broadcasting of news of the attempted coup to the interior.

ANZAC SHIPS REROUTED TO AVOID PANAMA CANAL

London, Sept. 26. (CP) — The Ministry of War Transport announced tonight that ships from New Zealand and Australia had been rerouted to avoid the Panama Canal, where tolls must be paid in dollars.

The Ministry said ships from New Zealand would be sent generally around Cape Horn, although some would travel through the Suez Canal. Australian coal burners will be sent around the Cape of oGod Hope and oil burners will go through Suez.

DISAGREEMENTS IN ALLIED POLICY HELD TO BLAME

Lack of Supplies Among German People Creates Problem

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Sept. 26 —(AP)— It looks like trouble ahead in Germany.

Disagreements in Allied policy plus lack of supplies among the German people are blamed by diplomatic officials here.

Two possible results are foreseen:

1. Politically Germany is believed to be moving toward a split down the middle. Under such a split the eastern part of the country now occupied by Russia would come under Russian influence as a unit of Soviet dominated Eastern Europe. The western zones would come under Anglo-American influence.

2. Economically, conditions are in such disorder that some authorities here believe the United States may be asked to appropriate money to send food to Germany this winter.

The whole German situation, involving both the conduct of affairs in the American-occupied zone and relationships among the four Allied zones, recently has been obscured by concern over Japanese occupation policy. It appears, however, to be in its own way full of incipient failures. Some officials are beginning to wonder whether conditions that might lead up to another world war already are becoming faintly evident there.

U. S. Emphasis on Order.

Here are some of the main points stressed by these people:

In the United States zone of occupation efforts to remove Nazis from even minor positions of influence or public trust have been only partially effective. Emphasis has been mostly on maintaining order, lese on bringing about sweeping political changes.

American-zone policy began under an occupation order preliminary to the Big Three meeting in Berlin in August. Unlike the policy instruction given Gen. MacArthur, however, the German order has not been made public.

A provisional educational policy was laid down for officials in the American zone many weeks ago, after being worked out by educators advising the State Department. But it too has not been made public, and no one here seems to know whether any progress has been made in putting it into effect.

Russian Zone

As for the Russian zone, nobody outside it has exact knowledge of what is going on.

The frequently expressed impression of American officials is that the Russians have stripped their territory, particularly the Berlin area, of virtually all useful industrial machinery.

They say indications are that Russia has gone beyond the limit of the Potsdam Big Three Declaration. This called for removal of machinery down to the minimum

FOUR ARMED MEN GET $11,500 FROM LEASIDE BANK

Fired Two Warning Shots Into The Wall Behind Teller's Cage Before Leaving Bank

Toronto, Sept. 26 — (CP) — A busy branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in the industrial area of suburban Leaside was robbed of $11,500 in small bills shortly after 10 a. m. today by five armed men, four of whom entered the bank, the other remaining outside as a lookout.

One of the four who entered the bank carried a tommy-gun and a revolver and the other three had revolvers. As they entered they fired two shots at the wall behind the teller's cage to frighten the staff of eight but none was injured.

The ring leader, said to be about 26 or 27 years old, wore a mask and the other wore dark glasses and had their hats pulled down over their faces. They made their getaway in a car with a licence marker the same as that on a car stolen in Toronto Aug. 20.

Bandit Points Gun

R. R. Macdonald, accountant, was in the teller's cage counting cash when the four entered. As the first bullet was fired he ducked under the counter but the ringleader jumped on to the counter ledge, pointed the tommy-gun at him and said: "Open the cage door and come out with your hands above your head."

Macdonald complied with the order and the gunman removed the $11,500 in small bills which was in the cage to meet industrial payrolls. The gang stuffed the loot into bags.

Manager D. H. Mills said the four men walked into the bank casually.

"They lined the whole staff — seven girls and two men — up against the wall with one woman customer," he said. "They stole her purse. They herded all but her into the vault, but they kept her under guard too.

Scoop up Money in Cages

"They ordered the accountant to open the safe. The vault, of course already was open. Macdonald turned off the combination but when the men found the inner compartments also were locked they ran out of the bank. In the meantime they had scooped up the money from the tellers' cages . . . the whole thing didn't take any more than five minutes."

The manager added: "They were pretty tough guys. By the way they handled their weapons, it appeared they were quite experienced. They treated us very roughly and warned us not to make any false moves or we would be shot."

Anita Dutcher, a clerk, said: "I am still shaking. I didn't do anything the whole time but shake."

Beverly Banks, stenographer, said: "When they fired the bullets seemed to be awful close. The accountant was so calm that it made us feel a lot more comfortable."

MUST REMAIN STRONG

Newport, Monmouthshire, England, Sept. 26—(Reuters)—Field Marshal Montgomery said here yesterday that "the British Empire and our great allies, America and Russia, must remain strong and between us ensure that no single nation can again plunge the world into war."

Emperor Hirohito To Meet M'Arthur Thursday Report

Mac Arthur Strips Japan's Army, Navy of Equipment

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 26 —(AP)— Unconfirmed Japanese reports tonight said that Emperor Hirohito will meet Gen. MacArthur tomorrow, presumably at the United States embassy which is the Supreme Allied Commander's residence. Well-informed sources earlier had said such a meeting—unprecedented in modern Japan—was being arranged but had cited no date.

Official army sources remained silent but Gen. MacArthur's public relations office announced that correspondents would meet at 9 a.m. tomorrow (8 p.m. E.D.T. Wednesday night) for instructions on covering "a forthcoming event."

Circles close to the Imperial household said the visit is merely a courtesy call.

Tries to Impress People.

Because the Emperor's action is unprecedented it is suggested that he has decided on this course of action to impress the Japanese people, once for all, of his complete sincerity in accepting the terms of the Potsdam proclamation.

On the other hand, some Japanese sources suggested that the Emperor's visit may have something to do with the persistent rumors that he is preparing to abdicate.

Gen. MacArthur today stripped Japan's army and navy of all equipment, directing that their stocks of food and clothing be turned over to the famine-threatened civilian population under a strict accounting.

Reveals Struggle Between Gestapo And Hierarchy

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Berlin, Sept. 26 (AP)—A secret struggle between the Gestapo and the Roman Catholic heirarchy which lasted from the rise of Nazism to its fall is disclosed in confidential documents of the Reich security police found here.

Reports by Reinhard (Hangman) Heydrich and other Gestapo chiefs show that their agents stole, bribed and corrupted to get access to messages from the Holy See to prelates in Germany and western Europe.

By his own signed statement, Heydrich looked upon the clergymen as enemies of Hitler's new order.

In a secret report dated Jan. 15, 1942, a few months before his assassination in Prague, Heydrich expressed his rage at the Vatican's activities.

He charged that the Vatican secretariat, after establishing a special bureau to supply amenities to Italian and German Catholics in Allied war prisoner camps, was spreading the news about their good treatment to "weaken the resistance of Italian soldiers particularly and persuade them to surrender."

Capt. Upham of N.Z. Wins Bar to V. C., First in This War

Auckland, N.Z., Sept. 26 — (CP. Cable)— Award of a bar to the Victoria Cross, the Empire's highest gallantry decoration, to Capt. Charles Hazlett Upham of the New Zealand Expeditionary Force was announced today by Defence Minister Fred Jones.

Capt. Upham won the Cross originally for bravery during operations in Crete, in May, 1941. The bar to the decoration was awarded for outstanding gallantry in the Western Egyptian Desert during an attack on Elruweisat Ridge in July, 1942.

Capt. Upham was the 161st man to win the V.C. in the Second Great War. Twelve were Canadians.

Only two other men have been awarded a bar to the V.C. since it was instituted in 1856, and it was the first double award of the Second Great War.

Only Water Allowed Was That Lying On Road, Witness Says of Belsen Camp

Lueneburg, Germany, Sept. 26 —(CP)— A 21-year-old Hungarian Jewess, Ilona Stein, today told the court trying the Belsen concentration camp case an S. S. woman guard brutally kicked a mother found talking to her daughter through wire separating the compounds at Osweicim camp.

The witness, who explained that the wire was electrically charged, said Irma Grese, the guard, flayed the prisoner until her chest was bleeding.

Miss Stein pointed accusingly at nine of the 45 defendants, identifying by name the Grese woman and Belsen Camp Commandant Josef Kramer as those whose brutality she witnessed at Belsen and Osweicim camps.

She had been sent to the camps for being a Jewess.

Kramer and Grese, she declared, selected the victims for the gas chamber, adding that the former beat prisoners "because they cried or were too slow getting in the truck."

Miss Stein accused another defendant, Karl Flarazich, of shooting one of her friends at Belsen. Black-haired Stanislawa Staroska, the witness said, beat women in the two camps "so often they hardly are worth mentioning."

At least another two weeks will be required to end the Belsen trials in the tedious process of cross-examining witnesses and the translation of the testimony in Polish, German and English.

An authoritative source said that other war crime trials in the British zone of occupation would follow.

Under the special regulations governing the trial, any death sentences will have to wait official confirmation of Field Marshal Montgomery, who will review all evidence taken.

If any death sentences are pronounced, the Provost Marshal will set the site of the executions. The court will determine the method—by firing squad or by hanging.

It was disclosed that Rosina Kramer, wife of the former commandant at the Belsen and Osweicim camps, may be called as a witness.

No Danger of Radio-Active Material Escaping Into Chalk River—Howe

Ottawa, Sept. 26 (CP)—Ottawa's Board of Control, moving to determine the human effect should radio-active material escape from Canada's Chalk River, Ont., atomic bomb component plant into the Ottawa River, got its answer last night direct from Munitions Minister Howe who said there was no such danger.

The matter was brought before the Board yesterday by Controller E. W. Goodwin, caused a lengthy discussion and moved the Board to instruct waterworks officials to seek information from the National Research Council,

But last night Mr. Howe, told of Controller Goodwin's question as to the effect if radio-active material escaped into the river from which a number of Ontario cities take their water supply, was emphatic that all precautions had long ago been taken against such a possibility.

He said there was "absolutely no danger" of such material escaping into the river and added:

"This has been checked by some of the greatest experts in the world. . . Every precaution was taken weeks ahead of time.

"You can say the Chalk River plant was certified for safety. I repeat again that there is absolutely no danger."

In bringing the matter before the Board Controller Goodwin said he did not want to be an alarmist, but so little was known about radio-active materials. People at Hiroshima who had not been hurt by the atomic bomb blast there had died days later from radio-active rays which attacked the red corpuscles of the blood.

Saying he had information about the Chalk River plant lying just above Pembroke, Ont., the Controller said there was an acqueduct there to aid in cooling the atomic bomb process being conducted at the plant. This acqueduct emptied into the Ottawa River but there was an alarm system which warned when any of the radio-active matter was likely to get into the water.

He added it might be that there was no danger after the material, if any escaped, got a few hundred feet from the mouth of the acqueduct. On the other hand it might continue down the river and "no one knows how the radio-active principle would affect human life."

MOTORCYCLE NOISES BOTHERING RESIDENTS

Several complaints have been received by city police regarding unnecessary noise on Station Street caused by motorcycles. Complainants state that the riders roar up and down the thoroughfare with throttles wide open with on regard for residents. Chief of Police Probert stated today that the practice must stop or drastic action will be taken against the parties concerned.

NOT ALL SUNSHINE TO RUN CONCESSION AT COUNTY FAIR

It's not all sunshine operating a concession at a county agricultural fair, especially if the day happens to be rainy and the fair crowd is more interested in other attractions. At least that is the story told by one concession proprietor who worked Stirling Fair Tuesday afternoon.

The exact nature of this particular man's concession does not matter, but it cost him three dollars to set up on the grounds. It rained practically all afternoon and the crowd, to use brief terms, gave him the go-by with result that his day's "take" totalled exactly fifteen cents paid by one lone customer.

But that is not all. Disgusted with the afternoon's business, he packed up his concession and started out of the grounds only to bump into another motorist's fender. He admitted the fault was his and agreed to pay the damages which cost him another $7.50.

TWO DETAILED MAPS OF CITY AND COUNTY MISSING FROM BLDG.

Two detailed maps, one of the city of Belleville, and the other of Hastings and Prince Edward counties, are missing from the Barristers' Room at the county building it is reported by W. C. Mikel, K.C., Local Master of the Supreme Court. Disappearance of the two valuable maps has been reported to the local police station.

One of the maps which has disappeared from the court house is a detailed blue print map of the city showing lot numbers as well as house numbers. Measuring approximately four by eight feet, it was mounted on rollers and according to Mr. Mikel cannot easily be replaced. The other map is one of the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward showing roads and other points of interest.

BELLEVILLE GOLF CLUB HOLDS FIELD DAY

Belleville Golf Club held a field day last Sunday with more than fifty golfers participating in one of the best sporting events, that club has had in some time. A sweepstake was played in the morning rounds with PO. Gaudreau winning the same. After luncheon was served the putting contest was held with Clare Ridley being the winner. Ralph Ketcheson won the approaching contest and Norman Brown was the best driver of those who competed. Another contest will be played this Sunday and the following players are asked to be on hand,, Ben Oglivie, Henry Ryan, Norm Brown, Gar Anderson, F. Smoke, PO. Gaudreau, Joe Legault, Robert Brown, Ralph Ketcheson, W. Waldorf, Fred Fisher and P. Mercier.

CAR IS STOLEN FROM PARKING LOT

A 1935 Ford sedan bearing licence number 4-X-282 was stolen from the parking lot behind the local police station some time Tuesday night, it was reported today by the owner, Irene Parnell, 25 Bridge Street, East. The owner had parked her car on the lot for the night and later discovered it missing. No trace of the auto had been reported by police up until noon today.

Otherwise police circles were comparatively quiet with the customary drunks being noted particularly by their absence. Shortly before eleven o'clock, L. Culkin, Queen Street, reported to police that someone was endeavoring to syphon gasoline out of his gas tank. Before arrival of the police, the would-be thief was scared away by the owner.

STORY OF ALASKAN HIGHWAY TOLD

The story of the Alaskan highway and also the Canol project was told in colored pictures to members of the Men's Association of the United Church and their guests Tuesday night when Rev. D. C. Amos showed moving pictures and colored slides taken during his one and one half year's service in that district.

Length of the completed highway is approximately 1490 miles with permanent grading and bridge construction. Built expressly as a wartime defensive measure, the future of the the road was not hazarded by the speaker. The meeting was presided over by P. C. McGuire, with a silver collection being taken up to assist in rehabilitation work in the United Church.

Kiwanis Speaker Says Boys' Work Good Business

"Boys' work is not an altruistic work but just good business" said Edgar "Bert" Reid, member of St. Lawrence Kiwanis Club, Montreal, and worker with boys for many years, in speaking to the Belleville Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. In the afternoon he visited the Kiwanis Centre and offered plans as to how the Centre could be utilized for post-war work among boys of Belleville. President Lorne McDougall, who attended the district convention of the Kiwanis Club at Oshawa reported that Walter Stewart of East York club had been nominated for Lieutenant Governor and that the Belleville club had had a resolution adopted that all monies paid for Kiwanis Welfare in the city would be deducted from income. This resolution will be passed on to the International convention for discussion and decision. All members were requested to be in attendance at the Old-Time party to be held at Roblin's Lake tonight.

Mr. Reid, who was introduced by Mark Vanner, chairman of the Boys' and Girls' work in the club, stated that the conquest of the world is on and the battleground is in the mind of the child. He told of how he took up this work as a hobby and through the years had appreciated every minute spent with boys. He showed why everyone should be interested in boys' work for in the United States there are 10,000 murders committed each year and the perpetrators are boys of the average age of eighteen. "I am not fond of making prophecy but I think that in five years from now another gang war will be on our hands" said the speaker.

Says Wasted Money.

The speaker showed that ten billions of dollars are spent each year to maintain law and order in the United States and he claimed this to be wasted money. He told of making a survey in Kingston penitentiary and 75 per cent of the reason why the boy was there was through truancy in his younger and school years. "There is only one way to correct this and that is to become interested in boys" said Mr. Reid. "I have started many clubs on a shoestring and you will find the human investment great but the financial returns will not be great. We must show by precept and example that man is the friend of boys and the return will be a grand companionship because a boy will do anything for companionship." He also showed that religion was a vital thing in the training of a boy and that he will respond if religion is put to him the right way. Many human interest stories were interspersed in the talk and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Jack McIntosh.

Plans Complete Welcome Home At Picton Fair

Extensive arrangements are being made by the Prince Edward County Reception Committee for officers and other ranks of all county personnel of the armed forces during the "Welcome" celebration being held in connection with the Picton Fair on Friday.

The general parade will assemble at the Armouries and will march to the Cenotaph and from there to the Fair Grounds, where after brief ceremonies, the parade will be dismissed.

Arrangements have been completed for the feeding of the service guests at the Fair Grounds and in the evening a dance will be held in the Armouries.

R.S.M. Angus Duffy will form up the parade which will be commanded by Lieut.-Col. Kennedy D.S.O., Brigadier Howard Graham, D.S.O. and bar, Deputy Chief of the General Staff NDHQ, Ottawa, will take the salute during the march-past.

At 3 p. m. officers and their wives will attend a reception in the officers' mess until 6 o'clock At 7 p. m. a dinner for officers will be held in the mess of the R.C.A.F. Due to lack of accomodation the dinner will be a "stag" affair. Permission has been granted to all officers to wear service or battle dress. Invitations to the functions have been mailed and must be presented prior to admission to both functions.

ThreshingMachine Not Always To Blame for Fires

Speaking with reference to the number of barns burned recently allegedly by combustion caused by threshing operations, a well-known Prince Edward County thresherman stated that threshing equipment is not altogether to blame for the loss by fire.

"Recently" he said. "I was cleaning my machine when I noticed a live match in one of the cylinders. Further search revealed a box almost full of matches, which had probably dropped from the shirt pocket of one of the men. I do not allow smoking near my equipment and in future I am going to warn the farmers and their helpers regarding the carrying of matches."

On other occasions, he said, he has seen sparks fly from cylinders when small stones, usually gathered up in rakings of grain, go through the machine.

Autos Damaged In 2 Collisions

Extensive fender and running board damage to two cars resulted Tuesday afternoon at the corner of North Front Street and College Street when an auto driven by Mr. Harold Longwell, of Foxboro, was in collision with another driven by John Dyke, R.R. 5, Belleville.

According to investigations by city police Dyke was driving north on North Front Street and in turning west onto College Street was struck from behind by the Longwell vehicle as Mr. Longwell was about to pass. Police stated that Mr. Dyke had given no warning that he was about to turn off Front Street.

Damages to the Dyke auto amounted to crushed rear fender and a burst tire, while both right fenders and running board of the Longwell car were damaged.

In a second accident Elvine Lott, Carrying Place, was driving east on Bridge Street when near Black's Meat Market his auto was in collision with another driven by James E. Gartley, Pinnacle St. Mr. Gartley was backing out from the curb when the accident occurred. Fender damage amounting to less than $50 was amicably settled between the two parties.

PROMOTING RACIAL UNDERSTANDING

This scene is made possible in a Philadelphia, Pa., playground, because the American Junior Red Cross decided to do something about the racial problem in that city. They have suggested certain songs, movies and games to all playground directors, which aim at better understanding of minority groups. Here Christine and Helen exchange dolls.

Fall WheatSowing In Hastings Area About Completed

Sowing of fall wheat in the Hastings district is now practically completed according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Silo filling has started in most sections of the county, although the corn crop is spotty Buckwheat is being harvested and appears to be about an average crop. Pastures are above the average.

In Prince Edward county it is reported that tomatoes have ripened well since the rain and factories have been operating at capacity since the latter part of last week. Until that time there had been but a small pack processed. Two cars of springer cattle have been exported within the past week.

House Owner Shows Gratitude To Firemen

Appreciation for efficient work of the Belleville Fire Department in saving the residence of Mr. J. Shannon, Station Street, when the Crawford Metal and Waste building was damaged by fire several weeks ago has been expressed in a material way by the owner. Recently Mr. Shannon tendered a cheque for $25 payable to the local firemen's fund in appreciation of the work of the fire department.

Mr. Shannon's residence was built directly against that occupied by the Crawford Metal and Waste and was saved from damage only by prompt and efficient work of local firemen. Although abutting directly on the burned building the Shannon residence was damaged only by smoke.

"Peace Begun Badly" Says Daily Herald

London, Sept. 26 — (CP) —The Daily Herald, organ of the British labor party, declared today that "the world is heading with its eyes open for another war."

The Herald said the Council of Foreign Ministers meeting in London "has been dominated throughout by power politics, by suspicions and ambitions" and that the Atlantic and San Francisco Charters "seem already to have been forgotten."

Commenting that there is little to distinguish the spirit of international relations today from that of 1918, the Herald said "the peace has begun very badly indeed."

Gordon Says Meat Rationing to Stay, "A Moral Issue"

Vancouver, Sept. 26. (CP) — Meat rationing is going to stay because there is no alternative for it, Donald Gordon, National Chairman of the Prices Board, said here Tuesday in an interview.

"It's going to stay because this is a moral issue now", Mr. Gordon said. "Over in Britain and France and Belgium are millions who are suffering from mulnutrition . . . If you are going to look them in the eye in years to come you have got to make some sacrifices now."

required for essential peacetime existence.

Furthermore, officials here expect little or no help from the German eastern area in feeding people of Western Germany. They say the Russians declined to furnish any food for British and American zones in Berlin.

In the heavily industrialized British zone, conditions are reported to be worst of all.

Concern Over Ruhr Area

The British authorities have made known to United States authorities their extreme concern over the prospect of freezing and starvation, particularly in the bombed Ruhr area. First appeals are expected to come from this area.

What happens on these immediate problems of food, clothing and National economic organization will fix in the months' immediately ahead a pattern of German existence for the long future.

Gerald B. Hyde Joins Father In Plumbing Business

Mr. Gerald B. Hyde, better known among his associates as "Jerry", having graduated from Belleville Collegiate Institute in 1943 and having since then spent two years commercial study from Queen's University, has decided to enter into business partnership with his father Mr. Chas. L. Hyde at 292 Front Street, continuing to operate as plumbing and heating contractors and engineers and manufacturing sheet metal products.

Mr. Hyde senior, 27 years ago succeeded the late Wm. McGie, who previously conducted the same line of business at the same location for about thirty-five years. The new firm will operate under the name of Chas. L. Hyde & Son and will endeavor to continue giving the same prompt and courteous service, employing at present time 14 persons and hope in near future to make considerable expansion as business conditions continue to improve.

Mr. Ross Bateman who has been with the firm for many years will continue as works foreman.

This is another in the series of Father and Son combinations in Belleville and "Jerry's" many friends will wish for him success in his new adventure.

Liquor Ration To be Increased

Toronto, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Following a cabinet meeting yesterday, W. G. Webster, Ontario Liquor Commissioner, announced an increase in the liquor ration will be "made known before the end of the week."

He added the possibility of putting gin or rum on the "free supply" list is being considered.

IN MEMORIAM

KEENE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Arthur M. Keene, who passed away September 26th., 1944.

His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall.
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land
Never to part again.

—Ever remembered by his Wife and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

As requested by the late Mrs. Herbert W. Prindle, although unable to see the friends, it was her wish that thanks be expressed to each one who remembered her in prayer, gave blood, sent flowers or cards or in any way helped to make her last illness as comfortable as possible, also the kindness shown by Dr. Morgan and the nurses of Belleville Hospital.

Miss Eileen Swain wishes to extend very sincere thanks to the nursing staff of the hospital and all her friends for their thoughtfulness and many kindnesses during her recent illness.

ONLY WATER

"Whatever they say about my husband, I have faith in him," Mrs. Kramer told his defence counsel. "He has been so kind to me and our three children."

Application by defence counsel to have all prosecution witnesses removed from the court after they had given their evidence was agreed to after Maj. L. S. Cranfield, defending, said prosecution witnesses had been seen making notes in court after giving their evidence.

Maj. Geoffrey Smallwood who led the first team of investigators at Belsen told the court that names of some of the S. S. guards figured so frequently in affidavits taken at the camp that "eventually no further evidence was taken against them."

"In the case of Elizabeth Volkenrath, one of the accused women, we stopped taking evidence against her after 10 days," he said.

Ilona Stein, 21-year-old Jewess who had been incarcerated at both Belsen and Oscweicim, identified Kramer and three others of the accused, including Irma Grese, when she was asked how many of the guard personnel at the camp she could recognize in the dock.

"When I arrived at Osweicim there was hardly any water," she told the court. "The only water we were allowed was that lying on the roads and even that had to be obtained by influence and was considered a real treat.

"I remember one case during a gas chamber selection. 'A mother wanted to remain with her daughter, but the daughter was warned with these words: 'Do not go with your mother. The place where your mother is going is a bad one.'

"At another selection, I saw that they lifted the clothes of the prisoners and looked at their legs. We were usually undressed until we were completely naked. Kramer and Grese then made the selections."

WOMEN PROTEST DETENTION

San Francisco, Sept. 26. (AP)— Telephones rang continually in the office of I. F. Wilson, director of Immigration and Naturalization, as San Francisco women protested detention of Mrs. Marjory Weyland, Australian bride who stowed away on the steamship Lurline to accompany her soldier husband to the United States. Mrs. Weyland is awaiting appearance before a special board of Inquiry, since arrival of the Lurline yesterday.

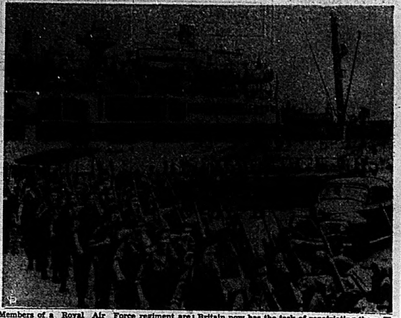
BRITISH RE-ENTER SINGAPORE AFTER JAP SURRENDER



Members of a Royal Air Force regiment are marching from their transport as British forces re-occupied the bastion of Singapore following surrender of the Japs. More than 30,300 Allied prisoners were held by the Japs in this area and Britain now has the task of repatriating them. The bastion fell to the Japs in the early days of the war and was often pounded by Allied bombers while in Jap hands.

Uprising Crushed In Argentina, Two Leaders Held

Buenos Aires, Sept. 26 (AP)—An uprising at Cordoba led by Gen. Arturo Rawson and another general of Vice-President Juan Peron's inner circle has been crushed and the two leaders are under arrest, the Argentine military government announced Tuesday.

The revolt, first reported by the newspaper Noticias Graficas, still brewed confusion at Cordoba, however, latest telephoned dispatches indicated.

The government clamped on a tight control over all communications with the provincial capital 400 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, and forbade all broadcasts of the news to Argentines.

Vice-President Peron, strong man of the Argentine regime, said in a statement that Rawson and Gen. Osvaldo Martin, until four days ago the commander of the fourth army division at Cordoba, "attempted to win over the commanders and officers to their cause." Both men "are to be held incommunicado until the prosecuting judge can act," the statement continued.

Rawson, President of Argentina for two days in 1943 when he led the army revolt which ousted President Ramon S. Castillo, Sunday night drove to Cordoba, it was learned.

Monday it was announced he had been mildly reprimanded by a high military tribunal for remarks made Sept. 19 when large crowds collected under a balcony and he appeared in his army uniform behind a large Argentine flag.

Rawson, who more than once has expressed his contempt for both Peron and President Gen. Edelmiro Farrell, whom he has called a "puppet in Peron's hands" was overthrown by Gen. Pedro Pablo Ramirez two days after the 1943 revolution when a group of army colonels declared their lack of confidence in him. Ramirez in turn resigned in favor of Farrell in February, 1944.

Buried 11 Hours In Muck, Dies

Timmins, Sept. 26 (CP)—Trapped in an underground ore chute at the Hallnor Gold Mine, John Chermak, 46, was buried in the muck for 11 hours and died early Tuesday before a 30-man rescue squad could reach him.

According to a mine official Chermak walked over the top of an ore chute when the trap at the bottom of the chute was pulled. They said Chermak knew the trap was to be pulled.

The accident occurred at six a.m. Monday. Miners worked until five a.m. in a vain effort to release Chermak. His widow and two small children survive.

BEVIN, MOLOTOV ARE REPORTED IN BITTER CLASHES

Reliable Sources Say Russians Unreceptive to Proposals on Feeding of Austria

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Bitter personal clashes were reported Tuesday between British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Russian Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov as the Big Five council talked of boundaries, reparation and food apparently without moving nearer to any major agreements.

Reliable sources said the Russians were unreceptive to American and British proposals that Austria be fed from the great Balkan granary, always its source of farm products, and were determined also to prevent the western powers from discussing Balkan frontiers.

Molotov was reported also to have flatly opposed American and British proposals that arms reduction clauses be written into peace treaties with Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland.

Mr. Molotov was understood also to have suggested a joint Allied policy in the Far East. His idea, it was learned, would be that Gen. MacArthur should consult an inter-Allied commission in making policy for Japan and other Pacific regions.

Conference sources said U.S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes objected to the Russians raising such a question at this conference because he came here with the understanding that only European issues would be discussed.

An informant who attended the secret sessions of the foreign ministers of the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France and China gave this, as an example of the friction between Molotov and Bevin:

Balkan Issue.

Molotov, objecting to the British attitude against Balkan governments sponsored by Russia, declared that Bevin was supporting an anti-democratic regime in Greece.

Angered, Bevin reported that he refused to permit that he be spoken to in such a tone. "Besides," Bevin is reported to have said, "I am tired of always being the butt for accusations. It is as though I am always being put in the prisoners' dock. Is it because I used to be a docker?"

"Well," Molotov was said to have replied, "I don't know but there is one thing you and I have in common anyway. Our nobility is not very old."

Regarding the repatriation issue, the Russians were declared wanting assurance that Poles and residents of the Russian—absorbed Baltic states be returned. The American-British attitude was that Moscow cannot claim these peoples unless they wish to return.

An authority who attended the meetings said Molotov had refused any plan which would give the western powers the right to take an active hand in Balkan affairs.

Molotov was reported to have objected to drawing Balkan borders in treaties, asserting that it would be better to let the countries work out frontiers for themselves.

Belief that another meeting of Prime Minister Attlee, President Truman and Marshal Stalin may be necessary to iron out Europe's major peace problems was voiced in some quarters.

New Racing Setup For British Columbia

Vancouver, Sept. 26 (CP)—The News-Herald in a front page story Wednesday said the B.C. Turf and Country Club Limited, capitalized at $1,000,000, was incorporated under the Companies Act Monday, constituting the largest deal in the history of British Columbia racing.

The article added:

"Formation of the new one million dollar racing syndicate is the first in an anticipated series of steps being made that will make a major change in B.C.'s turf picture . . .

"Leading city and California business and sportsmen have joined to form the new racing setup. . .

"Mentioned in connection with the formation of the new club is Charles S. Howard multi-millionaire American and one of the most famous thoroughbred owners in the United States.

"Also believed to be interested are Bing Crosby and Pat O'Brien, major stockholders in the Del Mar track in California."

The Worst Inflation came after the last war
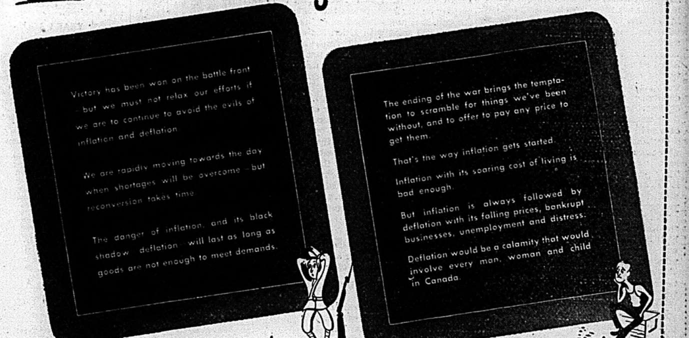
NOW is the Real Testing time ...



Victory has been won on the battle front—but we must not relax our efforts if we are to continue to avoid the evils of inflation and deflation.

We are rapidly moving towards the day when shortages will be overcome—but reconversion takes time.

The danger of inflation, and its black shadow deflation—will last as long as goods are not enough to meet demands.

The ending of the war brings the temptation to scramble for things we've been without, and to offer to pay any price to get them.

That's the way inflation gets started.

Inflation with its soaring cost of living is bad enough.

But inflation is always followed by deflation with its falling prices, bankrupt businesses, unemployment and distress.

Deflation would be a calamity that would involve every man, woman and child in Canada.

The only controls that are being maintained are those that aid the production of needed supplies and their speedy and fair distribution to the public, and which prevent an inflationary price rise.

As soon as conditions warrant, these will be dropped.

Until industry gets back to normal production, price ceilings, rationing and some controls are a necessary safeguard for everyone of us.

Keep them working.

IT'S YOUR JOB AND YOUR SAVINGS THAT ARE AT STAKE

This advertisement is one of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing a further increase in the cost of living now and deflation and unemployment later.

Colleges Crowded

Universities and colleges everywhere are being crowded, even swamped with the flood of new students. This is true in Canada, United States and in Norway, besides other countries. In Norway this is the first time in two years that the classical grey stone buildings at Oslo University resounded with the familiar voices of students. "News of Norway" says that never in history have classrooms and corridors been so crowded as they are in these early post-war days. "Never before had such a significant body of learning-starved young men and women gathered on university registration day. Here for the first time since the invasion of Norway were gathered the students who for five years had fought the Nazi wherever found." The tasks ahead for the first years following liberation threaten to exceed the capacity of Norway's educators. The 6,300 students applying at Oslo represents a problem that is for the moment almost insurmountable.

Canadian universities and colleges too will be crowded this year with the entry of so many service people to complete or begin their higher education. During the war Canadian universities fortunately were unhampered and carried on their great work under the strain and the inspiration of war. In Norway it was different. In that country there has been an almost complete blackout of higher education through the occupation of Norway by the Hun. That being removed higher education in Norway swings forward with three times as many applicants for entry as can be cared for by the existing facilities. But Norway will find a way as a free people.

Canadian youth returning from the wars in Italy and Northwestern and Central Europe and from other theatres of war have the light of freedom in their eyes and the ideal of progress in their hearts. They have passed through the severest school and education in life, that of service in wartime. In this school they have covered themselves with honor and glory and it is a happy augury for the future that so many are seeking to improve their educational status and that they come back with high ideals and so great enthusiasm.

Never in the history of the world perhaps has youth of the democratic world been so inspired as in these days following the ending of the struggle which had largely taken up the attention of mankinid. They see the great new world which has been envisioned and that ideal has guided the Allied effort in the fight for the preservation of democracy and freedom. Never was heroic youth so much in the predominance as today when the average age of the returned veterans is low and permits their undertaking high planning for their careers in the world at peace.

Canadian young manhood and youth who have served and fought for freedom have the energy and zeal to go forward. They give this land the happiest promise it has ever had the privilege of enjoying in all history. They inspire those who are younger to a similar high ideal.

The way through the school, the college, the university, is a way that shows the high spirit of our youth. It is not the only way for opportunities for these bright-minded young men will be provided and will arise. Their love for Canada and their constant thought of home in the midst of the great struggle were prophecies of this keenness of the young veterans as they today reenter civilian life which most of them left either as schoolboys or young men beginning their careers in business or industry. They have returned to serve and Canada has in them the highest potential inspiration as she enters the peace years.

German Plan Did Not Work

Those who read in yesterday's issue Ross Munro's story of the revelation of German plans to strike against southern and southeastern England in the summer or fall of 1940 could not help recalling the anxiety of those days after the swift drive of the Germans to the Channel at the time of the collapse of France and at the time of the air war over southern England and London area. The fifth anniversary of that time was marked just a few days ago when the service of the air force was given due recognition. Everyone everywhere in the world was closely watching all public events, realizing much depended upon the days and weeks which were ahead.

Ross Munro tells of discoveries of German planning to hit at England and to follow up the sensational rush of the German armies into France. He shows what Germany's plan was to be in an attempt at invasion of the British homeland in the operation which was given the code name of "sealion."

He explains that there is no certainty that this was the final plan of the Germans and that there was no date given for the operation contemplated as that was to be given later.

Mid-September 1940 saw Hitler's air force come to the pass that it realized it could not dominate the British skies. As Munro says, the mystery of plans of those days made by the Germans is gradually being unravelled. Here Germany suffered her first failure, she could not achieve what she aimed to do after the fall of France: By Providence and men, things and events. Hitler could not achieve his aim in that memorable summer and autumn and from that time on his star faded. It was at that time that Britain and her Empire stood alone and bore unbowed the blows from the enemy.. That time marked the frustration of the Nazi would-be conqueror's designs.

Bananas, Not Bombs

A few days ago a little girl lay dying in a Copenhagen hospital. Now, thanks to swift international action involving three countries, an Allied transport plane and a cargo of bananas, the little girl may live, says News of Norway.

Danish specialists found the child to be suffering from a rare intestinal disease which only a diet of bananas could cure. A frantic search revealed that there was not a single banana in Denmark, neither were there any in Sweden. But, by some strange quirk of fate, Norway, the land of a thousand shortages, did happen to have the bananas. Only a few hours before, a whole shipload of this precious fruit, purchased by the Norwegian Government during the war, had arrived in Oslo from the Canary Islands.

Within a few hours a special Red Cross transport permit had been arranged and an Allied plane rose from the Oslo airport and headed south, loaded with bananas, not bombs. With the mercy flight went the wishes of three million Norwegians, grateful for this opportunity to repay a small part of their debt of gratitude to Denmark and for a peaceful world which values so highly the life of a single child.

The Truth About Japan

(Londono Daily Express)

Suppose that Japanese school-children in the future were to be taught that if it had not been for the atomic bomb Japan would now be master of Asia. Never let it happen! Never let the idea grow up! The facts coming in reveal that Japan was gasping on her knees before the bomb was dropped. It is now known that of the great navy of 369 ships with which she entered the war, no more than 49 ships are still afloat. Her air force was grounded, her armies in Burma thrashed and destroyed. Such facts as these may seem immaterial in face of the colossal revolution which the mastery of the atom has created. Yet in the end peace and survival can come only from the hearts and imaginations of the people. If these are perverted by false beliefs engendering false hopes there can be no scurity for any living creature again. Therefore, as a beginning, let the Japanese be told the truth—not once or twice, but in season and out—that their defeat was not due to the atomic bomb, but to the fact that their evil ambitions could not be tolerated by the world.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright, 1945, Edgar A. Guest)

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE ATOM BOMB

As it has been explained to me,
It's just as simple as can be.
The atom bomb of ores is made —
Rare ores of an unusual grade,
With excess energies that come
In stuff that's called plutonium,
And one—that's bound to bother some
To say—protoactinium.

In thorium, 'tis learned, men find
Atoms of the explosive kind,
A power which man and mansions jolts
With some two hundred billion volts—
Electron volts, I mean to say,
And everyone should know that they
Are charged sixteen sextillionths less
Than that which common volts possess.

The heat that comes when atoms split
In trillions of degrees is writ
And I can tell you on the spot,
My brother, that is really hot!
If you have read this down to here,
I think I've made the subject clear,
At least as clear, let it be said,
As all the atom stuff I've read.

RETIRES FROM ARMY

Col. Harold R. Lynn, Royal Canadian Engineers, of Thetford Mines, Que., is retiring from the army at his own request. He is president of Lynn McLeod Metallurgy Ltd., of Thetford Mines. After three years overseas he was recalled in 1943 to National Defence Headquarters, and became technical and military adviser to the organization which had much to do with the "Pluto" plane which supplied oil by a pipe line from the United Kingdom to the Allied forces on the continent of Europe.

Truman Favors Sharing Secret Of Atomic Energy

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP) — President Truman is reported to favor sharing the secret of atomic energy with other countries willing to abide by strict controls.

Mr. Truman has yet to draft recommendations to the United States Congress. But he is represented as having indicated clearly that he believes the process which produced the devastating bombs dropped on Japan cannot be kept as a three-nation secret.

The President has said he alone must make the decision on what policy he will recommend to Congress. That policy, however, must be tempered to fit the views of Britain and Canada, both of whom played major parts in the development of the atomic bomb.

Whether Britain and Canada will agree to internationalize the secret remains to be seen.

In this connection, Mr. Truman is said to have been favorably impressed by a proposal by Senator Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.) who suggested to the Senate that Britain, the United States and Canada turn over to the world security council what they know of atomic energy in return for their knowledge of other advanced implements of war.

Under Senator McMahon's proposal, the security council could inspect all plants and laboratories to see that the agreement was kept.

If Mr. Truman recommends something of this nature, indications are it will be studied by a joint Senate-House committee.

The President already has given the go-ahead signal to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on a resolution by Senator A. H. Vandenberg (Rep. Mich) to set up such a group. It would channel all atomic energy legislation through this group.

WORLD'S RECORD JUMP

London, Sept. 26. (CP)— The Moscow radio said Maj. Vassili Romanysk, Russian airman, had set "a word record for a delayed parachute jump", leaping 12,800 metres (42,000 feet—almost eight miles) with his parachute opening when he was 800 metres (2,625 feet) from the ground.

MAQUIS' FAVORITE

Nicholas Kochek, who has just been discharged at Fort Dix, N.J., has had a hectic career. It all started when he became tired of peeling potatoes in England, went A.W.O.L., and turned up in France as one of the key men of the French Forces of the Interior. Once when picked up as a suspicious character, he was cleared by G-2 of the 7th Armored, with this recommendation, "That man has knocked out more tanks and killed more Germans than your whole damn division." When he finally gave himself up as an A.W.O.L., the unorthodox war hero from New York's East Side, did not know what would happen. He finally got one year at hard labor—execution suspended.

DON'T MIND THE CREAKS

Orange woman writes:

Just finished reading the Brady Baby Book—and to say I am indignant would be to put it mildly.

Please tell me what year your book dates back to? For instance babies haven't been fed more frequently than every 4 hours for years—yet you recommend nursing every 2 1-2 hours for the first month or two, except in the night ....Why, even hospitals would be shocked—unless the baby is an incubator baby.

Where do you get your authority to print such an exaggerated and untruthful pamphlet? And your description of specialists is criminal.

Now that you have challenged my teaching in this public way, Ma'am, I suppose I must mumble something by way of self-defence.

The Brady Baby Book dates back to 1918. But there have been a good many editions since then, and, believe it or not, correspondents sometimes tell me they were raised on the Brady Baby Book and now they are raising their own kids by the same book.

This, Ma'am, is not rebuttal, for you have given no evidence but merely your opinion. I am merely explaining the creaks and rattles your hypersensitive ear detects as ye drive along.

Let's leave the "specialists" out of this discussion. I do not abate one jot or tittle what I say about real specialists and trick specialists in the Brady Baby Book — and people with enough sense to understand what I'm talking about will save most of the money the Wiseacres and the Must-Keep - Up - With-the-Joneses squander on the latter variety.

If a newborn infant or an infant a month or two months old seems content with nursing or feeding at 3-hour or even 4-hour intervals, that is the correct feeding schedule to follow—provided, of course, that the baby shows a gain of 7 ounces to one-half pound a week.

For the baby's sake, Ma'am, don't mistake the machine system, the "scientific inhumanity of doctors and nurses" in the hospital, for the right care or treatment of mother or baby. As Dr. Harry Bakwin, associate professor of pediatrics at New York University College of Medicine expressed it (Time, July 9, '45): ". . . the scientific inhumanity of doctors and nurses. Separating the baby from its mother at birth, instead of allowing it to be cuddled and breast-fed, is a bad beginning. The crime is compounded when the baby is put on a clock-ruled feeding schedule . . ."

Any reader who is in or expects to be in the baby business may have the latest edition of the Brady Baby Book if he or she will ask for it in writing and inclose ten cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Terpin Hydrate

Would it be all right to take two five-grain tablets of terpin hydrate daily for six weeks? I have obtained extraordinary relief from hacking cough by taking three grains three time a day, in capsules, but I have just found I can get it in bottles of 100 five-grain tablets. (R.E.S.)

Answer—I do not advise it. I suggest only doses of two or three grains, two or three times daily, for two or three weeks, not longer. It may be taken in capsule or tablet or in a pleasant tasting liquid elixir or terpin hydrate (two grains in the teaspoonful)—but be sure not to take an elixir that contains a narcotic along with the terpin hydrate. The remedy gives the greatest satisfaction in chronic winter cough where there is difficult expectoration or dryness and irritation. Terpin hydrate is made from turpentine.

Cleft Palate

Please give your opinion as to the best time to perform the operation for the correction of cleft palate. Our baby is six weeks old and has cleft palate.

(Mrs. C. F. M.)

Answer—The earlier operation for cleft palate or for harelip or both (they usually occur together) is done the better the cosmetic and functional result will be. Best time for the operation is as soon as the baby is in good nutritional condition and gaining.

Juice Legerdemain

Considering purchase of machine that extracts the juices of vegetables, as I believe this would give my family all the vitamins they need, which cannot be gotten from the fresh vegetables and fruits othewise. (Mrs. F. A.)

Answer—I assure you your family will get more vitamins if they eat the whole vegetables or fruit than they will if they take only the juice, no matter how it is expressed or "extracted."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How do cantaloupes differ from muskmelons?

In popular American usage "cantaloupe" and "muskmelon" are virtually synonymous.

Since the 16th century "muskmelon" has been applied to a group of musk-scented melons native to the Old World. They were cultivated by the ancient Egyptians and Romans and were introduced into the New World by the Spaniards.

Scientifically they belong to "Cucumis melo," which includes the true muskmelons, cantaloupes, rock melons, Persian melons, casabas, etc.

"Cantaloupe" is derived from "cantalupo Castle" in d'Ancona, a former country seat of the popes near Rome, where a variety of small, round, ribbed muskmelons were first grown in Europe from seed imported from Armenia.

The earliest use of "cantaloupe" recorded by the Oxford dictionary is dated 1839.

For many years true cantaloupes were supposed to be small, round, hard-shelled melons that contained little of the characteristic musky odor of the true muskmelons, a name applied specifically to the larger, nutmeg-shaped varieties with soft rind and netted surface markings.

For instance, in Liberty Hyde Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture, the musk-scented melons are classified in one group which includes the nutmet or netted melons and the cantaloupes or hard-rined melons. In other words, according to modern botanical authorities, the cantaloupe is merely one kind of muskmelon.

The question is confused by the fact that in the United States "cantaloupe" is popularly used as as a generic trade name for muskmelons in general. Botanically speaking, virtually all of the melons sold in the markets under the name cantaloupes are really muskmelons.

Fringed-Top Surrey

New York Times

A generation and more ago a fringed-top surrey was a mark of distinction. It wasn't every farm family that had one. The humble and useful two-seated democrat would not only carry a family of six comfortably; with the rear seat removed there was space for a barrel of apples or a few bags of potatoes for village customers. Boxes of pound prints of home-churned butter and buckets of eggs fitted under the democrat's seats when the family went to trade at the general store.

But the fringed-top surrey was a different matter. As Webster says: It was a four-wheeled, two-seated pleasure carriage. And anything dedicated to pleasure was in a category by itself. The surrey was a light-weight wagon; instead of a plain box body it had stylish cut-outs before each seat. Instead of wooden frame seats it had open grille work. The dashboard was lower and had a rakish, stylish air.

The glory of the surrey, however, was its fringed top. The canopy set it apart from everyday practical living. Supported on four steel rods, it gave a family protection from the sun. It should go without saying that a man didn't use this surrey if it looked like rain. However, many of the surreys had rain curtains that were carried in a box beneath the rear seat. They could in emergencies, be buttoned inside the fringe at the top and to knobs along the outside of the body.

There were certain occasions when the surrey was used. On pleasant Sundays it took the family to church. On Fourth of July, at outdoor political rallies, on Old Home Day, and at the Wednesday evening band concerts one saw the surreys. A lad somehow was glad to wash and dust the surrey. The black body with its narrow red trim line, the black-rimmed wheels and the red spokes had a style that appealed. The black top with its fringe of red was Art with a capital A. The surrey has gone, along with buckboards, top buggies and democrats. But it was a symbol of a good life on the farm.

STARBRIGHT

By Jane Bliss

CHAPTER 1

It was warm in Gabe's, and the sweet odor of cokes permeated the air. A music box on the dance floor a few steps up from the rows of black and gold decorated booths was moaning to "Red Sails in the Sunset."

Elaine Grayson brushed a wisp of her dark, curling hair away from her eyes, and stared moodily at the newspaper spread before her. The black print of the headline spoke of trouble in Ethiopia and she idly wondered where that was. She sighed and let her attention focus first on a story of strikes at Detroit automobile plants, then at an item about Townsend Clubs, at a feature story about "chain letters" and someone getting $1,300 in dimes, and finally at a story which said the spring weather of 1935 was unusually warm.

She sat back in the corner booth and felt the cooling breeze from an electric fan strike her face. She closed her gray eyes and felt the air rushing against her forehead, drying tiny beads of perspiration.

A large man plodded slowly along the rows of booths, most of them empty in the early afternoon lull. Twice he stopped to arrange napkin holders, and once he swiped a table clean of sandwich crumbs with his hand. He was Fred Gabener and he owned "Gabe's—the place to eat across the street." That was printed on black and gold matchbook covers, and only the most unacquainted stranger in town would not know that "across the street" was a stone's throw from the main campus of the large midwestern university.

Gabener slowed his approach to the front of the cafe when he saw Elaine sitting quietly in the booth, her eyes still closed. He could remember how they all crowded into Gabe's in their freshman years to buy meal tickets, to rush in at noon hours quickly scramble for vacant booths or one of the collapsible tables on the dance floor, or saunter in with dates after afternoon classes for cokes and dancing to the music box. And how slick and polished they looked when they strolled in for Sunday dinners.

He could remember thousands of them if he tried, remember how they would grow a little more each year, mature a little more, until finally they were young men and women and they would leave for good. Oh, perhaps they would return for Homecoming football games—or become famous and return to lecture a class or speak at chapel.

Some had become famous some would. He glanced down at Elaine, and smiled to no one at all, just smiled and looked at her face with its wide, sweeping forehead and curved cheeks; at the nose, a little shiny now from sweat, that was narrow and straight; and at the mouth and chin. He could always rate a new student by his mouth and chin. He liked them like Elaine's—firm and steady with just a touch of softness and gentleness.

Gabener glanced at the thick script book on the booth table, gazed at the label with its typed words stuck on the silver cover and smiled again. He had two tickets to see that play and some day he would sit down at his booth near the cash register and think about some of them becoming famous and how he had known them.

He shuffled on to the front of the cafe and saw Lee Collins running across the street, pushing open the door with easy abandon and grinning at him.

"Elaine here?" He was breathing heavily and Gabener knew he had run all the way from the journalism building at the far end of the campus. They made a nice couple, Elaine and Lee, Gabener thought as he motioned Lee to Elaine's booth. Then be became busy with the noon hour's receipts and forgot about them and all the rest, as he always did when he picked up the pack of green tickets.

"Hey," Lee said, sliding into the booth. "Do your sleeping at home or in classes." He waved to a student-waiter and ordered a coke. Then he settled back in a corner of the booth, propped one foot up on the bench and scratched a match for the cigaret dangling from his lips.

Elaine flicked open her eyes and smiled at Lee, letting his eager and buoyant spirit spread through her. His light-colored hair was unruly and his lean, handsome face was damp. He was mopping his brow.

"Gosh, it's hot," she said, sitting up to sip at the coke in front of her.

Lee watched the waiter put his own coke down, turned around straight in the booth, and looked at Elaine.

"I was talking to Stouffer. That's where I've been, in his office"

Elaine arched her eyebrows a little. Stouffer was head of the dramatic department; he'd had a little experience directing summer stock shows. Elaine's heart jumped a little with a scared feeling.

"Nothing's wrong, is there?" she asked.

"With what? The play?" Lee laughed, waving his hand derisively. "Of course not. He thinks we've got a honey of a play—for what little he knows. He was just talking over some of the publicity and show cards." Lee's voice rose jubilantly. "I saw the programs. Boy! 'Golden Night by Lee Collins and Elaine Grayson.' Nice, huh?"

Elaine grinned at Lee. They were 19, and seniors, and it all seemed very gigantic to them, having their play produced and presented for the annual Senior Revue. Usually the dramatic department paid royalty rights for a Broadway show. But Stouffer had been impressed with "Golden Night." Elaine shared Lee's enthusiasm, but kept it more to herself. She derived a peculiar satisfaction in nursing her joy deep within her, for to scatter it about with others seemed to her to tarnish its pure brightness. And she left the bragging to Lee—and Karen.

She did not dislike Karen Stoddard, and she knew that "Golden Night" was a better play because of Karen's acting. But sometimes Elaine found it hard to bear the wordly sophistication and ego the other girl lorded over her. It had been Lee who introduced Karen to the play; it had been he who bickered with Stouffer about her getting the leading role until Elaine had feared the play would not be presented.

Nor did she resent Karen's attitude toward Lee. She was a beautiful girl, Elaine admitted. She did not assume the campus fashions of long, sloppy cardigan sweaters and dusty saddle shoes. Her exquisite form was kept in neat, well-chosen dresses, and if her silken-clad legs and high heeled shoes did seem out of place in classrooms to other girls, they were well received by the male members of the student body.

Karen Stoddard would be campus queen, with her shimmering blond hair sparkling like a crown itself at the Spring Dance, and she would star in Elaine's play.

Elaine looked down at her own costume of pink, baggy sweater and deep blue skirt. She sighed and bit at the end of the straw in her glass. Absently she asked:

"Lee, where's Ethiopia?"

She was staring thoughtfully at her well-worn saddle shoes, paying no attention to Lee's answer.

Among the news stories about the WPA, and the bridge craze and John Dillinger, there was a short one about two university students whose play was to be presented at the Senior Revue instead of a Broadway production. Elaine sat in one of the the chairs in the long, lamp-lighted sorority house living-room and watched Karen read the story, a slow sulking pout forming on her face.

The blue eyes, usually bright if a little hard, were smoldering when Karen threw the paper to the floor. She looked across the room at Elaine.

"Did you read that?" she snapped.

"Yes, I thought it was very nice." Elaine turned to look out the window. Dusk was settling and Lee would arrive soon for their Saturday night date which consisted of a picture show, cokes and dancing either at Ferris', uptown, or at Gabe's.

"You would," Karen growled, bringing her attention back to room. "But what does the story say about me? Just a line that I'm in it."

Karen was standing, her hands clasped tightly at the sides of a summery black dress. She was waiting for a date, Elaine assumed.

"Really, Karen, don't you think you're taking it too seriously? It's only a school play."

Karen glared at Elaine. "You may think lightly of all this, but it means a career to me."

Elaine wanted to laugh at the dramatic appeal in Karen's voice.

"How do you thing this will impress John Warren?" Karen asked, pacing in the centre of the room.

"Who?" Elaine asked, baffled "Who's John Warren, a new date?"

"Didn't Lee tell you?" Karen asked in mild surprise.

"Tell me what?" She watched Karen sit down in a chair near her, curl her legs under her—and smile.

"I thought Lee told you, but perhaps he's been keeping it as a surprise. Maybe I shouldn't say anything about it." Karen kept smiling.

Elaine knew Karen was pleased that Lee should have told her something and not Elaine. But she brushed aside pride, a little hurt that she was left out of something which might concern her, and asked: "Just who is John Warren? If it's a surprise, I'll act surprised when Lee tells me. So now, give."

Karen bit her lip, unable to keep the pleasure from her eyes. "Well, Dean Stouffer told Lee that a friend of his who is a producer on Broadway would be in the audience the night of the play. That's who John Warren is."

Elaine sat back. A New York producer would see the play she helped write. She felt a little dizzy.

Karen was still talking. ". . . and if I carry the lead all right, as I know I shall, then he'll probably ask me to star in one of his shows."

Elaine smiled. "I hope so," she murmured. It was silly of her to imagine that a Broadway producer would like the play, would want to buy it and stage it in New York. But her mind was racing furiously with that hope.

There was a restlessness in her, a kind of flush to her cheeks when Lee walked in, tossing his hat on top of the piano and greeting them.

Before Elaine could rise, Karen was at Lee's side, holding his hand and showing him the newspaper and the story about the play.

"Lee, darlin', don't you think that's unfair? Couldn't you go down and see them and have something printed about the cast? After all, those poor kids are working themselves to pieces for your play. Really, darlin', you should take better care of your cast."

Have You a Grade-A Smile? If Not, Look at Your Teeth

Jinx Falkenburg's Grade-A smile shows her beautiful teeth

By HELEN FOLLETT

WMEN, as they are photographed and as we see them in newspapers and magazines, are all smiles. They carry facial expressions of excessive amiability if not riotous joy. And they show off their teeth in fine style.

Without sound white, well-formed teeth the composition of facial loveliness just isn't. Of all good looks rituals, the care of the teeth is most important.

Proper Care

It is estimated that only twenty per cent of Uncle Sam's children receive proper professional care along these lines. That does not mean that the other eighty per cent is made up of those unfortunate mortals who cannot afford the services of the dentist.

It includes men and women who are craven cowards, won't bring themselves to face the little buzz-saws and pick axes. Two visits a year for examination cleaning and repairs would save time, pain and money in the long run.

To be really clean, teeth should be brushed after each meal. Particles of food soon change to chemicals that are destructive to dentime. Eelect a brush with grouped bristles; it can be kept cleaner than when bristles are closely packed together. Rinse well after using.

Brush the teeth from gums to ends with a rolling motion so that the sides are scoured. Be sure to include the biting surfaces; that is where decay most commonly occurs.

Feed Them

It is necessary to feed your teeth. They need vitamin C daily. Include in your diet orange juice, milk, lettuce, fresh vegetables and fruit. There is an idea, accepted by many dentists, that diet deficiencies may be responsible for caries.

Gnaw bread crusts. Eat raw vegetables. If you have a pet side for chewing you can be sure that there's something wrong on the other side and you are favoring it. And, do you know that one-sided mastication produces a one-sided face? I bet that'll scare you!

WEDDINGS

WADSWORTH—YATEMAN

The marriage of Miss Mabel Irene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman, of Sidney Township, to Francis Bernard, son of Mr. Frank Wadsworth and the late Mrs. Frank Wadsworth, of Bancroft, took place at the Bayside Parsonage, Saturday afternoon, September 22, at two o'clock in the presence of a few immediate friends. Mr. and Mrs. William A. Yateman, of Trenton, brother and sister-in-law of the bride signed the register. The Rev. A. C. McCallum, of the Bayside Pastoral charge, officiated.

The bride wore an eggshell sheer street length dress with a shoulder-length veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid was attired in a lime green street-length dress and wore a corsage of cream shade gladioli.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a delicious buffet lunch was served. The interesting part of the proceedings was when the bride and groom opened the many parcels containing the wedding gifts. Both the bride and groom expressed their sincere thanks to their many friends for kind expressions of goodwill. The dining room table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake. The evening was spent in music and community singing led by Mr. William Navin, well-known Belleville musician.

The newly wedded couple left for a short honeymoon to Toronto, and will make their home in Belleville.

Those in attendance from outside points included—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Purdy, Detroit, U.S., Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman, Stirling; Miss Gwen Loney, Rednersville; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mutton, Mrs. O. Yateman, Colborne, Mr. Fred Wadsworth and Alex Wadsworth, Bancroft; Mr. and Mrs. Wes. Remington, Adolphustown, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McDonald, Wellington, Miss Hilda Jackson, Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Don Fraser, Ottawa.

WILEY—SUTHERBY

On Saturday afternoon at two-thirty at the Holloway Street United Church parsonage, Miss Lillian May Sutherby, eldest daughter of Mrs. Mina Sutherby, was united in marriage to Mr. Merton Wiley, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wiley, of Markdale, Ontario. The Rev. J. A. Dilts officiated.

The bride looked lovely in a two-pece turquoise blue crepe dress, navy accessories with a corsage of roses and baby 'mums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie McMechan of Melrose, looked lovely in pale pink with brown accessories with a corsage of roses, and baby 'mums.

Mr. John Goodsinger acted as best man.

A supper at the Quinte Hotel was enjoyed by friends. Later the happy couple left by train amid showers of confetti for Toronto, Hamilton and Markdale. On their return they will live in Trenton, where Mr. Wiley is employed at present with the Hydro Electric Company.

WHALEN—SCOTT

St. Michael's Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday morning, September 22, at nine o'clock, when Frances Pauline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott of this city, became the bride of Benedict Alexander Whalen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Whalen, R.R. No. 6, Belleville. Rev. Father A. L. O'Donnell officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with white gladioli.

The bride came down the aisle to the Wedding March played by Rev. Sister Mary Biblanna, aunt of the groom. During the Nuptial Mass Mrs. G. Clapp, was soloist. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in her floor-length gown of white sheer with finger-tip veil of silk net held by her Mary Queen of Scots headdress, trimmed with seed pearls. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses with bouvardia. The bride wore as her only ornament a two-strand necklace of pearls and matching pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

Miss Eileen Hanson, as maid of honor, was beautifully attired in her floor-length gown of shell pink with matching headdress and shoulder-length veil and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and baby's breath.

The two lovely bridesmaids, Mrs. Gordon Cooney and Mrs. Elmer Scott, sister and sister-in-law, of the bride, were attired in floor-length gowns of yellow and turquoise corded taffeta with matching coronets with veils which tied under the chin in large bows. Mrs. Cooney carrying a bouquet of red roses with baby's breath and Mrs. E. Scott, yellow roses with baby's breath.

Little Frances Fay Cooney, niece of the bride, made a pretty little flower girl, looking lovely in her floor-length dress of sky blue taffeta and matching headdress and carrying a Colonial nosegay of pink rosebuds and blue cornflowers from which fell pink streamers.

The groom was attended by his brother, Ambrose Whalen, and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Cooney and Mr. Gerald Whalen.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, Yeomans Street, Mrs. Scott, mother of the bride, receiving her guests, and wearing a navy sheer two-piece dress and navy accessories with a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Whalen, mother of the groom, who wore a black crepe dress with white and black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The house was beautifully decorated with Fall flowers and ferns. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake. At each end was a silver candelabra with pink and white tapers. A large white bell hung from the centre, fastened by white streamers. The gifts of the bride to her attendants were to the maid of honor, gold earrings, to the bridesmaid, a gold cross and chain and to the flower girl, a sterling silver bracelet.

The groom's gifts to his attendants were leather wallets.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Whalen left on a wedding trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Buffalo. The bride chose for travelling a smart dressmaker suit of dark olive green with chocolate brown accessories and Russian squirrel furs. Her corsage was yellow roses. Mr. and Mrs. Whalen will take up their residence in Belleville.

GIRLS' INVICTAE MISSION CIRCLE

On Friday evening last, the monthly meeting of the Girls' Invictae Mission Circle was held in the ladies' Parlors of Bridge St. United Church. A delicous supper has been prepared and was greatly enjoyed by the large group who had gathered. A short business meeting followed at which plans were discussed for the coming year; the meeting was then adjourned owing to the presence of Miss Claire Sloane-Seale, of Trinidad, guest speaker at the open meeting which followed.

FRANKFORD W.M.S.

The Evening Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society held its September meeting at the home of Mrs. J. A. Warren on Thursday evening. The President Mrs. H. Slingerland, opened the meeting by reading a poem "The Fall is Here Again". During the business period a motion was passed changing the night of the meeting to the 3rd Friday of each month, instead of Thursday as has been the custom during the war years.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Warren, who dealt very ably with the subject of our missions in Angola. She was assisted in this portion of the program by Mrs. L. M. Coutts, Mrs. S. Martin and Mrs. C. Bennett.

Mrs. S. Martin had charge of the remainder of the program which consisted of readings by Mrs. F. Ketcheson, Mrs. J. E. Finnigan and Mrs. H. Montgomery. Two very interesting contests were put on and the meeting closed with the benediction. A social hour was spent with refreshments being served by Mrs. S. Martin and Mrs. Warren.

EGGLETON W.M.S. and W.A.

The September meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Warren Harlow on Thursday afternoon, with eighteen adults and three children present.

The program was prepared by Mrs. Ray Danford and Miss Helen McMullen. The President, Mrs. Bruce Stapley presided.

The Worship period was conducted by Mrs. Nelson Stapley, Mrs. Warren Harlow and Mr. Kenneth Stewart.

Anniversary date was set for the last Sunday in October.

October meeting is to be at Mrs. Flood's with Mrs. Milton Reid preparing the program.

Mrs. C. Lansing gave a paper based on the 13th Chapter of Corinthians.

Mrs. E. Flood gave a reading on Christian Stewardship.

Offering taken amounted to $2.53.

The hostess then served refreshments, the proceeds of which amounted to $1.75.

Ladies' Auxiliary Of A&NV Praised By Windsor Branch

Appreciation of the fine work being done by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Army and Navy Veterans, Belleville Branch 201 in meeting all troop trains and dispensing comforts to returning veterans is seen in a letter received by Auxiliary President Mrs. Sam Turner from a sister branch of the organization in Windsor. The letter speaks for itself:

Windsor Unit 30,
1014 Tecumseh Rd., E.,
Windsor, Ont.,
Sept. 20th., 1945.

The President,
Ladies Auxiliary Unit 49,
Army & Navy Veterans,
Belleville.

Dear Madam President:

It has been brought to our attention by one of our members who recently returned from overseas who passed through Belleville on his way to Windsor about the masterful job the members of your auxiliary are doing for the welfare of the troops passing through your city. His praise was so generous about the good work you ladies are doing to alleviate the hardships that our troops have endured, also the comforts you have so generously donated to these returning veterans that I have been instructed by the unanimous voice of our membership at our last general meeting to extend to you, Madam, your officers and members, our heartiest thanks and good wishes for the great good you have done and are now doing.

Wishing the best of health and success,

Yours fraternally,
(Signed)
H. Gibson,
Secretary,
Unit 30, A. & N. V. C.

THE BASIC dress of wool is a useful addition to the autumn and winter wardrobe, especially if it is the type of dress that can face the world smartly without any extraneous adornment. Fine lines and an easy cut mark this basic black wool dress made with fairly loose underarm seam and 3-4 length sleeves. The high, round, collarless neckline has a set-in twisted band above the bodice which has slight draping from the centre seam. The skirt has a double kick pleat in front and is gored in back.

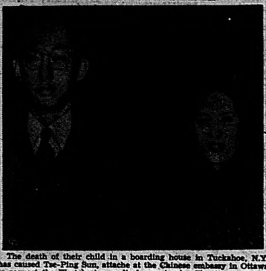
ASK PROBE OF CHILD'S DEATH



The death of their child in a boarding house in Tuckahoe, N.Y., has caused Tse-Ping Sun, attache at the Chinese embassy in Ottawa, to request the Westchester medical examiner's office to conduct an autopsy. The child, seven-weeks-old Kuo-Wei Sun, is a great grandson of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, China's "George Washington." Sun and his wife had just arrived from Ottawa for a visit to New York, where they maintain a residence. They said the baby had been at the boarding house for several weeks. Sun is related by marriage to Mme. Chiang.

Detroit Only One Rain Storm Away From One of the Richest World Series Pools in History

If Double Bill Washed Out With Cleveland Tigers Can Win Without Playing

By JACK HAND

(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

Detroit is one rain storm away from one of the richest world series pools in history and the Chicago Cubs aren't far removed.

If the weather man turns the faucet on Briggs Stadium again today, washing out the scheduled doubleheader with Cleveland, the Tigers will back right into the American League throne without winning another game all year.

Things are not quite that simple for the Cubs in the National but they lead by 2 1-2 games and can grind out St. Louis Cardinals' last hope by repeating yesterday's 6-5 conquest in their final meeting of the year. They still would not be "in" mathematically but it would be so close that they'd have to lose the remaining five games and the Cards win their four to miss a tie.

Most of Charley Grimm's men figured they won the flag when they beat Harry Brecheen yesterday but Jolly Cholly wasn't so sure. Billy Southworth of the opposing Cardinals refused to give up and predicted: "We're not out of it yet. But we've got to win that last one."

Hank Borowy failed to last through a desperate Card rally in the eighth but received credit for his 10th victory as a Cub and his 20th in a combination season with the Yankees and Chicago. It was a third straight triumph over the defending champions for the slim righthander.

Superb Relief Job.

Ray (Pappy) Prim helped him out with a superb relief job and some solid base knocks by Phil Cavarretta and Andy Pafko, each of whom knocked in two runs, turned a threatened loss into a glorious victory.

Borowy thus became the first two-league 20-game winner since Iron Man McGinnity of Baltimore and New York 43 years ago.

After today's series finale, the Cuubs have five to play, three with Pittsburgh and two with Cincinnati while the Cards have only four to go, three with the Reds and one with the Pirates.

The American League is an open and shut proposition. If the rain that postponed yesterday's game continues, Detroit never will play the final pair with the Indians who have engagements at St. Louis Thursday and Friday and at Chicago Saturday and Sunday.

Could Miss by One Point.

Even if the Tigers lose both their remaining tilts with the Browns, Washington would miss the pennant by one lonely percentage point. The Senators' only hope is for Detroit to play all their remaining four tilts and blow at least three of them.

Only two other games were played yesterday, one in each league as a Pittsburgh-at-Cincinnati contest also was washed out.

Brooklyn tightened its grip on third place and just about ended New York's last hopes of regaining a first-division berth with a 7-4 triumph on Goody Rosen's three-ruun homer in the ninth.

Al Hollingsworth hurled the St. Louis Browns to a 5-1 margin over Chicago for his 12th success.

Canadian Sport Snapshot

anjlorha?asrotcR ya-tholYRS(.h-

By ALAN HARVEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP)— The sport spotlight today links blond Billy Taylor, who handles a hockey stick as suavely as a dowager adjusting her lorgnette, and Jack Parry, a scared seabiscuit on the football field before his R.C.A.F. enlistment in 1942.

Their specialties are different, but these outstanding Canadian athletes have much in common.

They belong to the same age group, both are getting set for the transition from service life to sport, and both appear determined to make their comebacks successful. They've done a lot of thinking about "reconversion" and their frame of mind is healthy.

Taylor, now 26, struggled to the top in hockey from humble beginnings. At his best, he was one of the smoothest stickhandlers in the game. "Life expanded for him in hockey and in business," says Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle, but war changed the picture.

"Billy went into the army ostensibly to play hockey, actually to eat his heart out in disciplined semi-idleness," reports Lytle. "He had plenty of time to think.

"What appears to have happened is that the army, plus business reverses, plus his father's illness, the responsibilities of wife and children, transformed Taylor from a happy-go-lucky kid with an all-day sucker at his lips, into a grave young man soberly discovering that his foundation had sunk beneath him and it is up to him to fight his own way back to economic stability."

Now Taylor says he realizes how much hockey meant to him. He's working hard at Oshawa, Ont., to condition himself for the opening of the National League training camp of Toronto Maple Leafs, where he'll gun for a centre ice post against fellows like Gus Bodnar, Ted Kennedy, Nick Metz, Pete Langelle and possibly Syl Apps.

Parry, three years younger than Taylor, returns to football at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., where he will take an engineering course. Jack won the D.F.C.—for "endurance," he says—after 36 bombing missions over Germany. He always wanted to play college football and now, at 23, he gets the chance.

The Windsor, Ont., backfielder should be a sensation. In 1942, he was an overnight discovery with Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, Dominion titlists that year. As shrewd a judge as Lew Hayman called Parry a greater running half than Fritzie Hanson, though he later qualified the remark by inserting the word potentially.

FATALLY BEATEN BY ARMED BANDIT

Calgary, Sept. 26 (CP) — Lem Young Wing, 62-year-old Chinese, died here following a brutal beating by an armed bandit at his store Monday night.

The assailant escaped through the back door of the shop with $23 in cash before police were called to the scene.

Police believe the bandit entered the shop unnoticed, came up behind Wing and struck him several blows on the head with the butt-end of a gun.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON SR.

New York, Sept. 26. (AP) — Speaking of close races —as who isn't these days—the Pony League likely will have to wait for midwinter again before crowning its batting champion. In the unofficial figures, Tom Kovalak of Hornell and Lou Urchio of Batavia finished two points apart. . Last year Batavia's Bob Rothel went home thinking he was the champ by a three-point margin but the official recheck gave it to Johnny Gwosden of Hornell by .338 to .337. Both major league batting contests could end the same way . . . Pick your own winners.

Bill Nicholson, Cubs—when he connects, the ball goes places. Has been afflicted by a serious batting slump lately, but if he loosens up and comes out of it, there'll be bad news for opposing pitchers. . . . Augie Bergamo, Cardinals—broke into baseball when his boss in a Detroit tool plant insisted on his attending a tryout camp. . . Roy Cullenbine, Tigers—was set free from Detroit by Judge Landis in 1939 and got a $25,000 bonus for signing with Dodgers. . . Buddy Lewis, Senators (they're not out yet)—not the fielder he was before the war, but he's still hitting better than .300.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press.)

President Henry Cotton of the British Professional Golfers Association announted yesterday it would be impossible to pick a Ryder Cup team for the International competition with the United States for at least two years because of the effect of the war in Britain.

A number of American Pros, including Byron Nelson, at Portland, Ore., for the open tourney there Sept. 27-30, said they were prepared to make a playing visit to England in 1946 anyway.

A former outside wing of Hamilton Tigers following the First Great War and later mentor of various teams, Tommy Henderson took over the coaching assignment of the McMaster University gridiron squad. He has been with the R.C.A.F.

Nine youthful hockey players left Winnipeg in a body to enroll with the University of Minnesota and also to try out with the Millers hockey team at Minneapolis, it was stated at the Manitoba capital yesterday. Those who make the team will continue to attend the University.

When Toronto Oakwood Indians and Balmy Beach play a senior O.R.F.U. fixture at Maple Leaf Stadium Friday night, ceremonial tribute will be paid seven members of the Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, winners of the Grey Cup in 1942, who made the supreme sacrifice in the war. They were Eddie Thompson, George Oliphant, Lloyd Langley, John Buckmaster, Robert Sarvis, Eddie Burton and Ed Poscavage.

After absence of seven years from the ring, Eddie Phillips, 34-year-old British heavyweight, decisioned Olle Tandberg of Sweden in an eight-round bout last night at London. The Swede was down for a count of nine in the second round but stayed.

Billy Conn, former light heavyweight champion of the world, was discharged from the United States army at Camp Lee, Va., yesterday and left for his Pittsburgh home to prepare to challenge Joe Louis for the heavyweight title.

Starry member of Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers, until his retirement from N.H.L. company in 1935, Art Somers has been appointed coach of the Esquires at Winnipeg, the first Junior team of which he has taken charge.

At an O.R.F.U. committee meeting in Hamilton last night the protest of the Hamilton Wildcats against the decision of the referee in their game Saturday with Toronto Oakwood Indians was disallowed. The ruling of the official that a placement would count as a single point for a deadline kick was upheld.

METEOR SWEEPS SKY

San Francisco, Sept. 26 (AP)—A huge meteor, which looked like a red star with a blue tail, swept across southeastern Australia, lighting up the countryside as bright as daylight, shortly after midnight, Melbourne radio said in a broadcast recorded by N.B.C. Australian observers reported that the meteor made a thunderous roar as it sailed by from north to south.

Postcard from Harry Robinson came today postmarked Seattle, Washington where Harry is doing a spot of vacationing....Said he's going to see Strangler Lewis and the Angel (remember?) do a bit of schnozzle twisting and bunny-hugging in a Seattle Arena, but will miss Sugar Robinson and his bout in Chicago. Sends his best regards to the leather-pushers hereabouts.

Lotsa Luck.

Walt Gerow Jr.; Leo Goyer and it is stated Vernon Goyer will leave tomorrow for Shawinigan Falls where they will turn out for hockey practice with the Providence Reds of the American Hockey Association....Gerow, prior to going overseas was glimpsed over by scouts of the Chicago Black Hawks while playing for Napanee, and the kid was said then to have prospects....Now, with four or five years overseas active service under his belt, Walt has filled out considerably and has all the physical earmarks of a smart hockeyist....The grapevine has it that another professional club was angling for his services ....Leo Goyer was a smart shifty player here prior to the war and his overseas service has stood him in good stead....He should make good....Vernon the younger has the solid poundage of a good defenceman and like brother Leo has considerable hockey ability.. The boys will take the best wishes of all sports fans in this city and district.

Splinters.

Columbian Squires will take off for Hamilton on Saturday where they joust with the Hamilton junior prides in the first tilt of the O.A.S.A. junior championship. The second game is scheduled for Belleville on Saturday, October 6 and the third game, if necessary will be played on Monday, Oct. 8 place to be named.

Seems to be some clash of opinion regarding the locals of that third game between Dresden and the Belleville Junior baseballers. ....Up to time of writing Convenér Ernie Summers has had no word from the O.B.A. secretary as to when and where the third tilt will be played....It appears the Dresden team wanted to play in Galt today (Wednesday) guaranteeing the Belleville squad financial returns for the extra mileage over the halfway route....On the other side the locals couldn't see their way clear to play a midweek game and were willing to play in Hamilton on Saturday. Dresden stated they couldn't play on that date—and there the matter rests. ....There might be some sort of a merry mix-up if Secretary Bill Snyder of the O.B.A. finally orders the game played in Hamilton on Saturday next, for that is the date Columbian Squires tangle with the Ambitious City softball juniors in the first game of the provincial finals....Looks like the six-man style of football is on the way out around these parts.. The Bay of Quinte section of the C.O.S.S.A. in solemn conclave here on Monday night were all in favor of the old twelve-man style and that is what the fans wil see here this autumn with both junior and senior school squads battling on the various gridirons....The six-man game may have had its good points, but personally this corner, at least welcomes back the twelve-man game..It may not be as fast, perhaps, but there is as much if not more action than the abbreviated style and furthermore it gives those kids a chance to get out there and "Die for dear old Rutgers" who hitherto have been forced to watch so-called better players in action, from the sidelines...."Pete" Beach was elected prexy of the Bay of Quinte section of the C.O.S.S.A. and we don't know of a better man to have in the presidential chair.... Pete has just resumed his old duties as athletic director at Albert College after several years overseas with the troops....His ability as an organizer was proven during his tour of duty over there with the boys and he is the right man in the right spot for the C.O.S.S.A. job....Lighthorse Harry Cooper once drove a golf ball 285 yards with a polo mallet ....It happened in Hollywood where anything out of the ordinary is a commonplace occurrence. Eddie Schreider tells us he has a budding young football columnist who wil shortly show his wares in this journal....Welcome chum, and how....Start anytime....Tonight at the Hume Arena Dr. Len Hall, the Phighting Parmacist from the state where it never rains but the dew is terrific will match his pachydermic ponderosity with the streamlined chassis of Earl "Moose" McCready....The Doc doesn't agree with the meat rationing edict in Canada, and has been short on his raw steaks for the past three weeks....He's not fussy where his steaks come from and it is quite likely he will try to tear McCready to bits and satisfy his appetite that way.... But the Moose has no idea of being made into a wrestling fricasse for Hall or any other gent who fancies himself as a wrestler, and the outcome should be an atomic outburst of pugnacious pushing....The Krafty Katan is matched with big Walt. Sirois in the semi-final and the "Fingers" has been in anything but a pleasant mood since his last appearance here....That should be a tidy tidbit..In the opener Bunny Dunlop the Ole Perennial will joust with Tom Collins of Erin.. Overall a smart card....Thassall.

"JUST SPECULATION" SAYS DREW

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP)—Premier Drew said that stories of cocktail bars in Ontario and the banning of women's beverage rooms were "just speculation on the part of the writers." Government policy on the liquor question had not been decided.

The Premier added he had heard the story of proposed cocktail bars.

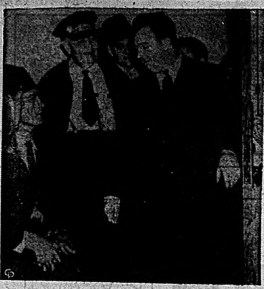
RESUMPTION GAS RATIONING IN TOLEDO



Vice-Mayor Michael V. Disalle of Toledo, O., (hand on door) is explaining Toledo's gas rationing plan to some anxious motorists who crowded into the Mayor's office to determine their eligibility for ration cards. The resumption of rationing was caused by the refinery strikes that have shut down gasoline and oil plants in the area. Ten Toledo gas stations have been appointed by the city as distributing centres for essential users.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 791

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Perhaps you play with Feelza Roats who thinks she knows the laws. Unless you do as she misquotes, she jaws and jaws and jaws.

From force of habit, the dealer in any card game reaches for the pack of cards. So, there are many bridge players who have the mistaken idea that the dealer prepares the pack for his own deal.

However, the laws of rubber bridge say: The pack for each deal is prepared by the player on the left of the dealer. Preparing a pack consists of collecting and shuffling the cards and placing them face down, as a pack, on the left of the next dealer.

This makes it clear that the dealer must not get his own pack ready for his own deal. His left hand opponent is required to do that.

If this is not done, the laws go on to say: Any player may, before the first card is dealt, demand a new shuffle. Therein lies the answer to the letter that follows.

"After I picked up my hand, an opponent asked for a new deal. He based his claim on the fact that the player at the left of the dealer did not make the cards before they were dealt. I hated to have it done because I had this hand."

♠ A K Q J 6 4
♥ A K 9 2
♦ A 6
♣ 4

The kind of hands that came out in the deal had nothing to do with the answer. In this case, a new deal may be refused. The request for a new deal came too late. It would have been too late any time after the first card was dealt.

Suppose it was claimed that the cards were not shuffled by any player. Even then you can refuse a new deal after a card has been dealt off the pack by the correct dealer.

Holding a gabfest between deals is not excuse enough. Having a partner who does not help you protect your rights is not excuse enough.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating supper, being a big steak to celebrate the butcher having more beef, and ma shook her head to herself, saying to pop, I dont mind giving money away, William, and I dont even mind losing it in the ordnerry course of human events, but to see it blow out of my bag in front of my very eyes, that's more than I can bare. And that's precisely what happened to a 5 doller bill in a gust of wind at the bus station this afternoon. Right out of my bag and into thin air forever, without a trace, she said.

Look on the bright side of it, my dear, pop said. Your five spot was probably picked up by some poor sole who didn't know where his next cup of coffee was coming from and couldn't remember where his last cup went to, he said, and ma said, That's a very dark ray of sunshine because if I know anything about the ways of life my dollers was found by some rich and unscrupuliss caracter with more income brains.

Well jimminy, ma, even the richest people like to find money, especially 5 doller bills in the air, I said. I bet the guy that found it is so rich he dont even have any fun paying the biggest bills, and it made him feel so lucky I bet it's the first money he's enjoyed for a long time, and you're the innocent cause of it, ma, I said, Oh, I remember now, I left that 5 doller bill under the enamel clock in my dressing table, so it must of been the laundry list that blew out of my bag, how fortunate.

Now isn't that too bad, the poor devil is still looking for his next cup of coffee, pop said, and I said, Aw G, ma, that poor rich guy will never know what he missed.

Oh, save your pity for a rainy day, both of you, ma said. I'm positive I left it under that clock, she said.

And she hurry up went to look to be certain she was absolutely sure.

Lt.-Col. L. Boulter Arrives Home From Overseas

Picton, Sept. 26 — Lt.-Col. Leland Boulter, E.D., M.D., arrived from overseas last weekend and visited his mother, Mrs. G. E. Boulter, and his sister, Mrs. William Rankin here. He is leaving to join his family now in Vancouver.

Lt. Col. Boulter was senior medical officer at Whitley and Basingstoke, England, and registrar of the Basingstoke neurological hospital. He was in command of No. 5 Casualty Clearing Station in Italy from October to February and then served in France, Belgium, Holland also with the Casualty Clearing Station.

Col. Boulter reported that great damage had been done to many cities by the Germans before they retreated.

LAC. Abraham Maycock, R.C.A.F. has also arrived home. He went overseas early in 1943 and was attached to No. 406 Lynx Squadron, a Mosquito fighter-bomber group. He graduated from the Galt Aircraft School and for 19 months was stationed at Trenton. While overseas, he married Sylvia Ross of Plymouth who plans to join him here.

Overseas since 1939, Pte. Clarence Yardley was welcomed home by his wife. Originally with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment he transferred to the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards and saw service in Sicily and Italy.

Bombardier Albert Cannons is another arrival home. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cannons, Consecon. He enlisted at Kingston in March 1941 with the 14th Field Regiment, R.C.A., and went overseas the following July. He served in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. He married an English girl in 1943 and she plans to join him here.

Receives Mention.

News that he had been "Mentioned in Dispatches" came as a complete surprise to WO. 2 Clifford McCalpin when informed of the honor yesterday. He stated he had not received any official notification.

A member of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, he went overseas in December 1939. After three years in England, he accompanied the unit to Sicily and Italy. Since 1942 he had been regimental quartermaster sergeant and members of the regiment are unanimous in praising the work he did in maintaining supplies. He returned to Canada last March. He is the son of F. J. McCalpin, Picton.

PACE-SETTING CHICAGO CUBS APPEAR "IN"

Claude Passeau and Charley Barrett Will be Hurlers in Last of Series

Chicago, Sept. 26 (AP)— The pace-setting Chicago Cubs, gloating over a precious 2 1-2-game lead, watched St. Louis Cardinals squirm in desperation — for a chance—as the two National League flag contenders went at each other's throats today in the finale of a two-game showdown.

Jolly Cholly Grimm admitted he was ready to reach for his inseparable banjo and strum a pennant victory chant after his Bruins and Hank Borowy plucked the Redbirds 6-5 yesterday.

Even a Cardinal triumph today will leave the Bruins 1 1-2 games in front with five games left to play while the Redbirds flutter through four more.

Billy Southworth sent Charley (Red) Barrett to the hill in an effort to fan fading Cardinal pennant hopes and renew the persistent St. Louis hex over the Cubs whose one-run decision yesterday left them with only six victories in 21 starts against the world series champions.

Grimm's hopes for a triumph that would completely nip the stretch bid of the wobbly Cards were pinned on the right arm of square-jawed Claude Passeau, a 17-game winner, who has dropped two straight to the Cards.

Pessaeu, however, faced a 23-game victor in Barrett, who defeated him 3-2 just a week ago at St. Louis for his fourth straight decision over the Cubs.

NEW OPPOSITION

Progressive Conservatives alone supported Mr. Bracken's amendment. Social Crediters, and independents as well as the C.C.F. joined with the Liberals to roll up a majority against it.

Prime Minster Mackenzie King announced the appointment of three parliamentary assistants. R. W. Mayhew (L—Victoria, B. C.) becomes assistant to Finance Minister Ilsley, while W. C. Macdonald (L—Halifax) and Lt.-Col. Hughes (Bob) Lapointe (L—Lotbiniere) become assistants to Defence Minister Abbott.

The debate itself brought suggestions from members for changes in Canada's monetary, banking, immigration and agricultural policies.

In an exposition of Social credit principles, John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) said a national credit account should be established would show what goods were available and what were about to be produced. Then a menetary authority should create the money needed to ensure the distribution of the goods to the people. The money should be distributed through dividends wage and price bonuses.

Among speakers who followed was Hazen Argue, 24 (CCF—Wood Mountain) youngest member of the Commons, who urged that credit unions be given the same privileges as chartered banks so people might again own the banks instead of the banks "owning the people."

Other speakers were Col. Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East) who urged that Canada immediately adopt policy of restricted immigration; Norman Jacques (SC—Wetaskiwin); Benoit Michaud (L — Restigouche - Madawaska); W. C. S. McClure (PC—Queen's); C. W. Hodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.) and J. F. Pouliot (Ind. L—Temiscouata).

Mr. Hodgson said that National Selective Service and War Labor Boards were short-sighted and inefficient in some of their decisions.

Decisions Blamed For Shortages.

Decisions of the Labor Board could be blamed for the firewood shortage two years ago. Wood operators in his area were ordered to reduce pay to men from $3.75 to $3.25.

Mr. Hodgson said he had been turning 5,000 cords of wood a month at the time.

A year later National Selective Service had to get the wood operators to send all possible men into the bush because there was a firewood crisis. If men could not be found prisoners-of-war were provided.

EMPEROR HIROHITO

A member of Japan's House of Peers, meanwhile proposed in an interview that Emperor Hirohito withdraw from all political affairs, in order to eliminate "the clique around the throne," and thus make democracy possible.

Marquis Yoshichika Tokugawa said that if the emperor withdrew to the background as a spiritual adviser and avoided political matters, there would be no political clique surrounding him.

Reorganization of the Japanese agency through which occupation headquarters rules the conquered country also began today, to shake off domination by Japanese foreign office personnel.

(Occupation forces will be bolstered soon by Chinese troops, said a Chinese Government spokesman in Chungking today. He did not report their numbers or expected date of arrival.)

The Japanese central liaison office through which Gen. MacArthur's commands are effected is being broadened to include representatives of all fields of government, Japanese government sources said. The office previously has had slight chance to act, however, since the Japanese foreign office has been doling out Gen. MacArthur's requests to appropriate Japanese governmental departments for action.

The Japanese Privy Council approved the reorganization at a special session in the presence of Emperor Hirohito yesterday. The battle for reorganization was one factor which forced the resignation of Mamoru Shigemitsu, the Foreign Minister who signed the surrender document for Japan. Shigemitsu had supported current bureaucrats in the Liaison office.

Two Vice-Presidents

Japanese government sources said the organization, which retains its present name, will be headed by a president of ministerial rank whose appointment will be approved by Gen. MacArthur. There will be two vice-presidents, one the concurrent vice foreign minister.

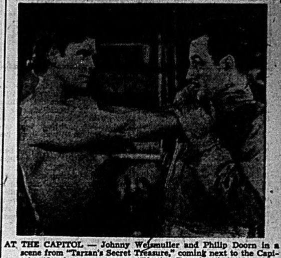
It was announced only today that the new Vice Foreign Minister is Tatsuo Kawai, a member of the old line bureaucratic clique. He succeeded Shinichi Matzumato, who resigned.

It was also disclosed that yesterday Gen. MacArthur and Jacob Malik, former Soviet Ambassador to Japan, conferred prior to Malik's scheduled departure by plane for Moscow.

Both MacArthur and Malik were silent on the topic of the conversations.

(In London yesterday, a reliable source said Russia had proposed to the Big Five Council of Foreign Ministers that the Russians have a voice in determining Gen. MacArthur's policies in Japan.)

AT THE BELLE — Judy Garland, who co-stars with Robert Walker in M.G.M.'s romantic new picture, "The Clock," now at the Belle, with the Japanese surrender ceremonies on the U.S.S. Missouri.



AT THE CAPITOL — Johnny Weissmuller and Philip Doorn in a scene from "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," coming next to the Capitol. On the same program "Rhythm Round-up", featuring the Hoosier Hotshots.

Private Potter's Folly

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 24

He bowed over her hand murmuring, "Maybe some time you need me to take care of house for you?"

"Maybe I will," she conceded. "If we ever have a house."

"You will. Soldier boy come home," Chan prophesied while Bruce boasted, "You're darned right I'm coming home. I'm just the boy who will. I've gotten the breaks all my life."

Folly smiled but in her heart was already the fear that every war bride must know. What if he doesn't? How can I go on living without him?

There was just time for fruit punch and wedding cake before they must make their train for Santa Barbara. A taxi was waiting. Chan carried down the bags which had once been packed for a flight to Reno. Remembering that other occasion and how Chan had hidden himself in the basement forcing open the suitcases which had been left in his care, Folly said a little prayer of thanksgiving. Thank you, God, for letting it be Bruce, not Eric nor any one else! Then they were in the cab. Bruce was beside her and they were driving away.

"I hope you don't mind going to Santa Barbara," he said. "I know it won't be as much fun as if we could be alone. But my family will want to see me as much as they can."

"I understand," Folly said patting his hand. "It won't matter to me where we are besides I've never been to Santa Barbara."

Bruce's Family.

"I've never told you anything about my family, Folly," Bruce continued. "But I thought it was better to let you find out such things for yourself."

Was he apologizing? Would they be poor but honest, living in a cottage, etc? No matter how little they had, Folly told herself it wouldn't matter. The parents of Bruce Potter must be intelligent and good. His own happiness and goodness proved that.

"I'm sure I'll love them," she said ernestly, "no matter who they are," and wondered why Bruce smiled as he replid. "I'm sure of it too, Sweet! If I hadn't been I'd never have married you."

Hazel in Service.

Meantime at the house on Washington Street the three who were left were discussing the wedding when the telephone rang. Chan answered and called Hazel. Within three minutes she was back looking pale but excited.

"I'm leaving," she said. "Immediately. Must report within the hour."

Gallantly Marta asked, "Anything I can do to help you, honey?" Thinking, "No tears now. Not until she is gone."

"It would be tonight of all times," Hazel remarked with a pleading glance at Hilton. If only he would arrange to stay with Marta this one evening. But ignoring her unasked request Hilton drew her to him and kissed her.

"Goodby, Hazel! And the best of luck. We'll carry on here while you're away."

He did understand what she meant then, Hazel thought as she ran upstairs. If Hilton would continue to live here it would not only help Marta run the house but he would be company for her.

The two sisters said little as they put the final things in Hazel's small bag. The others had been packed and ready for several days. When the taxi had been called they returned to the living room.

"You'll be okay?" Hazel said briskly.

Marta Alone.

"Of course! Just one thing I want to know," Marta said. "You're not sorry you decided to go as a nurse instead of marrying Charles?"

"No! To stay here without him would be the one thing I couldn't bear."

"The taxi is here, Missee," Chan announced appearing for the second time that day loaded down with baggage. Hilton came from Grandpa's room to help him Hazel climbed in quickly; there was the flutter of a gloved hand and Marta turned away. She ran up the steep flight of steps blinded by tears. She had expected Hilton to follow her.

When he did not do so, she went upstairs, closed the door and flung herself on the bed to have the breakdown she had been controlling all day. But not for long was she permitted this luxury. Presently there came a knocking on the door and Chan's voice calling her.

"Oh, Chan," she cried exasperated. "Please go away. I don't want anything to eat."

He opened the door and placed the tray on the table beside her.

"Tomato soup and celery," he coaxed. "With small piece of cold chicken and one artichoke."

"What about Mr. Wood's dinner? Are you serving it in the dining room?" Marta asked, drying her eyes.

"Mr. Wood is going out," Chan informed her. "He say not necessary to prepare any dinner for him tonight."

He waited stubbornly, arms folded, until Marta took the tray and lifted a spoonful of the hot, delicious soup to her lips. Then he shuffled to the door and quietly closed it behind him leaving her alone.

So Hilton was going out tonight. And tomorrow being Saturday he would no' be home either. He must be seriously involved with some one else, Marta decided. Not that she blamed him. In retrospect her behavior to him seemed both childish and unreasonable.

"I've lost everybody," Marta thought miserably. "Folly and Hazel and Hilton." But she knew now she could have endured the loss of both her sisters better than that of the man who lived in Grandpa's room.

"One thing I can't do is stay up here moping about it," Marta thought. Tired as she was Marta knew most of her fatigue was emotional rather than physical. Where was the book Hazel had recommended on this subject? She had brought it home but as yet Marta had not found time to read it. Never a more propitious moment than this one, she decided, glancing at her wan face in the mirror.

Determined not to yield to depression she carried the tray to the kitchen where Chan was staring out the window where Folly had once stood.

"Not necessary for you to bring down here," he told her disapprovingly.

"I know it. But I was coming anyway. The supper was grand and you were right to make me eat it. I feel much better."

Strangely enough she did feel better. Just the simple announcement of it pushed her spirits to a slightly higher level.

Marta went into the drawing room and finding her book curled up on the davenport to read it.

Forgets the Past

Hazel had been right. She had been suffering from an emotional fatigue which was totally unnecessary.

Very humbly Marta admitted her faults and made up her mind to forget the past. Beginning with Jim's desertion which had lurked in the shadows of her heart like a ghost. She would start over beginning with this immediate moment. New and fresh as the single rose she had seen in the garden. No sooner had she come to this conclusion than she glanced up to see Hilton.

"Hello!" she said. "I didn't hear you come in. Where did you leave your car?"

"In the garage," he answered. "Where I always leave it. You must have been very interested in what you were reading."

"I am," she admitted. "It's good medicine and I needed it."

He took the book from her hand glancing through it as he said, "Maybe that's what I ought to read."

"You?" Marta asked surprised. "Why, Hilton is anything wrong?"

Hilton Loves Her.

"Yes." Hilton said taking the hand which lay in her lap. "I've felt so sorry for myself that I've been running around in circles but it hasn't helped."

"I don't see why you should feel sorry for yourself," she insisted.

"You wouldn't. Maybe you think it didn't hurt to realize how little I meant in your life. A man likes to feel that he comes first with the woman he loves."

"The woman he loves. . .

"Hilton, you don't mean me, do you? Or do you?" she stammered.

"But, darling. I told you I was sorry. I wanted things to be the same."

"I wasn't sure you meant it. Then there were other reasons. I had become involved more or less," he confessed.

"With some one else?"

Hilton looked ashamed of himself.

"I sold myself on the idea that to be loved was more important than to love. It wasn't Marta. And the worst thing that can happen to a girl is to marry a man who feels that way. Just the same there was the situation which had to be explained. I had to keep engagements I had already made. I couldn't just walk out without even attempting to explain."

Marta's heart was beating furiously as she asked, "Are the explanations all made now?"

"Yes, thank goodness! I do not fancy myself in the role of gay deceiver and while I was sincere enough at the time it couldn't have gone on much longer. To tell the truth I am feeling like a cad. The less said about it the better."

"You couldn't be a cad," Marta assured him lifting the hand which held hers to her cheek. "That's one of the reasons I love you."

As his arms went around her neither heard the soft tread of the Chinese servant who'd crept upstairs to see if Missee Marta was all right.

Chan Takes Credit.

"Everything okay now," he assured himself. And for this romance he gave himself due credit. Was it not Chan who had selected Hilton Wood to be the occupant of Grandpa's room, a member of his beloved family? Gravely he accepted this responsibility and for the wedding he felt would follow was already composing a menu which would crown every other dinner he had cooked with the wreath of final achievement.

Chan was right. Marta and Hilton saw no reason for waiting. Time was geared to such a rapid pace that delay might mean unfulfillment. One never knew when one said goodby in the morning what might happen before night. So Marta became Mrs. Hilton Wood within the week. The letter announcing their marriage crossed the first one from Folly which Marta read aloud to her husband of two days at the dinner table. She knew that Chan was listening from the kitchen so she purposely raised her voice.

Potters Wealthy

"Imagine my surprise," wrote Folly, "when I discovered that Bruce's parents are enormously wealthy and one of the snootiest old families in Santa Barbara! You'd never guess it from that husband of mine, would you? And for reasons I am ashamed to admit were right he did not want me to know it until after we were married. The joke of it is it doesn't matter to me as it would have once. They have been awfully nice to me and since Bruce is their only child they have asked me to live with them while he is away.

"I'm not doing it because I want to go back to my defense work. And my decision has pleased Bruce more than anything I could have done. He is so wonderful. So kind to me."

"That's all," Marta said smiling. "except love to both of us. She didn't know of course that we were going to be married."

"Gosh, that's a satisfactory letter," Hilton remarked, while Chan bustling in with warm plates as if he had not absorbed every word asked, "You serving, Mr. Wood?"

"Yes, that's Mr. Wood's job now," Marta replied to Chan's nod of approval. There was nothing like having a man in the house and now that Missee Marta had married him Mr. Wood would be the master which was as it should be.

IT'S EASY TO SEE WHO USES ODEX SOAP BEFORE COMING TO SCHOOL!
ODEX SOAP

Health inspection day drew near,
When "Suds" and "Bubbles" would appear
Before the teacher, always keen
To see if hands and face were clean.
And so they took an extra scrub
With ODEX BATH SOAP in the tub.
Clean, happy as a pair of larks
They both obtained the highest marks.
Buy ODEX at your favorite store
And it will boost your family's score.

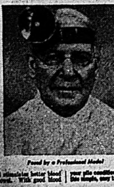
How You Can Get Quick Relief From Sore, Painful Piles

Most people seem to think the only way to get relief from their sore, painful piles is by local treatment. Local treatment may give temporary relief from the itching but you can easily see why such treatment will not correct the cause of your piles.

No lasting freedom from pile misery can be had unless the cause of the trouble is corrected. Piles are due to internal causes so the best way to get lasting relief is to treat them internally with a medicine like Hem-Roid.

Hem-Roid is a formula that has been used for over 40 years by thousands of pile sufferers. It is a small, highly concentrated tablet, easy and pleasant to use. This cleverly compounded tablet formula directs its medical action to relief of the congestion that is the real cause of your piles. Hem-Roid promotes free, easy and comfortable bowel movements, quickly relieves itching, irritation and soreness and stimulates better blood circulation in the lower bowel. With good blood circulation in the lower bowel the painful pile tumors soon heal over leaving the sensitive rectal membranes clean and healthy.



Posed by a Professional Model

We invite you to try Hem-Roid and let it prove itself. You can make your test, in the privacy of your own home. NO COST if you are not convinced that this is an amazingly easy and surprisingly effective method of treating your sore, painful piles.

Get a package of Hem-Roid today from any drug store and use it as directed for JUST FIVE DAYS. At the end of that time if you are not absolutely sure Hem-Roid is the nicest, cleanest and most effective pile treatment you ever tried, return the unused portion of the package to your druggist and he will promptly refund your money.

NOTE: This generous offer is backed by a reliable firm doing business in Canada for a good many years. Hem-Roid must help your pile condition quickly, easily and pleasantly or this simple, easy test costs you nothing. Try it today.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 26 —(AP)— Stock market prices declined fractions to more than a point today after recent advances to eight-year highs.

Selling orders hit most categories with the widest losses appearing in steels, airlines and rails — favorites on the buying side yesterday. There were occasional spurts of activity during the session but dealings were slow near the fourth hour.

Lower were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Airlines, Western Union "A," American Smelting, Dow Chemical and Union Carbide. Plus signs were held to a minimum but some low-priced utilities were up.

McIntyre was ahead among Canadian issues at midday with a two-point gain. Dome Mines was up ⅜ while Canadian Pacific was listed among the weak issues with a loss of ¼.

TORONTO STOCKS

Torton, Sept. 26. (CP)—Golds and Industrials advanced moderately this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Base Metals held steady. Trading was active at 2,306,000 shares.

Rouyn Township group featured the trade, particularly Eldona, Donalds, Senator and Joliet. Eldona, after opening down 50 cents at $2.25, moved up to $2.90 for a net gain of 15c. Donalda at $1.85 was up 20 and Senator gained 9 to $1.13. Other strong golds were Aumaque, Sullivan, Wiltsey-Coghlan, Joliet, Aubelle, Porcupine Reef and Marlon Rouyn.

In Base Metals Steep Rock and Waite-Amulet took minor losses.

Hiram Walker touched a new high at 83 and the Brewery issues firmed moderately. Senior Oils were steady and Foods, Papers, Steels were up narrowly.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 26 —(CP)— Cattle trade was fairly active at steady prices up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Calves, hogs, lambs and sheep were steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 300, calves 300, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 700. Unsold from yesterday were 1,200 head of cattle including 800 stockers.

Prices in the trade included:

Cattle: Common to medium weight steers $9-$11.50, common to medium butcher steers and heifers $8.50-$10.50, boners $6.50-8, butcher cows $7.25-$9, canners downward to $5, bulls $6.50-$8.75, fed yearlings $11.50-$13.50, stockers $7-$9.50.

Calves: $13.50-$14 choice, common vealers downward to $8.

Lambs: $13.50-$14 good ewes and wethers, $12.50-$13 bucks, $8-$10 culls.

Sheep: $3-$7.

Hogs: Dressed, Grade A $18, Grade B1 $17.60, sows $14.50.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 26—(CP)— Trading was draggy today on the livestock markets. Receipts were cattle 11; sheep and lambs 70; hogs 114; calves 81.

Management of the markets reported that in addition to today's receipts several carloads of calves and sheep and lambs were left over from Tuesday and "there was little prospect of their sale until the retail butchers' strikes in Montreal was over and coolers cleaned up."

Cattle offered were mostly cows of medium quality, which went at 7.50-8.25. Canners and cutters 5-6. Good bulls 8-9 and common down to 6.

With buyers in sight prices for calves and sheep and lambs were unchanged.

Hogs steady at 18 for grade A. sows 15-16 dressed.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP)— Prices were unchanged at Hull in bacon-hog markets reporting early today at, Grade A, delivered $17.75. Stratford reported the first settled quotation for some some time at, Grade A, delivered, to farmers $17.75, to truckers $17.90.

"Black and White" Show, More Exhibits in Classes, Racing Feature Stirling Fair

Rain Prevents One of the Largest Turnouts in the History of the Society

(By Staff Reporter)

Although a steady rainfall, which continued throughout most of the early part of the afternoon served to handicap many of the various events which were planned, enthusiasm of the many hundreds of interested fair-goers maintained a high level at Stirling Fair held Tuesday afternoon.

With exhibits of livestock up over last year and a varied and interesting fair program planned, fair officials held that had rain stayed away their fair would have been the best and most largely attended on record.

The Black and White Holstein show sponsored by the county Holstein Breeders' Club, the Stirling Agricultural Society and the Ontario Live Stock Branch, again was one of the principal features of the fair with over 140 Holsteins of all classes being shown. In addition there were exhibits of other cattle breeds as well as an exhibit of Holstein calves shown by the local calf club.

Harness racing was considerably slowed by a muddy track, but two classes, the free-for-all and the 2.25 class were run, as well as a running race. In all there were 20 race horses on the grounds but owing to track conditions all did not run.

Horse Exhibit Large.

Exhibits in the horse classes were the largest in the history of the fair, many splendid teams being shown, both in the heavy draught and agricultural classes. Horse exhibitors included Charles Johnston, of Stirling; Elmer Sandercock of the Hastings County Home; Earl Bush and Earl Bonisteel of Sidney Township and Sawyer-Stoll Lumber Company of Massenaw.

Jersey cattle were shown by George Jarrell and Sons, while the fine herd of Ayrshires owned by Elmer Wood of Crookston, was also on the grounds. Hogs were shown by C. U. Heath, of Stirling, and R. K. Garbutt, R.R. 4, Belleville.

The baby show held in the agricultural building was a high point of interest for members of the fair sex with a record entry being seen in both classes. In the 7-12 months' class, Patricia Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Thompson, Stirling, took first honors, with Wenda Neal, winning second and Linda Morrow daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morrow taking third place. Winner in the six months and under class was Harold Bateman, with Douglas Holt, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Holt, of Stirling, taking second. David Bruce Murray, son of Dr. and Mrs. Murray of Stirling, placed third.

Horse Drawing Contest.

Climaxing the afternoon's events was the horse drawing contest between four powerful district farm teams. Winner was the fine black team owned by Mr. Leo Fry of Campbellford, with W. Scott, also of Campbellford, taking second prize. J. Morrison, of Rawdon Township, came in for third place.

Twenty-one cheese were exhibited in the agricultural hall, in which also were seen many fine exhibits of children's school work. There was also a fine showing of ladies' work while vegetables and grain classes were well represented.

Exhibitors in the Black and White show included Hunt. Bros., David Hollinger, Herbert Watt, H. E. Neal, John Burnside, Max James Eagleson. E. Masse showand Philo Harris.

Reserve senior champion bull three years and over was shown by Hunt Bros., with the same owner showing the senior bull of two years. Junior champion and reserve grand were shown by James. Eagleson. E. Masse showed the grand champion and senior champion female of four years and over, while Hunt Bros. showed the reserve champion and the reserve grand champion. Hunt Bros. also showed the reserve junior female champion.

Rawdon Township Wins.

A team of farmer stalwarts from Rawdon Township proved too much for the Sidney boys in a tug of war with the former taking two straight "pulls" from their opponents. The same two teams were scheduled to hook up in a softball game but inclement weather prevented.

Ross Turley, of Frankford, acted as starter for the horse races, results of which were as follows:

Free-For-All

Sunny Boy	3	1	1
Matt McKinney	1	2	2
Amadale	2	3	3
Bracken Boy	4	4	4

2.25 Class

Roman (J. Winer)	1	1	1
Mildred Hall, (Roy Trent)	2	3	2
Worthy Frisco, (E. Blanc)	3	2	3

In the running races "I Remember" had two firsts, "Wise Crest" two seconds and Little Eva two thirds.

H. & P. E. Regt. Sails for Home On Ile de France

Southampton, England, Sept. 26 (CP Cable) — Veterans of the Canadian army and the R.C.A.F. raised lusty cheers today as the Ile De France, 4,000-ton troopship, sailed for Canada.

Army personnel, including officers and men of more than a dozen units, number ,8358, while the airmen numbered 1,100. The former French luxury liner is expected to arrive at Halifax late Monday.

Departure of the Ile De France, along with the Nieuw Amsterdam which sailed last Monday, brought to more than 18,000 the total of Canadian service personnel sailing for home this week. Another batch of repatriates is scheduled to sail next week aboard the Pasteur.

Army personnel sailing on the Ile De France included men of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, of Picton, Trenton and Belleville.

SAIGON MARKET PLACE IS FIRED BY ANNAMITES

41 Europeans Kidnapped and Ten Possibly Are Killed

By VERN HAUGLAND

Saigon, Indo-China, Sept. 26. (AP)—Uncontrollable Annamites (natives) who kidnapped 41 Europeans and possibly killed ten yesterday, burned down their market place last night. The spectacular fire, a few blocks from the city's centre, raged uncontrolled through Saigon's largest market place.

Annamites formerly composed a fire brigade which they now had abandoned, leaving the city without firemen.

Two platoons of British troops driving across the northern part of the city, Tuesday afternoon, rescued 31 of the 40 Frenchmen kidnapped by Annamites, a British headquarters spokesman announced.

The British source said nine were missing and probably slain.

He said first reports did not make it clear whether women and children were involved, but one French officer said he was positive that some women and children had been kidnapped.

British officials also reported the kidnapping of a British officer, a former prisoner of war. Seized by the Annamites, he still was missing at nightfall.

Fighting went on into the third consecutive day, and was the most widespread since unrest became riotous on Sept. 2. Annamites took over arms from surrendering Japanese at that time.

They attacked the French, killing seven.

Indian guards said that last night's market place fire was clumsily set. They added that they saw Japanese soldiers in the vicinity when the fires flared up.

Eishenhower Asks Personal Report From Gen. Patton

Frankfurt on Main, Sept. 26—(AP)— Gen. Eisenhower summoned Gen. Patton today to make a personal report on the progress of the program of eradicating Nazis from public affairs in Bavaria.

Lt.-Gen. Walter B. Smith, Gen. Eisenhower's chief of staff, announced that the Supreme Commander had called for an immediate report on Nazis still holding office in 3rd Army territory and also had requested Gen. Patton to give a personal accounting of his stewardship in Bavaria early next week.

At a press conference called as the result of Gen. Patton's recent remark that "Nazism might well be compared to any political parties at home—Republican or Democratic," Gen. Smith said Gen. Eisenhower would permit no modification of his order that Nazis be removed "ruthlessly from public office, regardless of general efficiency."

Admits Choice Unfortunate.

Gen. Patton acknowledged yesterday that his choice of words had been unfortunate.

Asked what would happen if Gen. Patton's account of his stewardship in Bavaria was "not satisfactory," Gen. Smith said "I have no idea."

The chief of staff outlined Gen. Eisenhower's policy with these points:

1. Complete removal of Nazi influence in Germany's political, educational and economic life, as ruthlessly as required.
2. Care of displaced persons at the expense of the Germans.
3. Re-establishment of an internal economy so Germany could maintain a living standard not higher than that of surrounding countries.
4. Removal of all excess heavy industries.

Jap Guards Ate Parcel Contents Or Discarded Them

Vancouver, Sept. 26 (CP) — Guards in Japanese prison camps opened Red Cross parcels in front of Canadian soldiers and then ate the contents or threw them away.

This was told by some of the 67 Canadian soldiers who arrived here en route to their homes after being liberated from the prison camps where they spent more than three years following capture at Hong Kong in December, 1941.

The Canadians, 52 of them from the Winnipeg Grenadiers, six from the Royal Rifles of Canada and the remainder from auxiliary units, told of the callous brutality and hunger in Japanese prison camps.

They said that mail from their families was burned before their eyes because the Japanese prison guards "thought it too much trouble to sort it."

Others who slaved in Japanese shipyards and coal mines told of eating grasshoppers, snakes and dogs, adding horse meat was a luxury.

Sgt. T. G. Marsh of St. Vital, Man., told this story:

"We were tied up with wire and taken on a long march, about seven miles. Anybody who fell out was bayonetted. A lot of men fell out because they were too weak to go on.

"At the camp where they took us there were no medical facilities. We lay on a cement floor. That's where a lot of the fellows died."

"The Japanese were more like animals than humans. Cruelty seemed to be their training from childhood.

"At Sendai the mine bosses would knock fellows down and actually bite them. They would be frothing at the mouth. Some of our men were covered with bite marks."

GENERAL ELECTION

Rawson, president for two days after the 1943 revolution in which he led 10,000 armed men into Buenos Aires, had to resign when the army voted non-confidence in him.

Expressed Contempt.

Of late, he has several times expressed contempt for Peron and President Edelmiro Farrell, calling the latter "a puppet in Peron's hands', and asserted they now were holding the "two key posts of power" despite their refusal to join the 1943 movement.

Last week, during the capital's huge "Liberty and Constitution" demonstration against Peron's government, Rawson came to his balcony to acknowledge applause of the crowd.

A military court of honor reprimanded him "lightly" for political activity while in uniform.

He made his move to regain power soon afterward, slipping quietly out of Buenos Aires Sunday night and driving to the Andean city to meet Martin.

Lower Officers Arrested.

Evidence that the nationwide opposition to the Peron government had pentetrated into lower army ranks was given in dispatches from Cordoba that two lieutenant colonels, one major and many lower officers, including Rawson's son, Lieut. Franklin Rawson, also were arrested.

Furthermore, one retired navy officers—among them four admirals, seven vice-admirals and ten rear-admirals—in a statement to the nation issued two days ago joined the ranks of those demanding full restoration of constitutional life in the country through prompt elections free from fraud and coercion.

Women Picked As Guinea Pigs By Hun Torturers

Lueneberg, Sept. 26 (AP)—A witness testified Tuesday that the Nazis picked hundreds of women as guinea pigs for extremely painful artificial insemination experiments at concentration camps and killed the weak by injecting gasoline and disinfectants into their blood streams.

The new disclosure of horrors came from a Polish Jewess, Helena Hamermerz, testifying against Josef Kramer and 44 other defendants accused before a high British military court of mass murder at Belsen and Oswiecim.

In a low steady voice, the 25-year-old witness told of naked women being hung up by the legs and dangling helplessly while the artificial insemination experiments were conducted.

"Friends of mine in the hospital told how the victims were first injected with some drug to stimulate heart action," said the Jewess, who was a medical student before being sent to Oswiecim.

"When sperm was introduced, the women twisted in great pain and often soon died."

Toronto Soldier Given 3 Years And Discharged

Farnborough, England, Sept. 26 (CP Cable) — Pte. E. F. Welling, 26, of Toronto, on Tuesday was sentenced to three years penal servitude and discharged with ignominy after he was found guilty of participating in VE-day disturbances at Headley detention barracks.

Pte. Welling was charged with causing riotous damage, offering violence to a superior officer and escaping custody.

Pte. Armand Lavoie, 26, of Montreal was sentenced to 17 months hard labor after being found guilty of a charge of using insubordinate language to a superior officer. He was acquitted of a charge of causing riotous damage and taking part in the Headley disturbance.

Welling and Lavoie ware among 13 Canadian soldiers who faced court martial recently following the disturbance at the detention barracks.

Fritz Weidemann, Taken in China, Held by Allies

San Francisco, Sept. 26 (AP)—Fritz Weidemann, Adolf Hitler's commanding officer in World War 1, and subsequently German Consul General in San Francisco, has been captured by Allied forces in China and is being flown to the United States under guard.

United States army air transport command headquarters said Wiedemann's plane left Manila for Guam.

The ATC said he would disembark here, but had no information as to the ultimate destination. Some sources believed he would be flown to Washington, D.C., at once; that he would be a witness in trials of war criminals.

Oxted, Surrey, England (Reuters)—Capt. W. N. Dickenson and Miss Ena M. Milbarrow, to whom he proposed two years ago from a prisoner-of-war camp in Italy, have been married here.

"Belleville, Ont.

Dear Mr. Mikel,

"My good friend Lewis Vivian of Neepawa, presented me with a copy of your "City of Belleville History" and I take this opportunity of congratulating you on this splendid and lasting result of your effort. While I have lived all my life so far in Manitoba, I find the book most engaging for many reasons. My wife is a granddaughter of the late Richard Leonard Lazier. Her mother, Anna B. (Lazier) Minaker makes her home with us here. Both enjoy very much your interesting record.

"I met the late Col. S. S. Lazier first in 1923 when Sovereign Great Priory, K.T., K.M., assembled at Port Arthur, Ontario and in the years following got to know him quite well. I note that both you and he sat as Masters at Moira Lodge No. 11. Col. W. N. Ponton I got to know quite well in fraternal and legal circles. Canada is greatly indebted to Belleville and its surrounding community for inspiration and for leaders of men it so generously provided and now your History will do much to keep alive that realization.

"Permit me to remain,
"Yours sincerely,
(Signed) "Stanley H. Fahrni."

Butchers Raid Packing Houses, Smash Windows

Miners and Longshoremen Strike Claiming Hunger

(By The Canadian Press.)

From shutter-drawn shops and sprawling wharves of Montreal the strike against Canadian meat rationing methods reached today into Alberta's foothills country and took a possible 2,000 miners from their mountain coal shafts.

In Montreal proper, meanwhile, the strike's first violence was reported early today—raids by butchers on packing houses and garages of meat distributing companies and the smashing of windows in stores which ignored "close-up-or-else" orders.

The miners, also 3,000 longshoremen who left their jobs in Montreal yesterday, claimed they were hungry, that under meat rationing they could not get enough food to continue their hard work.

But where the miners said they went on strike against rationing itself after receiving no answer from the government to their plea for increased meat allowances the longshoremen gave a different reason.

Against Butchers' Actions.

When they left the docks and the decks of 28 ships loading food for Britain and Europe the longshoremen said their protest was against the butchers' action in closing most of Montreal's meat shops. With meat retailers closed the longshoremen claimed to be unable to "fill up" enough for the strenuous work of ship loading.

But Montreal butchers closing meat shops either voluntarily or under persuasion from the more fiery meat dealers, said their strike was against a system allegedly wasteful and complicated. They voted to continue the strike, which started Monday, throughout today.

Want Interview.

While new requests to Prime Minister Mackenzie King for Federal intervention to end the strike went forward from nonsympathizers the striking butchers themselves telegraphed the Prime Minister last night after a special meeting and asked an interview with the Federal cabinet tomorrow (Friday) morning.

And at a meeting which elected a new strike committee headed by Ernest Chartrand, North Montreal butcher, it was claimed the butchers had the backing of the longshoremen, the union of hotel and restaurant employees and the retail clerks International Union.

Many Protests.

Opposition to closing meat stores as an anti-ration protest came from the Retail Merchants Association of Canada which at the same time, both at meetings in Toronto and Montreal, went on record as "formally and definitely opposed to meat rationing."

In Victoria, B.C., dealers who closed their doors last Monday remained shut.

Elsewhere, while meat shop strike action might yet be a possibility, protests were confined to expressions of disapproval of the government's system.

Montreal, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Striking butchers were ordered to meet at north-end Jean Talon Market today, where 300 cars were scheduled to be at their disposal for a campaign to close all retail meat stores in the city and suburbs. A showdown seemed to be in the offing, for a large number of storekeepers announced plans to re-open in defiance of groups who had forced them to close four days ago as a protest against meat rationing. Protection was promised by civic leaders.

Violence flared in the strike late last night and early this morning as butchers, claiming the support of longshoremen who quit work on the Montreal waterfront late yesterday, let the air out of 10 delivery trucks at a Canada Packers garage, broke a fence at an east-end abattoir and smashed the window of an east-end butcher shop which had failed to follow "close-up-or-else" orders of the strikers.

Matthew Shannon, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Longshoremen, (A.F.L.), said his union had not called a sympathy strike and that it would not support any "illegal action" on the part of the butchers. He added that the union could not prevent the men, acting as individuals, from taking whatever action they pleased.

"As far as we are concerned, the men stopped work because they were hungry," said Mr. Shannon.

500 Involved.

The harbor walkout involved about 500 men and began yesterday afternoon when men loading the 2,500 tons of meat aboard the freighter Port Darwin quit work.

The National Harbors Board announced later it would combat with its police force any attempt to recalcitrant longshoremen to disrupt grain-handling either in elevators or aboard ships in port.

Officials at a butchers' meeting last night, attended by some 500 employers and employees of retail meat stores, announced that a telegram was being sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King asking that the Cabinet receive a delegation of 25 Friday morning.

It was also announced at the meeting that the striking butchers now had the official backing of the Union of Hotels and Restaurant Employees, the Retail Clerks International Union and the International Association of Longshoremen, all A. F. of L. affiliates.

J. W. Lenger, business agent of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees, told the meeting that "all butchers will be persuaded to close tomorrow."

Some Going to Open.

Following a statement by J. O. Asselin, chairman of the city executive committee, that the police department would make it "hot" for the strikers and that if they looked for trouble "they'll get more than they are looking for," several chain and independent stores announced they would open their shops today.

Fourteen suburban municipalities guaranteed police protection to stores wishing to re-open, and Verdun prepared to swear in 100 war veterans as special constables to meet any emergency in that municipality.

Although no confirmation was available that they planned to intervene, Royal Canadian Mounted Police of the Montreal division have been ordered to "stand to" in case of emergency.

Finance Minister Ilsley said in the Commons yesterday that the Montreal strike situation would not stop the government from going ahead with meat rationing and added that "the enforcement of law and order in that city is

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP) — While Canada is experiencing butchers' strikes and other indications of popular indignation over its meat rationing regulations, the United States office of Price Administration was able to announce today that one-third of the country's increasing meat supply will be ration-free beginning Sunday.

The O.P.A. formally announced today that from Sunday through Oct. 27 no points will be required for lower grades of beef, veal and lamb.

Also ration-free will be hamburger, lamb and veal patties and also cheaper cuts of all grades of meat. These include such cuts as short ribs and brisket of beef, breast and flank of lamb and shank of veal.

Points are being eliminated, too, on all canned meats, sausage, frankfurters, luncheon varieties and all other products made from lower grades of meat.

This will leave on the ration list at current point values all pork cuts, bacon and other cured meats, the choice cuts of beef, veal and lamb of top grades—such as steaks, roasts and chops—and butter, margarine and other fats and oils.

There was this good news on increasing supply of meat: the agriculture department estimated that the average annual civilian rate in October will be from 147 to 150 pounds per capita.

O. P. A. Administrator Chester Bowls said the seasonal increase in marketing of range-fed cattle is the principal reason one-third of the meat supply can be made ration-free.

Army Nurse Says U.S. Soldiers Are 'Losing the Art of Wooing'

London, Sept. 27. (AP)—An anonymous United States army nurse declared today in the letter column of Stars and Stripes Army newspaper, that American men had been spoiled by their successes "with the females of Europe" and were due for an awakening when they returned home.

"In view of these successes, where chewing chum has supplanted conversation, where chocolate bars have superseded a build-up, and where results are strictly on a material basis," she wrote, "the Americans are losing the art of wooing. The love market in the States will certainly not operate on the candy-and-commodity basis.

"The American technique is disintegrating so rapidly that very shortly there will be no technique at all."

"No wonder," she concluded, "we prefer French or British army personnel whose gallantry, subtlety, suavity and glib phrases not only establish the proper setting but practically make the results a foregone conclusion."

LIBERAL MEMBER DOES NOT WANT ANY MEDDLING

No Indication That End of Debate On Speech From Throne Has Been Reached

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept 27—(CP)—Canada's interest in Europe's tangled post-war settlement problems was pointed up in the House of Commons yesterday with a plea by a Liberal member that Canadian troops have nothing to do with forcing the return of Ukrainian and other peoples from the Western Powers' occupation zone to Russian jurisdiction.

The plea came from Walter Tucker (L—Rosthern) as he spoke in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from from throne, debate which has occupied the House since parliament opened Sept. 6. And there was no immediate indication of an end to the debate as it took on new life with continued opposition criticism to the government's wheat price policy and ranged over a wide variety of other subjects.

Sub Amendment Made

Out of the debate concerning wheat yesterday came a C.C.F. sub-amendment to a Progressive Conservative amendment moved previously to the motion for adoption of the Throne Speech. The C.C.F. motion, moved by Percy Wright, farmer representative from Melfort constituency in Saskatchewan, asked establishment of floor prices for all agricultural products at parity.

Thus was presented to the House further opportunity for debate which yesterday saw these other members in action: John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) and F. W. Townley-Smith (CCF—North Battleford).

Before the debate began Trade Minister MacKinnin said in answer to a question that the government had been trying unsuccessfully for 18 months to reach an agreement with other wheat exporting countries. A meeting held in London recently had broken up without a decision following a disagreement.

Accused Remanded For Eight Days

Napanee, Sept. 27 —(CP)— In a brief court appearance here arranged by Ontario Provincial Police to "avoid any show," Ulysse Lauzon, his wife Eileen and Walter Koretsky were remanded eight days. Lauzon and Koretsky are charged with armed robbery and Mrs. Lauzon with vagrancy. The two men are charged with the hold-up of the Royal Bank branch at Bath, Ont., where $300,000 in securities and $10,000 cash were stolen.

MAY EXPLAIN DISAPPEARANCE

New York, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Sinking of a Japanese prison ship with between 700 and 1,000 Australian war prisoners may explain the mysterious disappearance of the majority of the garrison overwhelmed at Rabaul, New Guinea, in 1942, the Australian News and Information Bureau said last night.

ADDED TO WATER SUPPLY

Brantford, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Fluorine — said to prevent tooth decay — has been added, under supervision, to the city's drinking water supply for the last three months without any apparent ill effects and without complaints from the public, officials of the Public Utilities Commission said yesterday.

Arrangements Almost Completed for Reception Of H. & P. E. Regt. Here

Arrangements were practically completed for the reception to the First Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment on their arrival at Belleville in the near future, at a special meeting of the Belleville and District Deception Committee held in the City Hall Wednesday night. District and city committees were fully represented and many last-minute problems were satisfactorily ironed out.

Press dispatches stated yesterday that the Regiment sailed for Canada aboard the huge troopship "Ile De France" on Wednesday, and are expected to arrive in Halifax on Monday, Oct. 1st. While no official information regarding the exact date and time of arrival in the city, Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan. General chairman of the Committee, expressed the opinion the regiment might arrive Wednesday or Thursday of next week. Date and time of arrival here will be published and aired by the press and radio immediately upon receipt of the news.

The committee lost little time in getting down to business.

Will Feed Regiment

Mrs. E. J. Neate, was appointed chairlady in charge of all city and district women's organization in charge of arrangements for feeding the regiment and veterans following the brief program of ceremonies at the Armouries. Mrs. Gordon Miller was appointed in charge of the various messes in the Armouries, where a reception for the officers and refreshments for the other ranks will be held.

Major Elmer Dixon, A.L.I. will be the liaison officer between messes during the reception of the troops.

Representatives of such city women's organizations as the St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E.; Ladies Auxiliary of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion; and the Army and Navy veterans; The Rebekah Lodge; Order of the Eastern Star; The Belleville Red Cross; the Catholic Women's League and others signified their intention of assisting to their fullest capacity. The Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary representative said that her branch would distribute free cigarettes to the detraining troops.

Service Clubs to Assist.

Ex-Mayor Harry Rollins of the Belleville Kinsmen Club told the committee that several members of that service organization will be available to assist in any way. Kiwanian James Cowan stated that thirty members of the Kiwanis Club are ready to assist in the distribution of refreshments.

Major Clifford Broad, 1st Batt. Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment wil journey to Halifax to meet the regiment, when it disembarks and accompany the unit to Belleville. He will inform the commanding officer of the unit of all details in connection with the reception here so that the arrangements can be run off in a smooth sequence.

Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy, H. and P. E. will meet the unit in Montreal and accompany it here.

A detail of Provist Corpsmen from M.D. 3 Kingston will be sent here to help police in any capacity demanded of them. Ontario Provincial Police will be augmented by members from outside points to assist in traffic regulation. Police Inspector Clare Hayes was appointed in charge of transport. He requested the general public to park their cars in the residential streets of the city—or in the case of city residents, whenever possible to leave their motor vehicles at home.

Donation Offered.

Trenton representatives stated that that town would donate 200 dozen doughnuts and all the pickles needed. Arrangements were completed for the acquisition of bread and tarts. General rations for the troops will be forwarded from Kingston under arrangements made by Major Colin Hepburn.

Full information regarding movement of troops, baggage, march and next of kin will be published in a special "Welcome" edition of the Ontario Intelligencer on Monday, October 1st.

TASK TO BUILD UP NEWS SERVICE WITHIN CANADA

Meeting of CP is Held in Quebec Addressed by Senator Buchanan

Quebec, Sept. 27 —(CP)— With the war over, interest of newspaper readers will turn increasingly to Canadian news and to the story of people in peacetime the world over, Senator W. A. Buchanan, president of The Canadian Press, told a special general meeting of Canada's news-gathering co-operative yesterday. Building up of the news service within Canada is one of the chief immediate tasks before CP.

Gillis Purcell, general manager, announced that William Stewart, CP war correspondent in the Pacific, will remain in Australia for a period to interpret developments in that Dominion, as one step in plans to extend coverage of Commonwealth countries for the Canadian reader.

Recommendations by J. W. G. Clark.

J. W. G. Clark, who retires shortly as chief public relations officer for the three armed services, outlined his recommendations for continuation of services public relations work.

His plan would include lectures at military colleges on the public function of the press, delivered by working newspapermen. Under the plan there would be a uniformed director in each of the services, with a civilian newspaperman as co-ordinator.

Senator Buchanan thanked Mr. Clark for co-operation of his department. Mr. Clark said his work had been made easier by the helpful suggestions of the newspapers, and conveyed thanks for the action of CP and its members in publishing The Canadian Press news, the weekly newspaper for the troops, and furnishing news freely for the army newspaper, The Maple Leaf.

SEVEN NEW INDUSTRIES

Chatham, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Establishment here of seven new industries within the last 18 months makes the Chatham job outlook bright, Industrial Commissioner William Gray said yesterday. The industries involve an aggregate expenditure of $2,400,000 and will employ approximately 500 people

OFFICIALS FAVOR FIVE BILLION LOAN WITH NO STRINGS

British Loan Would be at Low Rate of Interest and Spent Where Needed

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Sept. 27 —(CP)— United States officials working out plans to help Britain are said today to favor a loan of $5,000,000,000. It would be at a low interest rate and without strings as to where the money would be spent.

Whether a plan along this line finally is presented to Congress will depend on further Anglo-American negotiations and formal acceptance of the idea by the London and Washington governments.

Trade talks under way here several weeks, still are in the stage of exploring just what Britain's financial troubles are and exactly what help may be needed. Nevertheless, opinion among United States negotiators is fairly well formed on the main points.

Thus, on the word of fully-informed authorities it is possible to report that the situation today stands as follows:

The essence of Britain's trouble is that she has to exist for the next three years or more while reconverting to profitable peacetime trade.

The British contention is that if financial aid can be obtained it will be possible for a new era of trade to be developed along free, competitive lines. Otherwise the British Empire will have to go in for a kind of economic isolationism in order to survive the crisis.

The Americans do not accept a reported British thesis that the aid must be a practically free grant of from $3,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 instead, the United States view is that Britain must cut her overseas sterling debt of $16,000,000,000 by probably 40 or 50 per cent.

EXPRESSES WILL TO ABDICATE

New York, Sept. 27 — The BBC quoted its Tokyo correspondent, Douglas Willis, as saying today it was "strongly believed Emperor Hirohito expressed his will to abdicate" during the meeting with Gen. MacArthur, and that the "redrafting of the Japanese constitution is already taking place." NBC heard the broad-

MAYORS, REEVES VISIT PORCUPINE MINING DISTRICT

Reeve Ann Shipley Asks For More Equitable Distribution of Taxes Among Municipalities

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Sept. 27. (CP)—Delegates attending the annual conference of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves visited the Porcupine mining area today after opening sessions yesterday devoted principally to discussion of financial problems affecting municipalities.

Reeve Ann Shipley, of Teck Township, which includes this gold-mining district appealed for more equitable distribution of taxation among municipalities, asserting that for every man working underground in a mine, employment is created for 11 other persons elsewhere in Canada.

"We do not contend that the (mining) industry does not pay enough tax, quite the contrary," said Reeve Shipley. "In total taxes they pay too much."

'Treasure Chest of the World'

Mining was a "wasting" industry and should not be subjected to the same taxes as certain other industries. There was no better way for the government to create employment than by encouraging development of Northern Ontario, "the treasure chest of the world".

Protest against increasing volume of crown-owned properties exempt from municipal taxation was voiced by Mayor George R. Inglis, of Niagara Falls, president of the Association. Such properties may have helped provincial and federal governments, he said, but "have injured the municipalities immeasurably".

Resolutions from five municipalities were referred to the committee on resolutions. The city of Stratford urged Old Age pensions for all persons at 65, regardless of means; Chatham sought contributions by the Ontario government to provincial highways maintenance in rural areas, formation of a mutual insurance company to handle municipal risks and relief for municipalities from suburban road costs; the town of Niagara asked financial help for school cadet training; the township of Sandwich suggested school courses in real estate, justice administration and government procedure; and the city of London urged larger Dominion and provincial contributions to cost of maintaining indigent patients in hospitals.

Mayor Sam Lawrence, of Hamilton, termed overhaul of municipal relationships a "fundamental" need and said "this is the moment in Canadian history when it must be done."

Town Planning

Mayor Saunders, of Toronto, read a paper outlining town planning procedure under a Bill given first reading in the Ontario Legislature last Spring. He also said Ontario municipalities should receive a larger share of the gasoline tax.

Mayor Saunders estimated at least 200 Toronto firms pay a total of $2,067,530 in provincial gasoline tax without the city receiving anything in return toward upkeep of roads.

Business sessions resume Thursday.

SPLENDID GESTURE

London, Sept. 27 (CP Cable)— The Daily Express in an editorial today described as "a splendid gesture" Aldershot's honoring the Canadian army by extending it the freedom of the town.

Emperor Hirohito Makes Informal Call on MacArthur

Nature of 35-Minute Talk Has Not Been Disclosed

Tokyo, Sept. 27 — (AP)—Emperor Hirohito called on Gen. MacArthur at the United States Embassy today, removed his top hat and bowed to the Supreme Allied Commander.

What they discussed in a 35-minute talk was not disclosed. But because of its length, it was assumed the discussion ranged over mutual problems connected with the occupation of what remains of Hirohito's once great empire.

The Japanese central liaison office, to which all inquiries were referred, told The Associated Press today that Allied headquarters and the Japanese government "reached an agreement not to disclose" the topics discussed.

Meanwhile, Domei news agency reported more United States occupation troops had arrived in the Kobe area on Western Honshu to swell occupation troops there to 4,500.

Arrival at U. S. Embassy

The Emperor's auto drove up to the main entrance of the Embassy. The back curtain was drawn. Hirohito's Grand Chamberlain, Admiral Fujita, who previously met Gen. MacArthur to arrange the conference, was sitting facing the Emperor.

An attendant jumped out of the car, opened the door and bowed The Chamberlain backed out of the car, keeping his face to the Emperor, and bowed as Hirohito got out.

The Emperor found Brig.-Gen. Bonner Fellers, Gen. MacArthur's aide, and Maj. Saubion Bower, an interpreter, awaiting them. Hirohito, in formal diplomatic clothes, took off his silk hat, bowed, and shook hands with Gen. Fellers.

Fellers ushered the Emperor ahead of him to the state reception room where, as he entered the door, Hirohito bowed in General MacArthur's direction.

The call was informal. A spokesman acknowledged that the meeting was "fraught with significance" but emphasized it was arranged at the request of the Emperor's representative.

Quiet Dignity at Proceedings

The two shook hands and Gen. MacArthur greeted him with "Good morning." They posed briefly for a picture, then moved to a settee where they began to talk.

There was a quiet dignity about the preliminaries as though General MacArthur was trying to make the visit as painless as possible for the Emperor, who for the first time in the history of the Japanese Empire was calling upon a representative of a foreign country.

350 POUNDS SUGAR MISSING

Tillsonburg, Ont., Sept. 27. —(CP)—Thieves entered a downtown grocery store Tuesday and a check showed 350 pounds of sugar missing, along with several packages of cigarets, about $5 in cash and some tea packages.

Tells How Brother Was Whipped To Death in Nazi Prison Camp

Lueneberg, Germany, Sept. 27. (CP)—Miss Hanka Rozencweag testified today that one of the 45 defendants in the Belsen and Oswiecim Concentration camp trials set a dog on her "which savagely attacked me, tore my clothes and left marks on my body, which I bear to this day."

The witness, a 25-year-old Polish Jewess whose mistreatment is one of the specific war crimes mentioned in the formal indictment of 12 of the Oswiecim defendants, said Irma Grese set on the dog when another of the defendants, Ilsa Lothe, complained that Miss Rozencweag's work was not satisfactory.

A pale Polish youth earlier resumed his story of atrocities at Oswiecim camp where he said his brother was beaten to death.

Abraham Glinowiecki, had told the court his brother was caught in the women's compound, where he had gone contrary to regulations to trade cigarets for food, and was hauled into the block leader's room.

He said his brother was bent one digging a knee into his neck, and given 75 lashes, when the S.S. was through with the whip he was kicked through the door into the prison yard.

"He died in the hospital and I never got to see him," Glinowiecki said.

Glinowiecki, who spent three years at Oswiecim and Belsen Concentration camps, pointed to Peter Weingartner as the man who ordered the beating.

Five others were identified as those who "put my brother to death."

In nervous phrases he testified that Hilda Lobauer, one of the defendants, guarded gas chamber selections at Oswiecim and helped take victims to the death house.

Irma Grese, he said, "sent thousands and thousands of people, both ill and quite healthy" to the gas chamber.

Indications that the trial would continue until the end of October were seen as the defence disclosed plans to call each of the defendants and a score or more other

LIQUOR BOARD PARTIALLY EASES RESTRICTIONS

Permit Holders Can Obtain 104 Ounces of Gin or 52 Ounces Whisky or Rum in Month

Toronto, Sept. 27 —(CP)—The Liquor Control Board of Ontario announced today a partial easing of the Provincial liquor ration restrictions. Effective Oct. 1 the monthly ration will be 104 ounces of gin or 52 ounces of other spirits—whisky or rum.

The October ration will be:

Oct. 1-15—One 26-ounce bottle of whisky or rum or two 26-ounce bottles of gin.

Oct. 16-31—One 26-ounce bottle of whisky or rum or two 26-ounce bottles of gin.

The announcement, from the office of Liquor Commissioner W. G. Webster, said that except for the provision of the doubled alternative ration of gin, there will be no change from the September ration. This month liquor permit holders have been entitled to one 26-ounce bottle of spirits — whisky, rum or gin— in each of two periods, Sept. 1-15 and Sept. 16-30. Persons who failed to purchase their first-period quota were not entitled to double up in the second.

Before Sept. 1 the monthly ration was 26 ounces of any spirits. This had been in effect for some time.

There have been persistent reports that both the gin and rum ration was to be boosted next month. However, it is reported that while gin is in plentiful supply rum has become scarcer. This is attributed to the shortage of whisky, many purchasers having been turning to rum as a substitute.

Urges Competition In Aluminum

Washington, Sept. 27 — (AP)— W. Stuart Symington, surplus property administrator, wants Alcoa competitors to have first crack at any of the $700,000,000 worth of United States government aluminum plants.

The newly-confirmed boss over war surpluses sent to Congress a report prepared by the Board he headed and then supplanted.

The report called for development of a competitive aluminum industry and outlined a five-point disposal program topped by suggested priority status for competitors of the Aluminum Company of America (ALCOA).

The report said ALCOA and its Canadian affiliate, Aluminum Ltd. together own 64 per cent of the world's supply of aluminum. Alcoa controls 84 per cent of privately owned capacity in the United States, the report added.

QUESTIONED

Climax of a "friendly discussion" being held in the Sierra foothills cabin of Mrs. Barbara Chipman (pictured here) came when Herman Blood, 26-year-old lumberjack, was shot and killed. District Attorney Everett Coffee, who in Madera, Calif., questioned Mrs. Chipman, mother of an 18-months-old son, and her husband, Lieut. Claude Chipman, recently returned veteran of the China-Burma-India theatre of war, said both were "hazy" on details of the shooting.

The troops will arrive aboard four minesweepers the H.M.C.S. "Clairmore," "Milltown," "Fort William" and "Georgian Bay," which are expected to dock at Halifax.

Included in the list from this city and district are: Pte. J. L. Duff, Campbellford; Staff Sergeant C. O. Bush, Church Street, Belleville; Cfmn. H. M. Chard, Glen Miller; Pte. P. D. Clapp, Picton; Pte. G. E. Clapper, Picton; Pte. L. N. Dunk, Brighton and Cfmn. K. D. Hart, Havelock.

SGT. G. YEARWOOD WAS WOUNDED TWICE

Wounded twice in action overseas, Sergeant Gordon S. Yearwood one of three members of a fighting family, has arrived home after being overseas for over five years.

He is a member of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and arrived home in time to see his gallant comrades come home as a unit sometime next week.

Two brothers with the same regiment Major Manley Yearwood, Madoc and Company Sergeant Major Cecil Yearwood, of Norwood, who was awarded the Military Medal for conspicuous gallantry at the Battle of Ortona.

Sergeant Yearwood married a Scottish girl who will arrive in Canada as soon as transportation facilities permit.

Belleville Rink Wins Corbin Cup In Local Tourney

Under ideal weather conditions and a splendid entry, the last major bowling tournament for this district took place at the Belleville Bowling club greens on Wednesday, when the trebles were played. Rinks from Stirling, Campbellford, Cobourg and Kingston were present but Belleville bowlers carried off the bulk of the splendid prizes that were offered for competition. George Watkin with Fred Harper and Joe Black won the Corbin cup and four glass pitchers and six glasses each. They had a score of three game high of 54 plus 15. Art McConnell, a former alderman of this city but now resident of Brighton was second three game high winner and with his rink of Sam Netley and Jack Wiley won the Ackerman trophy. They were given four casserole dishes. Clarence Clapp with his rink of L. E. McLean and Dawson Boyd were winners of two-games high and were presented with sweaters. In the one-game high class Norman Kingsbury of Cobourg with John Henley and James Watson won four relish dishes, after a roll-off of two ends with G. T. Woodley's rink of Belleville. The greens were in perfect condition for the tourney and the competition was especially keen in all three games.

Reports Decrease In S. S. Scholars And Teachers

Montreal, Sept. 27. (CP)—A reduction of nearly one-third in the number of children attending Presbyterian Sunday Schools in the Montreal and Ottawa districts during the last ten years was reported yesterday by Rev. E. J. White, of Montreal, at the Montreal-Ottawa Synod.

Mr. White, convener of the Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies Committee, said that enrollment which was 16,106 in 1934 had dropped to 10,666 in 1944. He also reported a decrease in the number of teachers and officers connected with the Sunday Schools.

He recommended organization of more teacher-parent organizations, following up of absentees, more religion in the home, more teacher training and more direct interest of ministers in the Sunday Schools.

Rev. James Foote, of Carleton Place, Ont., was elected moderator last night, succeeding Rev. G. S. Lloyd of Cornwall, Ont.

Publishers Act To Protect News

Quebec, Sept. 27. (CP)—Official recognition of the fact that there is definite property value in news as presented in the daily newspapers, through the expense and effort entailed in obtaining it, is sought by the daily newspapers of Canada.

In a resolution passed yesterday by a special general meeting of The Canadian Press, Co-operative Association of Newspapers, the publishers ask action to protect news from 'piracy' by competitors prone to 'pick up' on publication news stories gathered by their staffs.

The resolution reads:

"That this special meeting of members of The Canadian Press express its unanimous belief that property right should be established by law in the news gathered through the enterprise of Canadian newspapers for the benefit of the Canadian public; and in the urgency of such establishment by the Parliament of Canada."

TWO YOUTHS SENTENCED

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 27 — (CP)—Two Lindsay, Ont., youths Wednesday were sentenced to a month in jail when convicted of theft of a rowboat at Prescott.

Police said the youths, Charles Ford, 17, and Robert Byrnell, 18, used the boat to enter the United States illegally at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

They were apprehended by U. S. border patrolmen and later deported to Canada.

SEEKING TO AVERT AUTO STRIKE

The first major showdown on union requests for a 30 per cent. wage increase for the auto industry came when representatives of the Chrysler Corporation sat down to talk it over with representatives of the United Automobile Workers, at Detroit, Mich. Even while the parley was on, the U.A.W. went ahead with plans to file a request for a strike vote at the Chrysler plant. Above, R. W. Conder (left) director of labor relations for the Chrysler Company, and Norman R. Matthews, international representative of U.A.W., are shown together during the luncheon recess.

Fred Comerford, Eldorado, Marks 82nd Birthday

Lifelong resident of Madoc township and well-known farmer of the Eldorado district, Mr. Fred Comerford is celebrating his 82nd birthday today (Thursday). One of twelve brothers and one sister in a family of 13, Mr. Comerford trained as a telegraph operator as a young man, but returned to farming as a life's career instead of becoming a railroad employee.

RESPONSIBLE FOR ARREST

Blenheim, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—Harold Mallory and Leonard Bentley of nearby Guilds were responsible Tuesday for the arrest of Clifford Renoff of Toronto who appeared in court here later on a charge of breaking into Mallory's farm home. After pleading guilty, Renoff was remanded until Oct. 2 for sentence.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit and Chicago were connected by telephone yesterday for the coin toss to decide the venue of a possible playoff game between the Tigers and Washington Senators, running neck and neck in the American League pennant race. H. G. Selsinger, on the Detroit end of the wire, called "tails" for the Tigers while Miss Dorothy Hummel, secretary to President William Harridge of the league, in Chicago called for the Senators. Earl Hilligan, press representative for the loop, flipped the coin in the Windy City—and Tigers won.

If the game is necessary, it goes to Detroit next Monday or Tuesday, as a result of the telephonic toss.

The Winnipeg football club unanimously approved acceptance last night of the offer of the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion of a trophy in memory of Lt.-Col. Jeff Nicklin for competition in the Western Football Conference to select annually the most outstanding player. Nicklin, former star of the Bombers, was killed while jumping with his unit in Germany.

Ray (Sugar) Robinson of New York once more triumphed over Jake Lamotta, also of Gotham, in a 12-round slugging match at Chicago last night, getting the decision when Referee Johnny Baer broke the judges' deadlock in the voting while the 14,755 fans demonstrated in disapproval.

The sixth and deciding game in the Senior O.B.A. semi-finals at London last night resulted in a 4-3 victory for the local Majors over Windsor Auto-Wreckers, with first-baseman Hank Biasatti figuring as the hero in a brief relief role on the mound in the ninth inning. London will play Welland at Labatt Park Saturday night in the first of the finals.

A softball team comprising veterans of the Second World War absorbed a 9-6 defeat from an all-star nine at Smith's Falls last night in a benefit tilt, proceeds of which were tagged for improvement of the local diamond. The Vets' twirlers were George Rodney, former prisoner of war, and Woody Drew, ex-sergeant.

Club Bids Farewell.

Trenton Rotary Club on Monday evening said farewell to Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, M.C., who is at his own request at the end of this month relinquishing command of the Trenton R.C.A.F. station.

The Rotarians took occasion to thank him for his co-operation with and work on behalf of not only the club, but the town of Trenton. It was pointed out by Vice-President E. L. Fraser, that the Group Captain and those under him had assisted in many Rotary and community enterprises. During the evening he was presented with a gift as a tangible expression of appreciation and esteem.

The Group Captain, who leaves next week for Vancouver, deeply moved, that he and his wife would always remember with pleasure their association with the R.C.A.F. here, and with many Trenton citizens.

Kinsmen Hold Party.

The annual Ladies' Night of Trenton Kinsmen Club was held at the new St. James Hotel on Monday evening, with about 100 present. President Frank Strong presided and the guests included President Harry Rollins of the Belleville Club, and Mrs. Rollins; President R. F. McInnes of the Trenton Rotary Club, and Mrs. McInnes and President Allan McNab of the Lions Club, and Mrs. McNab.

A fine dinner was served followed by a program of music, elocution and dancing.

During the evening a presentation of a silver bracelet was made to Mrs. Ken Milligan for valuable services rendered, free of charge, at the fresh air camp for children this summer.

Two Honor Rolls.

Two honor rolls containing the names of veterans of two wars who enlisted from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, now occupy a prominent place on the church walls.

On one memorial, a bronze tablet, are the names of 15 who served in the war of 1914-1918, and on the other, a scroll, are 40 names of men and women who served during the war recently ended.

The memorials were dedicated by a former pastor, Lieut.-Col. the Rev. Charles K. Nicoll, of Oakville, Ont., who until recently was Senior Chaplain at Camp Borden, following his return from overseas.

295 in High School.

The enrolment at the Trenton High School is now 295, the largest for many years. Many students, who had been working or in the service during the past year or more, are now returning to school to complete their studies and several of the rooms are considerably crowded.

Police Court.

Wesley Reid, charged with attempting theft of an automobile tire, tube and rim from a parking lot on Murphy Street on Monday night, appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton Police Court on Tuesday afternoon, and was given one year's suspended sentence, and ordered to pay costs of $19. Norman Beland charged with a similar offence was let go when the Crown withdrew the charge. Beland was driving the Reid car but was not implicated in the theft.

Cecil Belnap was fined $10 for careless driving, and ordered to pay costs of $18.25.

Three Frankford youths charged with stealing melons were given six months' suspended sentence and ordered to pay $7.60 costs each.

A Trenton man charged with wife assault and assaulting two police officers, at the request of his counsel, had his case enlarged till Thursday.

Oliver P. Flett, charged with passing worthless cheques in Trenton was apprehended in Toronto. He appeared in local police court and was remanded for one week.

Three paid $10 and costs for breach of the Liquor Control Act and W. A. Reid paid $25 and costs for driving while his licence was suspended.

Four paid $5 and costs for speeding and B. Wilson paid $10.00 and costs for driving with defective brakes.

A Toronto lady was charged with failing to obey a traffic signal but when it was explained to the court that her disregard of the signal was because she was on very urgent business, the charge was withdrawn.

Five others paid $4.50 for failing to obey traffic signals.

Obituary

E. W. LATTA
(Frankford-Edmonton)

The following obituary, which appeared in the Edmonton Journal of Sept. 21st. will be of interest to old friends of the Latta family in this district:

Servicemen's Appreciation

Local organizations and individuals have been in many communities meeting every train bearing home the troops and greeting them and extending to them a substantial welcome. That welcome here has not been limited to those ending their long journey in Belleville, but extends to the men passing through.

The other day Windsor Unit 30 of the A. & N. V. C. forwarded a letter to the President of the Belleville Auxiliary Unit 49 Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, thanking members of that organization for courtesy and kindness towards troops passing through the city and told the story of a grateful Windsor serviceman and his appreciation of the generosity shown him and the comforts provided him while his train stopped at the local depot.

The good deeds of these women are being recorded in the grateful hearts and memories of the gallant youth of Canada now returning home. Windsor organization's expression of praise is an inspiration to the Belleville ladies' auxiliary.

Units Coming Home

Military units are now returning home and provide the opportunity of official welcome by the home folk to these military organizations which have served so long overseas and fought on many a field of victory. Many members of units now returning home have come back before unit arrivals and will unite with their pals and be feted and honored.

The privilege is at hand for this district to extend a warm welcome home to the boys of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which will arrive in the course of a few days, the date yet to be announced. Plans of an extensive nature have been laid as everyone knows for the reception of this regiment at Belleville and tribute will also be paid the men in their own counties and communities.

The day of the arrival of these men, their reunion with their relatives, friends and old comrades, the "Originals" who will join them, will be one that will never be forgotten. Everyone is planning to make this one of the great occasions in the history of the district.

The H. and P. E. Regiment dates back to the first days of the war for it sent many men overseas to arrive in Britain in December, 1939, and so this unit is linked up with the events which took place between 1939 and 1945, like other units of the First Canadian Division. It trained at Picton, its headquarters.

Similar events are taking place or will take place in many parts of Canada.

Fire Prevention

"In 1944 fire losses in Canada amounted to more than 40 million dollars, while in 1939, they were less than 25 million," states W. L. Clairmont, Dominion Fire Commissioner, in a message dealing with fire prevention week issued to the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

His message points out that for the first time in six years fire prevention week, Oct. 7th to 13th, will be observed under peacetime conditions, and while fire losses rose during war years, "it is to be recorded with pride that fires serious enough to interfere with our war industries were very rare."

Explaining the purpose of fire prevention week, Mr. Clairmont says it has been established to direct attention to the devastation wrought by fire, but it is not intended that we concentrate on fire prevention for that one week and disregard it for the rest of the year. He suggests that common sense practices and adequate fire protection equipment will do much to decrease the fire loss record, not only in industry but in all other phases of our national life.

In support of fire prevention week, the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations have sent Ontario plants a special poster for their bulletin boards. It reads: "Stop fires before they start. Remove all fire hazards. A clean orderly department is good fire protection."

Mona Lisa's Smile

"Mona Lisa is smiling!" These four words, broadcast by the BBC in May 1944, told the French that their most famous art treasures were safe from Allied bombs.

An official of the Paris Louvre recently told Press correspondents how the entire France were stored away in sixty underground depots. The "Venus de Milo" was hidden under a chateau on the north banks of the Loire; Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa' was put in the cellars of the Chateau Montal near Lyons.

But Allied air attacks were growing in intensity and bombs were falling dangerously near. So a member of the French Maquis undertook to run the gauntlet of the German blockade and carry a message to London. He got through and from that moment on, France's treasures were safe from Allied bombs.

Today, paintings by Leonardo da Vinci, Rembrandt, Rubens and Rafael have returned from their hide-out in the cellars of French chateaux; priceless tapestries from Europe, Africa and Asia have emerged again.

An Ulsterman to Canada

(Belfast Telegraph)

Sir Harold Alexander at 53 is the youngest field marshal in the army list, and some expected that to him would fall the task of reorganizing the British army on a peacetime footing. That will be an important job and no one would have been better equipped to perform it than this great Ulsterman, who has a record second to none in active warfare. Instead, he is to become Governor-General of Canada. . . . It is not surprising that he has accepted the invitation of the Canadian government to represent His Majesty the King in the great Dominion of the West. It is a signal honor to a famous soldier and Canadians in general will be delighted to welcome one who has proved his ability so recently in outstanding terms. This part of the world has long links with Canada. Many Ulstermen have made it the land of their adoption and some have played a notable role in its development. As long as 70 years ago the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava filled the vice-regal position with dignity and distinction. There is every reason to expect that Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander will exhibit as Governor-General the qualities which have marked him out as a great captain, for he has proved himself as diplomat as well as soldier. County Tyrone in particular may be rightly proud of this latest mark of confidence in her illustrious son, and the Province as a whole will tender its hearty good wishes.

National Song

(Australian News Letter)

A 76-year-old woman — Mrs. Marie Pitt, of Northcote, Victoria — won the first prize of £70 in the Australian Broadcasting Commission's competition to find suitable verses for an Australian national song. There were 1,200 entries.

First verse of the winning entry, "Ave, Australia," is:

> Fling out her flag to the world and the wrong > in it!
> Thunder her name to the dawn that shall > be!
> Ave, Australia! Name with a song in > it—
> Name of the free!

Mrs. Pitt, in 1902, won a competition for a "Song of Empire," which was open to all parts of the English-speaking world.

The judges say of her latest work: "It has movement, passion, and poetic imagery, which stir the blood; is simple and forceful, and expresses national feeling that all Australians will be able to sing with enthusiasm. This poem, set to effective music, we feel sure, would be a national song of which Australians could be proud.

The richest endowments in our mind are temperance, prudence and fortitude, Prudence is a universal virtue which enters into the composition of all the rest; and where she is not, fortitude loses its name and nature.—Voltaire.

Let thy vices die before thee. —Franklin.

SOLDIER-FATHER TALKS

How good 'twill seem to hear a cry
And wake at night and wonder why;
To quit my bed and go to see
Just what the cause of it can be.

Oh, there were times to us it seemed
As if of horrors he had dreamed;
And then, if that the cause should be,
I'd bring him back to sleep with me.

Well, done with war, to me 'twill seem
Like waking from a fearful dream;
That out of peril's trenches deep
I've come back home to quiet sleep.

And when that little boy at night
Shall waken me with cries of fright,
I shall be glad his childish scream

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 27th., 1925.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Badgley of Campbellford are visiting the former's parents at their home on Benjamin Street.

Miss Maud Fleming has returned to Cleveland, Ohio, after visiting her brother, Mr. Jack Fleming.

Miss Ada Henderson has returned home from Lindsay where she visited her sister, Mrs. Aulthouse.

At the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board 2,033 boxes of white cheese and 280 boxes of colored cheese were boarded and all sold at 23 9-16 cents, 23 1-2 cents and 23 5-8 cents.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 27th., 1915.

This section was visited yesterday by a severe wind and rain storm. At times the wind blew a hurricane and rain fell in torrents. Considerable damage was done to trees and some trouble was caused to the telephone, electric and telegraph wires.

Last evening a meeting of citizens interested in the local option campaign about to be launched, was held at the Y.M.C.A. Dr. Yeomans presided.

Mr. Frank M. Barrett is in Toronto on business.

Several members of the Ontario Pacific party returned to Belleville this morning. They are Miss Jack, Belleville; Miss Murray, Springbrook; Miss Adams, Foxboro, Mr. Harold Simmons of this city. Miss Lowery is stopping over in Calgary to visit friends, Miss Ruth Sinclair will spend two weeks in Winnipeg and Miss Anna Hurley is visiting relatives in Michigan.

40 YEARS AGO

Sept. 27th., 1905.

Mayor Charles N. Sulman attended a wedding in Ameliasburg today.

Mr. W. H. Spooner, who has been organist and choirmaster at Trinity Anglican Church, Brockville, for the past three years, has accepted the position of organist and choirmaster at St. Thomas's Church in this city and will commence his duties here on Nov. 1st.

Mr. J. Earl Halliwell, barrister, Stirling, registered today at Hotel Quinte.

The young bachelors of this city held an assembly in the Oddfellows' Hall last evening. Many guests were present and the affair was most enjoyable. Excellent music was furnished by the popular Chalaupkas' Orchestra.

The Greys are holding a farewell banquet this evening at their club house in honor of R. Moore, S. B. Iler and E. D. O'Flynn who are leaving to attend college in Toronto.

50 YEARS AGO

Sept. 27th., 1895.

The 15th. Battalion will parade with both bands this evening to the hospital lot.

In future the police will require that all horses left standing on Front Street be securely tied.

Mr. J. Patterson of the Syndicate Store has been awarded the contract to supply the city police with tunics and pants.

Mr. E. E. Sheppard, "Don" of the Toronto Saturday Night, was a visitor in town today.

Miss Ockerman has arrived home after a month's stay at Mount Clemens, Mich.

Mr. Mason Clarke will leave tomorrow to resume his studies at the Dental College, Toronto.

Mr. R. Richardson, manager of the Bank of Montreal, will return to the city this evening after three months' absence.

COLONIAL DEVELOPMENT
By 1839 more than 700 men and women had left England for New Zealand with about 400 children.

WIDELY APPLIED
The word Napoleon means a card game, a type of boat, a form of French pastry, and an old French coin.

CRUELEST WOMAN GUARD AT BELSEN CAMP

Irma Grese, described as the cruelest woman in the SS, who delighted in devising new tortures for unfortunate prisoners at the Belsen concentration camp, is shown being helped by M.P.'s on arrival at court in Luneburg, Germany, where she and 11 others are being tried for war crimes.

RAWSON JAILED

Accused of having tried to "provoke revolt within the army," Gen. Arturo Rawson (above) who preceded President Edelmiro Farrell as chief executive of Argentina, has been taken into custody near Buenos Aires, Argentina. Arrested with Gen. Rawson was Gen. Osvaldo Martinez, co-leader of the army's anti-government faction.

'Hundreds of Others Have Done More' Says V.C. Bar Winner

Christchurch, N.Z., Sept. 27. (Reuters)—Capt. C. H. Upham received the news of the award of a bar to his Victoria Cross Wednesday as he was sitting for his portrait in an artist's studio.

He told a reporter who traced him there: "Naturally I feel some pride in the distinction, but hundreds of others have done more than I did: they could have given the award to one of them."

Capt. Upham had nonchalantly stuffed the telegram announcing the award into his pocket and did not even pass the news on to the artist.

He won his Victoria Cross in Crete during 1941, and the Bar has been awarded for his part in the El Ruweisat engagement in Western Egypt in 1942. He was recently repatriated from a German prisoner of war camp.

Missionaries Back After Six Years

New York, Sept. 27. (CP)—Joy and sorrow were blended for Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Warman, of Toronto, when they arrived here Wednesday from India aboard the troop transport U.S.S. General Greely.

The missionary couple, after six years in the Orient, were happy to be back in North America but their pleasure was tempered by the death of their eldest daughter, six-year-old Faith, during a cholera epidemic two months ago.

The Warmans and their remaining children, four-year-old Marvin Paul and Beatrice, 18 months, were the only Canadians aboard the 19,000-ton Greely. Other passengers aboard included 3,075 United States soldiers, army nurses, Red Cross workers and smaller groups. Among the arrivals were 182 Chinese and Indian civilians sent to the United States by their respective governments for educational and scientific research.

Mr. and Mrs. Warman conducted missionary and evangelical work in the Indian province of East Khandesh for the Scandinavian Alliance Mission, with headquarters in Chicago. Their two younger children were born in India but Faith was born in Toronto. "The cholera carried her off in less than two hours", said Mrs. Warman.

Black Prince Wins Free-for-All Pace At Campbellford Fair

Campbellford, Sept. 27. (CP)—Black Prince, owned by O. V. Tinney, of Lindsay, Ont., yesterday won the free-for-all event at a trotting meet climaxing the fall fair here. Lee Volo, owned by M. Harrison of Brandon, Man., placed second in the event.

Another Harrison entry, Guy Von, placed fifth in the 2.22 Class event won by Cassie Lee, representing A. Pacey of Roseneath, Ont. Ruth Harvester from the stable of F. Thorne, Brighton, Ont., won a close decision over Burton Lee, Thompson and son, Peterborough, Ont., in the 2:28.

Worthy Frisco, owned by F. Leblanc of New Liskeard, Ont., was unplaced in the 2:28.

FRESHIE CLEANS COP'S SHOES

Hamilton, Sept. 27. (CP)—A freshman wearing a "beanie" hat and pajamas over his street clothes cleaned a policeman's shoes and others scrubbed a bronze lion with tooth brushes as McMaster University sophomores staged their annual "razzing" of freshman students.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed.

DETERIORATION BEGINS IN THE MOUTH

In a chapter on Pyorrhea in Cyclopedia of Medicine, Surgery and Specialties (Vol. 10, '43) Louis I. Grossman, D.D.S., D.M.D., asserts that "genuine pyorrhea without a gingival" (gum) "pocket does not exist" and in the same paragraph goes on to say that "alveolar atrophy" (wasting or shrinking of tooth sockets, bone, gum) is the first stage" (of pyorrhea) "followed closely by pocket formation and suppuration."

Well, I don't know, folks, I'm just a plodding door-to-door doctor and I can't follow some of the explanations I find in our medical works. I may be showing my ignorance but it does seem to me this presumptive authority on pyorrhea meets himself coming and going and never bats an eye by way of recognition. Now that doesn't seem very affable. When I find myself right there and say: "Hold on, chum, it seems one of us talks too much. Let's step aside and have a private confab about it and see if we can't find a loophole which will save face for us." Not Dr. Grossman—but then, I suppose an authority in such a conspicuous position can't afford to indulge in such horseplay. Dr. Grossman eastbound arbitrarily decides you can't have pyorrhea without a pocket, and then Dr. Grossman westbound breaks it gently that the first stage of pyorrhea is alveolar atrophy and after that pocket formation. To me it appears a desperate situation Dr. Grossman has gotten into. The only way out I can see is this: He can make a brave try at arguing that the first stage, alveolar atrophy, is not genuine. I have wriggled out of some embarrassing dilemmas by such methods.

Dentists sometimes diagnose "atrophic gingivitis"—a chronic recession of gum tissue—as a condition distinct from frank or "genuine" pyorrhea. What is still more confusing, the dentists say this atrophic gingivitis may be due to (1) extreme thinness of the gum tissue—(but that's what I, Brady, regard as atrophy). . (2) overbrushing of the teeth and (3) some fault or deficiency of the blood or metabolism (or something). Moreover the dentists aver—hang onto your hat, Student—that atrophic gingivitis is observed in clean rather than neglected mouths.

In view of my well known opinion of the toothbrushing rite suffice it to say here than in my opinion the dentists' notion that "overbrushing of the teeth" is a possible factor of wasting or shrinking or recession (atrophy) of the gums is absurd. I mean I don't believe any such harm comes from brushing the teeth, even if the brushing is carried to extremes. I suggest—and do not for a moment forget that I'm no authority—I suggest that those who brush their teeth so furiously and so futilely general haven't the sense to (1) try to keep their nutrition adequate, particularly the daily intake of minerals and vitamins, which is essential to maintain the health and vigor of the gum tissues, teeth, jaws; or (2) to have regular examination, prophylaxis, cleaning of the teeth by the dentists—the only way the teeth can be kept clean, regardless of the use or neglect of toothbrushes.

From my bull-eye view, (bull in the china shop of dentistry) this "atrophic gingivitis," which like dental caries (decay of the teeth) seems to occur particularly in adults who "overbrush" their teeth is part and parcel of the deterioration, involution, retrogression, degeneration or slow death of jawbone, gum tissues, tooth-sockets and teeth which process we commonly call pyorrhea.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

So You Want More Vite?

A year or so ago you had some very interesting articles about vite and how to get it. I cut them out and laid them away, but now I can't find them. I do want more vite if there is any way I can get it. I think your column is just about the most valuable part. (Miss M. W.)

Answer — Send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "The Seven Keys to Vite."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Is the earth's water supply decreasing or increasing?

Scientists are of the opinion that no appreciable change in the quantity of water on the earth has taken place within historic times.

At any given time most of the earth's supply of water is in the oceans, seas, lakes and streams, in the interstices of the soil and rocks, in the atmosphere and in the ice of the Arctic and Antarctic.

The distribution of water is constantly changing, but the actual amount of water on the earth has probably changed little since life began.

Much of the water on the earth is the same water that has been there for thousands of years. The water that we drink today may contain some of the same molecules that composed the bath water of Pharaoh.

No water is lost in the natural process of evaporation and the consequent falling of rain, snow and hail. Water is composed of two elements — oxygen and hydrogen. A chemist is his laboratory can readily decompose water into these elements. Likewise he can combine them and produce water.

But there are very few known natural agencies on the earth that produce water by combining oxygen and hydrogen, or that decompose it into these elements. Consequently there is believed to be about the same quantity of water on the earth today as there was 10,000 years ago.

—A limited amount of water is formed in the combustion of organic matter containing hydrogen, such as gasoline, natural gas, coal, wood, oils and fats. It is probable that a certain quantity of water is formed from the oxidation of organic matter containing hydrogen, even in cases where the oxidation is too slow to be termed combustion.

But on the other hand, water is used by plants to form organic compounds. This water, however, moves in an endless cycle. It is first used to build up compounds such as cellulose and sugar. Then when these compounds are broken down by slow decomposition or by combustion, the hydrogen unites with oxygen either from the air or from the plant material and water is again formed.

LIBERALS IN CAUCUS

Ottawa, Sept. 27. (CP)—Liberal members of Parliament yesterday held a two-hour caucus and, at the conclusion of the meeting, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said discussions had centred on "current topics". He did not elaborate.

Russian Paper Is Critical, Accuses Wilson

Moscow, Sept. 26 —(AP) — The government newspaper Izvestia today accused Field Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson of attempting to incite the American people against the Soviet Union, called him a "chatterer" and said he was playing "a dangerous game."

Field Marshal Wilson, said Izvestia, "talked so much foolishness that it is difficult to find anything comparable with it."

Field Marshal Wilson, chief British representative on the joint staff mission in Washington, was quoted in a Baltimore dispatch last Thursday as expressing fear of Soviet influence in Europe, and as saying that Russia would have the atomic bomb within five years and that she would thus become the most powerful country in the world. The dispatch was issued by the North American Newspaper Alliance.

The foreign office subsequently announced that Field Marshal Wilson's opinions were personal and did not represent the views of the British government.

Field Marshal Wilson denied he had mentioned Russia in the interview.

Claim Communists In North China Attacking Japanese

CHUNGKING, Sept. 26 (AP)—China's Minister of Information, Dr. K. C. Wu, said today that Communist troops in North China are attacking the Japanese, in violation of the Chinese Central government's disarmament program.

A questioner at a News conference referred to reports published in a local Communist newspaper, reporting that Japanese were fighting with Communists and implying, the questioner explained, that the Japanese had attacked the Communists with the sanction of the Chinese Central government.

Dr. Wu said flatly that this was untrue.

"The government has a plan for accepting the surrender of Japanese forces in China", the Minster said. "Orders were issued to Japanese commanders that before the arrival of government troops they were to maintain peace and order in their respective areas.

"If the Communist troops obey instructions of the Central government and stay in their own areas, then there will be no conflict as alleged in the Communist paper."

'If I Am Killed I Am Not Afraid,' R.C. Padre Wrote

Toronto, Sept. 26—(CP)—A letter from a Roman Catholic chaplain of the Canadian Army in Belgium was read yesterday at the 12th annual meeting of the Catholic Historical Association here.

The letter, written by Capt. the Rev. Thomas Mooney to his mother before he was killed at Ouse camp, Belgium, while ministering to wounded, said "If I am killed I am not afraid .. Somehow it wouldn't seem so useless if one 'got it' here."

Dr. D. A. Cassey of Kingston, where Father Mooney had been a curate of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, read the letter to the meeting.

Moira

Moira — Sgt. Cecil Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott arrived home from overseas on Saturday afternoon after an absence of over five years.

Weekend visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Holden included Miss Mabel Tomlinson of Kingston, Fern and Freda Aylesworth of Cataraqui. On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Holden entertained a number of young people in honor of Miss Dorothy Holden's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Hazzard and family of Belleville spent Sunday with Mrs. M. Hazzard.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Vanderwater, Billie, Rita Cleave and Lily Dunlay spent Sunday at Huff's Island with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall and baby Linda.

For Rally Day the church and Sunday School services were combined at the Moira United Church under the leadership of the superintendent Mr. Wesley Farrell. The choir was composed of the children of the intermediate classes. Miss W. Huffman spoke on the Crest of the United Church and Mr. Stewart preached on The Ten Strings. Mrs. Nelson Welsh sang "Jesus Remembers When the World Forgets."

WEDDINGS

BROUGH—DICKEY

A lovely Autumn wedding was solemnized at three p.m., September 22, 1945, in Bethel United Church, Halloway, Ontario, when Grace Viola, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dickey, Halloway, became the bride of George Morden Brough, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brough, Halloway. Gladioli, asters and ferns made an artistic background for the bridal party. Rev. G. McKenzie, Plainfield, officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a white floor-length gown of chiffon rayon sheer with a round neckline, embroidered bodice, deep shirred waistband and bishop sleeves. Her finger-tip veil fell from a headdress of orange blossoms, and she carried a bridal bouquet of Bettertime roses and white azaleamums.

Miss Lois Rogers, Frankford, as maid of honor, wore a rosebud pink sheer gown, fashioned similarly to that of bride's, and a shoulder-length veil. She carried a shower bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and asters.

Miss Marion White, Halloway, niece of the bride, a junior bridesmaid, was gowned in Grecian blue Swiss organdy with shirred bodice, sweetheart neckline and she also wore a shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and asters.

Little Miss Annamae Dickey, niece of the bride, wore a floor-length dress of sunset maize Swiss organdy and matching Dutch cap. She carried a nosegay of mauve and yellow chrysanthemums.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Laurison Ketcheson, Halloway. Mr. Edward Follwell, Belleville, brother-in-law of the groom, and Mr. Floyd White, Halloway, brother-in-law of the bride, were ushers.

Mrs. Clarke Rodgers, Stirling, sang "I'll Walk Beside You", accompanied by Mrs. Sheldon Calver, Napanee, during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in rooms prettily decorated with colorful Autumn flowers. The bride's mother, attired in a Santos brown two-piece dress with matching accessories and corsage of gladioli, received the guests with the bridal party. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who chose a Delmonte rose dress with black accessories and corsage of gladioli.

The bride's table was lovely with its white linen cloth centred with a three-tier wedding cake, silver candlesticks and tall pink tapers were at each end. Misses Audrey Robson, Joan McCurdy, Barbara Robson, Margaret Bateman, Mrs. Mary Bedford and Mrs. Dorothy Clarke, served the guests.

For travelling the bride wore a dress of Dover blue with black accessories and corsage of roses. The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a trip through Western Ontario and the United States. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Brough will reside on the groom's farm at Zion's Hill.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver, to the bestman an engraved tie and belt set. The bride's gifts to her attendants were earrings and an identification bracelet.

Women's Activities

U.P.E.-BELLEVILLE WOMEN'S CLUB

Favored with bright Autumn weather, the Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. H. A. Roblin, 10 Queen Alexandra Street, for the September meeting.

After the opening ode, minutes and prayer, Miss B. Jones, read poems written by Mrs. Laura Bedell, of Bloomfield, and presented the Club with a beautifully bound book of Mrs. Bedell's latest writings.

Among others, Miss Jones described "Abbey Dawn", the estate of Mr. Havelock Robb and requested any of the members who might have articles of historical value to contact Mr. Robb, who was now setting apart, a building for relics of value to Canadian history.

Mrs. A. Calnan read a touching poem "Life's Journey" and Mrs. Boyd gave impressions of the dedication ceremony, at Picton, when the new recreation centre was made possible by the purchase of the old Barker homestead and given to Picton, by Mr. W. H. Benson.

Mrs. Palmer's reading was "Bargain Day on Friday".

Community singing was followed by three contests with prizes donated.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Wannamaker, Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Calnan and a vote of thanks extended them.

WHITE'S W.A.

Mrs. W. A. Jeffery was hostess to the White's Woman's Association on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 20, with the President, Mrs. Leonard Young opening the meeting.

Letters were read from an officer and an Air Force chaplain, overseas, showing that the social problem of readjustment was uppermost in the minds of these men for post-war plans. The returned soldier should be absorbed happily into the life of the community and to do this the parents and other relatives of the soldier will have to readjust their own lives to assist him to get a new start on life again.

Five ladies were named to canvass the community for funds in lieu of the almost forgotten "Fowl Supper". There was one donation to the "Birthday Box" and "A Happy Birthday" was sung to little Miss Sharon Jeffery who was one year old this month. She is the granddaughter of the hostess. At the close of the meeting a fancy pot-holder made by Mrs. Westfall was sold to one of the members. Rev. A. C. McCallum closed the meeting with prayer which was followed by the National Anthem. Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed by all.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S.

The September meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. John Moorcroft and was the annual guest dinner meeting. Following the dinner Mrs. Clayton Wright was assisted with a fine program, by Mrs. Foster Wilson offering prayer; Mrs. Warren, of Eggleton, and Mrs. John Wallace, of St. Andrew's, each contributing helpful readings.

Mrs. Ambrose Wright and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy provided the special music and Mr. Stewart gave the main address.

In the business period, Mrs. Sandy McCurdy was appointed delegate to the Sectional Rally to be held at Mt. Pleasant Church in October.

An invitation to hold next meeting at Mrs. Foster Wilson's home was accepted with Mrs. A. Wright and Mrs. Frank Ashley preparing the program. Mrs. Baldwin Reid closed the meeting with prayer.

TRENTON

Mrs. Bell-Irving Honored By RCAF Auxiliary

Trenton, Sept. 27.—In honor of Mrs. A. D. Bell-Irving, who is leaving to make her home in Vancouver, B.C., the ladies of the R.C.A.F., auxiliary, of which Mrs. Bell-Irving is retiring president, held a delightful tea on Tuesday afternoon in their rooms on King Street.

On behalf of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Middleton presented the guest of honor with a beautiful travelling bag in appreciation of the great work which she had so cheerfully done for the Auxiliary during her term of office.

In thanking the ladies, Mrs. Bell-Irving voiced her appreciation of the co-operation which had been given her, during her work with the auxiliary, stressing that great work had been done by each and every member, many of whom were also now leaving Trenton to make their homes in various parts of the Dominion.

On behalf of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Bell-Irving presented beautiful silver dishes to three members who had been with the association for a considerable period, Mrs. Staveley, Mrs. Hinton and Mrs. Province, the latter a past president.

About fifty ladies were in attendance including Mrs. W. E. Baker, a former president who had been greatly instrumental in the outstanding success of the auxiliary prior to her leaving for Cobourg a few short months ago. With Mrs. Baker were two other Cobourg guests, Mrs. Ridell and Mrs. Stewart, the former also a past member of the auxiliary.

Delicious refreshments were served by the members, tea being poured by Mrs. Ross.

'Brockettes' Sail To Entertain Men Occupation Army

Brockville, Sept. 27. (CP)—Mrs. Dora Challice had no son to take a place among Canada's fighting men, so she set out at the start of the war to make her own contribution to the armed forces.

The result is that her concert troupe, the Brockville 'Brockettes' sails October 1 to entertain men of the Occupation Army.

The group of six girls, who have played nearly every service centre in Ontario and Northern New York State, are the ninth civilian concert party to leave Canada for overseas service. The first eight were sponsored by Canadian firms while the "Brockettes" have operated on their own.

The girls are Margaret Currie, script writer and mistress of Ceremonies: the Challice twins, Jean and Sheila, with their song and dance routines; Noreen Kelly, comedienne; Marnie Earle, Blues singer, and Ethel Burgess, singer.

Mrs. Challice herself, founder of the group and the twins' mother, is director and accompanist, while her husband handles props, make-up and stage detail.

It was in midsummer, 1940, that Mrs. Challice, interested in theatricals for many years and winner of the award as the best amateur actress in the drama festival at Kingston, Ont., in 1938, evolved the plan of forming a small concert party to help entertain the thousands of men at Ontario training centres.

Members of the group say they are not looking for a pleasure cruise overseas. They know they will have plenty of work to do—often as many as three shows a day.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Here's Another Marital Blind Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I are nearly 40 years old and have been married fifteen years. We have six children and I'm expecting my seventh. My husband is a laborer and makes about $40 a week so you see I have to scrimp and save to make ends meet.

My husband never drinks or gambles, brings home his entire pay cheque, and doesn't even notice other women. He likes to dress well, and likes sports of all kinds—baseball, wrestling, and occasionally a good show. He belongs to two clubs which meet weekly.

Everybody thinks we are the happiest family, as my husband is so kind to me. But nobody except myself knows how lonely I am. I have to stay alone every evening ,as my husband always has some place to go. When he is at home he sleeps. If it weren't for the children I couldn't stand it. All I have is poor health, lots of work and lonely hours. Even my husband doesn't realize how discouraged I get at times. There is no other man in my life.

(Mrs.) H. G. B.

Your husband belongs to a class of men tihs column discussed a couple of months ago, known as "martial blind men". It brought scores of letters concerning men regarded as model husbands. Your husband, you say, doesn't realize how discouraged you've become over your loneliness. Why not tell him, not in a nagging, complaining, way, that you need more of his companionship than he gives you? A woman with six children and expecting a seventh, should have a little change from housekeeping and child care.

Some of these so-called good men are really the most selfish husbands we have any record of. The wife is an unpaid domestic, whose entire life is spend ministering to their comfort. Of course, they don't realize how things are.

Her Husband Pursued by Another Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married for two years, and he persists in running around with another girl. We're both 25 years old, and it seems to me he ought to be growing up. We were so happy until he met this [illegible] which was about ten months ago. She's only twenty. She actually chases him, smokes and drinks a great deal, and although my husband hates these things, he does not seem to mind if she does it.

I've threatened to divorce him, but he pleads with me to stay, because she's only a passing fancy. He tells me whenever they go out, which is usually to lunch and perhaps a movie. He says he never drinks with her, and has also told her all about me. I get so discouraged that I think I will leave him after all.

Unhappy

You can't help feeling sorry for a man who is so bent on destroying his own happiness and that of a good wife, just for the sake of going out with a common type of girl. It reminds me of sheep going over a cliff. The sheep follow a leader more foolish than themselves, and they all go to destruction. The fact that your husband is frank with you about his weakness leads me to believe that before long he will come to his senses.

Lots More to Life Than Day-Dreaming

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 years old. My husband is 21. We've been married almost three years but we never get along, and are always quarreling.

A young man I've known since school-days and to whom I was engaged before I married, has just returned from overseas and he wants me to divorce my husband and marry him. He says he's been waiting for me these past few years.

My husband has been mean to me and says he will never be mean again, but I don't believe he'll keep his promise. He too has spent two years overseas. I know both these men are in love with me, but I can't make up my mind which one I want. I am not in love with my husband, but have a certain feeling for him which will in time make me hate him. I think we should part before that happens. The "other man" is seven years older. Do you think I can find happiness with an older man?

J. J.

You'll probably hate me for handing out a few unpalatable truths. Married at sixteen and before that engaged to the man who is now asking you to divorce your husband! He says he's been waiting for you these past few years. Lots of soldiers talk that way for fun. How do you know, if you did divorce your husband, he'd really want to marry you?

Besides, there is such a thing as having some obligation to the promises you made in marriage. Why not try to make a go of your marriage, as you say your husband still loves you? If you were to have a baby, I believe you'd be happier. It would cure you of the belief that life is one long, continual romance. Give your husband another chance.

Friends Make Her Unhappy, Saying Soldier Wasn't in Earnest.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 20 years old and met a soldier of 35 who was at a nearby camp and came to see me whenever he had a weekend pass. It seemed we were made for each other.

Not long ago he was shipped to another place, but told me before he left he would never stop loving me and that when he returned we would be married. He was always good to my mother and very kind to the rest of the family. Now my friends tell me I'm foolish to think he'll come back to me. If he doesn't it will be the first lie he ever told me, and I'm so worried about it. What do you think I should do?

Unhappy.

You tell me your boy friend was shipped to another base not long ago—have you given him time to write? Unless he has been sent overseas, he'll write to you if he really cares. And why take the gossip of friends seriously? One of the surest ways to send a love affair on the rocks is to listen to what everyone has to say about it.

Madame Pauline designs a flattering dinner-halo in fine black aigrette-like feathers to wear with a afternoon-into-evening frock or an important dinner dress.

Fashion Flashes

OFF TO SCHOOL wearing a jumper dress. Black and white window-pane-checked woollen makes a good jumper which has a trench coat yoke, tiny revers and a set-in-belt. Nice with long-sleeved black wool jersey blouse.

The perfect finish to a perfect Autumn costume is a well-chosen glove. Nicely-designed to add a spot of color to a black costume is a six-button black suede slip-on glove, its flared cuff embellished with hand painted borders of tiny pink roses, blue forget-me-nots and white daisies.

The tricorne has escaped from the label "the matron's hat". Now it appears in youthful hats, in any size, worn at the back of the head or sideways. A charming tricorne of black fur felt is rimmed around with clipped pink ostrich, held down at each corner by tiny black and pink velvet bows that have pearl bead centres.

An easy pick-up for any dress is a pretty belt. Black suede is used for a belt that tapers from a broad centre to narrow sides. The centre is handled in corselet fashion with gold cord laced through rhinestoned eyelets.

Really graceful dinner dresses are now in the shops. Designed for the mature type is a handsome dress of black crepe with panels in lime and red slanted across the bodice and continuing down the skirt to form a drape.

Lots and lots of brown this Autumn. Brown crepe makes nice afternoon dress with distended peg-top pockets to minimize the waist. Front fullness on skirt. Tabs on shoulders are held down by large buttons of bronze beads. Bronze-beaded square belt buckle

THE SOFT TOUCH and expert handling mark new fur hats, with the furs draped and manipulated as though they were fabric. Ranch mink is used for a beautifully draped large beret trimmed with pink velvet roses.

WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING

OXYDOL is Far Ahead of Most Soaps in Preventing "Dirty Grayness!"

Tests Prove Oxydol Washes Clothes CLEANER and WHITER!

Yes, Whiter! In wash test after test—Oxydol proved that it actually washes clothes cleaner and whiter than many other soaps which, unlike Oxydol, fail to get out that last possible trace of stubborn dirt and grime!

White and Bright Wash After Wash! Soaps often leave tiny discoloring particles caused by dirt in the clothes and the "hardness" of the water. These stick in the clothes and turn gray or yellow under ironing heat. But Oxydol combats "dirty grayness"—actually helps prevent "dirty grayness" from forming in clothes!

New "Hustle-Bubble" Suds Lift Dirt Out! Oxydol's new "Hustle-Bubble" suds are so active they lift dirt out. All your white things—except for unusual stains—come so clean they're White Without Bleaching. Sparkling white!

So Safe for Colors, Too! And Oxydol is so safe—safe for wash colors, rayons and your own precious hands. Its rich, safe suds wash your colored clothes so clean they fairly sparkle!

Next washday use Oxydol—and enjoy a wash so clean it's actually White, Without Bleaching!

PRIME MINISTER LAUDS SPIRIT OF COUNTY FAIR

Claims Fair Represents Interdependent Prosperity of the Community

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Williamstown, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—The spirit of the Canadian country fair must be extended internationally if this "beaten old world" is to survive, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said here yesterday during a visit to Ontario's oldest fall fair.

Because the country fair represented the interdepend prosperity of the community, it represented unity in diversity and a friendly display and appreciation of the effort of good neighbors.

It was thus an example to all men of goodwill and placed new emphasis on the urgent fact that prosperity and peace were indivisible at home and throughout the world.

Behind kilted pipers, Mr. King marched into the fairground, which is in the heart of his Glengarry parliamentary riding. Smiling, he acknowledged rounds of applause. At the centre of the soggy fairground, he mounted the rear of a feed truck and delivered his speech.

Looking down at a row of farm boys, Mr. King asked them to continue a pride in their Canadian inheritance but also to look broadly at the world and realize its urgent problems were theirs. "Recognize your general interest, not your specific interest," he said.

The lesson of this knowledge would result in youth of one country learning to live together in peace with the youth of other countries.

Must Help Neighbors.

These were days when war could be brought close to Canada's own doorstep. The logical way to prevent this was to nurture the community of interest between Allies and Canadians. The prosperity of Canada's neighbors meant her own prosperity in as much as they were able to buy her products. It was thus necessary and urgent for remunerative markets to Canada. Canadians to help re-establishing the prosperity of their Allies, who in turn would be able to open up remunerative markets to Canada.

He spoke of the mutual interests of Canada and her Allies and in this connection said that one of the nearest neighbors was Russia. The two countries had mutual problems and "she (Russia) should be able to help us and we should be able to help Russia in a solution." This was necessary if both countries were to prosper.

Prosperity had its roots in goodwill, a quality much in evidence at a Canadian country fair. Goodwill must be cultivated and broadened in Canadian minds so that it embraced the world.

Cultivate Goodwill.

"Further the cultivation of goodwill in all your everyday relationships and peace will follow prosperity throughout the world," Mr. King advised.

About 5,000 persons stood around in mire, churned up by farm truckks arriving in heavy rains of the last few days, to listen to the speech.

The crowd was interspersed with bright plaids of this predominently Scottish riding and the first rows of the audience were made up of the 100 young calf club members who laughingly enjoyed the Prime Minister's slip of the tongue when he referred to the picturesque little village as "Williamsburg" instead of Williamstown. But he covered up fast and the youngsters applauded as he grinned at their promptings.

Somebody mentioned it was hard luck that the cheese factory had burned the other day and the Prime Minister climbed back onto the truck, waving a paper aloft, shouted that he had just remembered he had brought from Ottawa the papers which would see early rebuilding of the cheese plant.

Ten Persons Killed in Riot

Bombay, Sept. 27 (CP)—Ten persons were killed and 45 injured in a three-hour battle last night between Hindus and Moslems.

The disturbance, Bombay's most severe since 1940, came as an outgrowth of political friction between the two groups. The clashes between bands armed with knives and sticks occurred near Golpitha, the Round Temple, which has been the scene of bloody communal riots in the past.

There were no further serious outbreaks this morning, but a car passing near the scene of one of last night's big battles was stoned by the crowd.

The Bombay Police Commissioner today issued an order banning the assembly of more than five persons in the streets. The order also gave the warning that a curfew would be imposed if necessary.

A number of arrests have been made.

BLAMES JUVENILE GANG

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 27. (CP)—Police said they believed a juvenile gang responsible for an undetermined number of burglaries was broken up Tuesday, when three 15-year-old boys were sentenced to training school for indefinite terms. Two of the youths pleaded guilty to five charges of breaking and entering and the third to three charges.

MacKENZIE'S COLUMN

Visit of Hirohito to Gen. MacArthur Among Major Events of New Era

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

Emperor Hirohito's descent from his throne to present himself before Supreme Commander MacArthur — in effect an act of submission by a defeated head of state to his conqueror — ranks among the major events which are ushering in the new world era.

This development may well serve to break the spell of imperial mysticism and omnipotence under which the Japanese have been ruled for 2,600 years by Mikados to whom they have attributed divinity. It may herald the advent of rule by the people.

It's easy to believe that this gesture of submission may do much to shock medieval Japan out of its trance. Certainly it may be expected to spur current talk of possible abdication by the Mikado, or at least his abandonment of temporal power to make way for the inauguration of a popular form of government. This need not disturb his position as spiritual head—if the people want him.

Allied Progress in Consolidating.

Along with this dramatic turn of events we have other indications of Allied progress in consolidating the victory over Germany and Japan. The simultaneous actions of Gens. MacArthur and Eisenhower in tightening up their occupation controls provide significant answers to recent sharp criticism that the aggressor nations are being given too soft a peace.

The developments in both cases are aimed at speeding up attainment of the chief Allied war aims. These were to render the enemy utterly impotent militarily, and at the same time to destroy the militaristic mentality which, in the case of Germany, encompassed Hitlerism. Physical defeat has been achieved, but the more difficult moral reform cannot be carried out until the two peoples have been made to understand that their countries have been smashed.

Seventh Place Cincinnati Can Decide National League Pennant Race in Last Two Days

Chicago Needs Three Wins to Absolutely Clinch the Flag

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

Cincinnati's forlorn Reds, a seventh-place ball club that never was a factor in the National League race, probably will decide the pennant duel between Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals.

Two games with the Rhinelanders today mean the difference between an early clinching or a last-day finish for Charley Grimm's Bruins. Three Saturday and Sunday dates with the pesky Reds hold the key to Billy Southworth's hopes for a fourth straight flag.

If the bedraggled Bruins can maintain their spell over Cincinnati and knock them off twice today, they would need only one more victory to be sure of a tie even if St. Louis downs Pittsburgh tonight and sweeps its final three from the Reds.

But if the brow-beaten Cincys should kick over the traces and flatten the Cubs twice while the Cards whip the Buccos, Chicago's 1 1-2-game lead would meet into an all-even tie in games won and lost.

Grimm has protested yesterday's 11-6 loss to St. Louis on the grounds that one umpire (Babe Pinelli) wasn't looking and another (Butch Henline) said he refused to change his mind despite an official reversal by umpire-in-chief Dusty Boggess, changing a double play into a St. Louis base hit.

After Whitey Kurowski opened the seventh inning with a single, Ray Sanders drove a fly deep into right field that Bill Nicholson apparently caught as he hit the wall, dropped and caught again on the rebound. Kurowski had waited half way to second, to see whether the ball would be caught and then sped to second, waving Sanders back to first. Nicholson whipped the ball to second base.

An original decision ruled a double play, prompting a Cardinal protest, and a reversal gave Sanders a hit and placed both men on base, resulting in a long argument by the cubs finally climaxed by Grimm's official protest.

St. Louis went on from there to cement a 6-5 lead with five more runs as the Cubs fell apart and finally picked up an easy 11-6 verdict over the demoralized leaders. Ken Burkhardt who replaced Red Barrett in the fourth was the victor over Claude Passeau.

Detroit polished off its home business for the year by splitting a pair with Cleveland, winning 11-0 behind Hal Newhouser, and losing 3-2 to Steve Gromek, an old Detroit boy.

By ALLAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Writer.)

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Everywhere he goes, Wilfred (Bucko) McDonald gets the once-over-lightly from people who knew him when. There's no bowing or scraping for the new Liberal member of parliament who represents Parry Sound. On a recent visit to North Bay, for instance, Bucko's dignity was accorded scant respect by Ab Demarco, a team-mate in his hockey days with New York Rangers.

Always a swift man in the knife-and-fork league, Bucko attacked lavish helpings of steak and spaghetti with such uninhibited relish that Demarco, comparing his own svelte waistline to Bucko's girth, sighed audibly.

"Bucko, I'm beginning to think you're in the right league," said Demarco. "You don't have to train and what's more, they can't send you down in the minors for at least four years!"

Spectacular passing by Royal Copeland of Toronto Argonauts, Bill Stukus of Toronto Indians and Bobbs Porter of Toronto Balmy Beach prompted Charlie (Le Droit, Ottawa) Daoust to suggest a new individual point system for football.

"I would like to see in 1946 a system similar to hockey," says Charlie. "Truly, why not award an assist, at least one point to the lad tossing the ball for those touchdowns?"

As it stands now, credit for the touchdown—five points—goes to the gent who gathers in the pay-off toss.

For almost a decade now, the Smith family from Sudbury has haunted fans of St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey Association. Nakina, first to don a Flyer uniform, stayed around so long he almost became a fixture with the fans. Brother Winkie made it two Smiths a few years later and five years ago St. Louis made it three of a kind when young Carlo joined the team.

Things are different this year at the St. Louis training camp in Port Arthur. There's not a single Smith left. Winkie is the property of Detroit Red Wings; Nakina and Carlo are reported in California.

Everybody knows Frick and Frack, the comedy team of the fancy skating world. So it's interesting to learn from Ottawa that Frack is retiring temporarily, and that his place will be taken by Frankie Sawers, fancy skating star from the capital. Frankie, now 17, started his ice career on Ottawa public rinks at six and later joined the Minto Skating Club.

Latta Defeats Cannifton In League Final

(Contributed)

Playing on the Alemite diamond last Saturday the South Hastings baseball league wound up the regular season's playoffs with the Latta team led by Doc. Empson nosing out the Cannifton Combines under the coaching of Jack Carson by a 12-11 score.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Latta's fireball hurler, Joe Marsh and Lorne Marsh shading his rival in strike-outs with 14 to Jarrel's 5.

It was a see-saw battle in the early stages with Cannifton scoring two in the first with Latta getting one; Latta went to the front in the second scoring two on a walk to Parks, and hits by Gifford and Marsh.

Both pitchers bore down and no scoring resulted until the sixth when Latta went on a scoring spree with a walk to Parks; Clayton Hall hit by the pitcher; followed by hits by Empson, Colden, Gifford and Marsh resulting in 5 runs. Cannifton scored 2 in their half, with hits by Thompson, Lawrenson, Kingston and a walk to Yorke.

Latta added three in the seventh with hits by Parks, Hart, Marsh and Carleton.

Not to be outdone Cannifton added two in the eighth with a walk to Thompson followed by a home run by John Lawrenson. Latta added one more in their half with a double by Empson followed by a sharp single by Colden scoring Empson.

Cannifton made a desperate effort in the ninth with Marsh weakening with hits by Lawrenson, Jarrel and Yorke and walks to Thompson and Guay, but with the winning run on the bases and two out Marsh forced J. Lawrenson to lift a high foul in the air and Marsh won his own game making the catch.

For Latta Colden with a triple and a double, followed by doubles by Gifford, Marsh and Empson with singles by Parks, Hart, Bailey and Carleton led their team.

J. Lawrenson with a home run led the Cannifton team with hits by Carson, Farrel, Yorke and Kingston aiding their cause.

This concluded a season which saw the old South Hastings league being revived after being idle since 1941 with good interest being displayed by players and spectators.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP) — A shoe repairing firm on the 12th floor of a strike-bound building without elevator service went to great lengths to serve its customers. A 200-foot length of rope was used to lower baskets of shoes to the street when customers telephoned that they were below.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Doc Empson's Latta nine wound up the season in a blaze of baseball glory when they captured the South Hastings Baseball League title by defeating the Cannifton Combines by a 12-11 score. . . . The game was a see-saw affair with both pitchers, Joe Marsh for Latta and Cannifton's Lorne Jarrel, being nicked for plenty of hits. . . . Latta exploded five runs in the 6th but the opposition whittled away at the lead and nearly copped the pastime. . . . The league has been a successful one with a fine brand of the popular pastime being dished up to the fans by all four teams in the loop. . . . The "I-told-you-so" Department: Just as was predicted Secretary Bill Snyder ups and orders the third and deciding game of the Junior Ontario Baseball Championship between Dresden and Belleville Juniors to be played in Hamilton on Saturday, the day Columbian Squires meet that city's representatives in the first game of the O.A.S.A. junior finals. . . . The baseball game is scheduled for Scott's Stadium, Cannon Street, Hamilton, at 2 o'clock sharp. . . . The softball tilt starts a couple of hours later. . . . Well, it's an ill wind that doesn't dry somebody's washing and it might be that the kids come home with one championship and the first third of another beneath their respective baseball and softball belts. . . . The gang will leave about eight or nine o'clock Saturday yawning . . . and here's the best of luck. . . . Speedy St. Louis' baseballers know they have a game of baseball on their hands and will have to go all out to knock off the Dresden team which has an edge in experience on the local beardless diamondeers. . . . But they howl, "We did it before and we can, etc. . . . Ken Pritchard of the Sentinel Star wants the Belleville junior baseball squad to cross bats with the Cobourg juveniles who were recently eliminated by a Toronto juvenile baseball team who were relics of "Superman" . . . He wanted the game for Saturday but other minor details such as playing off with the Dresden team interfered. . . . However, Speedy expects to get in touch with the Cobourg team next week.

So you think that the 1945 pennant races are the closest and the most furious in baseball history, says a New York baseball writer. They've been quite exciting, of course, but the grand-pappy of all pennant races was that of 1908 production when the American League championship was settled on the final day of the campaign and the National League title was determined in the only post-season play-off ever held. The eventual winners were—is there any significance to this?—the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs.

However, there is one point that should not be misunderstood. The term "playoff" didn't mean that the Cubs and Giants had finished the year all even, needing an extra or 155th contest to round out the 154 games of the regular season's competition. Rather this was a replay of that famous fray between the two bitter rivals which was highlighted by Fred Merkle's never-to-be-forgotten failure to touch second base.

You remember the incident, don't you? However, it will be briefly recounted here for the benefit of late-comers. On Sept. 23, 1908, Christy Mathewson of the Giants was locked in a titanic pitching duel with Jack Pfeister of the Cubs at the Polo Grounds. The teams were tied at 1-all with two out in the ninth. Moose McCormick was on third and Merkle was on first when Al Bridwell singled cleanly.

The Moose trotted home with what apparently was the winning run. Merkle ran part way to second, saw that the run was in and followed the custom of the day by wheeling off the base-paths and heading for the clubhouse, second base untouched. Milling thousands swarmed on the field as the alert Johnny Evers called for the ball, stepped on the bag and insisted it was a force-out. Umpire Hank O'Day so called it and a hasty meeting of the National League directors that night ordered the game re-played at the season's end.

What Ball Was Used?

To this very day Giant old-timers hold most emphatically that Iron Man McGinnity, sensing what was coming, wrested the ball away from Joe Tinker and hurled it over the grandstand. They still claim that it was a Cub batting practice ball which was substituted for a very illegal putout. It doesn't matter much now. The records of that year are all locked up and the Cubs officially turned back the Giants in the post-season battle that meant the championship.

But there even is a story behind that story. When the statisticians sorted out the contending teams they found that the Cubs had won 99 and lost 55, while the Giants and the Pirates were deadlocked for second with 98 and 56. But let's whirl back the clock to the final game of the regular campaign between the Pirates and the Cubs.

At one stage in that fray Pittsburgh filled the bases and Ed Abbaticchio, the powerfully built second baseman, strode up to the plate. He hit the ball a county mile into the left-field bleachers near the foul line. The Pirates were exultant. In those days four runs were all any pitcher needed, and that grand-slam homer apparently did the trick.

"Foul ball," intoned Hank O'Day. It's odd, isn't it, what an important figure that crack umpire was to be in the disposition of the 1908 pennant race. Pittsburgh stormed and protested—with the usual results. Those four Pirate runs nullified, Chicago went on to win the game.

Eyewitness.

The aftermath of the abortive homer came the following winter. A bleacher fan, feminine gender, sued the Cubs for damages. She claimed that Abbaticchio's drive had struck her and injured more than her feelings. On the witness stand and under oath she swore solemnly that she was sitting in fair territory.

If the home run had been allowed and Pittsburgh had won the game, the Pirates and not the Cubs would have faced Detroit in the world series.

How do you suppose the Tigers made the classic in the first place? With a week of the season to go Detroit had a half game lead on Cleveland and a game and a half on Chicago. While the Tigers were bowling over the Browns the Indians and the White Sox were engaged in one of the most extraordinary battles in baseball annals.

That indefatigable workhorse, Big Ed Walsh, was on the hill for the Sox and he came through with one of his usual superior efforts. He pitched a glittering four-hitter and fanned fifteen. Ordinarily that would have been more than enough, except that this was no ordinary affair. Big Ed's mound rival was Addie Joss, who seized the occasion to pitch a perfect game for a 1-0 victory.

The three contending teams were at it, hammer-and-tongs, nip-and-tuck, until they came up to the final day of the season with Detroit a feeble half game in front of the other two. Then up stepped Wild Bill Donovan of the Tigers to spin a two-hitter against the Sox for the clincher.

Past pennant races have had such remarkable incidents as the Cubs of 1935 winning twenty-one straight games in a homestretch drive and nailing down the flag with the twenty-first victory. They even had the more astounding exploit of the Giants of 1916, who started in fourth place, ripped off twenty-six consecutive triumphs—and stayed in fourth place.

A peculiar game, baseball. Eh, wot?

LESSON NO. 792
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Clever defence is usually spectacular. As a rule, it depends on some odd line of attack. Or it may take a lucky guess. So, when it works, there is some thrill in the result.

The same kind of a play on any other hand would look silly. It might be the very thing that should not be done. Like the case that comes up in this deal from a World Olympic match:

NORTH
♠9 7 4
♥A K 9 7 5 3
♦K 8 4
♣7

WEST
♠5
♥J 8 4
♦9 6
♣A K Q J 8 4 2

EAST
♠K Q J 10 5 3
♥Q 10 6
♦J 10 3
♣10

SOUTH
♠A 8 2
♥2
♦A Q 7 5 2
♣9 8 5 3

West and east bid clubs and spades. North and south bid diamonds. The contract finally ends at five diamonds with south as declarer and west starts with the opening lead of his club king.

After taking the first trick with the king, west leads the ace of clubs which is trumped by dummy with the four of diamonds. East can easily overtrump with the ten of diamonds.

In an ordinary bridge game, almost any east player might be coaxed into taking that handy trick. But in a World Olympic match, you are expected to be a little super.

You are expected to foresee what part you may play in an attempt to defeat the contract. You must be able to anticipate when it may be advisable to refuse to accept a seemingly cheap trick.

A study of dummy will indicate that declarer may take a flock of tricks with dummy hearts. To block that, dummy must be prevented from keeping an entry after the hearts are established.

The important future entry to dummy is the trump king. If east does not shorten his own three trumps, they could later keep dummy from staying in the lead.

So, east should hang tough with his three trumps. It will keep dummy from getting more than two heart tricks. As a result, south must lose tricks in the black suits.

When you meet it in slow motion, this holdup is really clever. Meet it some dark night in a bridge game and you will probably need more than a lantern to find it.

Or you probably know a couple of partners who would.

ROYALS SMARTING FROM 7-2 DEFEAT BY NEWARK BEARS

Ray Hathaway Falls to Last Route Being Pounded for Six Runs in Sojourn

Montreal, Sept. 27 (CP)—Still smarting from the 7-2 defeat handed them last night by Bill Meyer's Newark Bears, Montreal Royals will take on the second game of the best-of-seven series for the Governors' Cup tonight at Delormier stadium with 25-game winner Jean Pierre Roy on the mound.

Ray Hathaway fell down on the job last night and was yanked by Manager Bruno Betzel in the fourth inning after Newark had reached him for six runs. Tulsa Tom Warren took over and held Bears scoreless until the ninth when they sent their final run across on a Montreal error.

Manager Bill Meyer will rest up righthander Frank Hiller who went the route for Bears last night and send in Karl Drews to oppose Roy. Hiller was in trouble throughout the game and was in some tight situations Royals left 13 men stranded on base. He walked nine men while Hathaway and Warren together gave but five bases on balls, Warren one and Hathaway four. The Newark hurler struck out six, Hathaway five and Warren four.

A crowd of 19,000 saw Royals defeated in the series inaugural. Centrefielder Johnny Corriden was down with an attack of grippe and it is doubtful whether he will be ready for the game tonight. Kermit Kitman, meanwhile, has taken over his duties.

For a time it looked as though Montreal had a fighting chance in the bottom half of the ninth. Tom Warren, Kermit Kitman and Phil Weintraub filled the bases for Royals with two out and Al Todd up. The fans were tense and an agonizing cry rose from the crowd as Todd popped a fly to centrefielder Bill Rabe leaving the three men stranded on base.

REPORT 1,700 POUNDS MEAT WASTED IN NORTH BAY

North Bay, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP)—More than 1,700 pounds of meat were wasted in North Bay last week, it was stated at a meeting of the North Bay and District Retail Meat and Grocery Association, Tuesday night.

Merchants found the meat wastage "regrettable, in view of the fact that Canada is trying to save meat". They attributed the loss to the "direct result of an improperly planned rationing program".

Meat dealers attending the meeting said any decision to strike in protest of rationing would be withheld until exchange views with other associations.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Looking at the National League race by telescope, this dept. would not be surprised now to see the pennant go to the Cardinals in spite of their tendency to let down after a couple of tough games. . . That blowup the Cubs staged in the seventh inning yesterday was the biggest of its kind since the recent Florida hurricane and teams don't recover quickly from that sort of thing. . . It is quite posible that the Pirates now will proceed to belt the daylights out of Chicago and that the Cards will win enough games, with the aid of the undoubted lift they got from yesterday's triumph, to barge into their fourth straight World Series. . . But the Cubs still have that game and a half lead and, if you recall, right after the Cards knocked off their most important rivals about a month ago, they went out and blew the Duke to Pittsburgh.

Take Your Choice.

(Looking for the best among the World Series catching candidates.)

Paul Richards, Tigers—when he quit a minor league managerial job to join the Tigers, Richards was supposed to be more coach than player. He's been both and then some, earning credit for the Detroit pitching staff's success. . . . Paul Gillespie and Mickey Livingston, Cubs—Gillespie hit a home run his first time up in the National League and still is hitting; Livingston once hit his head against the dugout roof chasing a foul at Springfield, Mass. . . Ken O'Dea and Del Rice, Cardinals—O'Dea became a "regular" after ten years' effort when Walker Cooper went into the Navy; sciatica has made him an irregular lately with Rice, who joined the Cards late last season, doing most of the work.

TAXI DRIVER ROBBED OF MONEY AND CAR

Toronto, Sept. 27. (CP)—A lone gunman Wednesday night robbed Edgar Fevreau, 31-year-old taxicab driver of $9 and then stole the vehicle. The bandit apparently picked up a companion and then drove past the taxi-cab office where the automobile was recognized by a dispatcher.

The dispatcher followed in another taxi-cab but the bandit escaped in the traffic.

ATHLETICS STRESS YOUTH AND SPEED FOR MANN CUP

Team Will Leave for Vancouver on Sunday to Defend Canadian Laurels

St. Catharines, Sept. 27 —(CP)—The accent is on youth and speed in the 1945 edition of the St. Catharines Athletics who leave Sunday for Vancouver in quest of their fifth Dominion lacrosse championship in eight years.

The "Cleverly Clan," so named after Coach George Cleverly and in tribute to the stick-handling wizardry he has developed, will bank on the team which won the Ontario Lacrosse Association title in their defence of the historic Mann Cup which they won last year from New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Veterans of the 1944 championship team on the present club include Bill Whitaker, Frank Madsen, Sid Wright, Cars Myers, Vern Whitely, Doug Cove, Norm MacDonald and Punk Morton.

The top rookie is 16-year-old Gerry Fitzgerald, a tricky 170-pound ball hawk and running shot artist who played juvenile lacrosse last season. He was one of the best performers in the O.L.A. this season. Other newcomers include Stu Scott, Jack Kusmaski, Tony Capula, Bucko LaChance and Nit O'Hearn.

Some of the 16 members of the Athletics who joined the armed services during the war have come back to join the team. Included are Doug. Favell, Bill Mackie and Spark Urquhart from the navy, Pat Smith from the paratroop battalion, Tommy Madsen, Doug Garriock, Bobby Thorpe and George Scott from the army. Scott was a prisoner of war for three years. Jimmy McMahon came back from the navy, played 12 games and now is back at his naval base for discharge. Billy Nelson and Jack Gatecliff are R.C.A.F. veterans.

Whether the Athletics are as strong as last year is an open question. They had more trouble winning the O.L.A. title than last year, finishing in second place and then eliminating the Brampton - Lakeshore Combines 4-2 in a best-of-seven play-off series. Whitaker in goal is still the top netminder in the East but his front men possibly do not rank as high as in former years due to absentees and retirement of veteran players.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Shorty Judge and Skinny Martin just walking along, Shorty and Skinny walking loose and natural and me walking careful on account of my shoes still being shined from yesterday when I went downtown with ma, and Skinny said, Oh boy, look, that'll be swell to kick.

Meaning a empty tin can, and him and Shorty started to take turns kicking it in front of them, Shorty saying, What's a matter, Benny, aint you going to get in it?

Nothing doing, not with this good shoeshine, no sir, I should say not, this shine took me about 10 minutes to put on this good, I said, and Skinny said, This is fun, you dont know what you're missing.

And they started to have a contest who could kick it the straightest, me thinking, Heck, darn this shine. And I said, I bet if it wasn't for this shoeshine I'd show you how to kick it straight as a B-line.

That's what you say, Skinny said, and Shorty said, Sure, that's what he says.

And they kept on kicking the can and laughing and arguing, and I thought, Why the heck did I have to go and give myself such a special exter two-day shine?

Benny sure is missing a lot of fun, aint he, Skinny? Shorty said, and Skinny said, He'll probably never even know how much he's missing and I thought, Aw, gosh shang this shine, rats on the luck, darn it all.

Which just then I tripped and made a big scrape on one shoe, spoiling the whole effect of both and being one of the biggest reliefs I ever felt, and Skinny and Shorty scraped their shoes on top of mine for still more relief, and I got in the kicking game and had some of the most fun I've had all week.

Moose McCready Turns on Hall And Body-Slams Californian Into Submission to Win Bout

Sirois and Katan Draw While Stack Disqualified in Dunlop Match

Earl "Moose" McCready stood just as much of the arm twisting antics and other mayhem-like mat calisthenics of Dr. Len Hall, the Californian calithumpian at the Hume Arena Wednesday night, then turned slightly berserk and tossed the sunny state pharmacist in, around and outside the ring to win the third and deciding fall of the main bout.

Hall nailed the "Moose" for the first fall with a punishing armlock but McCready came back strongly in the second go to administer the same punishment and the cut-up from California bit the wrestling dust after sixteen minutes of slam-bang milling.

They came out strongly in the third fall with the "Moose's" arm apparently recovered from the corkscrew effects of the Doc subjected that member to. Hall again nailed the "Moose's" flipper and had the faithful screaming for his blood as the lad from Aurora grimaced with pain. Then things began to happen.

The erstwhile clean scientific McCready apparently saw a slightly scarlet haze before his eyes and with the crowd shouting its approval turned on the husky Hall and hoisted him high several times for body slams and finally wound up by throwing him out of the ring.

Screams Disapproval.

Hall screamed his disapproval and again secured the punishing arm-lock. He had the Moose on the mat, seemingly ready to say "uncle" when McCready jerked himself clear. It was a McCready that was different to the usually good-natured Moose. He tore into the Doc like a half-starved cat into a bowl of milk and literally hurled him out of the ring. Hall came back and McCready, not to be denied used him like a basketball and body-slammed him into submission.

Walter Sirois was anything but delighted when Referee Cliff Fox raised the right flipper of John "Fingers" Katan in victory after the pair had battled to a thirty-minute draw in the semi-final. Both wrestlers mixed things during the bout with the Krafty Katan using practically all of his bay of thicks. At that Sirois was equally cunning and the result was a half-hour of aggressive milling and a good appetizer for the main go.

Nearly Stole Show.

The opener nearly stole the show as far as novelty was concerned. Phil Stack, Bowmanville's wrestling pride was disqualified after turning Al Bunny Dunlop's secret weapon on its originator with the assistance of an ardent ringside fan.

It seems the estimable Bunny being sorely beset had resorted (secretly) to the aid of a common shoelace. He surreptitiously extracted it from a pocket hidden inside his trunks and was using it in a mere playful mood as a "garrote" or a thing which, if pulled tight around the Adam's apple usually cuts off the victim's breathing. Which was O.K. from some people's viewpoint especially the honorable Bunny, but not so delightful from the Stack angle.

Fan is no Help.

Just then, a fan, who later was given an assist in the official scorebook, purloined the lace from the Dunlopian trunks and slipped it to Stack, who was admiring Bunny's torso from outside the ropes. Stack seized the miniature rope slipped it deftly around the Dunlop jugular vein and proceeded to drag him around the ring like a pup playing with a cushion. Now, this being very unorthodox and not quite up to wrestling standards according to one, Fox, the Bowmanville lad was given the thumb and sent to the showers with the ignominy of disqualification hanging over his head. It was good clean fun and the crowd howled its approval.

Detroit Tigers Determined To Avoid Collapse

By FRANK ENESSON

Detroit, Sept. 27 —(AP)— For the second straight year the American League pennant race was headed right down to the wire today with Detroit Tigers determined to avoid a collapse similar to that of 1944 when they lost the flag to St. Louis Browns on the final day of the season.

Detroit, after splitting yesterday's twin bill with Cleveland, needed to win just one of its final two games Saturday and Sunday at St. Louis to edge out Washington for the championship.

"We're a lot better off than the Senators," Tiger Manager Steve O'Neill asserted. "We're sure of nothing worse than a tie now and Washington has to sweat it out hoping we'll lose two games.

"We certainly ought to be able to win one of those two at St. Louis. It wouldn't be right for a club to lose two straight pennants that close."

If St. Louis should knock off the leaders twice, Detroit and Washington would meet in a single game playoff for the pennant Monday.

The Tigers, making certain of at least a tie with the Senators who finished their season last Sunday, teed off on speed-baller Allie Reynolds with a 13-hit assault, six of them for extra bases, in whitewashing Cleveland 11-0 in yesterday's first game but couldn't hold a 2-0 lead and dropped the nightcap 3-2.

BABY FALLS FROM SECOND STORY WINDOW, SURVIVES

Brantford, Ont., Sept. 27. (CP) To fall from a second storey window to the ground and survive was the experience yesterday of Edward Labadie, 18-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edrick Labadie. The baby, momentarily left unattended at his home, succeeded in climbing to the sill of the open window near where he was playing, overbalanced himself, and hurtled to the ground.

WOULD KEEP GERMAN PRISONERS OF WAR

Brantford, Sept. 27. (CP)—The Ontario Sugar Beet Growers Association has petitioned Ottawa to keep German prisoners of war in this area throughout the beet harvest season, it was announced. While no information has yet been received from the government as to plans for the employment of the Germans following the harvesting of the tomatoes crop, growers are anxious that they should not be removed to northern bush areas or to other work project until the Kent area beet crop is harvested.

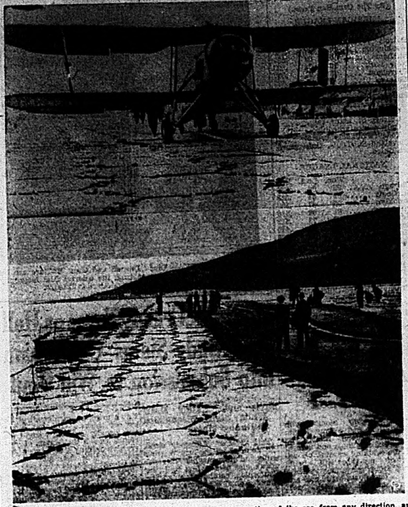
HERE IS THE "LILY," BRITISH PORTABLE SEADROME



Just released from the British secret list is the "Lily," portable seadrome invented by R. M. Hamilton, who was a Royal Navy petty officer at the start of the war. It consists of a number of buoyancy cans with hexagonal surfaces so linked together that they can give, in a controlled manner, to the motion of the sea from any direction, and yet remain sufficiently rigid to take the weight of heavy aircraft. A Swordfish (above) lands on the "Lily" leaving a depression on the surface. The "Lily" undulates with the waves (lower photo) as a motor launch passes at high speed.

Germans Responsible for Shooting 50 R.A.F. Officers After Escape Likely Brought to Justice Soon

With British Army of Rhine, Herford, Germany, Sept. 27—(Reuters) — Allied investigators said they are confident that the Germans responsible for the shooting of 50 R.A.F. officers following a mass escape from a German prison camp in March, 1944, will be brought to justice soon.

Six Canadian and 44 other Empire Airmen lost their lives as a result of the escape attempt, from Stalag Luft three, near Dresden. Seventy-six officers participatted in the break.

A team of special investigators from the R.A.F. Police Special Investigation Branch has already interrogated many suspects and formed the conclusion that the local camp guard was not primarily responsible, since most of the shootings were carried out summarily when the escapees were recaptured.

Canadian Units On Nieuw Amsterdam

Ottawa, Sept. 27—(CP)—Five infantry battalions of the 1st Canadian divisional group are aboard the troopship Nieuw Amsterdam which has sailed from the United Kingdom and is expected to arrive at Halifax about Sept. 29, Defence Headquarters announced yesterday.

More than 6,000 Canadian troops are aboard the vessel.

The infantry battalions are the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec Royal Canadian Regiment of London, Ont., Saskatchewan Light Infantry (MG) of Saskatoon, Carleton and York Regiment of Fredericton and 48th Highlanders of Toronto.

Also aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam are a number of field and anti-tank batteries and engineering companies of the 1st Divisional Group. These, and their destinations, include:

UNION OF CHURCHES 'IS PERPETUAL FACT'

Toronto, Sept. 27. (CP) — The union of Christian churches is "a perpetual fact" and although Christians may differ in government, ritual and superficial points of faith, all must recognize that they are brothers. Rev. William Barclay of Hamilton, former moderator of the Presbyterian Church, told the opening service of the second annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Churches.

SUGAR BEET GROWERS TO MEET

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 27 —(CP) —A delegation of the Canadian Sugar Beet Growers Association will meet with S. R. Noble, Federal Sugar Controller in Montreal, on Oct. 8 when, backed by producer organizations across the Dominion, they will demand definite guarantees on prices and marketing arrangements for the 1945 sugar beet crop, it was announced.

Cow Startles Cops, Firemen Lassoo Her, Tow Her Across Canal

Welland, Ont., 27. (CP)—Tied up at the rear of Welland City Police station yesterday was an Ayrshire cow which startled two constables at two a.m., when it trotted off the Main Street Canal bridge and turned south on King St. The constables chased the cow over backyards and lawn bowling greens at Merritt Park, but it eluded them by jumping into the canal and swimming to the opposite bank.

Police then enlisted the aid of firemen, who procured a boat and rowed to the other side of the canal. They fixed a rope around its horns and towed it back to the eastern bank. It collapsed when hauled ashore, but soon revived and was conveyed to the police station.

Charges Campaign Of Terror Waged

By WILLIAM B. KING

Sofia, Sept. 27. (AP)—Nikola Dimitrov Petkov charged yesterday that a campaign of terror opposing Bulgaria's fatherland opposing Bulgaria's fatherhand Front government.

The 52-year-old Agrarian leader waved a thick sheaf of what he described as documentary evidence of beatings and killings of persons attempting to organize politically against the government.

Interviewed at his home, Petkov declared: "I have given copies to the prime minister and regents and tomorrow I will start publishing them in my newspaper."

He demanded the installation of a non-communist minister of Interior and declared the opposition parties would continue to refuse to participate in the coming elections unless the demand was accepted. The minister of the Interior controls the police.

INHALATOR REVIVES MAN AFTER HOUR

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Becoming colors dramatize a Woman.

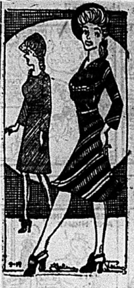
She who has a true appreciation of line and color will find the good-looks road an easy one to travel. A rich, luscious hue thrills her as does good music. Dress problems appear to solve themselves. She will intuitively select the frock, coat or chapeau that looks as if it were especially designed for her. The lucky girl!

Some children seem to be born with this gift, strangely enough; they are impressed with the color of certain flowers, remember them, love them when they are grown. Many women have cultivated this sense, and have enjoyed doing so. A drab little moth of a girl has suddenly become a colored butterfly. You've seen it happen, time and again, and so have I. The answer is that an established color-fear has been finally overcome.

Drabs—dull browns and greys—were her selections. Then, one day, she took the plunge and bought herself a gay frock, maybe a red one, or a combination of colors. She boosted her spirits, created a more vivid personality. It is not doing right by oneself to wear dismal draperies. It's not fair to the members of one's family. Clothes have a psychological effect upon one's thoughts and emotions.

The selection of becoming colors will ever remain an individual problem. You must have the seeing eye, keen mind, keep right on learning more and more on the subject.

There are women who look stunning in black, while others are submerged and thrown into the shadow of gloom when they wear it. It is favorable to few brunettes, but will bring out the cameo loveliness of a beauteous blonde or redhead.



A drab little moth has suddenly become a colorful butterfly

When selecting a color, note the effect upon the eyes, the complexion, the hair and the figure. Yes lady, that is a large order, we agree. You will find that certain shades will drain the natural coloring from the skin; that is particularly true of steel-grey.

It is no good to flatter the complexion and reveal hip spread, as happens when faint pastel colors are worn. Dark tones seem to delete poundage; white reveals it.

There are types to whom quaint, old-fashioned fabrics are becoming; they impart pictorial piquancy. Others are at their best in dashing materials, brightened with color. It is plainly evident that character and type must be taken into consideration when planning a wardrobe.

It's good fun finding out just what streaks of the rainbow one should pick out. If one has a pale, white skin, one should seek shades that make it more ruddy—faint rose, delicate blues, some shades of green. Light colors will increase the richness of the skin; dark ones will subdue it. In nearly all cases, cream tones are better than white when worn close to the face.

Dry Skin Needs Lubrication

Use Make-up With an Oily Base if Your Face is Dry.

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOME complexion ills are transients, they come and go. But the dry skin appears to settle down for a life-long engagement. Hot winds and sunshine during the silly season make it even drier. During the winter, it is bent on flaking.

The victim of this condition finds little comfort in the powder pad. She already has the dull finish and powder just rumples the surface. Everything seems to make it mad.

Proper Treatment

The proper treatment consists of frequent lubrications. One cannot use too much cream or oil to combat the shedding of skin scales. Sometimes it is necessary to dispense with soap altogether, substituting a cleansing meal.

One can find these solacements at cosmetic counters. Moisten the wash cloth, sprinkle the meal on it—it is a good idea to keep the meal in a large glass shaker—and go over the flesh lightly.

Tepid water is to be preferred to hot or cold, both of which may prove to be irritating. After the face washing, rinse well, apply a cream. The longer the cream remains on, the better. Force as much into the flesh as possible by tapping and patting. Keep on using more, as the emollient disappears.

A thin cream will prove more effective than one of heavy consistency in which solids like wax and spermaceti may be incorporated. Some beauticians believe that olive oil serves very well, thought most women would prefer a perfumed product.

Cause of Dryness

The cause of the dry skin is inactivity of the sabaceous glands that were designed for the purpose of keeping the epidermal coat lubricated. Just why they go out of business nobody knows. It is believed that more fat in the diet is helpful.

If the skin has a phobia of soap, do a little experimenting, trying out one soap after another. Even the best ones do not seem suitable for all complexions.

The Marry Go Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Long Shots

Nothing else makes a man feel quite so "married", at this time of year, as the consciousness that he smells of camphor and mothballs.

I have found that the safest way to discuss the late war, lend-lease, the draft, and pilitics, lend-lease, the draft, and politics, in seven languages—including the Scandinavian.

Marriage is the point at which a girl discovers that the aroma of beefsteak and fried onions arouses more emotion in her darling's breast than the headiest fragrance of imported perfume at forty dollars an ounce.

When a woman sobs at a wedding, she can never be quite sure whether she is weeping with joy, envy, sympathy or foreboding.

A diplomat is a man who never writes a "love-letter" to a girl without stopping to reflect that he may be writing for publication.

A man may forgive a girl for not falling in love with him—but never for loving him a little too soon, a little too much, or a little too long. This is one of the masculine idiosyncracies which a fair-minded girl finds hard to understand.

When a man decides to climb on the water wagon, he gets very little encouragement from his friends. Those who don't drink feel sore because they can't be patronizing to him any more; and those who do drink are afraid he'll begin patronizing them.

When her serviceman comes back, every bride should remember that she married her Darling in order to make him happy— not in order to make him over!

A cynical bachelor regards marriage as right in the class with manslaughter — "unintentional, not committed with malice aforethought, and punishable by long penal servitude'".

A brand new romance is the "chaser" which a man takes to kill the bitter taste left by a burnt-out flame.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Meaning of "Junior" and "2nd"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please help my husband and me in the naming of our son? We want very much to name the boy after my husband, but neither of us likes the suffix "junior". Would it be correct for us to use "the second" (for example, John G. Doe, II)? What is the rule for naming a child "the second". . . I have looked in several etiquette books and also have had a librarian look carefully and we have not been able to find the answer to this question. F. F. A.

Many people feel the way you and your husband do about the suffix "junior, and get around having to use it by giving the son the first name of his father, but giving him a different middle name, a name beginning with a different initial from the initial of the fathers middle name, so that the distinction can always be made even when an initial is used. Perhaps you and your husband would like to consider this possibility: John Gregory Doe (father); John Philip Doe (son)

The distinction between "junior'" and "2nd" is this: "junior" means the son (or grandson) of a man of exactly the same name; "2nd" (or II) means the nephew or cousin of a man of exactly the same name. Therefore, in your case, it would not be correct for you to use "2nd" (or II) after your son's name.

"Junior" is a Masculine Suffix

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

I am expecting my first baby soon. If it's a boy, I want to name him after my husband; and if it's a girl, my husband wants to name her after me. We don't like the idea of adding "younger" to her name, and wonder if it would be considered incorrect to use "junior" after her name. I know that Alice Faye of the movies named her daughter Alice, Jr., which I like very much. W.

Since "junior" is a masculine suffix, it is not correct to use it after a girl's name. My advice is that, if your baby is a girl, you make no attempt to add to her name any fancy or unnecessary suffix. ("Junior" shouldn't be used; and "younger" after the daughter's name is used only when both mother and daughter are known professionally and therefore it is necessary to distinguish the two by referring to the daughter as "Dorothy Celebrity, younger.")

CHAPTER 2

Her wide, blue eyes were roaming over Lee's face appealingly. He looked at the news story, frowned, and then squeezed Karen's hand. "Don't worry about it, Karen. I'll see what I can do. You're right of course."

Elaine gritted her teeth at the show Karen was putting on. She cut into Karen's next words swiftly. "Lee, what's all this about John Warren?"

Lee whirled to her, snapping his fingers. "Say, I forgot to tell you."

"Yes, I know."

He flushed and glanced at Karen. "Well, he's a—"

"I know who he is," Elaine said. "Karen told me. I want to know if it's true."

"Sure, it's true," Lee answered. "Stouffer said he'd be here for the play."

"She didn't believe me," Karen said innocently.

"I'm sorry Elaine," Lee said. "I should have told you sooner than this, but I forgot."

Elaine nodded, feeling the anger dying. She smiled quickly. "It's all right. We'd better go now or we'll be late."

Lee picked up his hat and started for the door where Elaine was waiting. He looked at Karen. "Heavy date tonight?"

She smiled dismally. "No luck tonight. Guess I'll study over my lines some more, although I'm so tired of the play right now. . ."

Lee stopped and studied her for a moment. "You really should get some relaxation. Hey," he grinned and turned to Elaine. "How about Karen coming to the show with us?"

Elaine sighed and murmured, "All right, if she wants to."

The theatre marquee spelled out Clark Gable's name in small letters—for above it was the title: "It Happened One Night." Elaine was to remember long after how she had sat on one side of Lee while Karen was holding his hand in her lap on the other.

It did no good to fret about it, she guessed. Lee had been hers, privately, for almost four years, they had sorted their dreams and placed them altogether until now they seemed as one person. It hurt to have him suddenly turn to Karen.

That she was appealing and desirable was easy to see, but there was a closeness that she and Lee had shared long before Karen had entered the picture. It hurt terribly to see it erased away like a stray pencil mark.

She had a headache when they walked out of the theatre, and somehow the soft, cool night air made her more restless. She heard Karen and Lee plan the rest of the evening and she wanted to run from them. Instead she turned and waited while Karen applied fresh lipstick. Lee was watching her with admiration and when he turned and looked at Elaine, he suddenly flushed.

Lee was strangely silent the rest of the evening. When he took them back to the sorority house, he seemed glad that it was about to end.

Loitering on the wide steps in front of the house, Lee smiled quietly at Elaine, ignoring Karen for the first time that evening. "Dinner tomorrow at Gabe's?" She could feel the warmth of his hand brush hers, but she made no movement and he dropped his arm.

"There's a scene that needs a little tightening," she said. "I think I'll look it over. Perhaps you'd like to . . ." She let the words drift into the silence on the porch.

Lee's chin was firm when he answered. "Okay, do that. Give me a ring when you're satisfied with it." He turned away and Elaine knew he was mad, either at her for refusing the weekly Sunday night dinner date, or perhaps at himself for botching up tonight's date.

Karen, poised on the top step, called to him. "Thanks so much, Lee, for taking me." She hesitated for a brief moment, then leaned down and kissed him lightly on the cheek. She smiled at Elaine. "It really doesn't matter, does it? It's sort of in the family, you might say."

"You might," Elaine answered quietly, and walked into the sorority house, choking down the tears that clouded her eyes.

"Why have you been avoiding me?" Lee asked, balancing his books on top of a hall radiator in the administration building.

Elaine had come down the wide stairs from a second floor classroom with the throng of students and bumped directly into Lee.

"You'll be late for your class," she mumbled.

He gently took hold of her arm and swung her against the wall, blocking her path. "What's wrong, Elaine?"

"I've been busy," she answered, staring at her armload of books. That was partially true, she told herself. She did have final exams to study for, and her time was short because of additional work on the play. Ever since the initial completion of the play, most of the revision had fallen on her. Lee, somehow, had excused himself from the monotonous task of polishing, for now that it was done, the glamor of any more writing had vanished, he admitted.

"Too busy to see me?"

"I'm sorry, Lee." She looked up at him, felt her voice sharpen. "Someone has to take care of revisions in the play. You seem too interested in other things."

His face reddened. "I suppose you mean Karen."

She gestured impatiently with her head. "I suppose that's what I mean. But I don't really care." She tried to move away.

"Listen," he said, stopping her. "We've got to thresh things out. I've got to make you understand that Karen is a part of our combination now. You shouldn't be jealous of her."

Elaine's eyes widened. "Oh, but I'm not jealous of her. I think she is a very wonderful actress. But it's my fellow she's taking away from me. And I don't like that." She was talking rapidly and her breath came fast.

Lee smiled and pressed her hand. "Don't worry about that, Elaine." His eyes found hers and held them fast. "You know, if there weren't so many people cluttering up this building, I'd kiss you right now."

There seemed to be a lightening in her heart and for the first time in several days she felt gay. Her smile was soft. "I'd kiss you right back," she whispered.

Lee stood back and chuckled. He seemed sure of himself again. Picking up his books, he said: "You'll be at dress rehearsal tonight, won't you?"

Elaine nodded.

"We'll celebrate afterwards—without Karen," he said, waving and merging into the mass of students.

Dean Stouffer's office girl smiled at Elaine and motioned her into the dramatic department head's private sanctum.

Stouffer's voice was gentle, as was everything about him. He was tall and the graying moustache, trim and neat, gave him a certain youthful expression. He waved Elaine to a chair and nodded to the expensively dressed man standing near a book case.

"Elaine, meet John Warren. Old friend of mine."

The greetings were casual and Stouffer continued: "John's a producer in New York. Perhaps you've heard of him. Likely not," and he winked at Warren, whose laugh was clear and deep.

Elaine studied Warren, his face which seemed pink from too many massages, his eyes which seemed tired from seeing too much, his forehead which seemed creased from too much worry. His features were average, but Elaine liked the way he held his chin and eyes, the way he kept his shoulders lifted as though there was pride that came from deep assurance in his own ability. That was felt rather than seen, Elaine knew, and when he spoke she knew many people would listen.

"I'm on my way back from the coast and the dean insisted that I stop and look at your play."

Stouffer leaped up from his chair, his eyes enthused. "And you'll never see a better one written by a couple of kids. John, I tell you, if you can scrape up some money to handle this thing you'd be set for life."

Warren shrugged. "My financial program at the moment is somewhat strained, but I shall look at the play, of course."

Elaine sat quietly in the chair, listening, knowing that Lee and Karen would pin a world of hopes on this man. Yet it was obvious that John Warren could help them but little. She wanted to tell Warren not to see the play, not to tell Lee and Karen it was good. It would only mean disappointment because he could not finance a production of it. And she didn't think Lee or Karen could take disappointment without denting their fortitude.

She listened hazily to Stouffer outline the play, dimly aware that Warren was staring out the window, his brow creased in worry, lost in his own thoughts.

The strange tenseness that comes with a dress rehearsal was biting through Elaine that night, making her feel feverish, then cold. She gripped the play script with one hand and the arm of the chair with the other.

"What's the matter?" Lee asked, looking down at her. "Afraid you'll fall off?"

"I'm scared."

"Nothing to be scared about. This is only a dress rehearsal."

Elaine nodded. "I know, but—but—well, John Warren will be here tonight."

Lee whirled around. "Tonight!"

She nodded again. "I met him this afternoon."

Lee fumbled his words. "I thought he wasn't supposed to show until tomorrow night. This is only the dress rehearsal. What if something goes wrong? I'd better tell Karen." He half-rose from his seat.

Elaine tugged his arm, pulling him back. "Sit still. Here they come now." She was watching Stouffer and John Warren enter the university auditorium.

There was a brief greeting to Elaine from Warren, a quick introduction to Lee, and then all at once the house lights dimmed, the curtain swung back, and the dress rehearsal had begun. Elaine closed her eyes and gripped the chair arm tighter.

She felt someone tap her arm lightly and heard John Warren whisper: "I've got hundreds of theatre chair arms. They always loosen up about the end of the second act, and I generally grip them off in the middle of the third. What do you do with yours?"

Elaine took a deep breath, freed her hand from the chair arm, and then started giggling.

They were sitting on the stone steps leading to the little patio behind the sorority house, Lee one step below Elaine. He was quietly smoking, listening to night sounds.

"Everything went smoothly," he said at last. "Everything down to the smallest detail."

Elaine said nothing, merely watching the smoke curl upward from his cigaret and fade into the blackness of the night.

"Warren like it," Lee said. "He told me."

Elaine smiled. Yes, Warren liked it, she thought. She heard him congratulate Lee, heard his words of frank admiration to her. He had flattered Karen until she seemed dizzy. And it was all sincere, too, Elaine knew But she also knew that deep inside John Warren there was not a thought of producing the play.

She had carefully blocked the conversation from getting to that point, and she was happy for the moment.

Lee had flicked his cigaret away and was looking at her. "You should have told me how much work needed to be done. You should have made me help you with the revisions."

Free of Stomach Troubles First Time in Years, This Woman Praises Syntona

Once More Enjoys Meals Without Gas, Bloat, Indigestion and Sour Acidity. Also Rid of Dizzy Feelings, Headache and Nervousness. Sleep is Sound. Feels Better.

Mrs. Elizabeth McCaulay, 6 Wharncliffe Road South, London, Ontario, is glad to pass her experience along to others, for she knows what it has meant to her to get relief from stomach disorders that brought on years of suffering from indigestion, and distress after eating, nervousness, loss of sleep, and tired, rundown feeling.

"For many years I suffered from stomach troubles," said Mrs. McCaulay. "Indigestion and heartburn with awful gas and sour acid risings followed almost every meal. Hot, sour liquids would rise from my stomach, and there was a burning feeling in my chest. My tongue was constantly coated and my complexion was sallow. I would get bad dizzy feelings and throbbing headaches. The acids from my stomach must have gone all through my system, for I became very nervous and rundown. My sleep was restless and I always felt tired and fatigued.

"A friend recommended Syntona so highly that I began taking it and now I am only sorry that I didn't know of it long ago. From the very first bottle my stomach felt improved and my food began to digest better. As I continued taking it the gas, indigestion, and sour risings stopped troubling me. Now for the first time in years I enjoy my meals free from stomach troubles. Those tired, wornout feelings have left me and I am rid of the dizziness and headaches. My complexion is more healthy looking and my tongue isn't coated as it used to be. Also, my nerves are calmed down, so I sleep better and I feel better in every way. I am very glad to recommend Syntona to everyone who suffers as I did."

You can get full information about Syntona in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

BRITISH SOLDIER SECOND TO ESCAPE DEATH PENALTY

Charged With Murder of Wife, He is Convicted of Manslaughter

London, Sept. 27 (Reuters) —A second British soldier within the space of a few days yesterday escaped the death penalty after killing his wife for unfaithfulness during his absence in the armed forces.

Pte. Cyril Patmore, 35, told the court he was in India when he learned his wife was expecting a child by an Italian prisoner of war. Home on compassionate leave, he found that his wife had deserted their four children.

In a statement in court he claimed he intended only to scare the woman with a clasp knife, but in a struggle he "stabbed her in the wrong place."

Frederick James Hooker escaped the hangman's rope in the same court last week after admitting having killed his wife, the mother of 11 children, with a penknife when he returned home to find she had been unfaithful.

The jury in each case found the accused guilty of manslaughter.

The judge told the jury "it would be the law of the jungle if a man finding his wife had been unfaithful once or even 20 times was entitled to murder her."

In sentecing Patmore to five years' penal servitude, the judge said he was bound by the jury's verdict, but made it clear the verdict was the view of the jury and not his.

Capt. H.R. Frink Sees Daughter For First Time

Coming home in itself was a big enough thrill for Capt. H. R. Frink former school teacher at Queen Mary School. but the main highlight was the sight of his daughter whom he had never seen and who was celebrating her fourth birthday when her soldier daddy stepped off the train.

Captain Frink went overseas in August, 1941 as a lieutenant with the 32nd Light Anti-Aircraft Battery. In Britain he transferred to the 1st. L.A.A. and in May, 1942 was promoted to the rank of captain.

His next move was the command of a signals training battery which he was given in 1943 with the rank of Major, and where he remained until March 1945. During his tenure as commanding officer of the training unit many thousands of Canadian artillerymen passed through his instructional hands.

One of his boys who landed on the Normandy beach-heads saw his observing officer killed. He grabbed his radio telegraph set and dashed through a hail of fire to the shelter of a sandbank. There he set up his signal equipment and unaided directed the fire of his battery located on a vessel offshore and by observation and correction succeeded in silencing a battery of German artillery. He was awarded the military medal.

Tiring of duty in England, Major Frink reverted to the rank of captain in order to get into action on the continent. He waited approximately six weeks for the embarkation order. It came—but the "Cease Fire" preceded it. Later however the captain made the journey to France, Holland and Germany disappointed at being unable to see his guns in action.

Captain Frink is at present on leave and expects, following discharge to resume his teaching duties here.

2 WEE BROTHERS, LOST FOR HOURS, FOUND BY POLICE

Stirling Girl Loses Her Purse, Believed Left in Shop

Four and five-year-old sons of a Grier Street family caused their mother a few anxious hours Wednesday when they disappeared from a downtown store during the noon hour and were not located until mid-afternoon at the corner of Victoria and McDonald Avenues. The two young lads were with their mother on a shopping trip when they disappeared while she was making purchases. Police located the boys and took them home to their mother.

A Stirling girl is missing $110 together with other contents of her purse as result of leaving it in a local store Wednesday morning. After leaving the store she discovered her loss but though she immediately returned, the purse was missing.

A Corbyville motorist who reported to police that his automobile was missing was more fortunate as a few hours after it had disappeared it was recovered. Trenton police reported the theft of a 1941 Chevrolet, while another paper delivery truck in Belleville was for a short time believed stolen but was later discovered to be in charge of one of the owner's employees.

A young girl reported to police she had been annoyed by a curb cruiser who was later warned by police.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Industrial stocks were up moderately at noon on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The mining groups registered no change of importance. Volume was again heavy at 1,651,000 shares for the first three hours.

Gold favorites in the early trading were Jacknife, Elder, Eldona and Trans-Resources and these were up 15 to 20 cents at early afternoon on heavy volume. Senator was active and higher at 1.14. Little Long Lac gained 20.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 27. (AP) — Scattered industrial specialties achieved modest progress in today's stock market while most rails, motors, oils and aircrafts continued to slip. Persistent apprehension over reconversion prospects as the result of spreading labor disputes throughout the nation caused the trimming of commitments in the majority of cases. Fractional declines predominated near the fourth hour.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP) — Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today, Grade A dressed, London $17.35 plus transportation, Stratford, to farmers $17.75, to truckers $17.90, delivered, Hull $17.75 delivered.

DON C. VANCLIEF, CARRYING PLACE, IS LIBERATED

Parents of Signalman, Taken Prisoner at Hong Kong, Receive Word of Release

Prisoner of war in Japan since the fall of Hong Kong on Christman Day in 1941, Signalman Donald J. Vanclief, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vanclief, Carrying Place, Prince Edward County, is now officially safe in Allied hands, according to word received by his parents today from the Department of Records in Ottawa.

Signalman Vanclief, who will be 24 this month, went to the Far East as member of the Royal Rifles of Canada and was taken prisoner at the fall of the British stronghold at Hong Kong.

Months passed before Mr. and Mrs. Vanclief received word of the safety of their son. Finally they received information that he had been taken prisoner of war. Since, one or two brief notes have been received from their son advising he was well. The last note was received early this month but was written shortly after Christmas as in it was mentioned a Red Cross parcel had been received.

Signalman Vanclief was interned in the Fukuoka prison camp. Further information will be forwarded to the parents when it is received at Ottawa.

Problem for Authorities

Finance Minister Ilsley, speaking of meat rationing strikes said the strike of butchers in Montreal did not involve infraction of ration regulations. Gangs of men roaming the city and closing meat stores were a problem for municipal authorities.

Mr. Tucker told the House that the international situation was dangerous. No council of five foreign ministers had the right to arrange the peace treaties of the world and he attributed the fact that Canada and other dominions were not in on current discussions in London to Soviet objections to the British Commonwealth having several voices.

"The fact remains that it is a dangerous situation," he said, "and I think the sooner we make it very plain to the Soviets that we believe just as much in freedom and liberty as we did when the Atlantic Charter was signed, the better it will be for world peace."

Centres on Proposal

Opposition to the government's newly-announced wheat price policy centred on the administration's proposal to fix a maximum wheat export price at $1.55 per bushel and guarantee farmers a minimum price of $1 per bushel basis no. 1 Northern at Fort William or Vancouver over the next five years.

On Tuesday J. A. Ross (PC—Souris) made this the basis of an amendment to the address urging that pending establishment of more equitable prices for farm products, floor prices should be placed on all farm products at not less than 90 per cent of parity.

Yesterday the C.C.F. went further with another amendment urging that parity prices be established. There appeared to be some confusion as to what is meant by parity prices since Mr. Diefenbaker claimed a parity price on 90 per cent of wheat would be $1.28 a bushel while Mr. Tucker and Agriculture Minister Gardiner disputed this.

Claims Price Not High Enough

Mr. Wright, who farms in the mixed farming area of Northern Saskatchewan, claimed $1 a bushel wheat did not pay the cost of production, while Victor Quelch argued the government should pay farmers the maximum prices for wheat, sell it abroad for what it would bring and, if necessary take a loss, without putting the whole burden on the farmers.

Mr. Tucker also got into the debate on wheat prices, saying he could not support the C.C.F. amendment. He quoted George Wesson, president of the Saskatchewan wheat pool and other farm leaders, as approving the government's wheat policy. He added that the C.C.F. government in Saskatchewan had held out the promise of a new era for the people of that province, but in a year and a half in office, had done little.

SAYS STRIKE BY INDEPENDENTS MAY COME TO TORONTO

Toronto, Sept. 27. (CP)—Dan Roose, secretary of the Toronto Independent Retail Butchers' Association, said Wednesday that "the boys now will probably go out on strike and close their stores" in view of Prices Board Chairman Donald Gordon's statement in Vancouver Tuesday that meat rationing will remain in force.

Roose added that if strike action is decided upon at a meeting of the Association next Monday "All chain stores will be picketed and forced to close down".

CRUSHED BETWEEN 2 AUTOS

Simcoe, Ont., Sept. 27. (CP)—Crushed between two automobiles in an accident near Vanessa in Windham Township, Louis Soprony, 47-year-old Delhi tobacco worker, was killed Tuesday. Four other men were injured. Soprony was returning from Brantford to Delhi in a taxi owned and driven by Ernest Biro of Delhi. The taxi and a car driven by Jack Harwood, 20, of Lasallette, containing four passengers, collided.

Meat Strike Ends After Fourth Day; Protest to Ottawa

Want Rationing Suspended For Period of Three Months

By HAROLD FREEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Meat stores were reopening in all parts of Montreal today, following an early morning decision to call off a four-day "strike" in protest against meat rationing, while the waterfront saw its first activity in three days as dock workers trickled back to work.

Many butcher stores opened on schedule following an early-morning announcement that the strike was called off. The announcement came after a meeting between the strikers' committee headed by Ernest Chartrand, and J. O. Heroux, general manager of the province of Quebec Food Distributors Inc.

Other stores began opening as word spread that the strike was ended. The stores already open were moderately crowded by housewives who had found meat difficult — at times impossible— to get during the preceding four days.

Soon in Full Swing

The situation at the waterfront, where longshoremen have been striking in what they said was a protest against the butchers' strike, also showed signs of returning to normal, and harbor officials were hopeful that loading operations on some 28 ocean ships in port would be in full swing by mid-afternoon.

First men back on the waterfront today were elevator operators and grain handlers who did not join the longshoremen's strike but who had been kept from their jobs by threats from the longshoremen.

As the butcher stores opened again, packing plants which also reopened following closures on threats from the longshoremen were faced with the problem of getting supplies quickly to the retailers. Their work was made somewhat less difficult, however, by the fact that today is Friday, a fish day, so that many housewives weren't interested in meat in making their purchases.

Policeman Improving

The generally improved situation was given another boost with the announcement that police sergeant Laurent Beaudet, 33, was showing "some improvement" in hospital, after suffering a fractured skull in a police-longshoremen clash on uptown St. Catherine Street yesterday afternoon. Doctors, who had first feared that Sgt. Beaudet would die, said today that he had a good chance of recovery.

First longshoremen were back on the job by mid-morning, with more reporting all the time so that officials estimated they would have practically a full crew at work by the afternoon. The docks were still under patrol by 100 Royal Canadian Mounted Police constables.

Agreement by Mr. Chartrand at 2 a.m. to advise the strikers to return to work this morning came as the culmination of negotiations instituted by the Food Distributors Association.

Scheduled departure of a delegation representing the strikers for Ottawa today was postponed until Monday. The delegation will recommend that meat rationing be suspended for three months and a voluntary rationing system, backed by an educational campaign, be tried out in the meantime. Other recommendations will include discontinuance of the use of tokens, increase in coupon values for cuts from the front part of the carcass and the flanks, and removal of smoked, fresh and liver sausages, bologna, head-cheese, cretons and all jellied meats from the rationed list.

Not Notified.

From the waterfront came reports that approximately 150 Canadian Pacific and 100 Canadian National freight handlers were at work. In Shed 7 five gangs of longshoremen, totalling approximately 90 men, were working. Others reporting were asked to return at one o'clock when it was expected there would be enough men to make up complete gangs.

All grain elevators in the waterfront area were back in operation.

Representatives of the Federal Labor Department, Prices Board, National Harbors Board and Longshoremen's Union were scheduled to meet this morning to discuss means of providing distribution outlets for meat to the waterfront workers.

Rioting Marks Efforts.

Decision to end the strike followed a day in which rioting marked efforts of the strikers to effect a complete shutdown of Montreal meat shops, resulting in arrest of 76 persons and serious injury to one member of the city police force.

Yesterday's open rioting and hand-to-hand fighting, especially the melee which occurred when strikers attempted to enter the T. Eaton Company department store on St. Catharine Street, constituted the most serious development since the strike began Monday.

Many longshoremen, though their union leaders maintained they had gone on strike in protest against the meat rationing, took part in closing meat warehouses and also in the St. Catherine Street melee in which Police Sergeant Laurent Beaudet, 33, received injuries which left him with a fractured skull and in a "critical" condition.

Tried to Enter Store.

The trouble at Eaton's started when about 100 "vigilantes" tried to enter the store to close the company's basement meat market, which had been doing a roaring business since Monday. As the vigilantes unloaded from trucks and cars, police squad cars and motorcycles closed, but not before Sgt. Beaudet, the only policeman standing in the front entrance at the time, had been knocked down and kicked into unconsciousness by men trying to enter the store. Reinforcing police broke up the mob and arrested more than 50 persons. Two other policemen were injured slightly.

76 Strikers Arrested.

Of the total of 76 strikers arrested during the day, 17 were freed on $50 bail last night, and eight were sent to juvenile court.

At last night's strike meeting, no plans were given out as to today's program, but strikers were urged not "to use violence," but to await word of the delegation at Ottawa.

One speaker, however, told the meeting that "the strike will continue until meat rationing is lifted."

British Constable Shot at Tel Aviv By Terrorists

Jerusalem, Sept. 28. (CP)—A British constable was shot to death by Terrorists at Tel Aviv today, a day after a British parachute division arrived in Palestine from Europe to enforce order in the Jewish-Arab rivalry.

The constable was on his way from a bank with his staff's payroll of more than $16,000. The assassins escaped.

The government has issued new regulations for suppression of rebellion, riots, illegal possession and use of firearms, and for the functioning of military courts.

Extra precautions are being taken against the illegal entry of Jews into Palestine.

An explosion occurred near the post office in Tel Aviv but no casualties were caused by it.

Psychologist's Baby Lives in Box Which Tends Child Mechanically

By JOHN JAMESON

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 28 — (AP)—Debby Skinner, 13 months old has lived since birth in a box —a mechanical baby—tender—free from almost all sound and dirt and always at the right temperature for a baby.

The baby-tender is science's contribution to easing the modern mother's problems. Bebby's father writes aout it in the Ladies Home Journal for October.

"Her remarkable good health and happiness and my wife's welcome leisure have exceeded our most optimistic predictions," says the father, B. F. Skinner, recently named professor of psychology at Indiana University. He and Mrs. Skinner felt it was time to apply a little laborsaving to the problems of the nursery, and the mechanical baby-tender resulted.

The first problem tackled was how to keep the baby warm. Their answer was to heat the baby's home—so they had built an insulated box about the size of a crib. One side is safety glass, which can be raised like a window.

The box is heated by electricity to the temperature wanted, controlled by a safety device.

Debby lives there, wearing no clothes except a diaper.

At first she was most comfortable at 86 degrees, but now she likes it best at 78 degrees. Debby gets more exercise than babies which are left in cribs and held in the usual fashion, because she exercises almost constantly when awake. There are no covers or clothes to keep her from doing as she pleases.

"It is necessary to watch this performance for only a few minutes to realize how severely restrained the average baby is, and how much energy must be diverted into the only remaining channel—crying," says her father.

Another time-saving feature of the box is the method of changing sheets. The bottom of the box is tightly stretched canvas over which there is a sheet. The clean sheet, except that part in use, is on a roll outside the crib and a fresh sheet can be put in place by turning a crank. The sheet is 10 yards long and lasts a week.

The wrapping blanket, roller sheet and the usual diapers are the only laundry actually required, the professor said.

LIBERAL GOVT. SURVIVES FIRST TEST IN COMMONS

Prime Minister King Tells House He Will Visit Britain And Europe Next Month

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 28 — (CP)—The Liberal Government, its ranks reduced in the election of last June, last night survived its first major test against the combined forces of the opposition in the new parliament and came out with majorities of 25 and 27.

The divisions came as the debate on the Speech from the Throne came to a close and the direct issue was the question of parity prices for farm products.

The address in reply to the Speech from the Throne was adopted without a recorded vote but with the usual words of "on division" from the opposition. The tests came on two amendments on which all members sitting on the opposition side — Progressive Conservative, C.C.F., Social Credit and Independent — united, and the Liberals and Independent Liberals on the government side voted as a block.

King Makes Announcement

At the opening of the day's proceedings Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced he will leave for Britain and Europe next week and will visit European battlefields and Canada's offices abroad.

The Prime Minister told the House that Canada expects effective participation and not merely consultation in the major decisions affecting the post-war settlement. He took a grave view of the problems confronting the nations and stressed the importance of Canada knowing the attitudes and objectives of other countries before formulating her own policies.

..Developments of Day

The day also brought these developments:

1. Mr. King said the understanding of his government was that any draft treaty emanating from the council of foreign ministers in London would be of a "preliminary character."

2. He announced appointment of Capt. W. A. Tucker (L—Rosthern) as parliamentary assistant to

Newspapermen Urged to Promote Canadian Unity

Quebec, Sept. 28 — (CP)—Sincere newspapermen should at all times do 'everything in their power' to promote the idea of a united Canada, Adelard Godbout, Liberal leader of the Quebec opposition, Wednesday night told members of the Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association at a dinner given by local publishers.

He said the citizens of the nine provinces had their provincial governments and had to get along well together, but "a common effort" was required to "make this country grow and occupy its rightful place in the world."

Great Transport Plane Plans World-Girdling Flight in 151 Hours

By PAUL MILLER

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—A giant transport plane thunders eastward over the Atlantic late today, opening the first regular 'round-the-world schedule. It will carry seven men and a woman who will be guinea pigs as well as observers on the 23,147-mile flight.

Taking off at 5 p.m. E.D.T. from Washington National Airport, the 40-passenger Douglas Skymaster of the United States army air transport command heads first for Bermuda. Then, after a one-hour stop, it flies on to the Azores, to North Africa, to Egypt, to India, to China and back to the United States again—in 151 hours—by way of the Philippines, Honululu and other tiny Pacific island bases.

Planes of the A.T.C. have circled the world many times, but this schedule, "The Globester," will be the first continuous "round-the-world service."

Throughout the flight, tests of many kinds will be made among the three A.T.C. headquarters officers, an A.T.C. public relations officer, a photographer and three reporters who of the more than 20 persons aboard the "Globester" at the start, will be the only ones to go the entire route.

All were given thorough physical examinations. They will undergo further examinations upon their return Oct. 4, at midnight. En route they will be observed for fatigue, for airsickness and for reaction to altitude.

Crews will be changed at intervals. Most of the passengers will disembark at various stops and be replaced.

LABOR TO RETAIN WARTIME GAINS SAYS MINISTER

Hon. L. Frost Says Mining Industry Will Produce New Wealth, Population

Timmins, Sept. 28 —(CP)— Ontario Labor Minister Charles Daley Thursday night told 200 delegates to the annual conference of the Association of Ontario Reeves and Mayors that hope of continued prosperity and full employment rested on management-labor co-operation because industry again was entering competitive markets.

Earlier in the day, Hon. Leslie Frost, Ontario Minister of Mines and Resources, said in an address at nearby Schumacher that the mining industry was only one of many which will produce new wealth and employment and result in a great increase in population.

Sessions of the conference continue today.

Mr. Daley said labor's fears that it will lose all it has gained through the war years are groundless. The government had given men the right to belong to the union of their choice and to bargain collectively without fear of discrimination or dismissal.

Made Tremendous Strides.

The unions had made tremendous strides and would continue to progress by proving their worth to the workers and to industry. Good labor-management relationship could not be obtained by laws alone. There had to be a spirit of tolerance and co-operation on both sides.

He said there was no truth in reports the Workmen's Compensation Board might be placed under jurisdiction of the courts.

Mr. Daley said he intended to remove the two-year exposure period clause in the mining act referring to silicosis.

The mining industry in Ontario is on the verge of the greatest development and expansion in its history, despite many difficulties including high taxation and shortage of manpower and equipment, Mr. Frost said.

Great Opportunity.

"In Ontario we have a great opportunity if we grasp it," he said. "With common sense and vision we need have no unemployment."

He said the Ontario government is preparing a new deal for the mining industry which it is hoped will result from the coming Dominion-Provincial conference.

"Fresh discoveries have revealed promising conditions in producing camps and in areas which have been more or less perfunctorily prospected in the past," Mr. Frost went on.

He said the province is revising its security laws and enforcements so that the public will be protected against fraud but the promoter and developer will not be strangled.

Yesterday the delegates visited the gold mines in the Timmins area after a trip from Kirkland Lake where the main convention sessions are being held.

UNOFFICIAL REPORT SAYS NO MORE TROOPSHIPS TO USE ROUTE TO QUEBEC

Montreal, Sept. 28 (CP)—Shipping officials reported unofficially yesterday that no more troopships would be using the St. Lawrence River route to Quebec this season. They said troopships due between now and the end of the year would use Halifax as their docking port.

BOY KILLED BY STREET CAR

Montreal, Sept. 28 (CP)—Nine-year-old Edward Seeley was killed here last night when he was struck by a street car while crossing a west-end street intersection with his scooter.

JAPANESE TROOPS SUPPLIED ARMS TO RIOTINGANNAMESE

Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi Arrested by British Officials

By VERN HAUGLAND

Saigon, Sept. 28 — (AP) — A high ranking Japanese general has conceded that some Japanese soldiers supplied arms to rioting Japanese after Emperor Hirohito's surrender order last month.

(New Delhi radio said today Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, former commander of Japan's southern armies, had been arrested by British troops at Saigon "because it was suspected the Japanese had a hand in the latest Indo-China disorders.")

Lt.-Gen. Takazo Numata, chief of staff and spokesman for Field Marshal Terauchi, told a press conference Wednesday that "some Japanese but no officers joined the Annamite Rebels after our surrender."

"We now regard and treat them as enemies," he said. "I didn't believe any Japanese have turned over weapons to the Annamites since the surrender was signed," he added. "Between the time of the Emperor's speech, that came as such a surprise and shock, and the surrender time, some local officers and men have given or sold weapons against orders."

Numata said fear of retaliation from the natives when the Japanese are disarmed kept his troops from being as strict with the rebellious Indo-Chinese as they otherwise might have been.

"We hope our troops will be allowed to carry enough arms to defend themselves and maintain order until they can be repatriated," he said.

Terauchi, who declined to meet Allied correspondents Wednesday, may be accused in connection with atrocities in the Philippines. Numata said Terauchi commanded the expeditionary forces of the southern region, which included Indo-China, Burma, Malaya, Sumatra, Borneo, the Philippines and the East.

Occupation Complete

London, Sept. 28 — (CP)—The All-Indian radio said today the French Colonial administration in Saigon had issued a communique reporting the occupation of Saigon had been completed and the French government already was functioning there.

Conditions Improving

Singapore, Sept. 28 — (AP) — Gen. D. D. Gracey, commander of Allied forces in South Indo-China, arrived by plane in Singapore yesterday for conferences on continuing disorders throughout Japan's one-time Greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere.

Gen. Gracey said conditions had improved in Saigon, with the Japanese doing a far better job of keeping the peace last night as a result of his stern orders yesterday to Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, commander of the Japanese southern armies.

The disarming of the Japanese, meanwhile, may begin on a large scale next week, after strong British and French reinforcements arrive, Gen. Gracey said.

CORNWALL HOTEL MANAGER DIES

Cornwall, Sept. 28 (CP)—William Frederick Bennett, manager of a Cornwall hotel since 1941 when he left the hotel business in Montreal to come here, died yesterday in hospital where he had been a patient for two months. Survivors include three sons, Flt. Sgt. Edmund Bennett, R.C.A.F., Toronto and Charles and Gerald Bennett of Montreal and two daughters, Mrs. Ralph McWilliams and Mrs. Frank McKeegan, also of Montreal.

FRENCH, CHINESE WANT SHARES IN BALKAN TREATIES

Russia Insists That These Two Countries Be Excluded From All Discussions

By FLORA LEWIS

London, Sept. 28 — (AP)—Despite Russian insistence that France and China be excluded from discussion of Balkan peace treaties, informed observers here said today the question might revert to the full conference of foreign ministers unless a procedural deadlock, between Russia on one side and Britain and France on the other, could be broken.

The foreign ministers of the Big Three powers, State Secretary Byrnes, Foreign Commissar Molotov and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, have been conferring on the procedure for drafting treaties with Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria in an attempt to reach some measure of agreement before the council is adjourned.

As the 25th formal session of the council was about to be convened, some officials acknowledged that the procedural impasse arose when the Russians felt they were fighting a four-to-one battle for Balkan influence, and wanted to reduce the number of adversaries.

Some delegates said the Russian argument, based on the decision at Potsdam that armistice signatories should draw up the treaties, was a good one, but added that the others were reluctant to abandon the five-nation principle.

Supported by the British and American delegates, the French bitterly protested the Russian attitude.

London Press Critical.

London Press comment on the conference switched from bitter criticism of Russia's attitude to exhortations to the public to remain patient in its hopes for permanent peace. But the new statesman lashed out at the conference as "fantastic", and accused Russia and the United States of "grabbing all they can in exclusive concern with their own strategic interests".

Describing United States foreign policy as "egotistic, and indeed in the Far East openly imperialistic, the Liberal weekly said "Japan is regarded as an American base to be exploited by United States business and maintained as a military asset". The paper charged that the five powers had failed to agree on "great issues on which the life or death of society depends."

Claims Against Italy.

The Greek government added a complication last night by announcing reparations claims of $2,677,063,000 against Italy, which it said would be pressed at the peace conference. The British and American attitude has been that reparations claim against Italy should be waived.

There was some progress on lesser issues at the conference. For example, the Russians agreed to French demands that goods stolen by the Nazis should be returned to previous owners before German stocks are combed for reparations.

There were some reports that the conference might end tomorrow, but delegates said only continuous work and good luck would enable the conferees to finish the job by Sunday night.

C.P.R. TRAFFIC REPRESENTATIVE J. A. McDONALD DIES AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Sept. 28 (CP)—John A. MacDonald, special traffic representative in Montreal for the Canadian Pacific Railway died suddenly here yesterday. He was 63.

Born at Dalkieth, Ont., he joined the C.P.R. here in 1903 as a stenographer and was transferred to Winnipeg four years later. He served in the company's western lines in the four western provinces until 1935 when he returned to Montreal to be special passenger representative, the position he held when he died.

Loss of Big Jap Battleship Foiled Fantastic Plan to Make It Fortress

Tokyo, Sept. 28 (AP)—A fantastic plan to attempt relief of the besieged Japanese on Okinawa by sending down the 42,000-ton battleship Yamato, beaching it if necessary and converting it into a fortress, was related today by the newspaper Asahi.

The Yamato, Japan's biggest battleship, was sunk by air action April 7 off Kyushu when the invasion of Okinawa was a week old.

Asahi said the Yamato left for its mission under escort of two or three cruisers and six destroyers. This small group was bent on getting near Okinawa off which stood the United States 5th fleet.

Aboard was Vice Admiral Seiichi Ito.

Asahi said Allied airmen spotted the Yamato and attacked her for 10 hours. The newspaper estimated the attacking planes at from 100 to 2,000.

On the 10th hour, there was an explosion which could be heard on Kyushu and men on shore could see smoke. The smoke marked the Yamato's grave.

MacArthur Orders Seizure of 34 Jap Officers and Men

Suspected of Complicity In Massacre of Prisoners

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 28 —(AP)— Gen. MacArthur today ordered the seizure of 34 Japanese officers and men suspected of complicity in the massacre of Allied prisoners of war at Palawan in the Philippines, Dec. 11, 1944.

At that time more than 100 prisoners were herded into a large air raid shelter. Buckets of gasoline and lighted torches were tossed in upon them. A few escaped, only to be mowed down by machine guns or hand grenades, or bayoneted by their captors.

The Japanese ordered arrested range in rank from sergeant to Lt.-Col. Ole Satoshi, presumably in command of the "murder detail."

Supreme Allied Headquarters today rejected Japan's plea for 260,000 tons of her own shipping to return disarmed Japanese soldiers from outside the empire.

In Rickety Shape.

Japan's merchant marine is in rickety shape at best, headquarters explained, and Gen. MacArthur decided that such a great tonnage could not be spared from more vital tasks. Shipping is urgently needed if foodstuffs are to be imported from the Asiatic mainland to avert threatening winter famine.

The Supreme Allied Commander today forbade reopening of Japan's stock exchange without his approval, but approved reopening of factories to manufacture some essential goods in limited quantities.

Workers' leaders meanwhile met to form a new Socialist party, and the reported reorganization of several war-defunct labor unions further marked acceleration of Japan's new Liberal movement — which thus far has been markedly Socialistic. No group, thus far, champions a capitalistic democracy.

Can Produce Textiles.

One Allied directive gave the Imperial government permission to produce textiles, certain metals, leather goods and trucks, and to process raw rubber under specific restrictions laid down previously.

On the agricultural front, the newspaper Mainichi reported that Allied headquarters had approved the use of idle airfields for farming to help alleviate food shortages. It said the Japanese government requested the conversion of fields not being used by the occupation forces into plots for sweet potatoes and other commodities.

Gen. MacArthur told the Imperial government that any request for reopening the stock exchange or any similar institution must be submitted to him with detailed plans—in line with his program of controlling Japan's finances to put the country on a firm economic footing.

Only 300 Ships Available.

Domei reported today that the war pared Japan's total shipping bottoms from 6,300,000 to 1,500,000 gross tons. It is estimated that only 300 vessels with an aggregate 580,000 gross tons now are available.

Domei said a preparatory committee met today to begin organization of a new and as yet unnamed socialist party—the third new political organization announced the past week.

Ichiro Hatoyama, a liberal leader, previously announced the formation of a Liberal party. Toyohiko Kagawa, well known labor leader, heads the fledgling socialist labor party, one of whose planks is reported to be elimination of capitalism.

Curfew to Begin In Bazaar Area Of Bombay

Bombay, India, Sept. 28. (CP) Effective tonight, a curfew will be imposed on the Bazaar section of Bombay in an effort to halt communal riots which have taken a toll of at least 22 killed and 77 injured.

Three people were killed today when police opened fire at two places in the northern part of the city to disperse crowds.

The government of Bombay announced the curfew, which will last from 10 p.m. until 6 p.m. and will continue 15 nights.

Sporadic fighting between Hindus and Moslems continued and the situation appeared to have taken a turn for the worse.

Three Soldiers Canadian Army Sent to Prison

London, Sept. 28 — (CP Cable) —Sentences ranging from life imprisonment to 10 years imprisonment were imposed by courts martial on three soldiers in the Canadian Army tried on charges equivalent to treason, Canadian military headquarters announced today.

The three men were charged with aiding the enemy while prisoners of war.

Pte. John Gordon Galaher, 24, of Windsor, Ont., was sentenced to penal servitude for life.

Pte. Edwin Barnard Martin, 26, of Riverside, Ont., was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

Pte. George Hale, 24, of Vassar, Mich., formerly of Windsor, Ont., was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

All the accused will be discharged 'with ignominy' from the armed forces.

Police Open Fire ToDisperseCrowd

Bombay, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Police opened fire today at two places in the northern part of this city to disperse crowds, as the riot situation took a turn for the worse.

Sporadic fighting between Hindus and Moslems continued. Another stabbing fatality brought the toll to at least 18 killed and 73 injured during the last two days.

The Girgaum Mosque was set on fire and flames damaged the roof and upper portion.

Residences of both Hindus and Moslems were stoned by roving groups.

Indian troops were called out to aid civil authorities in quelling the disturbances. The firing opened after crowds that had gathered in some particularly dangerous by-lanes started showering stones and bricks on the police. The attack, gradually became more intense and it was then that the police opened fire.

Four platoons of Indian troops were called out, but these were not posted in the streets. As a precautionary measure they were ordered to stand by.

SIX BICYCLES AWAITING OWNERS

Despite efforts on part of local police officers in recovering stolen bicycles, owners of these two-wheeled steeds are not calling around for their property very promptly, according to the desk sergeant. Today there happened to be five or six recovered bicycles at the police station and just in case a special department has to be opened for the recovered and unclaimed property the police department expressed a wish that owners would come around and claim their property.

Letter to Council On Tree Damage On Zwick's Island

Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone has sent the following letter to the city clerk regarding destruction by fire of trees on Zwick's Island, suggesting council's action.

Re Zwick's Island

"I was on the point of offering a reward of $25. for conviction of party who set fire carelessly or maliciously to the trees on Zwick's Island. It was only today that I had an opportunity of inspecting the damage there, and many hundreds of evergreens, that were in a fine healthy stage (8 years growth) have been totally destroyed.

"On second thought it occurred to me that this is the job of the City Council and I am suggesting that you get in touch with the Fire Dept. and the Provincial Police or City Police, find out what you can about this vandalism and try and bring the culprit to justice. Please communicate this to the Mayor and Aldermen and oblige. Unfortunately I will be out of town now for about ten days."

Jack W. Zufelt 1st Prize Winner In Camera Club

Results of the first Camera Club assignment for members of the local Camera Club are currently being shown in the lobby of the Corby Public Library where prize winners and other entrants occupy an imposing position on the Library walls.

With summertime as the theme for local camera fans to work on, the finished pictures as exhibited in the Library lobby are splendid examples of photographic art depicting a wide range of subjects.

First prize winner, "While the Sun Shines," by Jack W. Zufelt, one of the most promising amateur camera fans in the city, depicts the familiar summertime scene of a farmer and his son working in the hay fields. Tonal quality of the finished print is splendid with the subject very realistically pictured. Composition is fine with a beautiful cloud effect lending added pictorial quality to the print.

"The Old Mill" at Shannonville also seemed to be favorite subject for camera fans entering the contest with at least three of the contest entries being of this subject, all of slightly different exposures.

Second prize winner was one of "The Old Mill" exhibited by N. F. Tonkin, while a naturalistic summer scene "Summer Stroll" by Mrs. Dorothy Howard, took third place.

All of the fifteen to twenty entries exhibited at the library were exposed, developed and printed by the exhibitors, demonstrating that members have progressed immensely in the art of photography since the inception of the club late in the spring. Now with approximately twenty-five members, it is the intention of the club to sponsor a monthly assignment contest, next month's to be an outdoor portrait.

STIRLING

Presentation Made Before Departure

Stirling, Sept. 28 — Prior to Mrs. James Currie and her daughter, Miss Mae Currie, moving to Oak Lake, friends and neighbors gathered at their home to bid them farewell on Friday evening last. Mr. John Good was in charge of the program with Bob Patterson leading the singing and Mrs. Harold West accompanying. Mrs. W. Elliott gave a reading; Mrs. H. West a piano solo, Bob Patterson entertained the gathering with a harpsicord and mouth organ selection, several spoke briefly of the long associations with the feted ladies, who were each presented with a nosegay containing money.

The presentation was made by Miss D. Caldwell and Mr. H. E. Hulin read the accompanying address. Rev. T. F. Townsend had inscribed a farewell message which Mrs. Townsend presented. Mrs. Currie and Mae thanked their friends and neighbors with an invitation to visit them in their new home. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Currie and Mae are leaving for Oak Lake the middle of next week to make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lindenfield.

Mrs. F. W. Houchin is very grateful for the hearty response to the Blind tag day held Saturday last which totalled $160.55.

The new house being built by Mr. Roy Eggleton, local contractor, on the property he recently purchased from Mr. Harper Rollins, is rapidly nearing completion.

Mr. Harold Baker who is organizing a local Wolf Cub Pack is the toast of all the lads between the ages of eight and twelve years. Their first meeting is Friday night, Sept. 28th., and are the boys keen?—Well I personally heard some of them cheer. The need for this organization to become active is great and it is to be hoped that Mr. Baker receives the support, not only of parents, but every local citizen.

Mrs. R. P. Coulter has returned home following an extended holiday at Grimsby.

Mr. Clifford Jones of London, Ontario, is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott.

A very successful afternoon tea and home cooking sale was held on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 27th., at the home of Mrs. Walter Elliott, Front Street, under the auspices of St. Paul's W. A.

The Stirling theatre was completely filled on Tuesday night of this week when Russ Creighton and his show from Toronto featured a very excellent Variety Show followed by a dance in the Community Hall.

Mrs. Edna Jackman is leaving for Toronto next week to spend the winter months with her son, Robert, who is entering his second year university.

Fifteen Initiated In Canadian Legion At Meeting

The regular meeting of Belleville branch was held at Legion Hall, 224 Front Street, on Thursday evening. Owing to the President, Lt.-Col. H. E. Smith being away, the chair was filled by Comrade L. G. Madden, 1st Vice President. After the opening ceremony the usual two minutes of silence was observed in memory of fallen comrades.

A large class of new candidates for membership was called and fifteen were initiated. All branches of His Majesty's Service were represented, the navy, army, air force and paratroops, there being four navy, nine army, one air force and one paratrooper. All are veterans of the war, just concluded.

A very fine report was read by Comrade Charlie Jeffs, representative of the Legion on the Citizens' Reception Committee for the 1st Batt. Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who are returning to Belleville next week. The members of the Legion and all of the veterans who are not members are invited to take part in the parade, which will be announced at a later date. Comrade Jeffs also reported on the monster bingo arranged for Monday night, (as advertised in the local paper).

The chairman of the Entertainment Committee, Comrade Dainard, is arranging a fine program for the meeting, this to take place once a month. He announced a boxing bout for the first night, as he had secured the services of some outstanding boxers.

During general business, a number of the new initiated members spoke briefly.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, which was very much appreciated by the members.

Champion Cow Owned at Bayside

Mr. Emile, Masse, Bayside, is the proud owner of "Countess Alcarta Rag Apple", prize Holstein cow which topped the Hastings County Black and White Show held at Stirling Fair earlier in the week, receiving the Senior Championship and the Grand Championship ribbons. Mr. Masse also had the Junior Championship and Reserved Grand Championship ribbons for his young herd sire "Raymondale Rag Apple Paul" which was shown in this district for the first time. He also topped the classes in progeny of dam with his junior herd sire receiving first prize ribbons.

POLICE COURT

Pleading not guilty to a charge of intoxication in direct opposition to the advice of his counsel, Orval Laird, local painter, had his case enlarged for one week when he appeared in local police court Friday morning.

The accused was held earlier in the week and when arraigned at Tuesday morning's police court asked for the opportunity of securing counsel. Allen Sprague appeared for Laird in court but when the accused pleaded in opposition to his counsel's advice, he declined to continue as counsel. Laird was remanded until Tuesday to enable him to bring witnesses on his own behalf.

Four other residents each paid $13.00, fine and costs, out of court after pleading guilty to intoxication, while another appearing in court on a second offence intoxication count was assessed $50 fine plus costs or one month in jail. Another resident was assessed $100 fine and costs on a second offence intoxication count.

A local motorist will spend seven days in jail with his driver's licence suspended as result of a drunk driving charge, while another motorist paid $42 fine and costs after pleading guilty to charges of leaving the scene of an accident and a second charge of careless driving.

Prince Edward County Pays Fitting Tribute to Discharged Personnel of H. & P. E. Regt.

Occasion of Picton Fair and Welcome Signs Placed Along Route of March

Picton, Sept. 28. —Prince Edward County paid fitting tribute to its service personnel already home from overseas, or on leave, on the opening day of Picton Fair today. Beneath a canopy of bunting, pennants and colored lights, with "Welcome Home" signs on every post along the route, hundreds of servicemen and women marched through cheering throngs, to the Fair Grounds, where an official welcome was given.

Not only were County service personnel present, but members of the First Battalion of the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which was recruited and trained here in 1939, came from all over Ontario, to march in the group wearing the Red Patch. In command of these veterans was Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, D.S.O., of Owen Sound, a former C.O. of the regiment.

Officers form Platoon

Officers themselves formed a platoon, and included most of men who had been commanding officers of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment since it came into being 25 years ago, October first. Included was Brigadier Howard Graham, D.S.O., deputy chief of Staff, National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa.

Both Picton and Mountain View R.C.A.F. stations were represented by flights of airmen, and the latter station by air women as well.

Sq. Leader Joe Foley, D.F.C., of Wellington, was in command of County airmen, and Lieut. Walter Fraser in charge of navy personnel.

Parade Sergeant Major was R.S.M. Duffy, one of the most beloved members of the Hasty P.'s.

Medals Gleam on Breasts

Veterans, with berets, and medals gleaming, marched proudly in the parade with the boys who had answered their country's call 25 years later. Several wounded vets of World War II were transported in cars.

Also in the parade were "C" and "D" Companies of the 2nd Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, under Major W. A. Davern, acting C.O., of the Battalion; Picton Collegiate Cadets and Boy Scouts.

Taking part also were the No. 3A District Depot Band, under WO.1 Jesse, and the Signal Corps Band under Bandmaster Cruickshank, both of Kingston.

Adding to the parade were two thousand school children from town and county. They presented a colorful scene with gay banners and costumes.

Attracting much attention were fifteen pieces of war equipment from Kingston. These were demonstrated on the grounds.

Floats Add to Color

Floats, too added color, and featured the victory and welcome home themes. Some were the most elaborate ever seen here and one of them cost $500. Entries included those of the Canadian Department Store, Rotary Club, Red Cross, St. John Ambulance Brigade, Greer Canning factory, Waring's Corner School, Baxter Canning Co., Colliver and Huff (2), Picton Separate School, Arthur Moore, Victory Loan, Bata Shoe Co., S. G. Lockyer, Trudeau Motor Sales, Mountain View R.C.A.F., Hugh McDonald, Burford Transport, Junior Farmers', Raymond Smith.

Twenty decorated bicycles competed for prizes.

Also in the parade were the four black horses from Montreal and several carriage horses being shown at the Fair.

Each Section Greeted

In front of the grandstand, with a roar of applause greeting each section of the long and colorful parade, the salute during the March Past was taken by Brigadier Graham. It was a most impressive scene.

Following this came the brief but warm welcome ceremony. S. J. Martin, president of the Fair Board, was master of Ceremonies and extended a welcome on behalf of the Board, which had co-operated with the County Reception Committee in staging this welcome. He also expressed appreciation to those who had given much time to organization of the affair, especially Major G. T. Walmsley, R.S.M. Angus Duffy, S. G. Lockyer and Phil Dodds, who had been chiefly responsible for all arrangements.

The school children, directed by F. E. Walden sang "O Canada", "The British Grenadiers" and led the National Anthem.

Warden Welcome Veterans

County Warden H. A. Cleave gave a welcome on behalf of the County, expressing pride in the achievements of County men and women. He referred to messages of congratulations and good wishes sent for the occasion by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Premier George A. Drew and Mayor Robert Saunders, of Toronto.

Brigadier Graham addressed the men briefly, saying 'Welcome home and well done". Expressing pride in the record achieved, he said he felt sure that each would carry into civilian life the qualities which distinguished them in time of war.

R.S.M. Duffy officially opened the Fair. In a message to his comrades, he recalled the spirit which had existed among them and hoped would continue. Let this reunion not be the last one, he urged.

Enjoy the Fair

After dismissal, the servicemen joined the thousands on the grounds in enjoying the midway, horse races, softball tournament, vaudeville and other entertainment, as well as viewing the great array of exhibits.

Each servicemen received a ticket good for lunch on the grounds, served by Cherry Valley ladies. Two hundred pies were provided. Sir Thomas Picton Chapter I.O.D.E. presented each with a package of cigarettes.

Close With Dance

Tonight (Friday) a gala Welcome Home dance for service personnel and friends is being held in Picton Armouries, with the 15-piece R.C.A.F. orchestra from Trenton in attendance. The Legion Ladies' Auxiliary is providing lunch.

Members of the bands, convoy and others were given meals served at the Presbyterian Church.

The officers held a reception at the Armouries this afternoon and will have a stag dinner at the R.C.A.F. Station before attending the dance tonight.

A feature of the welcome was the re-union of many service personnel who had not seen each other for several years, having been separated during service overseas.

Picton and Prince Edward County gave a royal welcome to its servicemen and women, making it a red letter day in the history of the town.

Decorate Homes, Stores in Welcome To H. and P. E. Regt.

Co-operation of Belleville residents and merchants in decorating streets, homes and stores of the city in preparation for the official arrival of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Belleville next week is asked by Acting-Mayor H. J. Clarke. Mayor Follwell is at present in Kirkland Lake attending the convention of Mayors and Reeves in that city.

While the city council has arranged for no special decorating to be done on behalf of the city, the full co-operation of merchants and other residents is requested in placing appropriate decorations in honor of the victorious and home coming regiment.

BLAME LACK OF MATERIALS

Hamilton, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Thomas Lewington, acting city building commissioner, estimated that since the first of the year only 230 dwelling units, including apartments, private homes and accommodation over stores, have been built or are under construction. Builders report they cannot get materials.

Maj. H. Alderman Dies in Windsor

Major H. S. Alderman, who was stationed here for some years as adjutant in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army, died in the General hospital at Windsor, Ontario, on Thursday. He was not in good health for some time and was in Windsor to visit his brother, whom he had not seen for thirty-one years.

To the members of the Salvation Army here and to many Belleville citizens the announcement of the death of Major Alderman will bring sincere feelings of regret. During the years he served the Army here he accomplished much good and gave his enthusiastic support to all undertakings for the betterment of the city and the furthering of religious life here. He possessed a pleasing personality and cheerful disposition which made him a welcome caller in his rounds in the discharge of his duties.

At the commencement of the war Major Alderman entered the Salvation Army War Services and was stationed in Newfoundland where he was in charge of a Salvation Army hostel known as Lakeshield Auxiliary. Later he had been connected with soldiers' rehabilitation service for the Salvation Army in New Brunswick

Besides Mrs. Alderman, who has been associated with his work, he leaves three daughters, Dorothea, Marjory, nurse, (who is married), and Ruth, now in the S.A. Officers' Training college.

The funeral will take place from the Salvation Army Citadel, Toronto, on Monday next.

Obituary

PHILLIP LEO NOLAN
(Halloway)

After a lengthy illness Phillip Leo Nolan died on Thursday at his home at Halloway.

Born at Flinton the late Mr. Nolan was in his 46th year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nolan. For some time he lived in Detroit, Mich., and for the past eighteen years he made his home at Halloway. He was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church at Roslin and was well esteemed in the community.

Surviving him are his wife; four sons Kenneth, Douglas, Orley, Gary, all at home; six daughters, Patricia, Beverley, Loraine, Melba, Barbara and Sandra at home; one brother, Edward Nolan, Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Devlin, Oshawa, and Mrs. Frank Kirby, Richmond, California.

The funeral announcement is made in this issue.

LATE GEO. EDWARD MARTIN

The funeral of George Edward Martin, formerly of this city and Plainfield, who died in Oshawa on Monday last, took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, on Thursday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Victoria cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean A. Beauchamp Payne, Rector of the Church of St. Thomas.

The bearers were Messrs. Clayton Hall, Charles Treverton, Earl Treverton, Edward Bradden, Joseph Bradden and Clarence Martin.

The late Mr. Martin was a member of Eureka Lodge No. 283 A.F. & A.M., and the last rites of the Order were conducted at the graveside by Wor. Master C. E. Myers of Eureka Lodge, assisted by Wor. Bro. F. Walker of Moira Lodge, Wor. Master J. R. McCullough of Moira Lodge, Wor. Bro. R. L. Orr, Eureka Lodge, Wor. Bro. P. W. Geen, Eureka Lodge, and Bro. Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne.

IN MEMORIAM

MOTHER—
What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see;
To hear her voice, to see her smile
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife
And clasp each other's hand one more
In Heaven, that happy life.
Marguerite and Frank.

Writer of Letter to Mr. W. C. Mikel Seeks Data on Family

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., is in receipt of a letter containing interesting historical data about early settlers and seeking information regarding certain families. The writer is Robert S. Doman, 529 Ocampo Drive, Pacific Palisades, California, U.S.A.

The letter follows:

"Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation.

"Studios.

"Beverly Hills, California.
August 30th, 1945.

"Mr. W. C. Mikel,
"Belleville,
"Ont.

"Dear Mr. Mikel,

"I recently purchased a copy of your book "The History of Belleville" and very much enjoyed it.

You have done a very thorough job of it and covered all angles. Having seen many other city and county histories, yours is tops.

"I have never lived in Belleville, but by great-grandfather Robert Dowman and wife, born Elizabeth Uppington, came to Shannonville in 1825 in the Peter Robinson expedition of some 2400 persons most of whom settled in Peterborough, arriving from Ireland.

"For some unknown reason it seems my great-grandfather was the only member of the Peter Robinson expedition to settle in the district between Belleville and Kingston.

"The family settled in Tyendinaga township, Lot One. Con. One, North of the road, getting title in 1836. Robert Dowman or Doman (the name dropped the "w" about 1852) died there about 1860. His wife Elizabeth was alive until about 1875. Their son James, ran the Grove Hotel, west side of King St., Shannonville in the 1870's and 1880s. Can't find out where he died.

"My grandfather John Doman, with a large family, emigrated from Shannonville to Bay City, Mich., in 1862.

"I have been with the advertising department of the studio for many years and was a war correspondent in the last war for the New York Herald.

"Mr. Dewar and Mr. Denyes have been helpful, giving me a copy of my great grandfather's will. Relatives of the Doman's were the Shaw family, the Conmeys, Coppingers, Fishers, Kellers, Halloys and Taunts. Would Mr. J. W. Haggerty, county treasurer, or Mr. Dewar know those people or have records of their property, transfers, wills, deeds, etc.

"Toronto general registrar of Vital Statistics has no record of deaths of above Roberts, Elizabeth and James Dowman or Doman. Would Mr. Haggerty have record of taxes paid by Domans? I am wondering if the 1879 Atlas of Hastings County would make mention of the Tyendinaga county section of the farms of the Coppingers, Conmeys, Fishers, Kellers, Malloys and Taunts before mentioned. The Coppinger farm was said to be adjacent to the Doman farm.

"I plan to make a trip to Belleville next summer, when things have settled down a bit.

"I have carefully gone through your book, but find no mention of my people. However, I am writing you in the long chance hope that you might be able to suggest the best way to find any records there may be of them.

"Best wishes to you and yours.
"Sincerely,
"ROBERT S. DOMAN."

Mr. Mikel desires information concerning the families mentioned in the above letted to send to Mr. Doman.

Firm is Building Town of 10,000 In Wilderness

Marathon, Ont., Sept. 28. (CP) — Behind a deep natural harbor near the point where the Pic River empties into Lake Superior Canada's newest boom town is rising on the north shore's rock-and-bush country roughly half way between the Lakehead and Sault Ste. Marie.

Together with installation of a 200-ton paper mill, construction cost of the town is expected to be at least $15,000,000. The project of putting a modern community in an area which civilization had hitherto passed by as too forbidding is being handled by Marathon Paper Mills of Canada, Ltd., a subsidiary of a United States firm.

Passengers on trans-Canada trains of the Canadian Pacific railway have seen the site of marathon, indicated on their time tables as Peninsula. It is on the section where the line rambles through high country, now plunging through a rugged gorge, now swinging boldly toward the shoreline for a fleeting glimpse of the lake and the passing freighters.

When Marathon is finished, it will accommodate roughly 10,000 people in brand-new houses. The paper mill, along with its staffs in the woods north of the town, will give year-round jobs to nearly 2,500 people

Right now Marathon is about half-built and is already taking on many of the characteristics of a typical Canadian boom town.

Dewey Gratified By President's View on 'Rights'

Albany, N.Y. Sept. 28. (CP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey said in a telegram to President Truman that he was gratified by the President's "reassurance concerning the rights" of New York State in the proposed St. Lawrence Power development.

The message was in response to a telegram from the President in which Mr. Truman expressed himself "enthusiastically in favor" of the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power development, with power rights of the State preserved.

Gov. Dewey's reply said:

"Many thanks for your telegram of Sept. 2" and your gratifying reassurance concerning the rights of the State of New York to the ownership and management of power facilities to be developed on the St. Lawrence River. The question still remains, of course, as pointed out in my original telegram, whether the point of view on which we are happily agreed will be reflected in legislation proposed to the Congress.

"It is my most earnest hope that the legislation will specifically respect and preserve by act of Congress the fundamental rights of the State of New York, in accordance with our joint desires".

Jap Orgy in Nanking Recalled

The United States used more than one slogan in prosecuting the war against Japan, relates The New York Times. We were asked to "Remember Pearl Harbor." Then it was "Remember Bataan." The Chinese could have had half a hundred. They needed only one. It was "Remember Nanking."

In that Chinese capital, four years before they attacked Pearl Harbor, Japanese troops under the command of the notorious General Matsui indulged in one of the most horrible blood baths in history. It is particularly appropriate that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek should have selected Nanking as the site of the formal surrender of Japanese forces in China.

At Nanking, in December, 1937, the Japanese set a pattern of conquest they have followed faithfully since. Any person seen on the streets was shot. Every home was looted. Old men, women and children were used by Japanese soldiers as live dummies for bayonet practice. Chinese prisoners were lined up in groups of hundreds and shot down. Then their bodies were burned. F. Tillman Durdin, a New York Times correspondent who witnessed the massacres, sent this report on one of them:

Just before boarding this ship (the U.S.S. Oahu) for Shanghai, the writer watched the execution of 200 men on the Bund. The killings took 10 minutes. The men were lined against a wall and shot. Then a number of Japanese armed with pistols, trod nonchalantly around the crumpled bodies, pumping bullets into any that were still kicking. The army men performing the gruesome job had invited navy men from the warships anchored off the Bund to view the scene. A large group of military spectators apparently greatly enjoyed the spectacle.

Indefinite Toll.

It probably is not yet known exactly how many Chinese were killed in Nanking. Estimates ran as high as 60,000 to 100,000. The great majority were not killed in combat, as there was little actual fighting in the city. They were killed by the Japanese needlessly and barbarously. One explanation was that the Japanese wanted to present such a picture of frightfulness that no other Chinese city would dare to hold out against them. Another explanation was that after the hard fighting in Shanghai and down the Yantze River Valley the Japanese troops needed an outlet for their pent-up emotions and Nanking was given them to loot and rape as they pleased. Many competent witnesses reported that if the raping and killing was not officer-inspired at least the officers made no attempt to control their men.

Nanking is only one of many crimes for which the Japanese must answer. But it is one of the worst, as it was one of the first. After Nanking, no one should have been surprised at any subsequent barbarities. It is a crime no living Japanese Army man should be permitted to forget. For if there were Japanese protests against the Nanking excesses, there is no record of them.

ASKS SYMPATHY

That America "extend sympathy" to Japan in her present plight is the plea of Prince Takamatsu (above,) brother of Emperor Horihito. In the event of the abdication of his brother, the Emperor, the Prince might be a member of a regency to rule for young Prince Akihito until the latter comes of age.

Aldershot's Tribute to Canadians

The garrison town of Aldershot, England, this week presented the Canadian army overseas with the freedom of the municipality at a ceremony on the football club's pitch which was watched by ten thousand Canadian soldiers. This was a goodwill gesture to pay honor to the Canadian forces and to the Dominion.

This honor was not an idle gesture for it was as Mayor J. W. White said the first time in history that any borough presented its freedom to a complete overseas army and the gesture he said came from the entire British Isles.

Here was paid a glowing tribute to the Dominion and her sons by Town Clerk D. Llewellyn Griffiths, who said, "This vast Dominion and her virile sons have earned a high place in the brotherhood of arms and we in this military borough are proud to recognise the kinship." To show how close the ties of Canada are with the borough through the Canadian army, General, Montague said that "Aldershot has been more than a place of bricks and mortar, trying grounds and huts to us. It has been the centre of our life in England."

Canadians have been coming from Britain in great numbers and the flow of veterans from the fields of Europe continues in ever increasing stream. They have been are and will be the interpreters of Britain in a very real way to Canadians who have never been in Britain. In them and in their relatives and all others in Canada the British Isles have true friends. Canadians of two wars remember Aldershot, the place standing out in their memory as Lieut.-General Montague said, Aldershot has been to the forces the centre of Canadian life in Britain.

Turns Misery Into Joy for 250,000

The hopes of hundreds of thousands of people throughout the world are centred in one small wooden hut marked "War Room" in Kandy, Ceylon, for from this hut in Ceylon is conducted the British army's most humane operation — sending home 250,000 prisoners of war from Southeast Asia.

This unpretentious home of RAPWI— Recovery of Allied Prisoners of War and Internees, now a night-and-day working organization at the headquarters of Allied Land Forces which covers an area of 5,000,000 square miles — has made one mistake. It should have been called "Peace Room."

RAPWI is a magic name. It means a long awaited home-coming to Mrs. Smith whose husband left London just before Christmas 1941 to fight the Japanese. It also means home-coming to Mevrouw de Graaf, waiting patiently at home among the ruins of Rotterdam; to Mrs. Brown, looking for the postman on the road to her farm in New South Wales; to a family in mountainous Nepal, whose sons have been fighting men for centuries; and to many others, who for three years have refused to give up hope.

The story of RAPWI began many months ago when it was christened with a solitary file and a modest memorandum.

It sprang to maturity and importance when the "cease fire" sounded on the war fronts of Southeast Asia, and today it is a vast organization feeding, clothing, curing, paying and sending home the first batch of men, women and children.

Its problem is not that of Europe, where our troops were close at hand, distances were short, and communications were easy and overland. In Japanese-occupied countries, the picture is vastly different.

Not even the Japanese could say where all the prisoners were. RAPWI had to find them, and to reach the prison camps by air and sea, Pacific communications, closed for more than three years had to be opened over long distances — 1,600 miles from Ceylon to Singapore (approximately twice the distance from Winnipeg to Calgary); another 1,400 miles to Hong Kong; Rangoon is nearly 1,000 miles by air from Saigon, French Indo-China. And when the prisoners have been concentrated, say in India or Ceylon, Britain is still 5,000 miles away, and Canada and the United States another 3,000.

Tropical diseases and malnutrition presented entirely new medical problems. RAPWI had to solve them.

Ships had to be loaded; stores of food, clothing and medical requirements had to be at the docks. Aircraft parachuted doctors and supplies, and staff officers were flown in to start the great task of counting and documenting. Money of many currencies had to be made ready for distribution. Everything from hospitals to hairpins, from mail to medal ribbons — all had to be obtained and delivered by RAPWI.

Each morning the RAPWI "cabinet" meets. Progress reports are read, problems discussed, and for two hours the planning goes on.. Colonel Clothing wants to know how many children will be in Sumatra. Brigadier Medical tells about hospital accommodation at Singapore. Colonel Movements talks about shipping for Hong Kong. Colonel Post Office says he has some mail for our men which was once on its way to them via Russia.

Colonel Chaplain wants to know whether his 7,000 prayer books have been loaded at Madras. Colonel Pay has several tons of money to fly about. Colonel Ordnance asks about flying a mobile bath unit to Saigon. Colonel 'Ops' tells where and what aircraft are flying.

And so it goes on, day after day, this "operation Humanity." Another 20,000 to be budgeted for in Java. Ten thousand more mouths to feed at Singapore, and always the end of the conference is the same — the Brigadier says: "Let me have an answer at two o'clock, gentlemen." And he gets it.

The cost of all this? Estimates are $4,000,000. But for turning the misery of Christmas 1941, into the joy of Christmas, 1945, it is the cheapest operation of the war.

Their Work is Not Ended

British minesweepers' work goes on. At the moment there are still a hundred of them in service and they will have to carry on their hard and hazardous task for at least another year to clear the shores of Britain of mines. It is recalled that the Royal Navy laid down 100,000 anchored mines in home waters and the enemy too managed to lay a large number. At the present time, about 300 to 350 mines are being rendered harmless in a week but the work may have to be interrupted during the winter. Thus the main task in clearing the shores of Britain from the danger of mines will probably not be completed until next summer.

Blowing Away Jap Myths

(Christian Science Monitor)

Those who know Japan best remind us that her people's belief that they are the "children of the gods" is old and deep-seated. It will not be quickly removed. But many of the worst features of trickery and fanaticism which have characterized Japan's recent war-making are fairly modern and politically-stimulated excrescences on her ancient faith. They can be counteracted by changing the direction of education and by social reforms. There is reason to believe that the free winds of information and truth will blow away many of the myths and greatly help in the "spiritual disarmament" of Japan, which is no less necessary than her physical disarmament.

A medical discovery of vaccine to cure scrub typhus, one of the most disabling diseases in the Far East was made by Britons during the war and will play a vital part in Far Eastern reconstruction, British doctors state.. The vaccine will be used by the United Kingdom and Allied rehabilitation personnel going out to the Far East to bring the long-neglected plantations back into production.

No other protection is wanting, provided you are under the guidance of prudence.— Juvenal.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH., 1925.

It is interesting to note in connection with the recent induction of the Rev. R. G. Stewart, late of Nepawa, Manitoba, as minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, that the family of his mother settled in Belleville eighty years ago when they came from the north of Ireland. They attended St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church which was known then as the Scotch Presbyterian Church.

At a meeting of the Conservatives of South Hastings in the city hall here this afternoon Mr. W. E. Tummon, former County Councillor, was selected candidate to represent the riding at the next Dominion elections. He was elected on the third ballot, the standing of which was, W. E. Tummon 109; R. J. E. Graham 103 and H. F. Ketcheson 5.

Mr. George N. Simmons, Highland Avenue, left this afternoon to spend some time in western Canada.

30 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH., 1915.

The members of the Y.M.C.A. Knitting Circle will be "At Home" on the afternoon of Sept. 30th at the residence of Mrs. D. V. Sinclair, William Street from 3.30 to 6 o'clock. Silver collection will be taken for patriotic and Red Cross work.

Mr. R. H. Ketcheson is visiting the Panama Exposition.

Mr. E. M. McCoy, William St., will leave tomorrow to resume his studies at Queen's University, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bell, George Street, are visiting relatives in Watertown, N.Y.

The meeting of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners here has been postponed from Oct. 1st to a date yet to be set. Mayor Panter received this information today.

40 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH., 1905.

A complimentary supper and smoker was tendered last evening by the officers of the 15th Regiment to Capt. Will Conger, who will leave in a few days for Halifax. The affair was held in the officers' quarters, Church Street, and all the officers including the Chaplain, the Rev. G. R. Beamish, were present, also Col. Ponton, Lieut. Col. J. Earl Halliwell, the commanding officer of the regiment presided.

Messrs. J. L. Tickell and D. Grass went to Picton today.

Steamers leaving Belleville and other bay ports at present are laden with shipments of apples. A large shipment of apples left here yesterday for Montreal.

50 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH., 1895.

Mr. Will Thomson has returned to the city from Chicago.

Mr. D. F. Yerex, photographer, of Hamilton, formerly of Belleville, is renewing acquaintances in town.

Mr. W. C. Mikel will act as chairman as a concert in Shannonville this evening.

Prof. D. R. Coleman of the D. & D. Institute, has returned home from Chatham where he acted as interpreter of the testimony of deaf mutes in a will case.

Mr. J. G. Davidson spent yesterday in Trenton.

Mrs. W. W. Chown, representing Bridge Street Church and Mrs. James McCurdy and Mrs. W. H. Gordon representing the Tabernacle, left for Oshawa today to be present at the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church.

No Telling Just Where Eire Stands

They are demolishing the air-raid shelters in Dublin.

A natural thing to do reflects the visitor from Britain, until he realizes with something of a shock that there should really be no air-raid shelters in Dublin at all, George Murray writes in The London Daily Mail.

Eire was a neutral country, and her neutrality was undisturbed by the few German bombs which fell upon Dublin.

But, unlike any other neutral in the world, she contributed hundreds of thousands of men and women to the armed forces and war industries of one of the belligerents—Britain.

In and Out.

The truth is that Eire was born in the war and out of the war. Her situation was anomalous in the extreme, but no more so than much that is unreal in the life of the familiar stranger across the Irish Sea.

Nobody, not even in Eire, seems to know exactly where the country stands politically, economically or socially. She is the enigma of the Western World.

Is she a kingdom, a dominion, or a republic?

The question remains unanswerable.

The prime minister—in Gaelic, the Taoiseach—Mr. de Valera, has explained, with the aid of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, that Eire is a republic.

But he spoke with no burning enthusiasm. There is little heat in a lexicon.

Is Eire a democracy or an autocracy? Again there is no precise answer.

The de Valera Party, the Fianna Fail, is in power—and that means really in power.

Spoils of Office.

The "spoils of office" system is in operation, and appointments from highest to lowest, are given to party men. As one shrewd observer said to me: "This regime could give points to Tammany Hall."

Many people murmur of dictatorship"—and yet there is always the safety valve of democratic elections.

Some Irishmen say that Fianna Fail cannot possibly lose the next general election. Others predict that Mr. de Valera will be swept from office.

As with most things in Southern Ireland, you pay your money and you take your choice.

What of economics? Is Eire to be an industrial country or to remain largely agricultural. No one seems to be quite certain.

In the past few years a number of secondary industries has been set up in the shelter of tariffs obviously designed to exclude imports from other countries, principally Britain. Yet Eire relies absolutely upon the Briztish market for the sale of her agricultural produce.

Sterling Balance.

One of her chief worries today is a sterling balance of £400,000,000 in London which is virtually "frozen" because there is nothing she can buy with it. She desperately needs coal, but so does every other country in Europe.

The Eireann trains, trmas and buses have recently been fused into one system, somewhat like the London Passenger Transport Board.

But while the new corporation is nominally owned by the former shareholders, who get a guaranteed dividend, all decisions are made by a government nominee on the board of directors. He can himself constitute a board meeting, and can outvote any number of private directors.

Is this nationalization, or is it not? Nobody seems to know of the nebulous compromise which forms the basis of life in Eire today. Clever, courteous, soft-spoken Eamon de Valera sits up aloft and says little—except when he is stung into indiscretions by that "Socratic gadfly" James Dillon.

Past and Present.

The country lives partly in the past and partly in the present. The more recent past comes alive for visitors from the moment they touch the shores of Southern Ireland.

Life in Dublin has an ease and leisureliness long foreign to London or New York. In Eire the relations between master and servant, mistress and maid, are those of our fathers' days.

The people have time, and inclination, to be courteous and friendly. The Irish charm remains unspoiled, and the Irish hospitality is still warm and lavish.

Yet Eire has not escaped the heavy hand of war. In Phoenix Park brown mountains of stored peat—or turf—range for miles along the main highway. Thousands of tons are stored there as an emergency fuel reserve for the winter.

Eire has little or no coal. She has done without it for more than five years. At one time coal dust mixed with tar was made into bricks and used in the trains. But the slag used to choke the fire boxes and often stop the engines.

APOLOGY TO SPORTSMEN

In this column recently I said: "Killing merely for sport is not my notion of recreation or pleasure.

. . . . But I have an imagination and it makes me sick and angry when I see some sadistic moron proudly displaying the deer, the birds, the fish he has managed to kill by means of almost automatic machinery, never by his own skill."

The thing got the goat of at least one sportsman—I hasten to print his comment before the deluge:

Dear Doc:

I just returned from an evening of fishing and read your article...

To begin with, it is the most inconsistent bit of scrawling I have ever seen. You begin by enumerating unsportsmanlike instances and conclude by calling all sportsmen, especially proud ones, sadistic morons. Where is the connection? Consult Webster for the meaning of the word sadistic—I don't believe it is the word you want . . .

I would love to see you catch trout on a fly with what you call an automatic weapon or tie a file that will lure a wily trout and then repeat "never by his own skill."

I do believe you are one of those unskilful sportsmen who develop a sour grapes attitude because of their own incapability.

Try duck hunting. Such a quack as you make yourself out to be should find his field here.

A lover of mankind
C—— E——

You have my permission to print this. (C.E.)

There I go again—opening my big mouth only to put my foot in it. C—— E—— is so right and the garrulous Quack Brady so wrong that sackcloth and ashes would be too good for him.

What makes it the more humiliating is that I used the term sadistic—but there it is in cold print sneering at me, and this time I can't blame it on editorial alterations or even typographical error. I'm stuck with it, and, oh, for a hole to crawl into until the mortification subsides.

For a long while I have privately sneered at writers and speakers who used the term sadistic as though it were synonymous with cruel, savage, malicious or merciless. What wicked gremlin got into my typewriter and made me use the word myself?

For that matter, my use of the term moron was only a little less censurable. Certainly all hunters and fishermen are not morons—as C—— E——'s gentle (in the circumstances) rebuke so clearly indicates. But in extenuation I hope discerning readers will note that I so characterized only the exhibitionists, not all hunters and fishermen.

But I do humbly apologize to my readers for my improper application of the adjective sadistic and for my gratuitous assumption that a cruel individual is necessarily a moron.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Secret Alcoholism or Tobaccoism Cures

Please advise whether—, which can be given without the patient's knowledge, is really a cure for the tobacco habit.

(Mrs. H. D.)

Answer—Of course it has no effect on tobacco habit. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for folder on the Tobacco Habit. Inclose ten cents if you want the booklet "Dispsomania" (liquor habit).

Vitamin B

Are vitamin B (thiamin tablets fattening? (C.F.)

Answer—No.

Hygiene

Sister and I have never paid the slightest attention to so-called "care" during menstrual periods. We have pursued all our activities uninterruptedly. We have never experienced any of the troubles so many young women have. So we know your teachings are correct. (E.J.)

Answer—Thank you. After all, menstruation is a function, not an illness. I am glad to send to any woman who asks for it and incloses a stamped envelope bearing her address a monograph "Hygiene for Girls and Health for Women." This gives the consensus of modern medical opinion and the conclusions reached by a noted medical woman who for many years had charge of women in one of our great universities.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is tuberculosis called the white plague?

"White plague" as a common name for tuberculosis of the lungs is believed to have been coined by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

At least the earliest known application of the term in that sense occurs in his "Elsie Venner," which was first published in 1861 under the title of "The Professor's Story."

The narrative deals with a country doctor who drove a Morgan mare hitched to an old-fashioned sulky.

One clause reads, "—in the dead winter, when the white plague of the north has caged its wasted victims, shuddering as they think of the frozen soil which must be quarried like rock to receive them, if their perpetual convalescense should happen to be interfered with by any untoward accident,—."

The term was probably suggested in contrast to "black plague" by the palor associated with tuberculosis in advanced stage, by the great toll of life the disease takes, and by the insidious manner in which it claims its victims.

At that time tuberculosis, then generally known as consumption, was much more prevalent in New England than at present and it was regarded as an incurable disease.

It is one of the most widespread diseases. It occurs in all parts of the world, affects all races as well as lower animals, and it attacks every organ and part of the body.

Tuberculosis of the lungs was described in ancient times by Hippocrates among the Greeks and by Galen among the Romans.

Pent-Up Desire to Travel May be Satisfied Shortly

New York — Millions of Americans with a yearning to travel and billions of dollars to spend —are figuring out now where to go for next year's vacations. And steamship, aeroplane and railroad companies are burning the midnight oil planning all-expense package trips to every point of the compass and to fit every pocketbook.

Luxury Service.

There'll be two-week plane excursions to Europe, four-week around South America jaunts, and round-the-world trips which can be made as short as two weeks, or as long as you like.

Though airlines won't quote exact rates, they say that the two-week European excursion, which includes accommodation at the best hotels, sightseeing tours and guide service, will cost in the neighbourhood of $700.

One airline has ordered 35 giant clippers which can fly from 109 to 204 passengers each. The double-deck airlines, they boast, will offer the ultimate in luxury travel. There'll be lounges where passengers can play cards or watch movies, snack recesses where hot meals will be served, and a choice of private staterooms, comfortable berths or reclining seats—according to what the pocketbook can stand.

Speed in Flying.

Radar will make it possible for these clippers to keep their schedule in any kind of weather. By flying at 30,000 feet they'll be able to avoid storm areas, thus assuring a smooth trip. Air conditioning, pressurized cabins which maintain low attitude conditions, and the use of a new noninflammable gasoline will make the plane trip as comfortable and safe as an evening at home. Because of the enormous capacity and high speed of the clippers — they'll make the trip from New York to London in about nine hours — fares will be low enough for the average traveller's budget.

Frequent flights will make it possible for a round-the-world tourist to drop off at, say, Rome and take a feeder line plane up to the lake district of northern Italy for a few days, return to Rome and pick up another clipper for Cairo. At Cairo he would journey down the Nile and hop on the next ship bound for Calcutta and China for more sightseeing.

Must Prepare.

However travel agents don't see such pleasure trips to Europe and the Far East until late in 1946. First, government restrictions must be lifted on the building of these airliners and new passenger ships. Passports for pleasure travel are not yet available.

Also, as they point out, travel won't be a pleasure until it is possible for Europe to refit hotels and run them smoothly, return railroads to their normal time schedules, and import enough food and fuel to take care of the extra burden of tourists.

Meanwhile, those who want to see something of foreign countries will have plenty of places to go in the Western Hemisphere. Today you can fly from New York to Mexico City for $132.14, including tax. You can leave in the evening at 7 o'clock and arrive in time to have breakfast at Samborn's on Avenida Modeiro. Or if you hear the call of the wild and want to head for Alaska, you can leave New York and be in Juneau 22 hours later for $234.72, including tax.

Those who like to have a taste of quaint foreign atmosphere, but can get away for only a long weekend or so, now can fly to Bermuda in five hours for about $80. And when Pan American's big trans-Atlantic planes are put on this shuttle service, it is expected that time and fare will be cut almost in half.

At Work Now.

To the north, Canada is working at top speed to improve and complete several new resort spots in virgin territory opened up during the war to develop recently discovered gold and strategic base metal mines.

By next year, say Canadian tourist bureaus, the big hotels at Banff and Lake Louise will be open; Moosonee on James Bay will have a new hotel and cottages for goose-shooting enthusiasts; Lake Sesikinika and Lake Timagami with its 1,800 miles of shoreline and 1,600 islands will also be ready to offer all the comforts of home right in the wilds.

Package trips by air and railroad are being planned to Lake Timagami, for instance, which will include transportation, lodging, two to 10-day fishing and hunting trips with guides and canoes, and moonlight dance excursions, for a nominal sum.

For Sportsmen.

The lake's bass, pickerel and speckled trout are being supplemented with a half-million landlocked salmon. And especially attractive to hunters is Canada's year-round bounty of $10 on adult bear.

Recently, the last link in the Trans-Canada Highway was completed, which puts Canadian road mileage above the half-million mark. The highway, which opens up a sportsmen's paradise of virgin hunting and fishing grounds is ready for auto tourists from Halifax to Vancouver. All along the way are modern hotels for overnight stopovers. And to give tourists a taste of local color, gold mine operators in this territory are considering breaking an ironclad rule to permit visitors underground to watch mining operations.

LIBERAL GOVT.

Veterans Minister Mackenzie.

3. Mr. King said the government would consider any representation from striking Montreal butchers.

4. Finance Minister Ilsley said no solution had been found to provide increased meat rations to certain classes, such as the striking Southern Alberta coal miners.

5. Justice Minister St. Laurent said hearings Oct. 11 and Oct. 15 of petitions calling for the disallowance of certain Saskatchewan government acts would not be court hearings, but oral representations to the Minister of Justice.

Amendment Defeated

The last two amendments followed the government's wheat price policy declaration of a ceiling of $1.55 on export prices for overseas shipments and a guarantee to farmers of a minimum price of $1 for the next five years.

The Progressive Conservative amendment, defeated by 116 votes to 91 called for a floor under all farm prices based on 90 per cent of parity pending the establishment of a generally equitable price system based on parity. The C.C.F. amendment, defeated by 117 to 90 called for immediate establishment of prices based on parity.

The Commons today proceeds with Finance Minister Ilsley's resolution preliminary to the introduction of a bill to appropriate $1,365,000,000 for war and demobilization expenses which will throw the whole war activity open for discussion.

Mr. King's decision to go overseas was applauded by the House and approved by the three opposition party leaders, John Bracken of the Progressive Conservatives, M. J. Coldwell of the C.C.F. and Solon Low of Social Credit.

The wartime arrangements whereby Canada and the other smaller countries among the United Nations accepted the decisions of the leaders of the big states would not do for the peace settlement, Mr. King warned.

Refrained from Pressing

As the country making the greatest contribution to the war after the United Kingdom, United States and Russia, the Canadian government refrained from pressing for a voice in wartime decisions reached by former Prime Minister Churchill and the late President Roosevelt in order to avoid the necessity for bringing all the United Nations into consultation.

"For military reasons," said Mr. King, "it was necessary to acquiesce in the operation of wartime arrangements under which responsibility for major decisions on the direction of the Allied war effort were concentrated in a very few hands.

"The continued use of methods such as were improvised to meet the urgent strain and hazards of war, whereby private settlements were arrived at between the great powers on issues of general interest might well become a source of difficulty and even of danger.

"Every possible precaution should, therefore, be taken to see that in this particular the wartime pattern is not perpetuated in the framing of the peace settlement and in the United Nations organization."

Will Visit Truman

Mr. King's trip follows an invitation from Prime Minister Attlee which he was unable to accept immediately. He also has a long-standing invitation to visit President Truman at Washington which he has not been able to accept and it now is expected he will see the president as soon as possible after his return from Europe for two purposes — to pass on information he obtains overseas and to discuss Canadian-American problems in the light of the world situation.

Mr. King was questioned by opposition leaders about Canadian representations to the council of foreign ministers and stated it was the government's undertaking that any draft peace treaties drawn up by the council of the "Big Five" would be purely preliminary and that Canada and other countries would have an opportunity to participate in the final settlements.

Prepared Statement

A little later in a 1,500 word prepared statement he stressed this and said:

"It is important that Canada should not merely be consulted but that there should be a clear recognition of Canada's right to effective participation in the great decisions where questions affecting the general ordering of the future peace of the world are under consideration."

The big questions now are not boundaries and territory but attitudes and objectives, said Mr. King.

"They are hard to formulate and hard to answer," he said, going on to say they included what kind of world was desired, what people meant when they said peace and prosperity were indivisible, how nations could help one another.

"We should find working answers to these questions and find them without delay," said Mr. King. "For on the answers which we in Canada and other countries give to these questions national policies will be based."

The House went 40 minutes past its usual adjournment hour of 11 o'clock to take the votes and to elect W. Ross MacDonald (L — Brantford) deputy speaker. Mr. MacDonald was nominated by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and was elected without opposition.

British Losses Compared

(By H. L. MacPherson in The Windsor Star.)

Some highly fantastic comments relative to Britain's war effort are being made these days. What is most remarkable about them is their consistent inaccuracy. It leaves one wondering how so many persons could be so poorly informed while presuming to know so much.

Explanations can be given for their spate of wild words. Facts which have been before them time and again have not been assimilated. Bits of enemy propaganda they picked up have stuck. This is the most unfortunate feature of the ignorance they advertise. Untruths and half-truths have been remembered, factual matter forgotten.

Thus, again, and this time not from enemy sources, we are hearing that Britain has not pulled her weight in this past war, as in earlier wars; that Dominion troops and forces of other allies did the fighting while Britain muddled around and looked after her own.

Those persons never get down to facts and figures to support their charges. They haven't any facts, of course, but it doesn't seem to bother them. Broad generalities the stab in the dark, the barbed assertion, are good enough for them. They can't back up what they say, but they go on saying it, and perhaps believing it.

If there is an explanation for their extravagances, however, there is no justification. The story of the sacrifices of war has been reduced to the simplicity of a balance sheet, and it is there for them to read as well as anyone else. And they can understand it, if they want to understand. They will find it in summaries of casualties for the belligerent nations.

The final balance sheet for the British Empire has not yet been drawn up, but there's no need to wait for it. The latest at hand, one which lists all Empire casualties, except Canada's up to last May 31 will suffice. It shows, a toll of 1,427,634. Add Canada's approximately 105,000 and the total is 1,532,634.

It may surprise the Anglophobes to learn that half of this aggregate —750,380—was contributed by the United Kingdom, a political entity often referred to as Britain in general usage, and as England by the sloppy.

Of that 750,380, no fewer than 233,420 were killed, as of May 31. The final totals will be higher, and perhaps will exceed 800,000 for all casualties, and 250,000 for killed in action. For the present, however, we can stick to the three-quarter million figure.

This can be used as a yardstick to compare Britain's losses with other countries'. Britain has one-third the population of the United States, and four times Canada's the rest is simple arithmetic.

If the United States had lost as high a proportion of men as Britain, its casualties would have reached 2,250,000, with more than 700,000 dead. Canada would have lost 187,500, including almost 60,000 dead. But final American casualties will approximate 1,100,000, with 260,000 dead; and the complete Canadian last will show about 105,000, with 40,000 dead.

It must be noted, too, that the British casualty figures are for the armed forces only. They don't include losses of 45,315 in the Merchant Marine, including more than 30,000 deaths, or civilian casualties of 146,760, with 60,585 killed. The United States and Canada have had next to nothing in the way of civilian casualties.

These figures speak for themselves, yet there are those who can look at them, and a few days or a few weeks later make careless assertions that John Bull invariably lets other do the bleeding and dying for them.

After Canada and the United States, Australia and New Zealand are mentioned as two countries which have carried the load for Britain. As a matter of fact, Australia's casualties of 92,211, to May 31, are lower proportionately than the United Kingdom's. At Australia's rate, Britain would have lost about 600,000 instead of more than 750,000 men.

Only New Zealand stands ahead of Britain. Its losses of 39,783 figure out to approximately 1,074,141 in terms of British casualties. And to carry it further, the price New Zealand paid equals 3,280,000 in American casualties, and 275,000 in Canadian. New Zealand lost men at an even greater rate than Canada did in World War I.

World War I? If the bushwackers want evidence of the toll John Bull pays in a bloodbath, let them turn to the statistics for that conflict. These figures give Britain's losses as 812,317 killed 1,849,484 wounded, for a grand total of 2,661,811. A generation was shattered.

Further comparisons will show that to match Britain's losses in World War I the United States would have had to lose 7,500,000 men, or almost twice as many as it mobilized. Its actual casualties were 250,000, with 126,000 killed and died of disease, and Americans said they won the war. Canada's sacrifice, to equal Britain's, would have had to be double what it was.

These are some of the points that can be read in the balance sheet, and surely they are not beyond the comprehension of those who persist in error, then with perverted zeal try to spread their misconceptions.

Friends of Mr. William Cooke, Foxboro, will be sorry to hear that he has been injured in an accident near Stirling, and is now in the Belleville General hospital.

WEDDINGS

HUNT—BAINES

A quiet and very pretty wedding took place on September 22, at King Street United parsonage, Trenton, when Elizabeth Ruth Baines, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baines, of Corbyville, Ont., became the bride of Mr. Eduard Ross Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hunt, 34 Alford Street, Trenton, Ont., The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Martin.

The bride wore a street-length dress of robin's egg blue sheer and shoulder-length veil with orange blossoms. She wore a corsage of roses.

The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hunt, Ottawa.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the groom's parents, after which the happy couple left for Toronto and Niagara. The bride travelled in a brown tailored suit with matching accessories. On their return the couple will reside in Trenton.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baines, Mr. John Gordon, of Corbyville, Mr. William Baines and Mr. and Mrs. Don Brooks and daughter and Miss Bertha Hunt, of Belleville, also friends from Toronto.

Choir Members Hold Cup And Saucer Shower

The choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Foxboro, journeyed to the manse at Roslin, where they held a cup and saucer shower in honor of one of their members, namely Miss Muriel Bartlett, a bride of October. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald received the guests.

Helen MacDonald, prettily dressed as a bride, wheeled in a carriage laden with gifts. A Treasure Hunt was also arranged for the remainder of the gifts. Muriel thanked the choir in her gracious way.

Games and contests were enjoyed, and at the close of the evening all sat down to a well-laden table.

Good wishes by all were extended to the bride-to-be, and a hearty vote of thanks given to Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald for the lovely evening spent in their home.

Cup and Saucer Shower for Bride-Elect of October

Last night friends of Miss Gloria Norris, bride-elect of October, gathered at the home of Miss Phyllis Clapp, to honor her with a cup-and-saucer shower. Hostesses for the shower were Miss Jeane Henry and Miss Clapp. During the evening a bride's book was compiled. This afforded guests a great deal of pleasure and amusement and will no doubt bring Miss Norris happy memories in future years.

Decorations were in pink and white. Mrs. Norris poured tea and dainty refreshments were served.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S A SURE THING that there'll be the same old weather, which means pretty cold in many parts of the country. Nice for cold weather, at-home wear is an all-wool negligee, a step-in model in pale blue with belt buckle and buttons of silver. Convertible collar and front fullness in skirt which has fly closing. Shoulder fullness.

Nice balance between the fussy and the tailored is a simply-handled large felt hat with crown band embroidered in stones or sequins.

A good bet for Autumn is the velveteen-trimmed wool suit. Black wool makes a good suit with collarless neckline, deep-armhole sleeves and a rounded yoke of black velvet. Braided frogs for fastening.

Getting votes for its usefulness and charm is the white fur coat. A good model, useful for afternoon or evening wear, for winter sports or southern resort wear is a three-quarter length coat of white moire Indian broadtail lamb. It has high, tapering revers and huge sleeves with self cuffs.

The soft look, combined with pretty accents and interesting color schemes, marks the new crop of junior dresses. Royal blue wool and rabbit's hair is used for a smart frock with chartreuse piping down the shoulders and on the distended hip pockets. Chartreuse buttons down the back and on pockets.

Just made to tuck in the neckline of a suit is a beautiful scarf —in white rayon sheer or crepe with black border—centred with a huge rose set off by green and red sequins. A border of tiny roses with tiny colored sequins runs around the 30-inch square.

SUPPLY OF RICE

Calcutta, Sept. 28 — (Reuters) —The Indian government has arranged with the British government for the immediate supply of rice from Arakan in Burma to aid in alleviating a shortage in Bengal, a government spokesman announced. Last year a serious famine swept the Bengal area.

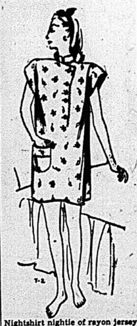
Dormitory Favorite



Nightshirt nightie of rayon jersey.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THE NIGHTSHIRT nightie has become a big favorite with college girls according to reports from college shops all over the country. Selected from this season's crop is this nightshirt of printed rayon jersey, a fabric that doesn't require ironing. The color scheme is white with multi-colored flowers, and green ricrac braid is used at the plaquette pocket and short, loose sleeves.

Old-Fashioned Thrift Means More and Better Meat Meals

The "roaring twenties" saw a temporary eclipse of the virtue of thrift. In those years prodigality was in fashion and the words "a thrifty housekeeper" carried an implication of meanness.

The war changed all that and plain old-fashioned thrift was restored to its place among the common-sense virtues.

Applied to meat rationing thrift means more and better meat meals within the allowance.

Three recipes from the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture use small amounts of meat to make dishes that are substantial and unusually good.

CORN AND BEEF LOAF

1 cup soft stale bread crumbs
2 cups corn, cooked and cut from the cob, or canned
1 lb. ground raw beef
1 egg, slightly beaten
1-2 cup milk
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 1-2 teaspoons salt
Pinch of cinnamon
Pinch of cloves

Reserve 1-2 cup of the bread crumbs. Combine all remaining ingredients. Put part of the reserved crumbs onto bottom and sides of a greased loaf pan. Add meat mixture and top with remaining crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for one hour. Six servings.

VEAL WITH NOODLES

1 1-2 lbs. boneless stewing veal
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
3 cups water
1 cup canned or chopped fresh tomatoes
1-2 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon celery salt
3 cups noodles, 1-inch pieces
1-2 cup sliced onion

Cut veal in cubes, dredge with flour, seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown in hot fat. Add garlic and water, bring to boiling point, cover and simmer for one hour. Add tomatoes, milk, sugar and celery salt and simmer until meat is tender, about 30 minutes longer. Meanwhile cook noodles and onion together in boiling, salted water until tender, about 15 minutes; drain. Serve veal on a platter surrounded with noodles. Six to eight servings.

MEAT PATTIES WITH TOMATO SAUCE

1 lb ground raw beef
1-4 lb. ground beef liver
1 small onion
2 teaspoons salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups mashed potatoes
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons fat
2 cups canned tomatoes.

Mix meat, seasonings, potatoes and egg yolk lightly together; shape into 12 patties. Brown on both sides in hot fat then cool slowly until well-browned, 8 to 10 minutes. Remove patties to a hot platter. Add tomatoes to pan, bring to a boil and pour over patties. Six servings.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Swapping Jobs Brought Real Happiness to Married Couple

When a woman helps to solve the financial burdens of her family, even in a modest way, and finds domestic happiness as well, she's entitled to a great big hand, as a famous night-club hostess used to say.

Here's the story of a "little woman", city-bred, who never lived on a farm till after she was married in her early twenties. She would have loved it if it had not constantly put them deeper and deeper in debt. Her husband, who was born on the farm, hated it. He wanted to go to the city (please don't smile and go into the brokerage business. They loved each other devotedly, but the question of farm life versus city life caused plenty of wrangling.

The war settled this question when the husband was drafted and the wife's allowance for herself and two children amounted to $100 a month. He deeded the farm over to her before he went overseas.

Now the first thing the "little woman" did seemed to shatter prudence at the start. She persuaded the local bank to lend her $600 on the place and with this mortgage at the masthead she began. She spent $150 in repairing some tumbled-in chicken houses which had gone to rack and ruin since her father-in-law's death.

Her husband wouldn't keep chickens. She bought day-old chicks from a hatchery. They varied in price from four to eight dollars a hundred. The cheaper ones were a mixed lot which she fattened and killed at the end of six to eight weeks. The more expensive were good layers and kept for that purpose.

She rented ten acres of ground to a nearby independent canning plant. The acreage was planted in tomatoes which the canners planted and harvested. Near the house she raised some choice garden vegetables—corn, cucumbers, egg plant, squash and leafy greens.

She writes me that if she could have afforded a truck, she could have made twice the amount. But she had to depend on a nearby commission merchant who was a pretty sharp trader. Her own children, being only three and five, were too young to help. But a 15-year-old brother was an exceptional farmhand. At times he rounded up a few of his schoolmates who, when not obliged to do chores at home, or if the swimming hole was not too tempting, worked for 25 cents an hour.

My correspondent was tempted to invest in a cow but didn't dare undertake a dairy risk.

After two years, when the "little woman's" husband was honorably discharged with a leg wound, which made farm life even more distasteful, he was amazed to see what his wife had accomplished. The $600 loan from the bank had been paid off and the joint decision of the couple was that the city-bred wife should run the farm and the country-bred husband should get a job in the local bank.

Pleading guilty to purchasing a new synthetic tire without the necessary permit from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, a local motorist paid $20 and costs when he appeared in local county police court Thursday morning. Evidence by the investigating official brought out the accused had made application for a tire permit but had been refused.

2 Months For Theft.

Joseph McVicker, Deseronto, was sentenced to two months in the common jail for the theft of a radio from a Deseronto resident. McVicker appeared in court last week and after pleading guilty was remanded for sentence pending obtaining of his record by the Crown. Today it was revealed the accused had previously been convicted on a series of theft, fraud and forgery counts.

In defence the accused claimed he got into trouble only as the result of drinking and usually in his home town of Deseronto. Until recently working at Wellington, McVicker was warned by the Crown to stay away from Deseronto following the expiration of his sentence.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett were Mrs. R. Gay, Mrs. Peter McInroy and Miss Bessie Hollinger.

Mrs. Sandy McCurdy and Joan, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Post attended the Brough-Dickey wedding at Bethel on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Adams at Moira on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brough of Toronto (newlyweds) spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brough and in the evening a number of guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr were dinner guests on Sunday at Arthur Wilson's.

Young People's Union.

The Young People's Union held a most delightful meeting recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Thompson of Moira. There was a large number in attendance and the program was presided over by Mr. Russell Sills. Readings were given by Jean Haggerty and Mr. Alex McCurdy. Miss Margaret Haggerty delighted with a solo. The Misses Marion and Phyllis Hammond gave a duet. In the business period it was decided to donate $5.00 for the fund rebuilding the churches in England.

Mission Band.

Mission Band met at the home of Mrs. Foster Wilson on Saturday afternoon with a large attendance. Marjorie Wright presided and Geo. Cooke read the lesson and Mr. Stewart offered prayer. Readings were given by Muriel Ashley and Mary Elliott. The Study Book chapters were given. Mrs. Wilson and Marilyn Fitchett contributed a solo.

After Cards' Loss Only Full Collapse Will Prevent Cubs-Tigers Meeting in World Series

Chicago Cubs Can Get No Worse Than Tie by Losing Three, While Cards Win Same Number

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Only complete collapse on the part of Chicago Cubs or Detroit Tigers will prevent them from meeting in the World Series.

The Cubs today enjoy a three-game lead over St. Louis Cardinals in the National League pennant race as a result of yesterday's double triumph over Cincinnati, 3-1 and 7-4 while the Cards were bowing to Pittsburgh, 5-2.

Even if the Cubs were to lose all three of their remaining games and the Cards were to win their three, Cholly Grimm's jolly Bruins, like the Tigers in the American League, can get no worse than a tie for the flag.

The Cubs rest today preparing for their three-game clash with the Pirates starting with a double-header Saturday, need only one victory to clinch the flag. The Cards, meanwhile, engage the Reds in three games, two of them tomorrow.

Steve O'Neill's cocksure Bengals, idle yesterday, also remain inactive until tomorrow when they come to grips with St. Louis Browns, defending World Series champions, in the first of a two-game week-end meeting. Like the Cubs, the Tigers need only one victory to edge out Washington for the junior loop championship.

The Senators, who ended their current campaign last Sunday, switched from praying to playing yesterday by edging out Boston Red Sox 2-1 in an exhibition.

Yesterday's twin victory was the 19th time this season the Cubs have won both ends of a double-header.

Hank Wyse and Paul Derringer elbowed the victories, Don Johnson's sixth-inning double and Peanuts Lowrey's homer breaking up the opener, and triples by Lowrey and Phil Cavarretta bringing in the deciding runs in the nightcap.

The Cards received their near-kayo blow from the left arm of Elwyn (Preacher) Roe, Pirate southpaw, who humbled them with three hits while chalking up his 14th victory of the season. The Cards lost the game in the first frame when George Dockins was tagged for three hits and the same number of runs before he was relieved by Al Jurisich.

In the only other big league contest, the Yankees clung to their slight chance to finish third in the American League standing, with an 8-1 conquest of Philadelphia Athletics. Red Ruffing won his seventh victory since his discharge from the United States Army by combining a home run with six-hit pitching. The defeat marked the A's 98th loss of the season and the club's 15th cellar finish.

NEWARK BEARS SCORE THREE IN NINTH TO WIN

Montreal Now Two Games Down and Have Had Best Hurlers Beaten

Montreal, Sept. 28 — (CP) — With the Bears two-up in the series, Montreal Royals and Newark travelled southwards today to pick up the third game of the Governor's Cup series in the International League park at Newark Saturday.

Newark trailed the Royals 3-1 going into the ninth last night then ganged up on Honest John Gabbard to send home three runs and take the contest 4-3.

Lanky Karl Drews hurled the Newark team until the top half of the seventh and was replaced by Frank Makosky, who was awarded the win, who in turn gave up his spot to Jack Farmer in the ninth.

Jean Pierre Roy was also relieved in the seventh by Gabbard who pitched well until the ninth when Bears staged their scoring spree.

First baseman Phil Weintraub and fielder Jerry Crosby were the main cogs in toppling Royals. Weintraub rifled a long single with bases loaded scoring two men and tying things up. Jerry Crosby followed with his double to right field sending home the winning run.

Bears gathered their first [illegible] in the seventh when Baker scored on Bill Steinecke's double.

Manager Bill Meyer of Newark used pinch hitters, pinch runners and relief pitchers in abundance to eke out the win, with 18 men on deck.

Makosky and Karl Drews gave Makosky one, while Farmer had none. Roy gave seven bases on balls during the time he pitched and Gabbard one.

Probable pitchers Saturday will be Ray Hathaway who pitched the disastrous first game for Montreal, and Johnny Moore for Newark.

Chandler Outlines Playing Schedule For World Series

Chicago, Sept. 28 — (AP)—The office of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler announced Thursday a complete schedule and playing conditions for the 1945 World Series between the American and National League champions still to be determined.

Here's the schedule:

If the series is between Detroit of the American League and the Chicago Cubs of St. Louis Cardinals of the National League — games 1, 2 and 3 at Detroit Oct. 3, 4 and 5; games 4, 5, 6 and 7 at Wrigley Field, Chicago, or Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 6, 7 8 and 10.

If it's between Washington and Chicago or St. Louis — games 1, 2 and 3 at Washington Oct. 3, 4 and 5; games 4, 5, 6 and 7 at Chicago or St. Louis Oct. 7, 8, 9 and 11.

Play will begin at 1:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time at Detroit or Washington and Central Standard Time at Chicago or St. Louis. (Canada and the United States will return from daylight time to Standard Time Sept. 30 but Chicago will continue thereafter on Daylight Saving Time throughout October unless the city council changes the existing ordnance).

NOT TILL 1946

Toronto, Sept. 28 — (CP)—The Globe and Mail said today in a newspage story that unrationed sale of liquor is not likely until early in 1946 because of the expected heavy demand for Christmas.

Hamilton Teams Dominate Eastern Football Picture

Wildcats Favored to Beat Windsor, While Tigers Should Down Montreal

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It shouldn't occasion any eyebrow-lifting in eastern football circles this week if one of the Hamilton teams should suddenly replace the opening kick-off with a more complicated centre-field ceremony, such as sawing in half a couple of fetching blonds from the bleachers.

Such sleight-of-hand should be routine stuff for the prestidigitators who have caused two tough teams to sprout where just one bloomed last season.

Whick is a tricky way of saying that Hamilton, a city of little more than 150,000 inhabitants, can be congratulated on producing two strong threats for senior honors in Coach Brian Timmis' Tigers, who open their interprovincial Union season in Montreal tomorrow, and in Eddie McLean's Ontario Union Wildcats.

Wildcats will be betting favorites to conquer Windsor Rockets at Hamilton on the strength of past performances by veterans like George (Scotty) Wright and Jimmy Funio and promising newcomers Joe Soyka and Joe Capriotti. Rockets, decisively beaten in one league and one exhibition game, still appear short on backfield strength and experience.

In the only other O.R.F.U. weekend game, two old Toronto rivals—Indians and Balmy Beach Tip Tops—meet under floodlights Friday in Maple Leaf stadium. Victory for Beaches, in conjunction with a Wildcat triumph would create a triple deadlock for the union leadership involving Beaches, Wildcats and Indians.

The game will be preceded by a memorial ceremony for seven members of Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes (Grey Cup titlists in 1942), six of whom have since been killed and one of whom is listed as missing.

The Tiger clash in Montreal, also under floodlights, serves as a debut both for the Hamilton entry and for the hometown Hornets under Coach Bill Hughes and Assistant Glen Brown. No definite line is available on Hornets, whose strength has not been tested, but there can be no doubting the potency of a Hamilton team containing names like Paul Peterson, Murray Crowe, Jimmy Smith, Walter Gibb, Paul Miocinovich and Joseph (Red) Hickey.

Tigers trounced Windsor 21-1 in a tuneup test last week.

The other big four tilt Saturday matches Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts at Varsity Stadium in another instalment of a long-standing rivalry. Argos shaded Riders 11-9 in Ottawa last week on two fourth-quarter touch downs.

The only senior team not scheduled Friday or Saturday—Ottawa's twice-beaten Trojans of the O.R.F.U. — entertain Verdun, Que., in an exhibition fixture.

Shore Selects Six for Team At New Haven

Saskatoon, Sept. 28. (CP)—Six players including two ex-servicemen, have been selected by Eddie Shore from his hockey school here, to go to Midland, Ont., for further training before being allotted to New Haven in the American Hockey League or to Fort Worth in the recently organized United States Hockey League.

The players selected by Shore were Jack Stover, Calgary; Otto Schmidt, Stan Jones, Bill Jones and Nestor Lubeck of this city; and Peter Hauck, Kerrobert.

Eldon Kobussen, Saskatoon, who was recently discharged from the Navy will also go to Midland for training. Kobussen was a member of Shore's Buffalo Club before his enlistment.

EXEMPTION REQUESTED

HANK GREENBERG ONLY SHADOW OF FORMER SELF

Made to Look Bad at Plate and Cannot Cover Ground Due to Bad Ankle

By GAYLE TALBOT

Detroit, Sept. 28 —(AP)—Hank Greenberg, highest paid player in baseball today, stands a good chance of being the "goat" of next week's world series. The big fellow who returned in July to play left field for Detroit Tigers after nearly four years in the armed forces, is but a shadow of his former self.

Big Hank is being made to look bad at the plate, and an injured ankle is restricting him to about the area of a victory garden out in left as the Tigers stumble toward the American League flag.

With Hank in their line-up — and Manager Steve O'Neill has almost no other choice — the Tigers would go into the series against either Chicago Cubs or St. Louis Cardinals dangerously handicapped. A few balls hit out Greenberg's way at crucial moments easily could decide the championship.

The averages, which obviously tell only part of the story, show that Greenberg leads Detroit's potential series outfielders with a batting mark of .305. Cramer, just coming out of a bad slump, is hitting .273; Cullenbine's average is .272, but he has clouted 18 home runs and leads the Tigers in runs-batted-in with 92. Jimmy Outlaw, Greenberg's replacement, has a .275 mark and is a fast outfielder, but the Tigers need him on third base.

Young Trio for Cubs

Against this array, the Cubs, who appeared today to have the National League bacon almost salted away, will be able to throw a much younger trio headed by Andy Pafko, at the moment the ranking hero of the loop. He is hitting a robust and timely .302 and is scrapping for the league's runs-batted-in crown with 109. Peanuts Lowrey is hitting .281 and has knocked across 80 scores. Bill (Swish) Nicholson, though having a poor year, nevertheless has belted 13 home runs and driven in 87 runs with his .284 average.

The Cardinals, whose hopes were very thin today, have a swift, well-balanced set of gardeners in Johnny Hopp, hitting .290; Buster Adams .282, and Red Schoendienst .282. Augie Bergamo, their utility outfielder, is a .316 hitter.

Washington Senators, who will be out of the pennant race if the Tigers win one game in St. Louis to clinch the pennant, have Buddy Lewis, hitting .333 in 69 games; George Case hitting .294, and Buddy Binks, hitting .278. The Senators, like Detroit, have had their most important strength tied up in their pitching staff.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press.)

The two New York major baseball clubs yesterday announced the retaining of their respective team managers. The New York Giants announced that Mel Ott, 20 years with the team including four years as manager, had signed a contract to pilot the club for the next five years. At Havana, President Larry MacPhail of the Yankees revealed Joe McCarthy had been retained for 1946 and also spiked the rumor Leo Durocher of Brooklyn Dodgers would replace McCarthy.

MacPhail, in Havana to arrange for the Yankees' Spring training next February, did not deny that Durocher would be the choice if McCarthy, ill last Summer, decided to retire.

Thomas N. Ivan of Toronto, has been appointed manager of the Omaha team in the United States hockey league, it was announced yesterday by Detroit Red Wings, parent N.H.L. Club with which he has been identified as a scout since 1937.

Although pressed by Nimble Volo in both heats, Spartan Hanover, owned by T. J. Sullivan, of Whitneyville, Me., yesterday captured the historic $3,000 Walnut Hall Cup Harness feature in the Lexington, Ky., trots. The best heat was done in 2:04 3-4.

Although he has 69 candidates for the team, Coach Johnny Metras of Western Mustangs, duration champions of the Senior Intercollegiate Football league, said at London yesterday he was still looking for the 12 men for his starting line-up despite stories he had a wealth of starry material.

A move was re-introduced in the city council at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., last night for the adoption of a resolution providing a plebiscite on the question of Sunday sports there. The recommendation, turned down by council two weeks ago, is scheduled for the next meeting of city fathers.

MATRON-IN-CHIEF

Ottawa, Sept. 28 — (CP)—Lt.-Col. Agnes Neill of Toronto has been appointed Matron-in-Chief of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Nursing Service, succeeding Col. Dorothy MacRae of Iroquois Falls, Ont., who has returned to civilian life, defence headquarters announced last night.

The Columbian Squires leave tonight at six o'clock for Hamilton where they will take on the juniors softball prides of the Ambitious City in the first game of the titular series,..The kids will play at Woodland Park at five o'clock....The Belleville Junior baseball squad will also make the trip to battle the hardy kids from Dresden...Manager Jack Boyle will throw in his ace Don Boyle against the Hamiltonians in the first brawl in an effort to get a stranglehold on the mug. And if the kid shows the same form he did against the Mount Carmel kids here last week, he should pull out with a win...An interesting sidelight on the Mount Carmels came to light after the game the other night...It appears the boys are strictly a baseball squad who turned their activities to softball late in the season and went on into the playdowns.. Speedy St. Louis will likely start Bunton against Dresden in his part of the Saturday afternoon sports program, with the Dresdenite in all probability using their negro mound ace, Cooke to start off proceedings. As far as moral support goes, the squads should be even although with the Dresden populace in the throes of championship fever, there is likely to be a good representation of the Western Ontario fans present.

Champions All.

And now to Picton to see the members of one of the champion teams in the Greatest Game of All. Winners in the five year Civilization versus Tyranny stakes. The Prince Edward people are extending a grand "welcome home" to their sons and daughters who saw service in the war, many of whom served in the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment..And the field of sport was well and truly represented.. There was gay Ron Church, one of the best baseball showmen of them all; Davy Young, whose "Sterrrike Tuh" was a familiar sound on many diamonds of the district; Raymie Hudgin, "Peckin" Welsh; Major Brock Hudgin, veteran of two wars; Shrimp Phillips, who paid the supreme sacrifice; Tommy Fillingham shot down while fighting bravely in foreign skies; Lt. Col. Jack Leavens, and a number of others who were in the sports limelight long before the shadow of war dimmed an unwary world. In the dark days of war, like those of hockey cushion and baseball diamond, they never quit until the final whistle blew...And now that Hirohito has struck out for the final out in the battle against the "Murderous Nine" the boys are coming back and will take up the threads of life where war parted them.

What a Series.

Two of the best southpaw pitchers in Intermediate baseball in Ontario are now in the throes of a hectic series....They are Jack "Lefty" Garten of the Bata Shoemakers and "Smoky" Smith of Collingwood fame now chucking for the Thornbury nine....On Wednesday afternoon the two forksiders engaged in the second thrilling duel with Garten coming up with the nod to even the Intermediate "B" semi-final series at one each by smacking out a two-ase hit in the thirteenth innings that drove in three runs and won his own game by a 5-0 count....In the first game at Batawa the squads battled twelve innings before Thornbury scored a 3-2 victory....The third game of the series will be played at either Oshawa or Oakville, all depending on availability of the different diamonds....The series two games thus far have produced something of a record in playoffs, if not intermediate "B" circles... Thus far the two teams have played 25 innings in two tussles. The two lefties have struck out 74 batters between them with Garten whiffing 31 and "Smoky" 41..And only one walk has been issued thus far..It occurred when Garten walked the first batter to face him in the first game at Batawa....Smith lost a heartbreaker on his own diamond after whiffing 24 batters on Wednesday..The teams battled twelve scoreless innings and not a man of either squad reached first base until the ninth when the Batamen got a man aboard but who died there....Not a Thornbury runner reached third base until the 13th chukker....Came the first half of the 13th and the Batamen went to work....Cook beat out a perfect bunt and Brisco pulled a "drag" bunt between first and second catching the hometown infield napping....Two on and none out ....Bata hopes rose higher than the Empire State building..Haffey popped out but Solmes sent a single screaming through second back up and take a second try to get through....Although handicapped with his mind on his throat and his midriff, with those cannon-ball shoots of both pitchers thudding into catchers' gloves with a sound like distant thunder and with the possibility of foul tips, tis said "Ducky" did a first-class job...Which brings up the suggestion that perhaps baseball managers had better resurrect some of that ancient equipment.

scoring Cook. The next batter struck out, but Haines the Thornbury catcher muffed the catch and made the play to first, too late, with Brisco scoring....One of Smoky's fast one's hit Peacock, and the sacks were loaded. ... There's the picture, two runs in, two out and the sacks loaded.... Garten strode to the plate, and with any batter that two-run lead looked bigger than Pike's Peak.. Then Garten cinched his own game..He got hold of one of Smoky's fast ones and drove it to deep centre field for a doule clearing the bases..The next man went out but what does that matter..The next game the chips will be down and what a battle that should be..Incidentally Garten struck out 19 batters in Wednesday's game..He allowed nine hits with his team getting 10 off Smith's delivery..And while on the Thornbury-Bata subject, Umpire Don Thomas had a rather unusual experience. Being the umpire of the visiting team he expected naturally to romp around the bases, and with pitchers like Garten and Smith in action had more or less of an easy time..... But the Thornbury master-minds thought otherwise and told Don politely he was scheduled for the plate job. Now, "Ducky" figuring on the bases spot, had not taken his umpire's gear with him—but that didn't do him any good. "We've got some here you can use," said the Thornbury moguls and produced the plate umpire's equipment Noah used when managing the Ark Aborigines nine... It was an old-fashioned padded affair with the body protector's V-neck cut so low that a 1946 glamor would have conidered her Emily Post before using. The affair was vest-bottom high and the mask one of those gadgets that even a mosquito would have to

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You can make hard work of idge. Or you can relax and joy it. That depends on the mplicity of your basic rules and w free they are from excep- ons and deviations.

Never open the bidding with- t at least five suit tricks, of hich four are no-trump tricks, which two are sure tricks. If u use such a basic rule, your ture bidding will stand up.

Unlax and lazy through this ir of hands:

SOUTH
♠A K 10 2
♥A 9
♦8 7 4 3
♣K 8 6

NORTH
♠7 4 3
♥K J 8 3 2
♦A K Q
♣7 4

The bidding falls into a slot like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 S	2 H
2 NT	3 NT

Each high card (ace or king or queen) is counted as a no-trump trick. Each high card or short card counts as a suit trick. So, south has five suit tricks, four of which are no-trumpers.

A game in no-trump requires the taking of nine tricks. Therefore, it may be assumed that a pair with nine high cards can make a game contract of three no-trump. It is usually there.

But a pack of cards contains only 12 high cards. If opponents have four of them, your side has only eight. In spite of this, you may still make nine tricks if you take the 13th trick.

What I'm trying to say is that you can sometimes make a game of three no-trump with only eight high cards. This usually happens when your side also has the most sure tricks.

In this deal, south has shown no more than four high cards. With his own four high cards, north is able to see a total of no more than eight. But south has also promised two sure tricks. With his own two sure tricks north may assume a preponderance of sures in the pair.

When your no-trump is a stretch, you may not be such a stretch.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 28 — (AP) — There probably will be more talk about flies in baseball circles this winter than any year since Fred Snodgrass made his $30,000 muff . . . all Snodgrass did in 1912 was drop an easy fly that cost the Giants the World Series . . . this year fly balls that were or were not caught have figured prominently — perhaps decisively — in both pennant races . . . it does seem odd that you have to read all the way down to rule 49 to learn what constitutes a fairly-caught fly.

Just a Tossup

(First look at the possible world series pitchers)

Hal Newhouser, Tigers — lefthander. Off the records, he's the best pitcher on any of the contending teams. Has won 24 games so far in spite of complaints about a lame back. Also a fair hitter. American League's most valuable player last year and in the running again . . . Hank Borowy, Cubs — righthander. Cost Chicago a reported $100,000 last summer and may be worth it. Has won 10 games in each league this season and, if the Cubs make it, will be in his third world series in 4 years in the majors . . . Harry Brecheen, Cardinals. Southpaw. Recovered from an early-season sore arm to become the Cards' most consistent winner with a 14-4 record so far.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 28 — (CP) — Ever since football promoters in Ottawa and Winnipeg reached into the open market to import United States players like Wally Masters and Fritzie Hanson, traffic in gridiron ivory has been confined to a one-way street across the international boundary.

There were plenty of imports, but few "exports."

The trend seems to be changing now. Before long, if present indications mean anything, trade will be practically on a reciprocal basis. Les Lear, for years a star in Western Canada, made the grade with Cleveland Rams; Joe Krol is playing for Detroit Lions; Doug Smylie of Toronto Argonauts is pondering a football excursion to some New York state university, probably Cornell; and Ross McKelvey, 21-year-old Toronto Indians backfielder, attracted favorable attention last season at Alabama University.

Around Montreal it's the same story. D'Arcy Quinn and Ralph Webber of Montreal, little known outside Quebec, left last week for North Carolina State University with a four-year scholarship in their travelling bags. Dutch Davey of Stratford, Ont., kicking half on the Montreal-St. Hyacinthe Navy team which won the Grey Cup last year, is heading in the same direction.

Football scouts from the United States are becoming almost as commonplace in Canada as their baseball counterparts. Dr. Lewis L. Walter of Atlantic City, finger man for Holy Cross University, was in Montreal this week looking over high school prospects.

The boy who caught his eye was Pete Finlay, West Hill High product.

Dr. Walter wrote Sam (Montreal Herald) Maltin that it probably will be 1946 before quarterback Pete can enter Holy Cross, where football already has started this season. "But they want the boy! I've also submitted his name to the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia, due to his brilliant school credits."

Father Athol Murray, founder of the famed Notre Dame Boys' College at Wilcox, Sask., believes the government has a great opportunity to help youngsters on the prairies — and probably anywhere else in Canada — by promoting "sporting war memorials." Father Murray suggests hangars at air schools throughout the Dominion could be converted into hockey rinks in memory of men who died on active service.

"The hangars should be distributed to towns in consultation with the hockey association which should know where they'll serve the most people. Maybe they could be offered to communities who are ready to install artificial ice in them — it wouldn't cost much when you have the building."

INDIAN CHIEF DANCES

Muncey, Ont., Sept. 28—(CP)—When Chief David Hill of the Oneida Indians in Delaware township paid a visit yesterday to the fair of the Chippewa Indians on the neighboring Muncey Indian Reserve, he did a war dance and trail dance — not as a hostile gesture but to entertain his hosts. His ceremonial suit was topped off with a headdress of 100 eagle feathers.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was starting to look comfortable after supper, and ma said, William, this son of yours needs a little talking to.

Really? I'll be glad to hear you give it to him, pop said, and ma said, I think you'll decide to add your personal touch when you find out what he's been up to. He arrived home with a note from his teacher complaining that he told her an utter unvarnished falshood as an excuse for being late for school, she said.

It almost sounds as if she meant a lie, pop said, and I said, No sir, pop, it was the truth, I just told her I got my foot caught in the car track, that's all I told her.

For Peet sake do you mean to say that actually happened to you on your way to school? pop said, and I said, No sir, it happened last night.

Now look here, you weren't out of the house last night, it was raining, pop said, and I said, I know, pop, I dreemed it. That's when it happened, last night in my sleep, I said.

Since when is a dreem the same as the truth? pop said, and I said, Well jimminy, pop, it's true I dreemed it, isn't it?

How do I know whether it is or not? pop said, and I said, Because I can prove it by telling you the whole dreem, there was a lot more to it, even worse.

Never mind for land sakes, ma said. I dont want to hear about any gastly accidents that happened to you, even in a dreem, she said, and pop said, Oh well, as Shakesbeer or somebody wrote, Verily verily it doth seem, All life is but an idle dreem.

Making me start to feel lucky till pop said, So I'll merely cut your allowance by 5 cents this week and you can tell yourself it's a dreem and laugh it off.

Which I wish I could.

CHAPTER 3

Elaine stared at the red tip of the cigaret, glowing in the grass a few yards away. "There wasn't much to be done—just tighten up some of the lines I had written."

Lee was at her side now. "You are sweet, Elaine, and you're a liar. Those were my lines you worked on, and they sounded swell." He was silent for a moment. "Elaine, will you go to New York with me?"

It may have been hours before she answered. She didn't know. She seemed unaware of all time and space. She only heard her voice say: "I'll go anywhere with you, Lee."

His lips were possessive against hers, and she returned the kiss with a fierceness that frightened her.

If Lee and Karen were disappointed with John Warren's office in New York, Elaine was not. She had the feeling that while he was not a four-flusher, neither was he a prominent Broadway producer. She was not yet well enough acquainted with the manipulations of the trade by which Warren made his sketchy living, putting most of his resources on his back, and what was left in the pocket of a well-tailored suit.

For to John Warren, good appearance was his only advertisement of the shoddy night club acts he built. His experience as a producer of plays had come through jobs with leading producers. His own efforts in stage productions had long ago broken him financially. He might have still held to a hope, perhaps dismally, that he would one day be able to produce a play that would succeed and run for a year or more. He might have hoped that from the earnings of the small acts he built, of the ill-paid summer stock shows he backed, he could possibly scrape enough money together to stage a brilliant play with high-paid talent.

Elaine did not know, of course, but she could guess. And the dingy offerings of Warren's office led her to believe that her guess was correct.

Lee turned to look at them when he pushed open the door to Warren's reception room. It was empty and except for a few scattered pieces of cheap furniture, old magazines and a few pictures of stage personalities, completely bare. It had a deep sense of depression, and its effect on one like Lee and Karen was sickening.

"What gives here?" Lee muttered.

Karen's eyes narrowed. This visit meant much to her, for she was out to sell herself regardless of the outcome for Elaine and Lee. She looked outstandingly smart in a fall suit of powder blue, and the shoulder-length bob of her blond hair was particularly lovely. Elaine knew that her own wardrobe could not match the advanced styles that Karen gathered, but she was self-consciously glad that it didn't, for she had not the courage to wear the shorter length dress that had reached metropolises that fall.

An inner door swung open and John Warren appeared, staring blankly at them. He had the polished, starched look of success that so sharply belied the setting they stood in.

After a moment he recognized the three. "Well, I thought I heard voices out here," he smiled widely to them. "Come in, come in."

His office was a relief from the reception room. The desk that stood in the centre of the carpeted room was at least a good imitation of mahogany, and even though the carpeting was worn and faded, it lent dignity to the room.

Warren settled himself in a leather-backed chair behind his desk and motioned to other similar chairs in the small room. He shuffled some papers, pushed aside a dusty script book, and then looked straight at the three former college students.

"You've all graduated by now, haven't you?" He watched their silent nods. "You've all worked hard during the summer to pay an expensive bill to New York—to see me, to get your play on Broadway, to reach for the moon and stars and success, haven't you?"

Only Lee answered, with a quiet, "Yes."

Warren leaned back in his chair and sighed. "You've got a great play in 'Golden Night' and I'd like to produce it. I could make a lot of money and you three could have your fame—and the wealth that goes with it. But I can't produce it."

Karen gasped, and Lee leaned forward, his face strained. Elaine sat quietly, staring at Warren, pitying him and knowing that his answer would be when Lee asked: "Why can't you Mr. Warren? If you think the play is so good, what's there to keep you from staging it?"

Warren, wearily waved his hand at the room, nodded toward the reception room. "You have eyes. Does this office look like money?"

Karen whispered, "I should have known."

Warren smiled. "Perhaps you should have, Miss Stoddard. You look the most matured of your little group. You look as if you might know what I'm talking about when I say an author with a reputation doesn't even consider showing John Warren a new play."

Karen flushed and Elaine smiled to herself. Lee looked a little befuddled and she felt sorry for him.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, though," Warren said, leaning forward. "I've got enough faith in you kids to try to borrow, beg, or steal enough money to produce, a play of yours and star Miss Stoddard."

"What about 'Golden Night'?" Lee asked.

Warren shook his head. "The cast is too big. I can't afford a large cast. I can't afford extensive sets. I need some thing I can handle cheaply. How about it?"

Lee bit his lips, looking nervously at the pictures on the wall. Karen stood up, her eyes flashing harshly at Warren. "I don't think we should even consider your proposition."

Warren shrugged. Elaine leaned forward, her smile for Warren one of understanding. "Just a minute, Karen. Mr. Warren, if you think you could stage the play with care and ability, we'll do it."

Warren's shoulders seemed to lift. "Thanks for believing that I could produce a play successfully. You write such a play, bring it to me in, oh say, two, three months. I'll try to have enough backing for it by then. Meanwhile," he rose, "you might try some other producer with 'Golden Night.' The season doesn't look too bright. There doesn't seem much money on Broadway this year. But you could try. I shall expect a draft in two months, then."

On the street below the three of them stood motionless, watching the flood of afternoon traffic stream up and down the busy New York avenue.

Karen's mouth curled with hardness when she looked at Lee. "You certainly brought us on a wild chase. Warren couldn't produce a nickel for a cup of coffee. And you," she whirled to Elaine. "If you think I'd act in any of his productions!"

"You will," Elaine answered, "if he can raise enough money to produce a play. Come on, let's start looking for steady work."

Elaine and Karen shared an inexpensive apartment near the East River and Lee had a small room in a nearby building. [illegible] was a rather dismal entry to Broadway, Elaine knew, but somehow she had expected it. It would not be true for her to say that she wasn't disappointed; that it didn't hurt; that she was not scared. But it would do no good to let all those admissions crowd her, press her out of what she wanted.

She did not trust Karen's ability to hang on, and if the fight for what they were after took too long, she would not be surprised to see Karen go her own way.

It was Lee that Elaine fret-
ted about mostly. He still seemed a gangling college freshman to her. She was not certain just how much he could take without weakening—as Karen would. And she was afraid of the influence Karen might possess over Lee.

She stared out the window of the little apartment, watched the rain pelt against the street below. Yesterday they had claimed New York as theirs; today—well, today it had taken Elaine a lot of courage to tear up the letter she had written to her parents, telling them she was returning home.

She wasn't going home until she was a success—until she and Lee were successes.

Elaine turned and gazed at the sleeping face of Karen, stretched out on the little studio couch with its faded chintz cover. She observed the apartment. Yesterday it had seemed nice, cute, even clean. Now there was a sad, tired expression to the walls and their cheap prints in dusty white frames. The few pieces of furniture in the room and its adjoining kitchenet sagged with worn appearances. Only the little figurines made of inexpensive material and obviously bought in a dime store had any brightness for the dreary and rainy day—that brightness even seemed a little bizarre.

She picked up her hat and coat, and, carrying a large and bulky manila package, slipped quietly out of the apartment and down the flight of stairs into the warm, soft rain.

The clank of the package slot in the mailbox was almost lost in the wild scramble of noise on the New York corner, watching cars and people flow past her, rain spraying from tires that made rasping sounds on the wet cement and asphalt. There seemed millions of different sounds, more sounds than she had ever heard in her lifetime, on that corner.

She pulled the collar of her coat tighter around her neck and dipped her face against the rain. Its beat felt refreshing against her cheeks and she could feel the tiny drops standing precariously on her curling eyelashes. And the pellet of rain that dribbled down her nose, paused at its tip, then plunged earthward, made her smile and think about the manila package.

It was like Warren had said, she thought. There was really nothing to lose by letting other producers see "Golden Night," and she knew that to take the script personally would be folly, for the barricade of office girls and secretaries would block her path. At least by mailing it the play would have a chance to get into a reader's hands. She was not worried especially about the reader's reactions. It was a good play, she knew.

She only hoped Anthony Brann would think so. And he was New York's mots successful producer.

Unconsciously her direction took her toward the rooming house Lee lived in. And it was not with surprise that she saw him coming down the worn cement steps, pausing to light a cigaret.

Kinsmen Fag Fund Still Needs Help, Saturday is Tag Day

"A nickel, a dime, a quarter for the Kinsmen Fag Fund?" Such will be the appeal on Saturday when the local Kinsmen club holds its annual fag fund tag day to help raise money to send fags to the boys still overseas. Members of the club will be out bright and early while other taggers have volunteered to help make the day the success it deserves to be.

The following Belleville boys were each shipped three hundred cigarettes by the Belleville Kinsmen Fag Fund: H. Anderson, Jim Bly, E. Donnan, C. Dougherty, T. Doyle, T. Gilmour, W. Hales, G. Lancaster, G. Morris, J. Mouck, A. Murray, J. McLaren, G. Scott, T. Scriven, A. Smith, R. Soaft, G. Thompson, E. Wessels, G. Yearwood, R. Asselstine, J. Betts, E. Burling, C. Bush, K. Edgecombe, E. Group Capt. Fullerton Commanding Officer At Trenton Air Station

Succeeding Group Captain Bell-Irving M.C., who is retiring from the Air Force at his own request, Group Captain E. G. Fullerton, commanding officer of the R.C.A.F. station at Centralia, has been appointed commanding officer at Trenton, it has been announced. Group Captain Fullerton has been in charge at Centralia since the opening of the station in 1942.

The new commander of Trenton the R.C.A.F. tartan worn by the the R.C.A.F. tartan won by the men of the Kiltie Band recently welcomed at the Trenton station.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB HOLDS BUSINESS MEETING

First supper meeting of the opening fall season was held by members of the local Y's Men's Club at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday evening with loose ends of summer activities being caught up as well as plans made for the coming season's program. Date for the club's contemplated concert "Talent on Parade" was set back to the middle of November and an estimate of the number of club members who will be going to the Y's Men's conclave at Guelph next month was taken. The meeting was strictly business with no speaker scheduled for the evening.

FIRE DOES NOT WAIT!

Check your heating equipment and fire insurance NOW before starting fires for the fall season. It will save you much time and worry later on.

We'll be very happy to go over your policies with you at no cost to you at all. SEE US SOON.

3,000 Exhibits Housed in Picton Fair Buildings

Picton, Sept. 28—Picton Fair got away to an auspicious start today, when a welcome was tendered service personnel. With attendance at the final day on Saturday, it is confidently expected that new records will have been established. Directors decided on a Victory Fair, and added many special features.

Interest has been at a high pitch for weeks, and tomorrow's crowd is expected to equal the record one of yesterday, as everyone in the county takes a holiday for the annual show.

In the various buildings are more than three thousand small exhibits such as flowers, fruit, vegetables, ladies' work, home cooking, art, handicraft, grains and seeds, and entries by county school children which exceed 800.

Special displays have been arranged by the Red Cross, Navy League, I.O.D.E., Boy Scouts, Public Health Nurse, Salvation Army and the County Girls' Garden Brigade.

Collection Outstanding.

The collection of photography is outstanding. Included in the oddity show are some mammoth pumpkins and freaks of nature.

War souvenirs from all parts of the world, fill a large show case. A new departure is the arranging of ladies' work in sections to represent each room in a house.

The poultry building is filled to capacity as are the sheep pens. The county's best Holsteins, for the Black and White day tomorrow number more than one hundred. J. R. Henderson, Portsmouth is judge. Included in Far Land Farms entry is a heifer purchased for $3,600.

Horses were never better with an especially heavy entry of driving horses. The team owned by Sawyer, Stoll Lumber Co. of North Hastings, with a $500 set of harness is outstanding, as are entries of A. Wright, N. Ferguson, E. Rabble, R. Thompson, H. Pyne, M. Sills, C. Hicks and many others.

The large midway is an attraction with it many rides.

Barns are filled with horses for the races, with two races daily for $1,200 in purses, and a county race added for Saturday.

Recently arrived at Trenton Station, the Kiltie Pipe Band will be here Saturday.

Adding to the setting for the best fair in years are the buildings, newly painted inside and out.

Five teams are competing for the county softball championship, with games both afternoons.

Once one of Ontario's biggest fairs, that at Picton is rapidly regaining its old time glory.

TO MY FELLOW CITIZENS:

The long weary war years are over. Our boys and girls in the Armed Services have won for us a great victory, and the year 1945 has brought peace to the world. The war clouds have disappeared, the lights of a darkened universe have come on again. Let us now fill those promises made during the trying times to keep faith with men who died on the field of battle.

Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt presented the world with the Atlantic Charter — a guarantee of freedom from want and freedom from fear. We now have an opportunity to prove the sincerity of this great Charter by contributing to the Belleville and district Community Service Chest.

This is a four-in-one appeal, and is to carry on the great Christian and humanitarian work of the Children's Aid Society, the V.O.N., the Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army. On these organizations rest the community responsibility during the vital transition period from war to peace. It is only with your financial support that this great work can carry on. Belleville has always backed the Community Chest—do so now. Let us show our thanksgiving of God's great gifts by giving twice as much as ever before.

Welcome your canvassers—give generously.

Yours Sincerely,
Frank S. Follwell
Mayor, City of Belleville.

Madoc Mother Saves Her Children But Dies of Burns

Farm House and Contents Complete Loss Through Fire

Madoc — (Special) — Rushing back into the house to save her four children who were having their afternoon sleep, Mrs. Oscar Reynolds, age 24, four miles west of Madoc village, received fatal burns Friday afternoon when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the family farm residence.

Suffering terribly Mrs. Reynolds was given first aid by Dr. Eagleson of Madoc who rushed her to Belleville hospital. She died mid-morning on Saturday.

Although complete details of the fire are unknown, it was stated the fire had gained considerable headway before being discovered by Mrs. Reynolds who rushed upstairs to save her sleeping children. The youngest, a girl of six months, also received burns but three older children escaped. Mrs. Reynolds' mother-in-law, Mrs. William Reynolds, who had been sick in bed for two weeks, also escaped the flames.

Husband of the dead woman was away from home with a load of corn to the canning factory at Frankford when the fire took place. He learned of the fire when he got back to Madoc.

Silo fillers were working at a nearby farm and rendered every assistance upon discovery of the fire but the farmhouse and all contents were a complete loss.

BRITISH, INDIAN TROOPS LANDED AT BATAVIA, JAVA

Indonesian Republican Government Will Not be Expelled

Singapore, Sept. 29 (CP)—British and Indian troops commanded by Lt.-Gen. Sir Philip Christison, newly-appointed Allied commander of the Netherlands East Indies, began landing at Batavia, Java, today, it was officially announced here.

Troops were sent to Java to rescue prisoners of war and internees and to disarm the Japanese, Gen. Christison said.

"British and Indian troops will not become involved in internal politics," he said.

The Indonesian "Republican government" will not be expelled, the general added, but rather it will be expected to continue the civil administration of areas not occupied by British forces. Dutch troops were not included in the landing forces because Indonesians had said they would oppose their landing.

"I intend to see the leaders of the various movements and tell them what we are coming for," the general said. "Until a change is made in their political structure they must co-operate."

He intended to bring Dutch representatives and Indonesian leaders together at a round table conference which "the Dutch have steadfastly refused to do hitherto."

Plenty of Food.

There was plenty of food in Java but owing to the deterioration of the railways and motor transport under the Japanese distribution was bad, he said.

Distribution inside the country would be the responsibility of the Indonesian government, the "De Facto government of the moment."

Japanese troops will be used to maintain law and order until the administration can be handed over to the Dutch, Gen. Christison added.

"I am stopping all Dutch troops coming until we are well established. We shall hand over all internal security to them when their forces arrive, and then dispense with the Japanese . . .

"The Dutch must make a statement on the status of the Netherlands East Indies and something must happen at once," he added.

(Dutch War Minister J. J. Meynen disclosed at the Hague today that 4,000 Dutch soldiers were on their way to the Dutch East Indies. About 27,000 troops were to be sent in the coming five months, he added.)

Gen. Christison said armed Indonesian forces would not be disarmed. They would be permitted to fly their national flags.

HOUSE DEBATES $1,365,000,000 WAR EXPENDITURE

Members of Commons Also Interested In Size and Nature Of Post-War Forces

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 29 —(CP)— Debate on the first regular money bill presented to the new parliament yesterday directed the attention of members of the House of Commons into the future on two questions:

1. The size and nature of Canada's post-war armed forces; and
2. The volume of governmental expenditures in peacetime.

These questions arose as Finance Minister Ilsley moved for the introduction of a $1,365,000,000 war expenditure and demobilization appropriation bill to finance war-winding-up costs until March 31 next. At the short session of the last parliament earlier this year $2,000,000,000 was voted for the same purposes.

Before debate on the war appropriation bill began Mr. Ilsley announced the appointment of George McIlraith (L-Ottawa West) as parliamentary assistant to Reconstruction Minister Howe.

Mr. Ilsley's preliminary statement disclosed that outlays this year for the army, navy and air force are down from last year but still high, that veterans affairs and rehabilitation expenditures are mounting.

To Float Victory Loan.

Canada's total outlay on war and non-war account this year were placed at over $5,000,000,000 and at $4,000,000,000 for the year 1946-47 following the ninth victory loan to be floated next month. Of that $2,000,000,000 is to be raised by borrowing and the Minister indicated he hopes to get most of all of it through an over-subscription of the $1,500,000,000 ninth victory loan.

With this 12-month period covering the shift from war to peace the Minister's forecast of expenditures in that period attracted special attention. Of the total 30 per cent or $1,200,000,000 will go for normal and continuing expenses of civil government. The figure compares with Canada's total outlays for the last pre-war year of over $553,000,000.

The other 60 per cent of $2,800,000,000 will include "hundreds of millions" in loans to Allied countries to enable them to purchase Canadian supplies urgently needed for reconstruction. It will also include other costs of winding up the war such as demobilization, rehabilitation of service personnel, occupation forces and some reconstruction and development costs.

(HOUSE DEBATES—Page 7)

Sudden blaring of alarm clocks will have no terrors for early morning church goers tomorrow (Sunday) morning because with the reversion to Standard Time, residents will be enabled to stretch luxuriously in their comfy beds and know they can snatch another hour's sleep and still be in time for service.

For the first time since 1942 Canadians will wake up, eat their breakfast and begin their day just one hour later than they have for the past three years. Across Canada, at two o'clock Sunday morning the nation will go back onto Standard Time for the first time since Daylight Saving Time came into being as a full time war measure.

Although 2 a.m. Sunday morning has been given as the official time for setting the clock back one hour, the actual changing of the clock in the average Canadian home will be some time before midnight, Saturday, Sept. 29th—thus an extra hour's sleep next morning.

Most Canadians Going To Have An Hour Added To Lives This Weekend

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 29 — (CP)—Maybe they won't realize it but most Canadians are going to have an hour added to their lives this week-end as all Canada, except for one province, goes back on the Standard Time she discarded as a power-conserving measure almost three years ago.

Two A. M. local time Sunday Sept. 30 has been set as the official hour for turning back the clocks everywhere except in Saskatchewan which has decided to retain Daylight Saving Time until Oct. 14.

In the United States too, the clocks will also be set back Sunday and the time zones of the two countries will continue to synchronize. Decision of the Canadian government to return to Standard Time, taken Sept. 14, followed a similar decision across the line and government officials said it was desired to have the time zones in Canada and the U.S. continually matched.

Trains Stop for Hour

Return to Standard Time, discarded early in 1942 across Canada, will see night-running trains stop for an hour at 2 a.m., Sunday at stations in the time zone in which they are operating. The idea is to make the switch from daylight saving to Standard Time with the least confusion along the railroads where time is a most important factor.

Canada's farmers and others in rural districts will welcome most the return to "old time." Periodically during the war representations were made to the government from farmers and agricultural associations for a reversion to Standard time.

Farmers Oppose

The farmers claimed that imposition of Daylight Saving Time didn't save daylight but did just the opposite for them. It took an hour off their working day. Also, with the clocks an hour ahead, it was said that a hardship was imposed on rural residents whose children had to travel long distances to school. They had to get up before sunup and had to go to bed with it still shining brightly.

Even the cows were brought into it, some farmers claiming Bossie was not inclined to give as much milk when her milking schedule was dislocated by wartime time.

The government met all these representations with promises to return to Standard Time as soon as war demands eased.

GLOBESTER GAINS 2½ HOURS' TIME, MAY GAIN MORE

Historic Circling Of Earth May End In Mid-Evening Oct. 4—Speed 210 M. P. H.

By PAUL MILLER

Aboard the Globester, Sept. 29 —(AP)—The Globester may beat the 151-hour schedule set for its round-the-world flight, it developed today.

Observers from the United States Army Air Transport Command turned up this possibility as the 40-passenger plane headed eastward over the Atlantic after a stop at Bermuda, with Santa Maria, the Azores and Casablanca next on the 23,147-mile journey.

It was pointed out that 3½ hours were picked up by flying directly from Washington to Bermuda, eliminating a previously-scheduled New York City stop. Another hour may be picked up through a decision to fly from San Francisco to Washington non-stop.

Thus this historic circle, forerunner of regular weekly A. T. C. service around the globe, could end in mid-evening of Thursday, Oct. 4. The great transport, carrying eight passengers who will go all the way around, and one bound for Calcutta, completed the 730-mile Washington-Bermuda flight in the right-on-schedule time of four hours, 16 minutes.

The Globester swung away from Washington airport at 5 p.m. E.D.T., climbed slowly with its 2,300 gallons of gasoline, despite its light passenger load, cleared the coastline and headed out over the Atlantic at 5:32 p. m. It then settled down to a 210-mile-an-hour speed through clear skies and over a tranquil sea.

Release of News on Flight

London, Sept. 29 — (CP)—Reuters news agency said today the limiting of press coverage of the "Globester's" round-the-world flight to three United States news agencies "ran directly contrary to President Truman's pledge of equal access to news without discrimination and irrespective of nationality."

A Washington dispatch said last night that the Air Transport Command had turned down for lack of space a Reuters request for a seat on the globe-circling plane which took off yesterday. Protesting, Reuters spoke of taking the matter to the United States State Department and the White House.

The Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service are represented on the inaugural round-the-world trip.

Govt. Censorship Of Public Opinion Is Squelched

Action Against Japs' Practice Of Thought Control Program

Tokyo, Sept. 29 — (AP) —Gen. MacArthur, in the strongest action he has taken against the Japanese government, today ordered it to cease immediately all efforts to censor, suppress or control any form of public opinion whether spoken or written.

The Supreme Allied Commander took this action within a few hours after the Japanese Home Ministry had seized all copies of newspapers publishing accounts by Allied correspondents of interviews with Emperor Hirohito. The government acted on the pretext that the interviews' contents "would have a bad effect on the Japanese people."

Gen. MacArthur's order was viewed as a direct action against Japan's long practice of a "thought control" program whereby the Japanese are held under the government's thumb.

Under such a program, they have been allowed to speak and almost think only what the government wanted them to.

Severed All Control

In the strongest directive yet issued, the Supreme Allied Commander severed Japanese control over not only the newspapers but the mails, telephones, telegraph lines, cables and radios.

The Home Ministry, making what is regarded by Allied authorities as a prime political blunder, had seized the newspapers and suspended them on the pretext that the contents were "too awesome."

The Home Ministry's seizure of newspapers with pictures showing the Emperor calling on Gen. MacArthur suggested the government did not desire the people to see the Mikado and the Allied commander together.

Significantly, the Allied order specified that "no punitive action will be taken by the Japanese government against any newspaper or publisher or employees for whatever policy or opinion it may express unless ordered by S.C.A.P. (Supreme Commander, Allied Powers) on a basis of publication of false news or reports disturbing the public tranquility.

"The power of the government to revoke permission to publish, to arrest without prior approval of S.C.A.P., to impose fines on publications and curtail paper supplies as punishment for editorial comments shall not be exercised.

"Compulsory organizations of publishers and writers will be discontinued and voluntary organization will be encouraged.

No Press Bans Issued

"No press bans will be issued by any government agency. No pressure, direct or indirect, can be exerted on any medium to compel it to conform to any editorial policy not his own.

"Steps will be taken to repeal such parts existing in peacetime and wartime laws as are inconsistent with S.C.A.P. directives."

The suspended newspapers, Asahi, Mainichi and Yoimuri in Tokyo and Asahi and Mainichi in Osaka, will resume publication immediately.

"Immediately after we learned these papers were suspended, we started an inquiry," said Lt.-Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, Gen. MacArthur's Chief of Staff.

"The Home Ministry told us it was not done under wartime law but under a 1906 statute which forbids newspaper publication of anything relating to the Imperial family . . . today general headquarters ordered immediate repeal of the old law and all other laws hamstringing freedom of the press."

COL. DREW HINTS TAXATION CHANGE FOR MINE CENTRES

Calls Northern Ontario Greatest Land of Opportunity in Entire World

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Sept. 29 —(CP)—Special consideration in regard to mining taxation may be given northern Ontario municipalities, Premier Drew of Ontario indicated last night in an address to the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves.

He said that delegates from southern Ontario, through visiting the north country, would realize the special taxation problems faced by municipalities in the mining area and would recognize that every mine is a wasting asset and exhausts capital every year.

The Premier called northern Ontario "the greatest land of opportunity in the entire world at the present time" and said every part of the province should look to the north for expansion of production and population which would make Ontario stronger than ever before.

"There must be a joint effort between southern and northern Ontario in handling problems," he continued. "The tourist trade of northern Ontario has not been exploited sufficiently, nor have its agricultural potentialities been given sufficient prominence."

Urges Veterans to Participate.

He urged all municipalities to encourage Second Great War veterans to take part in municipal life. Their trained leadership and the experience in other countries would be invaluable.

"This is a land of opportunity in which every part of Ontario should be interested," said the Premier. "If we all work together we can build an Ontario in which mutual problems will be ironed out in a spirit of the greatest co-operation. Toward this end, we must all work in the closest harmony and in the spirit of brotherhood."

Earlier in the day the delegates voted 35-25 against a resolution from Reeve Barry Atkinson of Sandwich East urging immediate government intervention in the strike of 10,000 employees of the Ford Motor Company of Canada at Windsor, Ont. The resolution seconded by Reeve Ann Shipley of Kirkland Lake, called for the presence in Windsor of Federal Labor Minister Mitchell and Provincial Labor Minister Daley to help mediate the dispute.

Prime Minister To Meet Truman

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Sept. 29 — (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his talks with President Truman tomorrow is expected to seek a picture of United States foreign policy. If he gets it, he will have the answer to questions frequently asked by administration critics who claim the United States has no clear-cut policy.

In his speech to the House of Commons in Ottawa Thursday, Mr. King gave a clear indication Canada desires a reasonable share in influencing the kind of world to be created out of the wreckage of war.

Canadian Scientists Favor Lifting Secrecy Of the Atomic Bomb

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 29 —(CP)—Opinion among Canadian scientists is swinging to the view that the lid should be lifted on the secrets surrounding the development of the atomic bomb and many are urging that, under international supervision, these secrets should be made available to scientists of all countries.

Since the scientists expressing these views, in many cases are people who have worked in the development of atomic power, it is expected the government will give great weight to their opinions and to the move now underway to organize strong protests to the existing secrecy methods.

A meeting of the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Association of scientific workers, of which H. Hall, of the National Research Council in Ottawa is chairman, Thursday night almost unanimously endorsed free dissemination of information about atomic energy, one of the members told The Canadian Press and he said the branch in Montreal also is of the same mind. These are the two largest branches of the association.

The national executive of the association in Montreal recently issued a statement condemning the proposal that any single power in the world today should be entitled to sole possession of the secret of the atomic bomb.

Loan Russia Seeks Not for Military But for Rebuilding

Moscow, Sept. 29 — (AP) —Premier Stalin gave recent congressional visitors from the United States advance information on the Soviet Union's demobilization plan, talking freely and frankly and citing figures, it was disclosed today.

The question arose in connection with Russia's request for a six-billion-dollar loan. Stalin said the loan would not be used for military purposes, but to rebuild wrecked sections.

Regime of Beatings, Brutality, Hunger Instituted by Joseph Kramer at Belsen

Lueneberg, Germany, Sept. 29. (AP)—Three prosecution witnesses declared in succession today that a regime of beatings, brutality and hunger was instituted at the Belsen Concentration Camp by Joseph Kramer, camp commandant.

Winding up the second week of the war crimes trial of the camp commandant and 44 S.S. Guards, the witnesses said conditions at Belsen were relatively decent before Kramer took over last December.

The witnesses were Ruta Kopper, Estena Guterman and Paula Synger, former internees at both Belsen and Osweicim, where Kramer had served previously.

They identified Helena Kopper as a Polish internee who "sold out", became a block leader at Belsen and rivalled the German guards in cruelty.

Helena Klein, who was 18 when she was arrested at her home in Poland in December, 1942, and moved to Oswiecim, identified 10 of the prisoners in the dock.

She said she had once been selected to go to the gas chamber. She testified she begged Franz Hessler, who supervised the selection, to spare her, but he replied: "You have lived long enough. Come, my child, come".

Hessler directed her to a table where numbers of the selected internees were being recorded, but she slipped away and escaped observation, Miss Klein told the court. Hessler, she said, failed to recognize her in subsequent encounters.

Few witnesses remained to be called by the prosecution, but reading of affidavits into the record may take several days.

There were indications the defence might call each defendant to the witness box in his own defence.

Hindu-Moslem Clashes Heighten, Death Toll Now 24

Bombay, Sept. 29. (CP) — Peacemakers intensified their efforts today as the death toll in the Hindu-Moslem clashes rose to 24 and the number of injured to 112.

As the situation grew worse last night, police fired on rioters in three crowded areas and authorities clamped a 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on the five-mile-square trouble zone.

By today the disorders apparently had tapered off to sporadic conflicts. The curfew apparently reduced the number of incidents and only eight new casualties were sent to the hospital over night.

One woman was among the dead and several women have been injured by "hoodlums", police said. One funeral procession was stoned.

The Moslem-Hindu Citizens' Conciliation Committee, representing Bombay's three communities—Moslem, Hindu and Christian—called a meeting for Monday, hoping to find means of restorting peace.

BEATEN INTO UNCONSCIOUSNESS

Toronto, Sept. 29 —(CP)—James Heath, 72, watchman at the downtown plant of the Royal Canadian Tobacco Company, was beaten into unconsciousness early today by two safecrackers whom he discovered working on the safe. Another watchman later discovered the men and called police. After a chase in which the police fired one shot, John Graham, 24, and Warren Barry, 24, were arrested on charges of shopbreaking and aggravated assault.

Sporting Club, Members Robbed By 5 Armed Men

Toronto, Sept. 29—(CP)—Five heavily-armed men early today robbed the Atlas Sporting Club and 75 members and guests, escaping with several thousand dollars. Police are unable to give an exact amount.

The five gunmen ordered the 75 to line up against the wall and throw their valuables out. To make sure they got all the loot they searched most of them.

Club officials said the club itself lost $1,000. Police said that the loot from the members and guests was extensive.

All of Montreal's Meat Shops Open

Montreal, Sept. 29 (CP)—With all of Montreal's 1,800 butcher shops open since yesterday and most of the smoke of the four-day meat strike blown away, citizens of Canada's metropolis revelled today in the leisurely purchase of meat and other food supplies for the weekend table. On the waterfront, the 3,000 longshoremen, freight handlers and ship liners who were idle for two days, were back on the job loading the some 30 ocean vessels in port.

Meat shortages in some shops which failed to receive deliveries from packers since Monday on account of the strike, were being quickly cared for by an emergency delivery service throughout yesterday and last night.

Climb High Wall To Make Escape

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 29 —(AP)—Four convicts escaped last night from Southern Michigan prison by climbing over a high wall. More than 100 prison guards and state police searched the countryside for the quartet. Shortly after the escape, state police reported a car theft about 1½ miles southwest of the prison.

The convicts used a ladder made from a pipe to gain the top of the wall and lowered themselves to the ground by rope.

The four were shot at by tower guards who spotted the men as they landed on the ground outside the wall.

Acting Warden Ralph Benson said the four are:

John Ronald Kuchulan, 29, August Bernard Doak, 28, and Phillip Gill, 28, all sentenced to 10 to 20 years for robbery armed, and Merwin L. Young, 23, sentenced to four to five years for automobile theft.

Cheerfulness of Canadian POW Constant Bewilderment to Japs

By WILLIAM STEWART
(C. P. War Correspondent.)

Guam, Sept. 29 (CP-Via U. S. Navy Radio)—Cheerfulness of Canadian prisoners during the years they worked for the Japanese in mines, shipyards, foundries and warehouses was a constant source of bewilderment to their Japanese guards who asked if war reverses had not upset them.

The Japanese provided no recreation facilities for the prisoners, taken at Hong Kong in 1941, organized their own concerts, decorated their huts elaborately for Christmas and enjoyed the restricted celebrations.

The big morale booster when the Canadians were at Yokohoma shipyards and later at Ohasi Mines were concerts by remnants of the Winnipeg Grenadiers Band.

Members included: Gerald, Elmer and Melville McKnight, of Winnipeg.

On two occasions the Japanese recorded concerts for broadcast and the song "I'll never say goodbye again", composed by Elmer McKnight with the assistance of his brothers, was picked up in Canada and published.

Another song by Elmer McKnight, called "I'm Dreaming of Home", is a better one, according to supporters of the Winnipeg Band.

Chamber Commerce Approves Immediate Start on Proposed Sewage Disposal Plant for City

Open Forum Meeting Also in Favor of Sanitary Sewer System for Foster Ward

Chamber of Commerce approval for an immediate start on the proposed city sewage disposal system including sanitary sewers for Foster Ward was voiced at a special open forum meeting of members of that body held at the Quinte Hotel Friday evening.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce went on record as being in favor of the sewage disposal plant following an address by Mr. William Storrie of the firm of Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers of Toronto, who have drawn detailed plans for sewage plant requirements for this city. J. B. Boyce put the motion and following its being seconded by Mr. Harry Ackerman, it was carried unanimously by the members present.

Termed the "$64 question" by Mr. Storrie during his address the matter of sewers for Foster Ward was the topic of some spirited discussion between Mr. Maurice Callaghan and the visiting engineer, who in the course of his talk expressed the doubt that residents of Foster Ward were financially able to stand the cost of sewer installation.

Wanted Ward Included.

Mr. Callaghan took strong exception to any plans for a city sewage disposal plant, which did not include Foster Ward and stated in no uncertain terms that unsavory sanitary conditions existant there had been caused by the city. "Garbage," he said, "was dumped there and raw sewage ran through the ward." If a decision is made to put in a sewage disposal plant in this city, Foster Ward must be included or present conditions there improved."

Foster Ward residents had always paid their taxes, according to Mr. Callaghan and he was of the opinion that they would also pay for the costs of sewer installation.

In reply to this Mr. Storrie indicated the matter could be easily settled if Foster Ward residents would petition the city council stating they were ready to stand the cost of instaling the sewers. "Cost of sewers in that ward was the only item preventing their installation," he said.

Outlining in concrete detail the imperative need of this city installing a sewage disposal plant, Mr. Storrie told members present that Belleville was only one of many municipalities considering projects of this nature.

Unsafe For Bathing.

Need for sewage treatment in Belleville was seen firstly in the unsafe condition of the Moira River and the Bay of Quinte east of the river mouth for bathing purposes, and also to assure a safe water supply for the city. Although the natural current in the bay was toward the east, Mr. Storrie stated that a strong east wind invariably backed river water up into the area west of Zwick's Island where the city water supply was obtained.

The provincial government had full power to order any municipality to effectively treat sewage, according to the engineer. Treatment could be of two kinds, either partial or complete, the former removing approximately 40 percent of solids in the sewage and the latter from 90 to 95 percent of the solids. Owing to Belleville's situation on the bay of Quinte, which is a relatively slow moving body of water, only complete treatment of sewage was recommended for this city.

Pump Across River.

Steps for the installation of a sewage treatment system in Belleville called for the collection of sewage interceptors on the east side of the river and pumping of their contents across the river at a point just north of the C.P.R. bridge and the building of the disposal plant at a point on the waterfront just east of George Street.

Collection of the sewage interceptors for both sides of the river, the construction of a pumping station at the river and the building of the sewage plant proper would cost in all $367,000, it was stated, the plant alone costing $250,000. This plant would have a capacity for approximately 20,000 persons.

Operations of the proposed sewage disposal plant was outlined in detail by Mr. Storrie who stated the effluent or treated liquid would be discharged into the bay. If discharged near a bathing beach or water supply this would necessarily have to be chlorinated to remove bacteriological content. Disposal of digested sewage sludge was also outlined, the speaker assuring there was no inoffensive order from duly digested solids. These may be spread on parks or other open ground with an odor no more offensive than that of fresh earth.

Farmers Could Use Sludge.

In any case the city would have no difficulty in having farmers take away the digested sludge, although it was doubtful if the sludge could be commercialized to advantage.

Matter of financing the installation and operation of the proposed plant came into the scope of Mr. Storrie's talk. Debt charges on the cost of construction would be approximately $25,000 per year while it would cost another $11,000 to operate the plant.

If paid for out of the city tax rate the payment of debt charges and operation would, in the opinion of Mr. Storrie, cost taxpayers another three mills. If debt charges and operation costs were added to water rates it would mean water bills would be increased by approximately two thirds.

In commenting on the last manner of payment of operating costs, Mr. Storrie pointed out how it would be unfair to charge the same sewage disposal rates to all industries which may happen to be in the city.

Must Have Vote of People.

Operation of the plant could not, according to municipal law, be handed over to the public utilities without a vote of the people, while the taxpayers would also have to be consulted before debentures for construction costs could be issued.

In view of the fact that Foster Ward was liable to become a menace to health, Mr. Storrie strongly recommended that sewers be installed in this ward. Estimated cost for sewers in Foster Ward was $75,000, which according to city by-laws must be built under the Local Improvement Act. This bars the cost of the project being spread over the city.

There is a possibility of the city assuming a partial cost of sewer installation in Foster Ward but the speaker warned that in this event there was a grave danger of establishing a precedent.

Must Revamp Sewer System.

In the event of the city constructing the proposed sewage plant, Mr. Storrie stated the city sewer system would have to be revamped with all roof water being excluded from the sanitary sewers. Despite the fact that the sewer system in Belleville is what is known as the "separate" system, approximately 25 percent of roof water has been permitted to be connected to the sanitary sewers.

Without separation of this tremendous amount of extra water, costs of constructing and operating a sewage disposal plant would be prohibitive, according to Mr. Storrie. During an intensive rain storm sanitary sewers in certain sections of the city can take care of only one half the combined amount of storm water and sewage, it was stated. This causes extensive blocking and flooding of sanitary sewers.

Makes Recommendation.

To a question put by Mr. Clarence Jewell, Mr. Storrie recommended that the 300 or 400 houses in Belleville which have roof water connected to sanitary sewers, be changed to storm sewers. This would cost an estimated $100 per house and the work should be spread over a period of years. It was merely a question as to who would pay the cost.

In the absence of Clare Morgan chairman of open forum, Industrial commissioner head, Mr. Robert Pringle acted as chairman for the meeting and called upon O. H. Scott manager of the public utilities to introduce the speaker. Thanks of the meeting were expressed by R. H. Macklem, district public school inspector.

Cost Accountants Hear Address On Lumber Industry

The Bay of Quinte Chapter of The Ontario Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants held its first monthly dinner meeting on Wednesday, the 26th day of September.

Bert Houston, of Houston Limited, gave a most interesting and instructive lecture on the subject of "The Lumber Industry". The lecturer treated his subject comprehensively but made special reference to the part dealing with reforestation.

After the usual sing-song and musical interlude the Chairman of the various committees explained to the members the program they had in view for the coming season, and the members have every reason to believe that the period 1945-1946, will be a great success, from every point of view.

Battleship Richelieu Hits Mine—No One Hurt

Paris, Sept. 29 (Reuters)—The 35,000-ton French battleship Richelieu was slightly damaged recently when she struck a mine in the Malacca Straits, separating Sumatra from the Malay Peninsula, while on her way to Indo-China with French troops, the French Marine Minister announced today.

There were no casualties and the Richelieu was able to continue her voyage.

Entertainment at Tweed Fair Washed Out by Deluge of Rain But Attendance Up to Standard

Veterans of Second Great War From Tweed Community Are Given Wrist Watches

Despite the fact that a deluging rain poured down during the morning a large crowd took advantage of fair afternoon weather to enjoy the Tweed Fair. The traditional luck of the Tweed Agricultural Society held with dull rain-laden skies in the morning but the weather cleared shortly after noon.

However, the damage was done and practically all the contests were cancelled. Rain made the track too heavy and several horses and drivers were doomed to disappointment as well as the crowd.

A singing, and dancing troupe of young girls and children provided two hours of enjoyable entertainment in front of the grandstand.

The fair was featured with a large parade of veterans of the First Great War and those recently returned from the second conflict. Headed by the Tweed High School Boys' Bugle Band, the parade swung down the village streets to the Fair Grounds where it was briefly addressed by President Harry Coulter, of the Tweed Agricultural Society, Reeve Charles Rush, Hungerford Township and Reeve C. A. McCarey, of Tweed.

The exhibits of livestock and horses was good. In the Ayrshire breed, Elmer Woods, Cookston, carried of all prizes while Bernard Hunt, Tweed, made a clean sweep of the Holstein class with the exception of a third "best calf" taken by Don Woods.

Three specials in the Ayrshire breed donated by Geo. H. Stokes; H. M. Coulter and S. R. Curry, were won by Elmer Woods.

Attracts Plenty of Interest.

In the beef breeds, a herd of Polled Angus shown for the first time at the fair by Fred Holmes, Queensboro, attracted a lot of interest and won the special for the best beef exhibit in the show.

It also took four firsts and a special for best beef steer or heifer.

Horses.

One year old colt — J. Quinlan, Queensboro.

Single carriage horses — Reycraft, Warkworth.

Span of roadsters—Thackeray, Roseneath.

Single roadster — Thackeray.

Span carriage horses — Quinlan.

Gentleman's turnout — Thackeray, Reycraft.

Agricultural horses — Wilson, Lee Fry, Campbellford Special, Wilson.

General purpose — County of Hastings.

Best horse over 1200 — Wilson, County of Hastings, Sawyer-Stoll.

Best horse under 1200 — Quinlan, Thackeray.

Best matched team — County of Hastings, Sawyer-Stoll.

Tandem team—Wilson, Sawyer-Stoll.

Gents turnout, double — Wilson, Sawyer-Stoll.

Best groomed team — Sayer-Stoll, County of Hastings.

Stallion—Rush, Stoco; Tokely, Queensboro.

Lady drivers — Mrs. Reycraft, Warkworth.

Swine.

J. R. Garbutt, Belleville, took four firsts and C. A. Heath and Son, Tweed, one first and four seconds with T. M. Finnegan, Sharps Corners, getting one first, two seconds and one third. Creighton Fisher, Tweed, took two thirds.

Cheese.

Bert Jones, Tweed, won four firsts on specials and one third, Arthur McCreary, Queensboro, one first in white and one second for specials. A. McKillican, Tweed, won two seconds.

Vincent Shanque, Tweed, and Archie Pitt, tied for a third on specials, with Shanque winning the special prize for junior cheesemakers.

Upham was first decorated for conspicuous gallantry at Crete in 1941, and the second time for his sensational action and bravery despite serious wounds at El Ruweisat Ridge, in July, 1942, while commanding a company of New Zealand troops.

AMMUNITION TRUCK BLOWS UP

Trieste, Sept. 29 (Reuters) — More than 15 Italians were killed and two British soldiers severely injured today when an ammunition truck blew up near Nonfalcone shipbuilding yards 15 miles from here.

The truck carrying German ammunition and bombs, was being unloaded when a bomb or shell exploded.

Air Minister's Wife Injured Near Actinolite

Seriously injured when the car which she was driving was in collision with another at an intersection near Actinolite on Highway No. 7, Mrs. Colin Gibson, wife of the Rt. Hon. Colin Gibson, Minister of National Defence for Air, is in Belleville Hospital.

The accident took place about 4:30 Friday afternoon when Mrs. Gibson was driving east alone on the highway. Her car was in collision with another driven by Mr. George Robinson and is a complete wreck. Her car rolled over several times before coming to rest in a ditch.

According to Provincial Constable J. Hatch Mrs. Gibson suffered facial injuries and a possible broken jaw. There was also possibility of back injury, it was stated.

GARDINER SAYS POLICY SET UP PARITY PRICES

Ottawa, Sept. 29 —(CP)— Agriculture Minister Gardiner, attacking opposition amendments to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, said Thursday night the government's agricultural policy had already established parity prices for farmers.

Mr. Gardiner spoke after John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, had described the government's wheat policy as being designed to prevent the price of wheat from rising and to allow the price to fall below the present initial price.

Mr. Bracken was supporting an amendment by Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (PC-Souris) asking consideration for the establishment of agricultural prices at 90 per cent of parity. He said he would not object if members of his group also supported a C.C.F. amendment asking 100 per cent parity prices.

The Progressive Conservative amendment was defeated 116-91 and the C.C.F. amendment went down 117-90.

Prevention of Inflation.

Mr. Gardiner said the government had succeeded in preventing inflation and had provided legislation which would take care of deflationary tendencies. With the exception of eggs all farm products now were selling above parity prices.

"If you want to vote for 100 per cent parity prices all you have to do is to vote for the policies of the government," he said.

Opposition to the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. amendments meant support for parity prices as already established by legislation and for long-term agreements with stabilized prices.

Before Mr. Bracken rose, M. J. Caldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the C.C.F. amendment was proposed because members of that party did not like the Progressive Conservative amendment. If, however the C.C.F. amendment was not adopted C.C.F. members would support the Progressive Conservative amendment since it offered something better than the government's policy.

Floor Price of Wheat.

The floor price either meant something or it didn't, said Mr. Bracken. If it meant anything it was clear the government contemplated that wheat might fall to $1 a bushel in the next five years.

A price at 90 per cent of parity would be $1.28 cents a bushel, above the present initial price of $1.25.

"This country can't face the possibility of wheat dropping to $1 a bushel in the next five years, a drop of a third," said Mr. Bracken.

If prices of all farm products dropped a third, he asked, where was Canada to get a "high national income." Where the government proposed a floor price of 62 per cent of parity, the opposition said it should be at least 90 per cent.

"It (the government policy) asks the wheat growers of Canada to assume a burden which the nation should bear," said Mr. Bracken. "Now in a free market prices would normally go up. This puts a ceiling on them."

Asks Question.

If a deflation such as was involved in cutting wheat prices to $1 took place there was no chance of the government collecting enough taxes to pay the charges it had assumed.

The government announcement said there was "a moral obligation" not to take advantage of Canada's Allies in the post-war adjustment period.

"A moral obligation on whom?" asked Mr. Bracken. "On 250,000 farmers or on this nation?"

Mr. Bracken said the parity principle was that prices received by farmers for their products should bear a fair relationship to the prices of things they had to buy and that farm prices should rise and fall accordingly. He said the committee on agriculture should give study to the selection of a proper base period.

Cornwall Plans To Give Welcome

Cornwall, Sept. 29 —(CP)— It was announced officially here Friday that the First Battalion, Stormont Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders will arrive in Cornwall as a unit from overseas in the near future and will be tendered a monster civic reception.

Lt.-Col. D. R. Dick, officer commanding the 2nd Battalion of the unit said the Glengarrys will detrain here for disbandment. The unit will arrive under the command of Lieut.-Col. Neil M. Gemmel, D.S.O., of Peterborough, Ont. The regiment which is attached to the 3rd Canadian Division is expected to reach Canada late in October or early in November.

The battalion, which won fame during the heavy fighting in northwestern Europe was mobilized in June, 1940, members being recruited in Peterborough, Kingston, Brockville and Cornwall. The regiment went overseas in 1941 and saw its first action at Berniers-Sur-Mer on D-Day.

600 Passenger Cars Will be Used To Move Troops

Halifax, Sept. 29 —(CP)— The biggest troop movement in any similar period in Canadian history will leave Halifax in the next four days. The movement will start with the arrival of the troopship Nieuw Amsterdam Saturday with 7,700 Canadian soldiers and end with the docking of the trooper Ile de France next Tuesday.

Forty special trains will be required to carry the returning veterans to their homes in various parts of the Dominion. More than 600 passenger cars will be used. Of this number 445 will be sleepers and 72 diners.

CHINESE SEIZE GERMAN FIRMS IN PORT OF SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Sept. 29 —(AP)— Armed Chinese troops seized on Friday several German business firms, and placed guards outside the majority of houses and flats occupied by Germans in a step reported as preliminary to interning all Germans in Shanghai.

A spokesman for Shanghai's 2,400 Germans said that among office buildings taken over was the German bank, which played an important role in the Japanese occupation, and I. G. Farbenindustrie, big dye trust.

WIFE IS FORGIVEN

Kansas City, Sept. 29 —(AP)— Mrs. Ann Birdwell said Thursday that her husband has forgiven her for marrying his uncle after he was reported killed in action last October, and that she has "nothing to worry about now." Her husband, Sgt. Gene Birdwell, was liberated from a Japanese prison camp last month only 12 days after she had married his uncle, Jack Marshall.

CIVIL WAR THREATENS

Rome, Sept. 29 —(AP)— Civil war may break out in Italy unless the government of Premier Ferruccio Parri calls for a general election as soon as possible, the consultative assembly was told Thursday night by a Socialist member from northern Italy. "The working masses know this," Sandro Pertini declared in a fiery speech.

W. C. Frank Ball Awarded D. F. C. For Heroic Action

For piloting his blazing heavy bomber back to its English base after it had suffered almost crippling hits from enemy ack-ack fire, Wing Commander Frank W. Ball, husband of the former Athol Crozier of this city has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, relatives in Belleville have been informed by Air Force headquarters in Ottawa.

The action for which the cherished D.F.C. was awarded to the one-time Belleville flier took place during an 800-plane bomber raid over German targets. Leader of the Allied raid, W/C Ball was first over the target but the Germans were waiting. Murderous flak from German ack-ack guns burst around the plane setting one wing afire and all but crippling the ship.

Members of the crew fought the blaze with everything at their command while the dauntless pilot coaxed the flaming ship back to home base. The English coast was sighted and the ship was safely set down just as the fire went out of control.

A member of the permanent R.C.A.F. force, Wing Commander Ball, enlisted in the Air Force back in 1938 following graduation from McMaster and Western Universities and did considerable instruction work in Canada before going overseas in March, 1944. He is a native of the St. Thomas district.

One time instructor at Trenton the new D.F.C. winner was also commanding officer at Goderich E.T.S.; was chief instructor at Dauphin and was stationed for 1 year at Ottawa. He returned from overseas service the last of July and was preparing to train personnel for the Pacific war theatre when the Japanese capitulated. He is now stationed in Winnipeg where his wife is visiting. Mrs. Ball is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Crozier, Forin St.

19-Year-Old Acts as Guide

Metagama, Ont., Sept. 29—(CP)—To help overcome the manpower shortage at Metagama, 65 miles northwest of Sudbury, 19-year-old Anne Ruffo has been acting as a guide for fishing and hunting parties and Gwen and Marion McKee, aged 18 and 16 years, respectively, served all summer as "towermen" for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

Miss Ruffo can sling a canoe and a pack on her back and shoulders and hike along as well as any male guide. She meets an occasional bear along the bush trails but maintains that "if you leave them alone, they'll leave you alone."

Marian McKee served as firewatcher at the 85-foot Cavell fire tower 50 miles from her home. She did her own cooking and baking in the Ranger cabin and used shortwave radio to send reports of fires to the forestry base at Biscotasing. Her sister carried out similar duties at the Metagama tower, three miles from home.

Reports Agreement For Reform of China's National Government

London, Sept. 29 —(AP)— The Moscow radio reported Friday that President Chiang Kai-Shek and Communist Leader Mao Tse-Tung, who have been conferring at Chungking in an effort to settle China's internal political differences, had reached an agreement to reform the National government.

The broadcast said the agreement provided for wider political representation in the central government and for the holding of general elections at an early date.

The pact also was said to provide for demobilization of the Communist armed forces.

WORK FOR NOTHING

Mesa, Ariz., Sept. 29 —(AP)— Demonstrating professional expertness and a decided love for their work, burglars bored a hole in the door of a motor company safe with an acetylene torch and came out $90 richer. When the robbery was discovered the operator of the company told sheriff's deputies he had forgotten to lock the safe.

Over 2,000,000 Workers Idle Due to Strikes

Chicago, Sept. 29 —(CP)— The number of American workers idle because of strikes and shutdowns over labor disputes soared past the 2,000,000 mark Friday when union spokesmen estimated that 62,000 workers, including 6,000 in the Paterson, N.J., area had walked out in 284 textile printing and dyeing plants in nine eastern states.

This development took place despite a back-to-work order issued by a CIO National Executive Committee. The more than 2,000,000 figure included 1,500,000 affected indirectly by the New York City building service strike.

Joseph W. Knapik, president of the Federation Dyers, Finishers, Printers & Bleachers of America (CIO) said the 62,000 were out in plants in New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. The national executive committee, he added, had directed at its meetings Friday that a referendum vote be taken among the workers today. He said if supplies from the print and dye shops are curtailed, approximately 500,000 garment workers would be forced from work.

MARRIED POLISH GIRLS

Lueneburg, Germany, Sept. 29—(Reuters)— Three British soldiers who were prisoners of war in Poland for three years, were married Thursday to three Polish girls in an annex of the courthouse in Lueneburg where the atrocity trial is being held. The ceremony was conducted by Col. T. M. Backhouse, who is the prosecutor in the trial of Nazis charged with Belsen and Osweicim atrocities.

Canadian Gets 5 Years in Jail

Farnborough, England, Sept. 29 — (CP) Cable) — Convicted by court martial of participating in VE-Day disturbances at Headley detention camp, Pte. Earl Oscar Gravelle, 25, of Sudbury, Ont. today was sentenced to five years' penal servitude and Pte. Thomas Robert McKitterick of Montreal was sentenced to 23 months' imprisonment.

Headquarters of Canadian reinforcement units announced that Gravelle was convicted of joining in a mutiny by combining with other soldiers detained at the camp to damage barracks and set fire to a watchtower. He was acquitted on five lesser charges. McKitterick was convicted of riotous damage, participating in a disturbance and escaping barracks.

Control of Germany

The Allied Powers have taken full control of every phase of German life so that this people of seventy millions will never be able to raise their head in a plot to send the world into war. Twice since 1914 the Hun has defied all humanity, twice he has been defeated. Once he came back, that was in 1939 with the most potent force of evil in the world's history harnessed to Hitlerism and Nazism. This has been crushed and this past week the Allied Powers formally went to work to end Germany's power to make war by abolishing all land, naval and air forces, the Elite Guard, the Storm Troops and the terrible Gestapo with all their organizations, staffs and institutions, and with them everything that tended to keep alive the military tradition in Germany, the General Staff, the officers' corps, the reserve corps military school, war veterans' organizations and other military and quasi-military formations.

The sinister Nazi party which Hitler so depended upon to make him supreme in the world is abolished and declared to be illegal.

Germany has been forbidden to show any racial or religious discrimination.

These edicts are all aimed to eradicate the German superman and military spirit and to prove to every German that the Third Reich has been definitely and forever crushed.

The Germany that the Huns exalted is no more, it is segregated from the world and her diplomatic, consular, commercial and other relations with foreign states ended with Germany's surrender. Her representatives to all states are to be recalled. The proclamation stated that the Allied representatives may require the withdrawal from Germany of neutral diplomatic, consular, commercial and other officers and members of neutral service missions to regulate Germany's relations abroad.

The Germany that held the world in awe by her potentiality for evil is stripped of everything that smacks of war and of the power to make war and to keep alive the spirit of war. Germany is undergoing the penalty for her crimes against humanity.

Not only these steps have been taken but Germany must carry out for the United Nations measures calculated for restoration, reinstatement, repatriation, reconstruction, and rehabilitation as the Allies may decide, Germans must stay in Germany unless authorized to go outside by Allied authority, Germany must put at Allied disposal all means of influencing expression and opinion, hand over, temporarily at least, all shipping, all inland transport and hydro-electric properties and documents relating to war criminals and carry out directives, if issued, for the seizure of their property.

Germany's economy is to be controlled in finance, farming, production, mining, public utilities, industry, trade, distribution and economy generally. Allied authorities will have access to any building anywhere in Germany.

Loot stolen by the Germans must be returned, gold and silver bullion or coin is to be handed over, whether held in Germany or abroad and all foreign exchange and occupation currencies issued by Germany during the conquests she made. Germans are ordered to redeem all occupation currencies and to turn over all the German currency the Allies require.

There are other points. German authorities are ordered to arrange for the reception and maintenance of resettled German civilians, the withdrawals and evacuations from affected areas to take place as directed by the Allies. The all-embracing provision was made that the German surrender declaration supersedes all German law.

This is what has been deemed necessary to prevent Germany becoming a war threat and to make her realize the extent of her offences against humanity. Germany has to be taught by the Allies the better way of life, that does not threaten. The nation that went on the rampage east and west across Europe with determination to enslave mankind is now segregated and must be guided by the Allies whose task is great but worth every effort to eradicate militarism and the power for aggression that lay in Germany.

This Changing World

When Jules Verne wrote the book "Around the World in Eighty Days" he was writing of something that would have been a sensation in his day. Today the world is so used to speed that no one wonders when the announcement is made of a world-girdling trip by transport plane to take place within the period of 151 hours, including stops.

Farther and farther the world is getting away from the conditions of the times of the grandfathers of those living today.

But the achievements of today are not the last. The world has just witnessed the greatest event in history, in its way, the discovery of the means of harnessing atomic energy and putting it to use. It has been put to use in war and much thought is centred upon its control and use for the time of peace. Probably one of the greatest eras is dawning. It will be the greatest of all eras if atomic energy puts an end to warfare.

There are other developments swift to come, not so momentous as the discovery of the use of the atomic energy but devices and ways that will lighten the labor of humanity and make possible increase of the earth's population and of the general welfare and health and spiritual and social outlook of mankind.

Strange Tongue

In the ninth century of our era a Japanese named Kobo Daishi tried to do something about his country's language. He invented Katakana, an alphabet form of writing which includes 48 letters, derived from the ideograms of Chinese. While this is simpler than the official Japanese writing of state documents, it still presents a Chinese puzzle to the Allied soldier who has lately moved into Japan.

In fact, as Lawrence Griswold writes in The Christian Science Monitor, the mystery of the Japanese language will be one of the chief irritations of the Allied occupation. The American G.I. will pick up enough verbal Japanese to get along, Mr. Griswold thinks, but he will not be able to read the simplest road sign or menu.

The Japanese delight in this mystification and every effort to reform and simplify their language they have always resisted. For a long time the Nippon Romajikai, or Japanese Romanization Society, tried to persuade the Japanese to use Roman letters but nobody paid much attention to it.

When Japan invaded the South Pacific, its leaders were glad that its writing could not be read by white men, for it was quite safe in most places to publish instructions to spies and saboteurs.

To show what a visitor is up against in Japan, Mr. Griswold cites this sentence in Japanese: "What is this made of?" By literal translation this becomes in English: "This is for, what by developing, is?" Perhaps it is by thinking in such convolutions that the Japanese mind has became fatally twisted.

Forest Industries Lead

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

A brief presented to Premier Drew by the Ontario Forest Industries Association gives figures to prove that the forest industry is the leading manufacturing industry in Ontario. It leads in total employees, wages and salaries paid, capital invested, as well as net and gross values of production.

Here are the figures for the Ontario forest industries in 1941:

Capital invested $21,371,176.
Salaries and wages, $44,378,000.
Net value of products, $90,269,971.
Number of employees, 46,759.

In addition, according to the report of the Minister of Lands and Forests for the period ending March 31, 1942, the Ontario government collected $3,695,167.49 in timber dues and bonus from pulp and paper and lumber companies in that fiscal year.

AUTUMN GLORY

Glad I'm not an artist in these lovely days of fall.
It's bad enough to mess with words and use a faulty pen,
But oh, to catch with paint the glory of it all
Would baffle, I am very sure, the skillfullest of men.

To stand through many an autumn day and look on bush and tree
Aglow with gold and scarlet, and the hills in purple dress,
And try to get on canvas all the beauty that I see,
Would sting my soul with sorrow for such utter helplessness.

Yet, artists bravely face it and still do best they can.
They stay forever striving to achieve the master touch.
But, autumn holds a glory that's beyond the skill of man
For paint and brush and canvas, it is just a bit too much.

Sorting Apples

(New York Times Editorial)

After the apples have been picked and the Baldwins, Northern Spies, Kings, Russets and Rhode Island Greenings are stored in piles in the barn under the west scaffold, a man can take his time about sorting them over. The major matter is to get the fruit off the trees before a black frost arrives. Once the apples are in the barn it's a pleasant task for rainy days to run them over the home-made sorter table and put them in boxes and barrels for storage in the house cellar. Apples are an essential commodity. A farmer likes apple pie frequently, including a piece to finish off breakfast. Apple sauce, apple pudding and baked apples are wanted. And in the long evenings of winter, after the countryman has read the paper, gone over the farm journals and studied the almanac and seed catalogues, there's nothing better than a cold crisp Northern Spy or Rhode Island Greening for a snack at bedtime.

The boards of the apple sorter are smooth and shiny from many years' use. About waist high, four feet wide and slanting toward one end, with sideboards eight or ten inches in height, the sorting table holds four or five bushels of fruit. A man stands at the lower end and pulls the apples toward him. Most farmers insist on four classifications. At the low end of the scale are the wormy and misshapen fruits that go to the pigs. Then the small but good apples go into burlap bags to be taken to the cider mill. Mother prefers Baldwin cider for making apple butter but admits the Russet flavor is almost as good. Personally the countryman has long believed that no apple equals the Northern Spy for cider flavor, though he does not feel the subject important enough to make an issue of it.

The good apples are divided into two groups. The average fruit for pies and sauce is put into barrels. The biggest and handsomest apples of each variety are put into bushel boxes. These are the eating apples for the family. Any extras are sold to the customers in the village. It's satisfying to handle this top-quality fruit. It's a good reward for the pruning, spraying and harvesting. On a rainy fall day as a man works along at the table sorting his apples into different containers he things that judging apples is typical of life. For he knows that everything that man grows or makes, and men themselves, are divided into classifications according to worth

MAYORS REQUEST READJUSTMENTS OF PROPERTY TAX

Peterborough Mayor Suggests That Municipalities Should Invade New Tax Fields

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Sept. 29—(CP)—Invasion of new tax fields by municipalities and readjustment of the property tax to bring more people within its scope were suggested today by Mayor James Hamilton of Peterborough, Ont., to help meet expanding civic post-war budgets.

In an address prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the Association of Ontario Reeves and Mayors here, Mayor Hamilton pointed to three groups who he said do not bear their share of municipal taxation under present industrialization and its resultant conjested living areas. These were persons in multiple dwellings, boarders and persons living with "in-laws."

"We find in ever so many cases two or three or more people assessed little if any more than when the house was occupied by a single family," he said. "Even when construction takes place and assessment increased the assessed value per living unit is often much below the average individual assessment."

Boarders and persons sharing accommodations were wage earners seen as paying no property tax at all.

"These people are earning their living in our cities and getting full advantage of all our facilities and the only tax we get is a poll tax from some of the men. The people in these three groups number about as many as those that do pay an average or greater amount of taxes."

Other Sources Sought.

To distribute municipal taxation more evenly, Mayor Hamilton said other sources of revenue should be sought. Municipalities should step into the amusement and utility tax fields when the Federal Government relinquished wartime taxation here. There were other possible sources.

"A municipal income tax . . . a municipal sales tax on luxuries only or on a wider range of goods . . . a small tax on the total amount of a parson's earnings whether he lives in the city or not . . . obtaining a part of the tax on automobiles, gasoline and liquor . . . gas, water, electricity, increased licence and franchise taxes . . ."

Equalization of property taxes was seen as the primary consideration, however, as this would be the chief source of revenue for some time to come.

"Why not simply adopt or establish a basic or minimum assessment somewhat near the average below which no living unit would be assessed, no matter what the actual value might be, and collect taxes on this amount," Mayor Hamilton suggested. "This would not prevent us in continuing the higher assessment on the better class of houses."

A rental or occupancy tax might also help bring about more inclusive taxation.

Should Apply to Women.

"The poll tax is another source of revenue which should be used more generally and it should apply to women as well as men," the Mayor said. "The Federal and Provincial Governments collect both an income and gasoline tax from these people and I cannot see why the municipality should not be able to collect for the services it renders them."

To meet the cost of post-war civic budgets, the widespread adjustments were seen essential. A backlog of deferred repairs and improvements had built up. Cost of essential services such as police and fire departments had increased and would continue to do so.

"Other new services will be inaugurated. People are demanding more recreational and social services.

"Then again during the war we have been doing considerable post-war planning. Planning municipal projects of all kinds for the betterment of our city and the welfare of our citizens.

"If the municipalities themselves have to pay any large portion of the cost of these post-war projects, it will mean the issuing of debentures and consequently a further charge on our current revenue for interest and sinking funds."

U.S. Motorists Flock to Canada

Windsor, Sept. 29 —(CP)— The influx of American tourists into Windsor continued to gain momentum at both the Ambassador Bridge and the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, as the oil strike closing Detroit gas outlets remained unsettled.

Some Windsor service stations were enjoying an unprecedented rush of business. And 14 of the stations were issued summonses on Friday for remaining open Wednesday afternoon to serve the long lines of American cars in violation of the city's Wednesday afternoon closing by-law.

Tunnel authorities reported that they received 7,741 fares on Tuesday, 10,138 on Wednesday and 12,000 FFriday.

WHAT IS ITCHING?

When I was, le'me see, about eight. I was out picking hops one day toward the end of summer vacation and I was attacked by a vicious caterpillar, right between the shoulderblades. I can't remember now whether the caterpillar was 8 or 10 inches long, but I remember vividly the itching I suffered for a day or two. Calamine lotion containing 1 percent phenol relieves such itching.

Then when I was 15 I had my first encounter with Cimex lectularius: (You will find the lowdown on this subtle pest on p. 7 of the booklet "Unbidden Guests" —mailed on request if you inclose ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope). I was spending a few days up the river and I was awakened in the night to find I had company. Now I found the peculiar thing about bedbug itching is that the itching is just as evasive as the bugs themselves. I mean, you feel it, but you can't locate it accurately, at least not in time to catch the pest redbellied. If you can find the bite, touching it with peroxide or with tincture of iodine or even rubbing it with wet soap gives some relief.

In my two years of internship in a metropolitan hospital I saw a great deal of scabies (pronounced skay-bi-ease) but ordinary soap and water cleanliness protected me from catching it. Then in my first year of practice in the country a whole family consulted me—they had suffered all winter with the itch—and in some way I contracted the disease but this itching was nothing to write about and it cleared up in a day or so, as the old-fashioned ("seven year") itch should in most cases if early recognized and treated.

A synthetic chemical, methylaminobenzoate or orthoform then recently introduced, gave a local anesthetic effect when dusted on painful ulcers or other skin irritations. I applied it in a dusting powder to a large varicose ulcer. The patient was grateful for the prolonged comfort it gave, but I myself broke out in general red rash a few hours after handling the stuff. At the time it did not occur to me that the orthoform was to blame. Not until weeks later, when I applied orthoform as a dusting powder in a similar case, and this time reacted with a furious erythema and swelling of face and hands particularly.

The itching that attended the orthoform reaction was pretty wicked, but everything gradually subsided and I never handled orthoform again.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Tomatoes Contain Vitamin C

I have noticed several times that you say commercially canned tomatoes or tomato juice contain vitamin C, but home canning process destroys most of the vitamin C in tomatoes. My process.

(Mrs. C. R. C.)

Answer—Heating or cooking hastens oxidation and oxidation destroys vitamin C. Commercial canning is by vacuum process, hence less oxidation of vitamin C.

Beri-Beri

I have all the symptoms of beri-beri. Kindly advise how much vitamin B1, I should take. (Mrs. W. F. C.)

Answer—I do not advise you to take vitamin B1 at all. Better submit the question to your physician.

Deafness

Three years ago a succession of head colds left me practically deaf in right ear. Could not tell where sounds came from, which was embarrassing. Consulted one specialist after another, none trying to do anything, and nothing could be done. Began doing the exercises described in your pamphlet on Tinnitus and Deafness. Gradually noticed improvement. In six months my hearing was as good as ever. The exercises have become part of my daily routine. Gratitude. (Miss L. G.)

Answer—On request I am glad to send the pamphlet "Tinnitus and Deafness" to any correspondent who provides stamped envelope bearing his address.

Vest Pocket Doctor Book

Some friends said you have issued a kind of condensed doctor book giving many valuable recipes and directions for treating minor home emergencies and ailments. (Mrs. A. F. M.)

Answer — Send twenty-five cents and 1-ct-stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "The Medicine Cupboard."

Water Softener

Please inform me how hard water can be softened. The water at our camp is so hard it makes my skin rough. (E. R. A.)

Aiswer — Best softener I can suggest is borax.

Calves

My calves are too large for my body. Contemplate having them reduced by massage. Can you recommend a reliable place. (M.V.)

Answer—Massage cannot reduce your calves. I know of nothing that will. Cultivate the art of dressing so as to give the effect of greater length of leg.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Does "senior" as applied to Senators refer to age?

The terms "senior" and "junior" as applied to the two Senators from a state refer to their length of service, not to their age. The junior Senator from a state may be eighty years old and the senior Senator only thirty. Only "continuous service" is counted for this purpose.

Why does the Secretary of State sign only his surname?

Formerly when the Secretary of State sent messages by cable to officers of the American foreign service abroad he signed only his surname; as, Stimson, Hull, Stettinius, Byrnes. This practice was followed to save unnecessary expense. It accounts for the presence of the Secretary's surname only on many historic state papers. He signed his full name when attaching his signature to other documents and letters. In recent times the Secretary of State has generally signed his full name on all papers.

How is the compass boxed?

When a person adopts successively all possible opinions on a question he is said "to box the compass." This is merely a figurative use of a nautical expression of unknown origin. In the language of seamen "to box the compass" means to recite the names of the 32 points of the compass forward and then backward in consecutive order. A wind is said to box the compass when, within a short time, it blows from every quarter in succession. Boxing the compass is to go completely around and return to the starting point.

Why is a Master Mason's lodge called a blue lodge?

In Freemasonry a blue lodge is a symbolic lodge in which the first three degrees of Masonry are conferred. It was originally so called from the blue color of its decorations. One Masonic authority believes the blue in this connections symbolizes the heavens and alludes to the times when the members of the order held their meetings in the open under the blue sky. A Master Mason is a Freemason who has taken the third degree.

Thursday evening a large number of girls from this city, members of the Red Triangle Club and St. Michael's Hospitality Club, attended the final dance at the Mt. View R.C.A.F. Station.

Mrs. Phil Ray, 22 Forin Street, who underwent an operation on Tuesday in the Belleville General hospital, is progressing favorably.

Mrs. David Brown, Foster Ave., received flowers from her son, Cpl. Bernard Brown, on the occasion of her birthday. Cpl. Brown is now stationed in England with the Canadian Army.

A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomson, North Park Street, Friday night, to spend a social evening with them before moving into their new home. After playing progressive euchre, Betty Muslow read an address and Mr. and Mrs. Thomson were presented with a lovely easy chair and mirror, while Don was given a fountain pen.

Refreshments were served and everyone wished the couple success in their new home.

WEDDINGS

ROBINSON—BRENNAN

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the rectory of St. Patrick's Church, Verplanck's, N.Y., on Sept. 21, when Shan Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brennan, Verplanck's, and Bernard Roy, son of Mr. Bert Robinson, Bleecker Ave., Belleville, were united in marriage by Father Dorris.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a grey suit with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Her attendant, Miss Beatrice Elroy, wore blue velvet with a corsage of white gardenias.

Beige coat with black Persian trim

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BEIGE WITH black is always a sure-fire color combination and it appears at its best in this striking coat. Beige wool in a soft weave is combined with black Persian lamb, so handled that it has a luxurious but not opulent look. A narrow band of the fur trims the neckline and continues down the front where it meets a wide border at the hem. Two fur arrows mark the seamed detail at the neck. The sleeves are straight and loose.

QUEEN MARY HOME, SCHOOL CLUB

A very interesting event took place on Thursday afternoon at 4:15 when the executive of Queen Mary Home and School Club held an afternoon tea in the auditorium of the school in honor of the mothers of the new kindergarten pupils of both morning and afternoon classes. The tea table looked very attractive with its centre of French marigolds. Tea was poured by Mrs. H. Croll, the president of the Association and Mrs. A. Campbell of the executive. The serviteurs were members of the executive together with three girls of Grade 8. The remaining girls of that Grade rendered a novel service by caring for the children, whose mothers could not have attended otherwise.

Pleasant Valley

Pleasant Valley.—Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dorland enjoyed Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dorland, of Wooler.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flindall had dinner on Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Cole. In the afternoon they attended the funeral of Mr. Daniel Frost, of Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Dunn, of Oshawa, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Dunn.

Miss Pearl Cole, of Brighton, spent the weekend at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vardy spent Sunday with friends at Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Arthur, Mrs. Gertrude Curry and Mr. Reginald Curry, attended Kingston Fair on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCall entertained Mr. and Mrs. Alden Arthur and Aldythe for supper Saturday evening.

Miss Helen Dunn spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dunn.

A Study in Brown

By ALICE ALDEN

KEEPING a costume color scheme in one hue with interesting mutations is an elegant way of achieving wardrobe distinction. Ethel Smith the famous organist is particularly devoted to this theory which she demonstrates in a picture posed for this page. The afternoon dress of brown crepe has copper brown sequins in allover design. The tiny pouff hat is of beige with copper satin strips braided in flower effect at either side. Copper suede shoes, bag and gloves, and blonde sables complete a brilliant study in brown.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Post-War Wives Source of Worry to Some Soldiers.

For generations, women have been praying, going to beauty parlors, fortune tellers, writing to columnists and inquiring: How can I hold my husband?

In spite of swamping war casualties which have reduced the matrimonial chances of millions of women, some discharged soldier-husbands are wondering how they are going to hold the wives now almost strangers, who met them at the station when they came marching home. They hardly recognized the "little woman" in the fashion-plate who had been earning a pay envelope and enjoying it as much as a cat relishes a canary.

Take the case of a certain soldier who has written me at length about his experience. She was so different from the tearful creature who clung to him when he went overseas. She had written that she had taken a job in a war plant and was making good money. But he had completely overlooked her weekly visit to the beauty parlor where she had been primped and beautified almost beyond recognition.

She was well dressed, her figure had returned to its girlish outline, her manner was assured She didn't lift her eyes in that appealing way to make sure he was listening to what she said. He had rather liked that little way of hers. It gave him such a secure sense of being master in his own house.

As the cab took them to their home, she said casually: "I've had some trouble to persuade mother to continued on with us." This brought him up 'tention! He had never liked his mother-in-law. When she wrote that her mother had agreed to look out for the children while she worked at the plant, he never thought the older woman would remain.

"Will that be necessary?" he protested feebly, "now that I'm home and my old job in the drugstore is waiting for me and the plant has closed down?"

"Oh, there hasn't been time to tell you. When we were informed the plant would be closed, I went to that new real estate office and asked for a job. They have a development, building veterans' homes. Talking about the advantages of owning your own home is lots of fun".

The soldier went limp. "It won't be necessary for you to work now. Old Doc Williams has been keeping my place and said that I was the best prescription man he ever had."

"But I love the work; it's so grand to have your own money. I never knew before what it really meant".

"Aren't you glad to see me, Mabel?"

"Sure I'm glad to see you, Old Darling, but we're living in a new world, and believe me, I like it."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When We Visit a Church of Another Faith

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if one is expected to follow the service of a church in which he is a guest. In other words, if a Protestant attends a service in a Roman Catholice Church, would he adhere to the ritual of the service, or would he conduct himself in the same manner as he does in his own church? E. L.

When we visit a church of another faith, particularly when the ritual of that church is complex to us, it isn't necessary to take part in all the details of the service, but we should reverently participate in the spirit of worship, should rise when the congregation rises, should kneel when others kneel. To make no attempt to follow the service or to follow the lead of the worshippers in rising and kneeling will make you conspicuous. Conforming in spirit and showing a reverent attitude are good manners. . . . and "good religion."

The Word "Adoption" Must Be Used

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are adopting a baby nine months old, and we would like to send out announcements of its arrival in our home the same as though it were our own child.

Is this a proper procedure? If so, what form should the announcement take? B. S.

By your words "the same as though it were your own child" you don't mean, do you, that you are contemplating omitting the word "adoption"? This, of course, wouldn't be proper. But it is proper to send announcements of the adoption, and these may be either formal (worded in the third person) or notes.

The formal form may be engraved or printed, or written on large-size cards, and may be worded:

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stevenson
have the happiness to announce the adoption of Joan aged nine months

Or your notes might read:

Dear Margaret

Peter and I have wonderful news to send to you and Tom . . . we have just adopted a baby! Her name is Joan, she is nine months old, and we pray that she will be as happy to be with us as we are happy to have her with us.

We hope that you can come to see her soon. . . she's a darling!

Dearest love to you both.

Affectionately,

(You may wish to send notes of announcement to relatives and intimate friends, and formally-worded announcements to others.)

SUMMER'S AFTER-GLOW

Days of golden mellow sunshine,
Nights with but a hint of frost,
Leaves turned brown, and south wind whispering.
Of a summer, loved and lost;
But at eve about the fireside
With the cricket's song to cheer,
Grieve we not for passing summer
When bright autumn joys are here.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Drink water, for health and good looks.

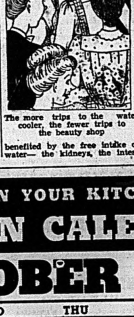
Canada's career girls are a fine-looking army of workers. Can't be beaten when it comes to chic and splendid appearance. They're keen about everything that furthers the cause of pulchritude, but they overlook an aid that is as free as air. It is the little old bottle of spring water that gallantly stands on its head atop the office cooler. Some girls apparently don't know it is there, never go near it. The idea that water has cosmetic value hasn't entered their minds.

They aren't thirsty, they say. They've lapped up their coffee at breakfast, maybe had a soda for luncheon. But no liquid quite takes the place of water. The thing to do is to have a plan. In the morning, as soon as the hat is off and the ringlets are fluffed—before sitting down at the desk—let them down a glassful.

By ten o'clock there should be another. In midafternoon a third glass won't do a bit of harm. Before dinner, or during the meal, take one more; that makes four. Some physicians say that three pints, or six glasses, should be the rule. But the girl who manages to down a quart is doing very well.

We offer the suggestion especially to girls with dry skins.

Three of the body's avenues of elimination are stimulated and benefited by the free intake of water— the kidneys, the intestinal tract, the skin. Some beauty defects may be the result of sluggish or faulty elimination. Victims of blackheads and pimples nearly always are suffering from constipation. When medical men treat acne, they insist upon a daily bath with plenty of soapy friction with a brush. Copious draughts of water will sometimes clear up a sallow complexion, especially if a little lemon juice is added. They often correct pouches under the eyes, a real disfigurement.



The more trips to the water cooler, the fewer trips to the beauty shop

Water moistens all the tissues of the body. It regulates the body temperature, aids in the formation of digestive juices. The habitual water drinker is less likely to be tormented with early wrinkles than is the one who pays no attention to this health practice.

There's more to be told. Water helps the blood to carry nourishing groceries to all parts of the human machine; it stimulates the excretory organs so that wastes are carried away normally.

A famous beauty specialist, who has delved into the subject, says that it is her belief that many troubles of the skin, hair, and fingernails may be due to lack of sufficient water in the system.

Now then, you girls who sit at desks or pass nimble fingers over typewriter keys, get friendly with the water cooler that the boss so kindly provides for you. The more trips to the cooler, the fewer trips to the beauty shop, and the better will be your chances for fighting old man Time and forgetting all about birthdays.

Detroit Tigers, Chicago Cubs Can Clinch Precious Pennants Today With a Victory Apiece

Worst Cubs Can Do is Tie by Losing Three While Tigers Need but One Win

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

"Today is the day," is what baseball-minded folk are saying.

Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs, already assured of no worse than a tie for the flag, can clinch the precious pennants today with a victory apiece.

The National League-leading Bruins, enjoying a three-game bulge on the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals, with only three games remaining on each team's schedule, grapple with the Pirates in a doubleheader today in Pittsburgh. One win for the Cubs or a defeat for the Cards and it's all over.

The Tigers, leading Washington by one game, with two to go, can write finis to the Senators' faint hopes by taking the measure of the Browns, whom they meet in a single engagement today in St. Louis. Menawhile, the Senators all through with their schedule, can only wait in agonizing idleness and pray that the defending champion Browns will reciprocate for the favor Washington did for them last year.

It was the Senators' triumph over the Tigers on the final day of last year's campaign that enabled the Browns to capture their first flag by a single game.

In the only games on Friday's major league calendar, Brooklyn defeated Philadelphia Phillies for the 10th straight time in Shibe Park 5-2, and the Browns upset Bobby Feller and Cleveland 2-1 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader, limited to six innings by rain. The second game was cancelled.

Brooklyn's Eddie Stanky, midget second baseman, drew four walks to raise his season's total to 147, equalling the league record set by the Cubs' Jimmy Sheckard in 1911. Babe Ruth holds the major league mark with 170 passes received in 1923 while with New York Yankees. The victory clinched third place in the National League for the Dodgers.

Skies Hold Terror For St. Louis Cards

Cincinnati, Sept. 29 (AP)—The skies hold terror today for the pennant-hopeful St. Louis Cardinals.

They fear rain for if their double header with Cincinnati Reds today is washed out, with it will go their last chance of tying the league-leading Chicago Cubs.

The weatherman was little consolation to Manager Billy Southworth as he forecast rain and more rain.

Three games remain on the St. Louis-Cincinnati schedule and the Cards need victories in all of them, coupled with three Chicago losses to the Pittsburgh Pirates today and tomorrow, to gain a tie with the Bruins.

If today's Crosley Field double header is rained out, it will be rescheduled for tomorrow, but time will have run out on the Cards, for the season ends Sunday and one St. Louis-Cincinnati game will be marked off as unplayed. That game could cost the Cards a tie with Chicago.

Canadian Sport Snapshot

By ALAN HARVEY
(CP Staff Writer)

Toronto, Sept. 29 —(CP)— Scenes more reminiscent of Brooklyn than Montreal took place at Delortmier Downs when 10,000 fans failed to gain admittance to one of the games in the International League baseball semi-finals between Royals and Baltimore Orioles.

Instead of stomping off home, about 1,000 of the overflow demonstrated the resourcefulness of diamond devotees by taking up position outside the left field fence. From there, they heard a play-by-play description of the game that wasn't marred by five-minute commercials.

The broadcast was provided by a red-haired young man who climbed to a vantage point on the fence beyond reach of blue-coated ushers. His account—described by Montreal reporters as "graphic" and "racy"—was rendered in English, but the French-speaking element wasn't slighted. The redhead delegated a young French lad on the ground to translate the "broadcast" into French.

After Montreal won the game 4-1 to qualify for the final series against Newark Bears, a grateful audience passed the hat around. They collected $25 in nickels, quarters and dimes for the impromptu announcer.

Eddie Runge, Hamilton baseball and basketball star, was all set to play for Hamilton All-Stars in a city league series when he received a telegram from St. Hyacinthe, Que., interests urging him to go there for a vital provincial league game.

Tommy (Welland-Port Colborne Tribune) Morrison says the wire was written in French. Somebody asked Runge how he found out what it said.

"That was easy," replied Runge as he boarded a train for St. Hyacinthe. "There was a dollar sign in the message."

Stan (Edmonton Journal) Moher's criticism of hockey's contingent reserve lists, carried recently in these columns, has drawn a mild rebuttal from Jack (London Free Press) Park. Specifically, Park says Moher was "a trifle off the beam" in suggesting some players are on the contingent reserve list without even knowing it.

"To be on any kind of reserve list a player must sign a form and receive money, even if it only be $1," says Park. "Players may be placed on National League negotiation lists without their consent, but these lists merely entitle a club to talk terms with a player before any-one else can touch him."

BALMY BEACHERS DEFEAT INDIANS BY 16-15 SCORE

Ted Reeve and Squad Only Undefeated Team in the O.R.F.U.

Toronto, Sept. 29 — (CP)—An intercepted forward pass boomeranged, a terrific rally came too late — and Toronto Balmy Beach marched off a rain-swept field at Maple Leaf Stadium as the only undefeated team in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

It happened Friday night when the Beaches just managed to edge Toronto Indians 16-15 in a wide-open battle that grew tougher as time and tempers grew shorter. Second successive triumph for the Beachmen, it was the first loss in three starts for their city rivals.

Approximately 7,500 poured into the Stadium to watch the first league game under the floodlights this year. Beaches considered the venture such an all-round success they will strive to have their next game — against Ottawa — played under the same lights next Friday night. At present, the game is scheduled for Toronto Saturday afternoon.

The break of the game — first between the Toronto teams this season — came in the final quarter when Fred Kijek, long-booting Indian, intercepted a Beach forward, and lateralled to Jake Gaudaur whose fumble was picked up by Tommy Ford, Beach backfielder. Tommy ran 25 yards for a touchdown.

Indians Start to Roll

Stu Scott kicked the convert, and it looked like Beaches in a walk when he booted a neat placement in the last six minutes to put Beaches out in front 16-9.

Then the Indians started to roll on a desperate, forward-pass attack that brought a touchdown as the clock was ticking off the last minute and just as a heavy rain fell to make the slippery field more treacherous. Bill Stukus tossed the ball to Ross McKelvey behind the line for the major converted by Annis Stukus who earlier kicked a field goal. That ended the scoring.

All touchdowns came through forward passes. Indians opened the scoring in the early minutes when Doug Pyzer grabbed one over his shoulder and sped 25 yards. It was the unerring aim of Bill Stukus that threw that one, too. McKelvey converted.

Sammy Sward, like Ford, took a forward heave for a Beach touchdown. That was in the second quarter. In the third quarter he booted the single that put Beaches ahead 7-6 after a 6-6 half-time tie.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—One sure sign that the boxing business is booming is the recent epidemic or "odd" fights. . . that isn't saying there was anytihng wrong with last night's Rocky Graziano-Harold Green fracas although a lot of fans won't believe it since a flock of rumors and some violently shifting odds led up to the stormy finish. . .There were a half dozen impromptu scraps outside the Garden and all across 49th Street fans were talking about a "short count" . . .As we saw it, Green was completely out and there was no apparent reason for his effort to attack Graziano afterward. . . Rocky apparently had the same idea. He was taking it calmly until he saw Harold coming, then he decided if there was going to be a fight, he wanted to be in on it.

Cumulative Effect

What will make more work for Commissioner Eddie Egan is that a couple of handlers, the guys who are supposed to keep things running smoothly, began swapping the kind of punches that would have got them tossed out of an amateur tourney. . .Earlier this month there was the occasion when Danny Bartfield claimed an injured hand and refused to continue his fight with Willie Joyce and Freddie Fiducia's story of $20,000 offer to "throw" his bout with Freddie Schott. . .Maybe those guys were the victims of the excitement that goes with big crowds and big money, but such doings have hurt boxing seriously before and will do it again if they're not brought under control.

Tigers Highly Refreshed In Body and Spirit

By GAYLE TALBOT

En route with the Detroit Tigers, Sept. 29 — (AP) — Heading into St. Louis for their final two tussles with the Browns, and needing only one victory to clinch their world series berth, the Tigers today were a club highly refreshed both in body and spirit.

The news that big Virgil Trucks was back from the United States Navy and ready to mow down the Brownies in today's opening game had worked wonders with the flagging morale of manager Steve O'Neill's crew.

All this season, and from many sources, the Tigers have been hearing tall tales of Trucks' pitching feats but in the Pacific. If they were exaggerated by about 50 per cent, then the Bengals still felt they were a cinch to breeze through today's game and win the world series championship behind Trucks and Hal Newhouser.

If Trucks should really slaughter the Browns today, it would be necessary to toss out all the previous comparison so tediously made in recent days and establish the Tigers odds-on favorites for the series crown.

It is a proved fact that two real blow-'em-down pitchers can win a seven-game world series, other things being fairly equal. They are a better bet for the purpose than a well-rounded staff of four or five merely good flingers such as has carried Chicago Cubs to the top in the National League.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

With a battle-royal developing in the ring after the verdict, Rocky Graziano put away Harold Green in 1:49 of the third round of their scheduled 10-round feature before a sell-out crowd of 20,000 at Madison Square Garden last night. Both are Brooklyn boys and, with Green claiming a foul, there was a near-riot inside the ropes as managers, trainers, officials and police milled for a wild five minutes.

Although he had twice outpointed Rocky last fall, Green was a 1-to-3 underdog in wagering circles. The loser held in his own for the first two rounds but Rocky connected with his chin to score the third-round knockout.

The first inter-school football game to be played in Chatham, Ont., since 1939, resulted in a 4-0 victory for Sarnia Collegiate over the locals yesterday for their opener in the W.O.S.S.A. senior series. Sarnia produced a beefy squad.

A field of 47 golfers toured the soggy course at Seigniory Club, Que., yesterday for the opening round of the 14th annual Invitation tournament. Phil Farley of Toronto Scarboro carded a five-over-par 76 for the leadership, 4 strokes ahead of Guy Rolland, Quebec provincial champion.

Coach Happy Emms reported last night he had more than 40 Cardinals for the St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League at their Port Arthur, Ont., training camp. Two of the promising puck-chasers, right-winger Eddie Brown of South Porcupine and defenceman Frank Bowman, are war veterans. Brown had served five years in the Canadian Army and saw action in Europe.

Expect Strike Cavalcade to Build Up On Way

Toronto, Sept. 29 — (CP) — Union officials said Friday a cavalcade of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., strikers coming to Toronto for a mass labor rally next week is expected to build up progressively at other Ontario centres on its way.

Officials said the cavalcade, starting at Windsor, Ont., will drive to Kitchener, where it will be joined by some rubber company workers there. At Guelph, steelworkers are to fall in, and at a mass demonstration in Hamilton, electrical workers from Niagara Falls are to hitch on.

NO-HIT FOWLER NOT TALKATIVE IN CLUBHOUSE

Connie Mack Says Toronto Hurler Has Making of a Great Pitcher

By J. HERBERT ALTSCHULL

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 —(AP)— No-hit Fowler is also no-talk Fowler, says Connie Mack, veteran pilot of Philadelphia Athletics, the first American Leaguer to pitch a no-hit, no-run baseball game since April, 1940.

Dick Fowler, a tall, solidiy-built Torontonian, turned the trick Sept. 9 against the 1944 league champions, St. Louis Browns.

"He's a quiet chap," said Mr. Mack, "and he very seldom speaks. But he's mighty nice out there on the mound."

Said Fowler: "I'm a pretty lucky guy, I guess."

Fowler's "luck" began when Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League took him from a Toronto high school. The "luck" continued when Mack paid $10,000 "just on a chance" to get Fowler, then 20, from Toronto in August, 1941.

He won his first major league start, 3-1, tossing a seven-hitter against Chicago White Sox Sept. 13, 1941.

In his first full season in the majors in 1942, Fowler won six games and lost 11. Then in January of 1943, the Canadian Army called him and he was gone from Shibe Park until August, 1945.

He made two appearances in relief and didn't look too impressive. Then came Sept. 9.

The game was a tight pitching battle between Fowler and the Browns' Johnny Miller, who hurled a superb five-hit game in defeat. It was a tough game for Miller to lose, but Fowler deserved to win.

Each tossed scoreless ball until the last half of the ninth when Hal Peck tripled and Irv Hall scored to manufacture the game's only run.

"I'd be a liar," the soft-spoken Canadian said later, "if I said I didn't know I had a no-hitter on the fire. I wasn't worried about that part of it, but I knew all the way I hadn't given them any hits yet."

Fowler's motion looks a lot like that of Chief Bender, Mack said, and added cautiously: "He looks as if he has the makings of a great pitcher."

LESSON NO. 794

The Kibitzer

Whenever Foxy Grandpaw makes a play, he does it with an artlessness disarming. But when the smoke of battle clears away, results to his opponents are alarming.

South became declarer at a three no-trump contract. Then west makes an opening lead of the club jack, how should south figure?

With that lead, he sees a trick in clubs, three top diamonds, two top hearts, two top spades. By giving up a heart trick, there are still enough extra hearts to more than make the contract.

Is there any danger? Yes. West may have a flock of clubs. If a heart finesse loses to east, a club will be returned to west. To prevent this, east must first be drained of clubs.

So, suppose east grabs the first trick with club ace and shoots back that suit. South can afford to wait for the third round before stepping in with his club king.

But when this deal was played, east cleverly played the queen of clubs on the first trick. South was now afraid that west held the ace. He was afraid a club return would ruin the contract right there.

So, south ran with the club king. When the heart finesse lost to east, that canny player took his club ace and led his third club, throwing the bid for a loss. Such is life on the bridge front.

When east foxily covers the jack with the queen, suppose south refuses to go with the king. If east comes back with ace and small, the club suit is blocked. Or if east returns small and south goes with king, east's ace blocks the clubs.

But in the heat of a bridge game, declarer does not know the ace is in west. Not with that kind of a play. Unless he peeked.

Defensive playing teems with fascinating schemes.

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY
(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 29 —(CP)— There is an informal debate going on in the Commons lobbies over who is Canada's youngest member of parliament for all time.

And oddly enough the two claimants for the distinction have surnames with the same letters but in different combination—Auger and Argue.

Youthful Hazen Argue, C.C.F. farmer-member for Wood Mountain in Saskatchewan, was exactly 23 years, five months and five days old when he was elected June 11 but the soldier vote was not received until he was seven days older.

When Louis Mathias Auger was elected Liberal member for Prescott in Ontario Sept. 14, 1926, he was exactly 23 years, five months and 11 days old. He was thus six days older than Argue if only actually polling days are considered, but one day younger if Argue is not considered elected until the soldier's vote confirmation of June 18.

However, it can be argued that by actual day count—taking into account the different number of days in the months between birthdays and election dates—he was eight days younger considering the June 11 date and one day younger considering the June 18 soldier vote date.

Argue, who is among those not taking part in the discussion, rubbed tender bristles on his youthful chin, smiled and said: "Who cares."

Glengarry Man: The Prime Minister is in his most exuberant mood when he's talking his riding. Reporters have followed him to little Glengarry centres like Alexandria, Maxwell and Williamstown and watched him happily disregard his 71 years and mingle with the farmers to exchange banter and generally get into the spirit of the country fair or whatever it is he is visiting.

His impromptu speeches are usually good-humored and the other day at the Maxwell Fair a slightly tipsy lad on the fringe of the crowd provided an accompaniment of cow-mooing for the Prime Minister's opening remarks. Mr. King paused for a moment and then smiled a cool aside: "You hear the most unusual sounds from the stalls of a country fair." He continued speaking amid laughter.

A reporter was recounting this story to Agriculture Minister Gardiner in the lobby and he came up with a little-known story of Mr. King.

He recalled a campaign tour of Saskatchewan in the early 30's when Mr. King was taking in fairs, ball games and pink teas.

At one spot, it was arranged that the "P.M." should actually participate in the opening of a game. The plan was for Mr. Gardiner to pitch and Mr. King to bat.

A worried secretary intervened to say he didn't think the "P.M." had ever played ball but before the program could be re-arranged, Mr. King picked up a couple of bats. He snatched a baseball cap from the head of one of the players and, swinging the bats in professional manner, approached the plate.

Mr. Gardiner, no mean hurler in his day, scorched down a hot one. Mr. King swung and knocked out a line drive that took him safely to first. Arriving at the base Mr. Gardiner said the Prime Minister jumped up and down like a schoolboy and shouted taunts at the pitcher.

TRUMAN BEST MAN?

Miss Violet Heming, well-known English actress, who has played frequently in Canada, will wed former Senator Bennett Champ Clark, according to report. President Truman, it is said, will act as best man, keeping a promise he made while Vice-President, that he would be best man for Clark if he ever remarried. Clark was recently appointed to the U. S. With Canada's Naturalists

Toronto, Sept. 29 —(CP)— A strange, six-legged beetle whose feet look as if it were about to go snow-shoeing picked the perfect spot to be identified when it landed on the window-sill of a Toronto office. It alighted outside The Canadian Press room in which this naturalists' column is written, frightened several editors, but not a girl reporter who captured it.

Described over the telephone to Stuart L. Thompson, well-known Ontario naturalist, as a "strange bug with long horns and big feet," it was identified as a full-grown female sawyer beetle and Mr. Thompson later confirmed the identification of the mottled grey, two-inch beetle.

The sawyer — Monohammus Confusor — is a rarity in any city. Its home is in the pine woods of the north and the CP specimen in all probability came to Toronto with a flat-car of logs and made its way from the nearby railway yards. It has a small head and long antennae.

More deadly than the male, the female sawyer deposits her eggs so that the larvae have immediate access to the sound wood of the pine and other valuable trees. Beginning as a tiny grub, the young sawyer beetle burrows a passage in the tree by eating its way. And as it goes, it grows. Eventually the passage twists and turns like a miniature river, growing wider and deeper in its progress, and often ruins good timber.

If it were not for the pileated woodpecker, which has a special fondness for the sawyer for breakfast, luncheon or dinner, the ravages of the insect would be serious.

When held in the fingers or otherwise aggravated, the beetle bends its head rapidly up and down, a movement which chafes its neck against the body. Result —a low, buzzing sound, not unlike that of a saw heard at a distance. Mr. Thompson managed to have the CP female make the sound before mounting her in his collection with his only other specimen, a male.

Because birds have rarely, if ever, been known to feed on the "King Billy" or Monarch butterfly — the species which migrates southward in the autumn in flocks of thousands — the theory has been generally accepted, that these winged beauties have a bitter and unpleasant taste.

Stuart Thompson wondered how the birds or even the entomologists knew about this bad taste, and decided to make a personal test. "I caught a King Billy and chewed it up," he told a group of field naturalists on a recent hike. "It was neither bitter nor sweet, but had a rather agreeable flavor."

The cracks about the effect of meat rationing on the naturalist lasted for the rest of the hike.

Not much bigger than the business end of a match, the ambush bug, deadly enemy of the bumblebee, lies in ambush on a full-petalled flower to await the bee. As soon as the bee alights the bug strikes with beak and claws and rarely fails to kill although the bee is three times as big as the bug.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
New York, Sept. 29 —(CP)—

First glimmer of hope for the new theatrical season on Broadway was this week's premiere of "You Touched Me," Tennessee Williams' latest opus, based on a short story by the late D. H. Lawrence.

The playwright responsible for the deservedly successful "The Glass Menagerie" has collaborated with Donald Windham to produce a literate drama, with the added advantage of workmanlike acting. The theme is hackneyed — Lawrence now is dated and apparently must wait a few years before his ideas can become "charming" as have those of Sir James Barrie — but the handling is reasonably expert.

Mr. Williams has an unfortunate habit of cluttering up his work with diffuse dialogue which sometimes doesn't ring true— and there is a good deal of this in "You Touched Me." But the suavity of Edmund Gwenn—noted London actor perhaps most famous for his portrayal of Jess Oakroyd in J. B. Priestley's "The Good Companions" — and an excellent supporting cast makes the talk credible.

A horse of a less attractive color was "The Ryan Girl," a melodrama which opened the previous night. The play gave June Havoc — musical comedy star of "Mexican Hayride"—her first dramatic airing on Broadway, and Edmund Lowe—Hollywood heavy — his first New York appearance in 23 years.

Both might have picked a better vehicle for these attempts. One local critic said the show had "about as much pace as an elephant with a lumbar fracture" and the rest backed him up with similar comments.

Once Over Lightly: Lady Charles Cavendish — she was dancer Adele Astaire — arrived in New York on a hasty visit, she ging them to "Give me five minging then to "Give me five minutes to get my pants on" before they came to her hotel suite . . . Another arrival was the courageous Jane Froman, who hobbled off the Queen Elizabeth this week after playing a tough series of singing engagements for the troops in Europe. Miss Froman was injured in an airplane crash in 1943 and since has undergone 18 operations.

HOUSE DEBATES

Want to End Quickly

The year's two appropriations include provision for mutual aid to the Allied countries to the extent of $720,224,000, contributions to U.N.R.R.A. of $63,907,000 on the first levy and $25,000,000 on a second levy agreed on at the recent meeting is London which will be paid if other major countries make the suggested contributions.

Mr. Ilsley said the government desired to end war expenditures as soon as possible and to return to the normal peacetime practice of submitting detailed estimates to parliament to be voted for detail.

(In passing war appropriation bills Parliament leaves the government discretion as to how the money may be spent on various items but peacetime estimates provide specific amounts for specific purposes which cannot be used for other purposes.)

Mr. Ilsley said there still was great difficulty in forecasting expenditures of war departments accurately although not as much gress. Many costs for equipment, services and supplies for the forces still had to be paid and new expenditures to be incurred were largely connected with personnel.

Military Relief Down

Military relief which cost $50,000,000 last year is set down at $34,000,000 this year. Countries receiving supplies through military relief had been requested to pay for them and a large part of the money spent would be recovered.

The Munitions and Supply Department required $282,000,000 this year against actual expenditures of $216,000,000 last year. Main item in this year's cost of that department was $175,000,000 to cover termination of contracts.

Mr. Ilsley said Veterans' Affairs Department estimates covering pensions, hospitalization and rehabilitation benefits were higher than in previous years but did not cover cost of service gratuities and re-establishment credits which were paid under statutory provisions. These latter costs were estimated at $240,000,000.

An amount of $5,000,000 was provided for reconstruction projects. Mr. Ilsley said this was "relatively small" and was intended to cover only costs incurred for the rest of the year on projects not provided for in other departments such as public works and housing.

Remain at High Levels

It was in accord with the general policy which contemplated private construction providing most of the employment necessary and utilizing all the available building materials.

"These are formidable figures," said Mr. Ilsley. "They show that the scale of our financial operations remains at the high levels achieved during the war. They make clear that the task of the Minister of Finance is still a difficult one.

"On the other hand they mask to some extent the decline — the rapid decline — that is already occurring in the government's demands upon goods and services of the community."

Practically all war contracts had been cancelled. Expenditures remaining on these accounts were in settlement of past operations. Armed forces were being demobilized, this month at an average of 2,000 a day.

STARBRIGHT

By Jane Bliss

CHAPTER 4

He grinned when he saw Elaine approaching him. When she stopped before him and looked up, with her face wet from the rain and her eyes bright and clear, he looked at her for a long and thoughtful minute.

"If I could think of pretty words to say," he said softly, "I'd probably tell you that you're the prettiest girl in all New York."

Elaine's heart beat rapidly and she tried to keep her voice even. "You ought to be a writer, mister. That's very good."

"That's very corny and you know it." He laughed, took her arm and guided her up the street. "Let's walk."

They were silent for most of that block. Finally Elaine asked: "How's the new play coming? Any assorted thoughts I might be interested in?"

"A few," he nodded. "But let's not talk about it now."

"Well— All right," Elaine said uncertainly. Usually Lee wanted to talk about the start of a new play, ramble on for hours, get the disconnected thoughts out of his mind, ask her for comments, then listen while she picked up a thread of the plot and continued the building. That was how they always got started.

Lee broke the added silence. "How's Karen?"

"Asleep when I left her."

He frowned. "The little business at Warren's office was a disappointment to her, poor kid. We've sort of got to help her over the rough spots, you know."

Elaine started to answer, bit her lip instead. It would no no good to quarrel with Lee about Karen. She knew the other girl might not be able to take the rough spots, as he called them, but it would not be because she was unable to, but because she would have no heart for a struggle of any sort. She wanted to tell him that when the easy way out appeared, Karen would jump at it.

Elaine studied Lee's face. It was deep in concentration. "She—she means a lot to our success, doesn't she, Lee?" Those were test words for Elaine. They were meant to draw forth an answer from Lee that would tell her just how much Karen meant to him.

"She means everything, Elaine," he answered, almost reverently. "She'll be a wonderful actress one day. She's very good now for the experience she's had. She can almost make a play successful. Have you ever watched her on the stage?" He had turned to look at Elaine. "I mean, really watched her. She's got poise, she knows what to do with her hands, how to hold her head, how to use her voice. She can even walk across the stage without making it seem like a motionless hour filled with silence. She's got heart and feeling, Elaine. She's beautiful up there. She's a beautiful girl."

His eyes seemed glued to an unseen something in the distance, and Elaine knew that he was not even aware that she was walking beside him in the rain. She felt the cold, sickening, depressing feeling grip her as she discovered that Lee was in love with Karen.

"You love her, don't you, Lee?"

The question did not seem to startle him. "I don't think it's love, Elaine. It's not the same feeling or affection I have for you. But it's something. I guess maybe I'm in love with her acting."

"I see," Elaine answered slowly.

They walked on in silence, pausing for traffic, turning a corner every now and then so that they were making a circle. She looked up at the sky, saw the sun peering through the gray, thick clouds. The rain was softer now and soon it would stop, she thought. Stop just as her heart seemed to; just as the closeness that had been between Lee and her had stopped existing.

There was Karen now, standing between them. Beautiful, brilliant Karen taking Lee from her, and she knew it would do no good to fight it. Only she thought maybe she should, and it bothered her because there was no angry emotion inside her toward Karen. Merely a dead space, merely the inner feeling that forces a shrug of one's shoulders. It hardly seemed right to let her take Lee so easily.

She turned to him. "I don't like another woman entering our cozy little life, fella." Her gray eyes were serious and the firmness of her chin made her lips tremble.

Lee laughed and gripped her hand. "Who says Karen's taking me from you?"

"It's something I know, something inside me. I should hate her for it, Lee. But I don't. If that's what you want. . ."

He stopped walking, turned her to face him. "Look, Elaine, when I say Karen is beautiful I mean that. When I say there is something I feel about her, I mean that, too. But I didn't say I was going to run off with Karen at 6:35 in the morning for parts unknown, did I?" He laughed again, this time a little shakily. "I sort of need you."

Lee turned away and looked at the people passing them. Elaine did not know if he was thinking how his last words must sound. Perhaps he hadn't thought of "needing" her in the strict sense of a play collaborator at all. Perhaps he still loved her.

She listened to the squish of her shoes against the wet sidewalk, her hands plunged deeply in her coat pockets.

He hadn't said he loved Karen, that was true, her thoughts rambled on. But he hadn't said he loved her, either.

She watched the green light blink to orange, then to red, and she stood silently on the curb with Lee. And for the first time since she had known him she wondered if he really loved anyone, if there was anyone who mattered to him as much as his desire for success.

The light turned green again and she moved off into the pressing traffic.

Karen was yawning and stretching her arms high above her head. A few stray strands of blond hair were sprayed across her cheek. She looked lovely and inviting, half curled at the end of the studio couch. Her smile to Lee was wide and pleasant.

"I'm hungry," she said. Elaine shrugged off her coat and nodded toward the kitchenette.

"We'll start with soup," Elaine said.

Lee folded his lanky body in one of the chintz covered chairs by the bookcase. "They tell me you begin 'starting with soup' when you're down to your last dime."

"Why wait until then?" Elaine was tying an apron around her slim body. Karen made no move. She was looking idly at Lee, her long lashes half sweeping her cheeks. Elaine walked into the tiny kitchenet and began the meal.

It was when they were smoking their cigarets after the meal that Karen turned to Lee with enthusiasm in her voice and said: "Let's do something tonight."

"Like what?" Lee dipped ashes into the saucer of his coffee cup and Elaine shoved an ash tray in front of him. He did not seem to notice the gesture. He was staring at Karen, his eyes thoughtful.

"Oh, like going to a night club and seeing people. Going to places we've read about where there are bright lights and stuff like that."

"You've read too much," Elaine said abruptly. "And anyway, bright lights and stuff like that cost a pretty penny in old New York town. We don't have many pennies and they're not very pretty."

Karen frowned. "Don't be a wet blanket, Elaine. You don't plan to stay cooped up in this hole forever, do you?"

Elaine rose and began clearing the drop-leaf table that was taking up most of the room in the combination living room-dining room-bedroom. "No, not forever. But there is a play to write. After our first million, we'll take the forty-cent tour of the town."

Karen snuffed out her cigaret furiously and stood up and dug her hands into the pockets of her blue slacks.

"Well, what am I supposed to do?" she whined. "Sit around here until you write the Great American Drama?"

Lee stood up and put his hand on her arm. "Take it easy, baby." He turned to Elaine. "Karen's right. We can't hole ourselves up. We're too young. I'd like a little fun myself."

The blood in Elaine froze, standing there between the kitchenet and the living room, her hands loaded with dishes. "I suppose you think I wouldn't." Her voice was hardly above a whisper. Lee's face darkened with a deep flush.

Elaine turned to the kitchenet and dumped the dishes noisily in the sink. "We've got to get jobs first, all of us."

She did not see Lee's brows shoot up. "But I thought it was agreed that I spend all my time getting the play ready?"

She turned and examined Lee's face for a long moment. "All right. I guess you should." Then she turned on the faucet and filled the dishpan, watching the soapsuds belligerently.

"I think I'll wear my new satin tonight," she heard Karen murmur and there was a rustle from the stiff material of the dress. She heard an appreciative mumble from Lee. She heard the pitched cry of a hungry baby on the next floor. The blare of a horn from a passing car; the deep, constant roar of the elevated trains; the rush that was the mixture of distant words and footsteps. There was a radio and the shallow echo of somebody singing.

"Come on and lissen tooo The lullaby of Broadway-y-y. . ."

She turned and saw Karen placing her arms around Lee's neck, pressing her lips against his and kissing him with a careless fierceness.

* * *

It had seemed a long time since the mail box on the corner had swallowed up "Golden Night" and shipped it to the offices of Anthony Brann, W. 42nd Street.

In that interval Elaine had gotten a job at a small radio station where everybody was new and not very experienced in the youthful field. She wrote scripts for a women's ready-to-wear house.

Also in that interval Karen was using her fine figure as a model in a Park Avenue shop, and in the back row of the chorus in a second-rate musical comedy.

Lee had completed all but the final scene of the play for John Warren.

And in that interval, too, Lee had taken Karen to many gay places. That he was forced to occasionally take money from Karen, and sometimes Elaine, did not seem to make him uncomfortable. Neither did it bother Karen, for the bright lights were food and drink to her and she did not seem to mind paying for them sometimes.

It only made Elaine a little sad and at nights, when the apartment was in a hushed blackness and the street outside as nearly quiet as it would ever be in a thousand years, she would wonder how many more times Karen had pressed herself to Lee with kisses that were deep and meaningful.

She did not cry any more during those dark passages of night. It was three months since she had turned and watched Lee's arms slowly fold around Karen's waist and return her kiss. It was nearing Christmas and the sidewalks had that scraped-off, icy look and the gutters were thick with dirty, crusted snow that sometimes melted to slush and sometimes hardened to ice.

Huey Long had been dead three months and his killer, whose body had been drilled with 61 bullets, would never realize his dream of being a great doctor. A young lawyer named Dewey was gaining fame by sending well-known racketeers to prison. And "Tobacco Road" was about to create a sensation on Broadway.

The year of 1935 was drawing to a close, and so were many of Elaine's dreams.

Only the hope imbedded in "Golden Night" did not dissolve. And Anthony Brann never gave it the chance.

It was a cold, gray morning when Elaine slipped out of the apartment and skipped downstairs to the front hall where the little letter slots were. She had her robe wrapped tightly around her and unfinished sleep dredged her eyelids. She had worked late the night before and in another two hours she was due at the radio station again. She yawned widely and for a moment could not see the lettering on the fine bonded envelope she held. When her eyes focused and she read Anthony Brann's name in the upper left corner, she stared at it unbelievingly.

She slit the envelope open and read the short note inside three times, not feeling the cold draft in the hall. Then she turned and slowly walked up the flight of stairs to dress for her appointment with Anthony Brann, W. 42nd Street, about a play called "Golden Night."

Anthony Brann, the letter said, wanted to buy the play. Elaine felt faint and very happy.

Elaine did not really know if Anthony Brann's offices were so elegant as they seemed. It was only the sharp contrast with the dingy rooms of John Warren's that formed in her mind. She was scared and when she felt the warmth of Lee's hand close over hers while they waited in the quiet of the oak-finished reception room, there was a strong desire to sob with happiness.

Lee's entire manner tried to speak of confidence, but he fidgeted in the leather chair and he smoked endless cigarets. Karen casually flipped pages of a magazine, her eyes staring ahead at the paneled door marked: Mr. Brann.

When the cool looking receptionist turned off the soft buzzing from the interoffice phone and nodded to them, they rose and filed singly into the luxurious office of Anthony Brann.

He was short, a little fat, but the muscles in his face were strong and his eyes were quick, a little whimsical. He had graying hair, what was left of it, and a deep, educated voice. He had never been inside a college as a student, but he was polished with intelligence and his son was always proud of him when he visited at Princeton. He was wealthy and successful and kept the walls of his office free of pictures other than two huge oil paintings of a woman and a young girl who were his wife and daughter. His wide, rich mahogany desk, with its leather trimmed blotter placed carefully in the centre, looked busy yet neat.

Everything about Anthony Brann looked busy and neat.

He motioned them into deep leather chairs with wide, rounded arms that were always found in expensive and exclusive men's clubs. He leaned back in his own chair, took off the rimless, pince-nez glasses. Elaine saw the two tiny red imprints on each side of the bridge of his nose. Brann rubbed them with his thumb and forefinger in a gesture of habit. Then he smiled, his eyes friendly and still alert.

"Mr. Collins," he began abruptly, "you and Miss Grayson—" and he looked over the edges of his glasses at Elaine and then at Karen. "Which is Miss Grayson?" Lee nodded to Elaine and Brann swept her with a pleasant smile. Then he looked at Lee again.

"You and Miss Grayson have written a fine play. It needs but a trifle smoothing here and there, but it should be a fine success on Broadway."

"You mean—you mean you want to produce it?" Lee stammered.

"Of course," Brann smiled. "What other reason did you have in mind when you sent me the play?" He tapped the script book on the desk

"Miss Grayson sent it. I didn't know anything about it," Lee said, almost to himself as if thinking about the whole thing. Then he sat erect in his chair and brightened. "You really want to produce it?"

"I should be most happy—and fortunate—to produce it."

The room spun around before Elaine's eyes. She gripped the massive arms of the leather chair and took a deep breath. Brann's features blurred and she felt like giggling. What she really did was to ask quietly: "What financial agreements do you usually make?"

Brann glanced at her with a tinge of admiration in his eyes and quickly explained his contract forms and the royalty percentages plus initial payments. The money they would make and could expect to make would not be tremendous, unless the play had a long run or a good movie sale. But it was satisfactory. Elaine said so.

"Good," Brann answered. "You know, I've been thinking seriously of casting Frances Foster in the lead role."

Lou Skuce and Wife Escape Asphyxiation

Toronto, Sept. 28 — (CP)—Lou Skuce, well-known cartoonist, and his wife were removed to hospital early today after they had been discovered unconscious from the effects of coal-gas fumes in their North Toronto home.

Mrs. Skuce recovered after emergency treatment but Skuce's condition was more serious and he was kept in hospital under observation.

Police said that Mrs. Skuce possibly saved the lives of her husband and herself. She awakened to find her husband unconscious and the room filled with fumes. She managed to reach a telephone and summon police.

Hospital Upkeep Provincial Duty Says Donald Clarke

Hamilton, Sept. 29 —(CP)— Upkeep of hospitals should be wholly a provincial government responsibility Acting Mayor Donald Clarke said, discussing a request of the local hospital board for additional appropriations of $35,000 this year.

Pointing out that total hospital receipts had increased $70,000 to date this year, the Acting Mayor said it was still necessary to provide additional appropriations as an increased number of patients meant bigger increases in operating costs.

Six Polish Girls Plotted to Blast Gas Chamber

Lueneburg, Sept. 28 — Six Polish girls once plotted to blow up the Oswiecim concentration camp's infamous gas chamber and crematorium but four of them were found out and hanged, a Polish Jewess testified.

Lydia Sonszaja, 13th witness in the trial, said: "The Germans couldn't find the fifth girl and I was the sixth."

The witness said the six girls worked in the camp's powder factory and managed to steal enough explosive to blow up the gas chamber, where thousands were put to death. They also stole wire cutters to get through the surrounding fence but their plan was discovered a few days before they could execute it.

"UNEMPLOYED"

Earl Browder, former Communist leader, testifying before the House Un-American Activities Committee, in Washington, D.C., said he was no longer a party leader and as a matter of fact, he said, "I am not active." He is out of a job as well. He said he could not furnish any documents pertaining to the Communist party of the United States, revived in July, 1945.

Swears Kramer At Many of Gas Chamber Parades

Lueneburg, Germany, Sept. 28. (CP)—Accusations were levelled against Peter Weingartner, one of 45 members of the personnel of Osweicim and Belsen Concentration camps, when the trial of camp guards for atrocities today went into its 11th day here.

Lydia Sonszajn, a Lublin Jewess, told how Weingartner was in charge of 1,000 girls and women employed digging sand from the Vistula river.

"I was sent there as a forewoman but as I didn't beat the girls, I was punished by being made to work in the river with water up to my knees", she said. "There was a steep hill and dogs were set on the women to make them run up the hill. . ."

Turning to Joseph Kramer, commandant of the Belsen Camp, Miss Sonszajn, said she recognized him as having been present at many of the gas chamber parades along with others of the accused when prisoners were culled out to be sent to their deaths.

The witness told how Kramer had punished a group of Russian girls for stealing bread by forcing them to kneel in the rain in front of their barracks for 24 hours without food.

It was learned when the trial resumed today that Frau Rosina Kramer, wife of the camp leader, will be called as a defence witness on behalf of her husband.

Lt.-Col. F. G. Champion, called to describe the procedure of collecting affidavits from Concentration camp victims, said photographs of S.S. men and women were shown to former prisoners for identification.

426 Canadians From POW Camps Now at Guam

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

Guam, Sept. 26 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — A contingent of 426 Canadians liberated from prison camps in Japan was at Guam Navy base today, awaiting transportation home. An additional 340 Canadians already have passed through Guam, homeward bound by sea and air.

All in this large group and 28 more who came from Japan to the Northern Marianas outpost of Saipan have been handled by the United States Navy, receiving generous and complete care. Another 150 Canadians who left Nagasaki in Japan a few days ago by ship may also be brought to Guam although a possible alternative destination is Manila.

With hundreds of other liberated prisoners of war, the Canadians are accommodated here in navy hospitals where those who need it get the best medical care and all have everything they want in the way of food. One navy officer on the hospital staff said by the time the prisoners get home they probably will be as fit as they ever were.

There are plenty of magazines through which the prisoners are catching up on the news, generous issues of cigarets, soft drinks and beer. The hospitals are surrounded by palm trees on a peninsula looking out on the sea. They are within two or 3 miles of airfields from which Superfortresses struck at Japan.

The prisoners have nothing but good words for their reception, which is really a welcome. They all have been able to send cables to their next-of-kin, although unfortunately they have received no mail, which has been directed from Canada to the Manila reception organization for released prisoners. It is likewise impossible for them to draw money, distribution of which is centred in Manila, but the American Red Cross is giving every prisoner $5.

Those awaiting transportation include Cpl. James Axford, who says he is the only person from St. Thomas, Ont., who knows what the Japanese are like.

Ration Restrictions On Farm Machines Lifted by Board

Ottawa, Sept. 28. (CP)—The Prices Board had good news for Canadian farmers today.

It announced the lifting of all ration restrictions on farm machinery and equipment including tractors but said dealers would be expected to honor outstanding ration certificates before filling orders from new accounts.

All production restrictions on farm machinery and equipment were lifted August 20 and while no immediate substantial increase in production was expected, the industry was planning progressively to increase production as manpower and materials became available, the Board said.

It was expected that in the current production year the supplies available to Canadian consumers would be 20 per cent greater than in the previous year. While this would not meet all demands, the Board believed implement dealers would be able to look after the most essential requirements.

Centenary

Centenary — The annual S. S. Rally Day service was held at the church on Sunday with a good attendance.

In the absence of Rev. Mr. McCallum the superintendent of the Sunday School Mr. Edgar Ray presided, assisted by Mr. Reg Edmonson and Mr. Holton, others taking part in the program were Miss Anita Calvert, Miss Barbara Radford, Ted Aikens, Orvill Radford, Douglas Harder and Fred Edmonson. There was special music by the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Turner and Mr. and Mrs. John Hager from Marlette, Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Townsend of Halloway were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison on Thursday Sept. 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Townsend and Joyce of Halloway had tea on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison.

The community extend a hearty welcome to all the boys from the district who have recently returned home from overseas, among them being Harold Sutherland, Rosco Cummings, Alex Glover.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Garrison and Bobbie of Belleville, spent the tea hour with Mr. and Mrs. H. Garrison on Saturday.

The Red Cross met at the home of Mrs. E. Hart with a fair attendance, much business was transacted and plans made for the fall and winter.

Mrs. Hart served dainty refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Kayser of Belleville, spent the tea hour on Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Holton and family.

The members of the Y.P.U. enjoyed a hamburg roast in the woods at Mr. Edgar Ray's, on Saturday evening.

Miss Doris Aikens entertained several friends at a corn and wiener roast at her home one evening recently.

Several from here attended the auction sale on Wednesday at Mr. Gerald Brickman's, 2nd line.

Congratulations to LAC. Chas. Huffman and Mrs. Huffman (nee Mary Roblin) who have a baby daughter.

Termites Spread Out So Reports State

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP)—Termites—real or imaginary— have spread out since their initial discovery in Toronto to encompass a good part of the city's territory, if all reports reaching city hall are true.

Following discovery that terare in the north mites had infected a four-block area in the northeastern section, Mayor Saunders suggested anyone finding a colony should tell the building department. Since then, reports have come in from more than 30 districts, some of them suburban.

DROWNS CAT IN MILK

Abergavenny, Wales — (CP) — Richard Devies, 19, who drowned a cat in a milk churn, was told by the magistrates, "We are sorry the law will not allow us to mete out the same punishment to you." Davies was sentenced to serve a month in prison and pay 10 shillings ($2.25) for making four gallons of milk unfit for human consumption.

FOUR FIREMEN INJURED

Toronto, Sept. 29—(CP)—Four firemen were injured and two people were rescued by aerial ladder from their fourth-floor apartment early Friday when fire of unknown origin broke out in the basement of the Labor Temple in downtown Toronto. Damage was estimated at $1,200.

Three firemen were overcome by smoke and the fourth had glass splinters removed from his hands.

MAY BE EXPELLED

London, Sept. 29 —(Reuters)— Germany is to be expelled from membership in the International Shipping Federation when that body resumes its meetings this week after a six-year interval, it was announced. Fourteen countries were represented at the gathering

ATOMIC DEFENCES?

Suggesting decentralization of industries and urban populations and the provision of shelters in abandoned mine shafts, a bill to create a committee of scientists and others to recommend defences against atomic bomb attack was introduced in Washington, by Representative Leslie C. Arends of Illinois (above.) Rep. Arends said the atomic bomb has made Washington, New York, Chicago and Detroit the most dangerous spots on earth.

NOTABLE ENGAGEMENT

London — (Reuters) — The Earl of Kimberley's engagement to Miss Diana Evelyn Legh, only daughter of Lt.-Col. Hon. Piers Legh, equerry to the King, and Lady Legh, has been announced. An officer in the Grenadier Guards he succeeded to the title on the death of his father in an air raid in April, 1941.

CEYLON PLANS CENSUS

Colombo — (CP) — The Colonial Office has informed the Ceylon government of its interest in the plan to carry out a population census in 1946. Ceylon has had no census taken since 1931 and that proposed in 1946 will also cover agriculture and industry.

Ilsley Budget Likely Before Opening of Loan

Ottawa, Sept. 28 —(CP)— Finance Minister Ilsley is understood to have decided to bring down the budget some days before the new victory loan campaign opening Oct. 22.

He is planning a tour of Western Canada in connection with the loan, so much of the actual debate on the budget is likely to be delayed until he gets back.

The appropriation bill to cover expenditures on war and rehabilitation, totalling $1,365,000,000, will be introduced by resolution in the Commons today. This amount is to cover expenditures from Sept. 1 to March 31 next. A vote for $2,000,000,000 was passed in the last session to cover the first five months of the fiscal year.

The general opinion seems to be that Mr. Ilsley will decide against making any important changes affecting this year's incomes but the reductions he proposes will start with the new year on salaries, wages and other incomes.

Mr. Ilsley will announce the date of the budget in the Commons, either today or next week, and forecasts are the date will be in the week of Oct. 8 to Oct. 15.

HOUSING ON POINT BASIS

Bagshot, Surrey, England—(CP) —There were 261 applicants for one vacant house here. The council decided to do it on a points basis — 10 points for military service, five for wife, five for each child, five for each five years of local residence.

WAS FRIEND OF QUEEN

Glasgow, Scotland — (CP) — Lady Helen Violet Graham, 66, who had been in the Queen's service since Her Majesty first became Duchess of York, died at Auchmas, Drymen, Glasgow. She was the eldest daughter of the 5th Duke of Montrose.

AIDS RANGOON POWS

HOW TO COMBAT
Rheumatic Pains

Rheumatic pains are often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing excruciating pains. Treat rheumatic pains by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Take regularly Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite kidney remedy. 109

What a load off my mind

I've been slaving for years and getting nowhere. But yesterday, I was shown how to put my affairs on a "sure-fire" basis. No wonder I feel carefree and happy!

Now, regardless of what happens to me, Connie is guaranteed a decent income as long as she lives. The children will get a good education. I'll have money to retire on and a monthly cheque if I should become totally disabled. Perfect, I'd say!

I'm certainly convinced that life insurance is great stuff and that London Life representatives know their business.
